A man or woman with virile religious convictions is often called narrow by the thin, shadowy, spineless, creedless manikins who are palming themselves off on the world as real folks. Liberalism evaporates personality until it is of tissue-paper thinness and soap-bubble content. Modernism is eternally harping on its all-out-of-doors breadth. Its advocates travel in circles and never arrive. The mountain pass is not as wide as the shadow of the cloud that sweeps over the Alpine heights, but it is the road through the pass that leads to the flower fields and orchards beyond.—"The Seven Finalities of Faith," by A. Dreamers and Doers

THERE are some smart but unthinking individuals who sometimes draw odious comparisons between dreamers and doers, the implication being that it is impossible to be both at the same time. Such a conclusion may have been warranted at one time in the world's history, but I don't think it would be difficult to prove that it is without any substantial foundation now.

At one time the dreamer dreamed with his eyes shut and he talked in his sleep. The superior man, the doer, happened to be awake and overheard what the dreamer was saying, and in a double sense he became the "doer." He capitalized the dream and pocketed all the proceeds. It is getting more difficult for such "doers" to "put it over" the dreamers in that way. Most of the dreamers now dream with their eyes open and never talk in their sleep. At the psychological moment they very wisely capitalize their dreams and come in for their share of the profits.

Here is a short list of dreamers, all of whom have demonstrated that the dreamer can also be a doer: Fulton, Bell, Morse, Edison, Marconi, Steinmetz, Pulitzer. Their dreams materialized into industrial revolutions that have thrown progress and development into higher gear.

Look back over the long past and you will see that it has always been true that the wheels of progress have been designed and cast by dreamers, and dreamers keep them lubricated and running.

If Columbus had not been a dreamer he would never have been a doer and the discoverer of the New World. For his dreams he had to face the coarse jests of the rabble, and even suffered imprisonment. The trouble with some men is that they lack the faith and the courage to face the mob and fight for their dreams.

The most profitable and progressive business in the world today is that of dreaming, but it is never the product of men who put their feet on a desk and look languidly at office walls. In the eyes of every real dreamer there is fire. He is no slouch. He stands erect with his head thrown back. Come up against him and you will discover that he has personality and an unconquerable will. This combination gives him power to bring things to pass. Don't think that he is perfect! He has just enough faults to make good ballast. But he wins while others remain on the waiting list.

It is no exaggeration to say that there is no commodity in the market so much in demand and so hard to buy as good dreamers. There are more than a thousand and one comotose concerns waiting the magic touch of a dreamer to set them on the road to success. May 1929 give us an increasing number of dreamers who will make their dreams come true. —A. F.

I see a party of men travelling together; they are not soldiers on the march, but a small company of apparently humble individuals, and they are without equipages or servants. They have evidently an object in view and a place towards which they are wending their way. They have come some distance from a northerly direction, and now I observe they turn eastwards between two regions whose inhabitants appear to be not very kindly disposed towards each other. Here are a few small dwellings, in one of which perhaps our travellers may rest, and yet possibly their presence may not be welcome in the place. See! a group of men have noted their approach and loud cries fill the air. Are these the scouts of an army ready to seize the newcomers, or have they appeared on the scene to welcome the travellers? Their cries suddenly cease as they listen to a reply that comes from the quarter of the men who are approaching, and then the whole party —or almost all—proceed simultaneously in an opposite direction without saying another word to the new arrivals.

The interest in the Pen Pictures of Bible History is very encouraging and shows that many people are reading them. Last week's was taken from Acts 16:9-11. It was discovered by some of our readers before going to press.

The present picture has been taken from the Gospel according to St. Luke. —A. F.

Think of This

BECAUSE justice seems to wink men suppose her blind; because she delays punishment they imagine she denies to punish them; because she does not always reprove them for their sins, they suppose she always approves of their sins. But let such know, that the silent arrow can destroy as well as the roaring cannon. Though the patience of God be lasting it is not everlasting.

Children's Corner

TELL US A STORY

MANY years ago some British newspapers related a very interesting happening which had in it a lesson by which even children might profit. It shows how deep and true human sympathy may be. One day a hearse was observed ascending the steep Rue de Clichy on its way to Montmartre, bearing a coffin of poplar wood with its cold corpse. Not a single mourner followed; not even the living dog of the dead man, if he had one. The day was rainy and dismal; passers-by lifted the hat, as is usual when a funeral passes; and that was all. At length it passed two English navvies, who found themselves in Paris on their way from Spain. A right feeling spoke from beneath their serge jackets. "Poor wretch!" said one to the other; "no one follows him; let us two follow." And the two took off their hats, and walked bareheaded after the corpse of a stranger to the cemetery of Montmartre.

Defy

Out! Time, old harridan! I loath thee, hag!
This fair, this smooth, this firmly rounded flesh,
This warm and perfumed breath, this joyous smile,
Must thou with clutching talons tear in spite,
In maddened spite that thou no more may'st see
Such glorious spring of youth and loveliness?
Out! old, toothless crone! Thy leathered gums
Might murmur prayers instead of imprecations
Against the one good thing that man retains
In all his foolish stumblings through a maze
Of yearning, silly curses, mad defeat,
And death!

Where is all thy crazy clawing
Finally? For on a quiet evening—
The sun a benediction in the west,
A glorious, dying wonder—have I seen
Gray hairs aglint; a tear that was a pearl;
A fine, brave smile that changed Futility,
And thou—poor, simpering, cowering, craven Time!—
Into the radiance of Eeternity.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1928

WIEL TAKE CARE OF ITSELF.

Any objection that is being raised in regard to the gas purchase bylaw seems to be founded on the impression that the purchase of the utility by the city will increase the citizens' tax bills.

Every member of the City Council, after careful consideration of the question, is satisfied that the transaction can be completed without any cost to the people of Peterborough, that the gas plant will pay for itself from the start.

The Chamber of Commerce is of a similar opinion.

Among its executives there is not one who has any fear of increased tax bills from the purchase of the gas plant.

All the available data, all the reports of the operation of the plant by the Hydro-Electric Commission, show that the annual surplus has been sufficient to meet all charges and leave a surplus.

If under city management no better showing is made the deal will take care of itself—and there is no reason why the utility cannot be operated even more successful by the city than it has been by the Commission.

Peterborough acquired her waterworks and power distribution plant without adding a cent to the tax bills, and the gas plant can be added in the same way.

IS WORKING WELL.

The fact that several visitors to Peterborough have been fined for failing to bring their automobiles to a full stop before entering a through street serves to call attention to the general compliance with this bylaw and its splendid success as a factor in preventing accidents.

The Examiner, which long pressed for the introduction of the stop street plan, is satisfied that the majority of drivers would not want to go back to the haphazard practices prevailing before the introduction of this safety measure.

There were many motorists who contended that there was no need of such regulations in Peterborough, that they would prove an unjustifiable nuisance to drivers, and in general, that the agitation to adopt a plan for lessening traffic hazards at busy intersections was so much poppycock.

The system has been given a thorough trial, and the results have justified its adoption.

It has lessened collision risks, made conditions safer for pedestrians and more comfortable for drivers, and The Examiner is confident that were a plebiscite to be taken among car-owners the vote would show a big majority in favor of the retention of the stop street plan.

And the system would be even more effective if drivers on through streets did not accept is as an invitation to drive too fast.

MAKE YOUR VOTE COUNT.

The Examiner has heard no opposition voiced to the bylaw providing a fixed assessment for ten years for the Johnson Outboard Motors.

Apparently those citizens who have given any thought to the proposal are convinced that the concession is justified in view of what Peterborough gains through the acquisition of this fine industry.

The feeling that the manufacture of outboard motors is still in its infancy so far as the development of its market is concerned, and that the Johnson Company occupies a most advantageous position in its field, leads to confidence that the local plant will rapidly expand and give employment to many workers, with general benefit to Peterborough.

This confidence seems to be general, but there is more to be done than merely deciding that the bylaw should be supported.

It is necessary to vote as well as to approve, and The Examiner hopes that ratepayers who believe the passing of the bylaw is good business for this city will not be satisfied to leave the duty of passing it to others, but will themselves turn out and use their franchise on Tuesday.

To help pin down in Peterborough an industry offering so much promise as this particular concern is a splendid way in which to start the New Year.

WHY IT IS BEING SOLD.

The question has been asked as to why the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario should be anxious to sell the local gas plant if it has been making money.

The answer, of course, is that the Hydro Commission has no desire to handle anything but the sale of power, the purpose for which it was created.

When the Central Ontario power system was taken over a number of other utilities, including gas plants in Peterborough, Cobourg and Oshawa, a pulp mill at Campbellford and the Peterborough street railway, came into the hands of the Commission at the same time.

There never was any intention of operating these sidelines any longer than was absolutely necessary, and for some time the system has been in process of being unscrambled in order that the Commission might concern itself exclusively with the power business.

That explains the decision to sell the local gas plant, which has been offered Peterborough at a reasonable price and under most favorable terms.

If this fair offer is rejected the Commission will proceed to sell the plant to a private company, which would, of course, also come into possession of the Peterborough Gas Company's original franchise.

The Commission is not trying to "put anything over" on Peterborough, but merely giving this city a chance to acquire a valuable utility.

THE OLD LADY THAT IS LONDON.

London sprawls across into four counties, and within her miles of streets and buildings, there are some of the most beautiful things in the world—and seven million people. Seven million people—nearly as many as in all Canada—swarming round and about in this colossal city; and yet, like an old lady who has grown a little old-fashioned in her ideas; who is fussy and likes to stick to the "things she is used to," she allows Gas to be one of her main sources of illumination and heat. She has inflammable coal-gas in thousands of pipes running through the soil just beneath her vast surface; in many districts gas is the sole illuminant, and heat bringer. And these pipes can be punctured by a careless workman! As shown last week, London is in danger of being blown sky-high at any moment.

Seventeen miles from London — London, England, mark you—there is a village which has no drainage system, no gas, no electricity, no cinemas; a village three miles from the nearest railroad station, and yet without 'buses.

This is England. Shakespeare's "precious stone set in the silver sea." The heart of a great Empire. Canada would not tolerate such backwardness, either in its capital, or in its smallest town. England can do so, and yet remain a great nation; London can cling to customs out of date before Canada became a nation, and yet remain the brains of a quarter of the globe. Both capital and country can do things which in other places would meet with scorn, and yet retain an affection, which is often also respect. How? Why?

"Granny, you are old-fashioned. Grandmother London, wake up. Clean yourself. Pull down some of your houses. Build something modern, and up to date. Look at us. We're clean and smart," cry the cities this side. But London only folds her mittens closer together, and smiles; and, because she is very old, and really very wise, she keeps our respect and affection.—Ottawa Free Press.

THE LEGEND OF THE NORSEMEN.

Scientific investigation is not always the dry-as-dust affair that many people think it is. Sometimes, as the records show, it is found to contain the essence of a really exquisite humor. Away back in the latter part of the eighteenth century quite a commotion was caused among English antiquaries by the discovery in Northumberland of a stone bearing a strange inscription. Examination by the members of a learned society led to the conclusion that the lettering was in Latin, and that in all probability the stone was a relic of the days of Roman occupation. But the erudite investigators were made to look foolish when a common clodhopper pointed out that the mysterious inscription really said, "Keep on this side."

Sir Walter Scott undoubtedly had this story in mind when he wrote "The Antiquary" and introduced the scene in which the sage Jonathan Oldbuck, learnedly expatiating upon what he conceived to be the remains of an old Roman praetorium, is confounded by the contemptuous interruption of Edie Ochiltree, "Praetorian here, praetorian there, I mind the biggin o't."

Something of the same ludicrous reaction is suggested by the report which has just been issued by an American body of scientists in relation to a much discussed phase of the early exploration and discovery of this continent. Though never fully and authentically established, the theory has long been entertained that, centuries before the landing of Columbus, America was discovered and, in places, occupied, by the Norsemen. What may be history, or may be mythology, credits them with having inhabited Greenland and Labrador as far back as the eleventh century. Later, they are believed by some authorities to have found their way south to what they called Vineland, and is now New England, and they are even supposed to have penetrated as far as the latitude of the Carolinas.

As evidence in support of these claims, traces of pre-historic Norse settlement have, from time to time been reported, among them the remains of what was supposed to be a Norse habitation on Sculpin Island near Nain on the Labrador coast. Here, it was thought, was convincing proof that the worshippers of Thor and Woden had invaded the New World long before the advent of Columbus. But, alas, and alack for lovers of the antique and romantic, a recent investigation, conducted on behalf of the Chicago Field Museum by the Rawson-MacMillan sub-Arctic expedition, has revealed the prosaic fact that, far from being the vestiges of a settlement of Scandinavian sea-Kings, the ruins on Sculpin Island are merely those of an Eskimo whaling camp, part of which appears to have been a depository for blubber. Thus is legend punctured by the scalpel of the modern scientific debunker.

Yet the theory of the Norse descent will survive. Indeed, the Chicago investigators are gracious enough to admit that, in spite of the Labrador disillusionment, the question of Scandinavian priority in the discovery of America remains unsettled. Further research in other directions might yield more definite results. It is recalled that some 60 years ago, what was regarded as striking confirmation of the Northmen's claims came to light on the banks of the Potomac River.

A few years previously, a saga bearing the date of 1117, and purporting to be a history of the discovery of Vineland, had been discovered among the ruins of the ancient college at Skalholt in Iceland. Examination of the manuscript by experts suggested a resemblance between certain geographical features mentioned by the ancient chronicler and those of the Potomac valley. An investigation by a distinguished Danish antiquarian followed, and in due course a rock was discovered, not far from Washington, bearing a Runic inscription dated 1051, which, it was claimed, actually represented the epitaph of a Norse woman colonist, the circumstances of whose death had been recorded in the saga.

So far as known, there were no Potomac iconoclasts present to confound the Danish antiquary in the way that Edie Ochiltree confounded Jonathan Oldbuck, yet there is no saying what the Chicago savants may expose if they continue their researches. Having demolished the legend of Sculpin Island, and reduced the accredited temple of Norse Vikings to the remnants of a sordid Eskimo whaling camp, where blubber rotted in the place supposed to have been hallowed by pagan rites, they may attempt to prove that the century-old sagas, which so nobly recount the exploits of Eric the Red and his voyagers, were but the scrolls of mendacious Icelandic monks.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Vote as you like on Tuesday—but vote anyway.

Judging by the lack of interest in the municipal elections, the polling booths should be the safest place in Peterborough on New Year's Day so far as "flu" infection is concerned.

Canada's National Railways have had the greatest year in their history. The surplus over fixed charges recorded in 1928 justifies Sir Henry Thornton's statement that the C.N.R. may be regarded as a national asset.

Without any high officials participating, the rum-running parley between the United States and Canada is not likely to produce any startling results.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1928

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Kindly stars dominate to-day, according to astrology, which reads in the stars much of friendly augury.

It is a configuration especially favorable to older persons and should impart buoyance and light-heartedness.

Industry has the foretaste of a profitable week in which workers will have many advantages.

The churches should benefit to-day which is auspicious for the loftier aspirations of the human mind.

Constructive plans for philanthropies and charities are believed to be well-directed while this planetary government prevails.

The seers foretell a time when poverty will be eliminated from the world, but first disease must be conquered to a great degree.

In 1929 the public health will continue to be widely discussed and new safeguards will be prepared for the rising generation.

New sciences will be developed or old sciences extended so that knowledge of the human machinery will be widespread and common maladies that interfere with it will be eliminated.

This should be a lucky rule for heads of families as well as for leaders in business and the professions.

High standards of efficiency in families as well as business organizations will be sought in the new year, it is forecast. Homes are to focus attention and those who occupy them are to be held to their responsibilities, especially in the care of the young.

According to ancient lore this should be a favorable day for the wearing of new garments, especially those made of fur.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year made happy by devotion to church or religious research. Journeys are indicated.

Children born on this day probably will combine with strong mentality certain psychic gifts. The subjects of this sign of Capricorn often are exceedingly philanthropic and they make good teachers.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1928

Benefic aspects rule to-day, according to astrology, which reads in the closing of 1928 many fair promises for 1929.

The planetary government is fortunate for all persons in authority and seems to presage increase of efficiency on the part of governors, mayors, heads of big business, bankers and educators.

Under this rule of the stars it is lucky to bestow gifts or favors. Promotions and rewards bless givers as well as beneficiaries.

Women to-day should benefit especially, for the sway is believed to endow them with foresight, prudence and wisdom.

This is read as an extraordinarily lucky wedding day, making for a long life partnership and steady advancement.

It is a lucky day to deal with publishers or editors, so authors should benefit as they begin the new year.

Surgeons and physicians come under a direction making for access of knowledge and increase of ability to cure human ills.

Young folk are especially well-guided by the stars to-day. It is foretold that they will demonstrate their advantage over those who have criticised them in the past, for they are to reveal many talents and to do credit to modern education.

Advertising should be fortunate while this configuration prevails, and it is probable that publicity will benefit much in the new year.

This is read as an especially auspicious day for entertaining, since it encourages new friendships and cements old ones.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— by John Hix

THE LUCKIEST LADY

BY RUBY M. AYRES

XX—"WE DON'T UNDERSTAND"

That was late on Saturday night, after they had returned from a dance and dinner at one of the newest night-clubs. The Little Flapper had gone to her room, and Marna was sitting by the fireside, still in her evening wraps.

Paget fidgeted about, conscious that in some inexplicable way he was out of favor, and yet entirely at a loss to know how to account for it. He looked at Marna from time to time in boyish perplexity, then suddenly he crossed the room to her.

"You're tired. Let me take your cloak."

But instead of taking it from her he encircled her with his arms.

"What's the matter, my darling?"

To his amazement she started up, breaking away from him, the soft fur cloak slipping from her shoulders to the floor between them. There was a wild look in her eyes, and her breath came fast as if she were frightened or hurt.

"Don't — don't touch me!" she said sharply. "Oh, if you would only go away and leave me!"

Her nerves were at snapping-point; the evening had been one long torment.

She had avoided Hubbard deliberately; she had refused to dance with him, and when he had asked why she had answered flippantly:

"Well I've got to get used to being without you, so I may as well begin now."

She had to be cruel to hide her pain; in some strange way it helped her to know she was hurting him. But when he had gone, the pendulum swung the other way.

nother evening had slipped through her hands, and she had not tried to hold it or make the most of the little it offered her. Coming home, in the car she had pleaded a headache and let the Little Flapper talk to George Paget. She had sat huddled into her corner, her hands clenched and her eyes shut tightly.

"Only three more days! Only three more days!"

Every movement of the car, every purring sound of its engine, had seemed to sing the same song.

Only three more days! Only three more days——"

The boat sailed on Wednesday, and then—that was all! She could see nothing beyond.

But the touch of her husband's gentle hands had seemed to break down the iron hand with which she had bound herself; it was as if he had cut the taut string of her nerves, allowing them to vibrate and scream without control of any sort.

She stood looking at him with wild eyes, shivering and shaking, like an animal who fears the whip.

"Good heavens, Marna!"

Paget was frightened and angered. She had looked at him almost as if she hated him; she had sprung away from his caresses as if they were loathesome to her.

With a great effort Marna pulled herself together; she tried to laugh. With shaking hands she pulled the hair back from her forehead.

"It's only—oh, it's only——" she began with white lips. Then the terrible feeling of collapse conquered her, and she would have fallen but for Paget's arms.

He laid her down on the bed and rushed to the Little Flapper's room.

"Marna's ill—faint! Come quickly, Biddy."

Biddy was standing at the looking-glass, brushing her short, soft hair. She had slipped out of her frock, and looked very little and childish in her short petticoat and tiny bodice with its ribbon shoulder-straps, but there was motherly tenderness and understanding in her eyes as she pushed Paget unceremoniously aside and fled to Marna.

"Get water—quick! And brandy. No, we don't want a doctor, and we don't want any of the others poking round.

But Marna was only unconscious for a few minutes. Before George Paget was back again she had opened her eyes and was trying to sit up.

It's all right, darling." Biddy was smoothing her hair and holding her hand. You fainted. You're tired out, of course. It's all right."

"Don't leave me, Biddy. I only want you. Don't leave me."

"I won't. Not for a single minute, I promise." The Little Flapper stood her ground stoutly against George when he returned.

"I'm going to stay with her. You must go and sleep in the dressing-room to-night."

He stared down at her, frightened and angry, a brandy decanter in one hand and a jug of water in the other.

"If you think I'm going to be ordered out of my own room by you, you're mistaken!!" he blustered. "Marna would rather have me with her than you—wouldn't you, Marna?"

"Don't worry her. She's not well enough to be worried" Bidd implored.

Marna turned her face into the pillow and began to sob.

"Marna——"

The Little Flapper took Paget forcibly by the arm and dragged him out of the room, shutting the door firmly upon him.

"Don't be so selfish!" she said.

But the tears were running down her face as she came back to Marna.

Selfish! How could she have been so cruel? He had never been selfish in all his life; he hardly knew the meaning of the word.

But for once in his life George Paget was offended. He got up early the next morning, and, without waiting to see his wife, he went round to the hotel where Hugh Hubbard was staying. Hubbard was up and breakfasting in the dining-room, and Paget sat down beside him at the table and began to unfold his troubles.

"Marna was ill when we got home last night. Fainted— the same sort of faint as before. You remember—eh? The night you came home, wasnt it? Well, she fainted again. I tell you, I don't like the look of it. She'll have to see a specialist. Never fainted in her life before, and all about nothing this time. I was just talking to her about Martin—told her I didn't like the fellow, and she got positively angry, don'tcherknow!" He sighed heavily and moved his long legs into an easier position. "Do you like Renny Martin?" he demanded.

"Not particularly."

Paget looked pleased.

"Glad to hear it. Chap's all right. I never minded him till lately, but he does hang about round Marna so. Not that I'm suggesting anything against her; don't think that—but, of course, I know you won't—but between you and me and the gatepost, I believe the blackguard rather prides himself that she—oh, you know what I mean."

"Yes." Hubbard pushed his plate away. "Go on," he said hardily.

"Nothing more to say," Paget admitted. "I just told her I didn't want him about the place so much, and I don't! I'll break the head of any man who comes hanging round my wife. He brought his first down heavily on the table. "You'd do the same wouldn't you," if Marna was your wife—eh, what?" he demanded. Hubbard smiled faintly.

"Yes."

"Well, there you are then!" Paget said contentedly. He leaned back more comfortably in his chair. "That was all that happened, and Marna fainted——"

"Over-tired. Two many late nights."

"I know. That's what I think." Paget let his monocle fall with an agitated click. "Queer part of it is, she turned round on me. That's what I can't understand. It hurt, I can tell you. We've always been so happy together—never a word or a misunderstanding. It hurt, I can tell you," he repeated, his handsome face flushed at the memory of the look in Marna's eyes. "If I thought there was anything between Marna and that scoundrel Martin—"

"George, for heaven's sake——"

With an effort Paget controlled himself.

"Sorry. All rot, of course. Marna's the best woman in the world, but women do like Martin, confound him! Look at the women he's boasted about——"

"Not women like—like your wife."

"I know. Forget I said that, will you, old chap?"

"Of course."

The dining-room was empty save for the two men and a waiter away at the far end, and Hubbard laid his hand on his friend's arm.

"We men don't understand women, perhaps," he said with an effort "We've just got to be—kind—and humor them——" His voice broke. Kind! What a poor, inadequate word for all he longed to do!

"I know." Paget softened at once. "That's it. We just don't understand 'em."

"Take her away for a holiday. She likes travelling." Every word was a growing difficulty to Hubbard.

"Paget's handsome face brightened.

"Rippin' idea! Did her a lot of good before when she was ill. Took her to the South of France then. Wonder where she'd like to go this time?"

"Well, there are heaps of places she hasn't seen."

"I know! We'll take a trip out to Shanghai to see you."

Hubbard made a convulsive movement, knocking over the cup at his elbow, and in the following excitement the suggestion was left unanswered. But the idea stayed in Paget's mind. He thought it a most excellent plan.

OLD HOME WEEK.

The Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—The Christmas rush being now over among the important duties that citizens have to carry on is that of assisting the Old Boys' Home Week and Centennial Celebration Organization in the getting together of the lists of names of those who, having lived in this city, are now living abroad and scattered all over the continent.

So far the several local societies have sent in lengthy lists of names of members, who have retained connection with the lodges and orders, but the response by the general public is not what it should be and as expected.

Numbers, no doubt, think of the matter as one to be attended to at any time during the next six months, but such inattention is neither helpful nor what was expected. Presently some of the literature in connection will be ready for distribution. From the point of view of enthusing the Old Boys to come back and see us, it is necessary that all should have ample notice and feel that the home folks have them in mind and that they are remembered.

The districts outside the city will be thoroughly well attended to, but this work needs the hearty co-operation of those at home. The one fact that will inspire the committees is to know that the names are rolling in and swelling the lists as should be the case.

It is asked, and urged, that each family which has members abroad, sit down and compile the lists and mail or bring them to the City Building, where the secretary will take care of the lists.

Do not delay. Do your part and urge the neighbors to do likewise. There must be thousands of names to be handed in and registered in the mailing indexes.

Each one who is interested in the event, might assist very materially in making a canvass of the families in the neighborhood and so secure the names for the committee. It is out of the question to hire people to make a house-to-house inquiry, and there should be no necessity to do so if those who have relatives and acquaintances abroad will take hold and lift. Remember the matter of the Old Boys' Home Week is a community enterprise, and that many men and women are working to the end that the demonstration shall be a success. Kindly assist!

WRIGHT-AERO LEADS.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 29 (Canadian Press).—Constructive forces were again at work in to-day's stock market and prices moved upward in brisk fashion under rather heavy buying for both accounts. Gains in many of the active shares ran from 2 to 12 points.

Wright Aeronautical returned to the leadership of the market by soaring 12 points. National Tea moved up 10, Midland Steel Products Preferred 7, and Pere Marquette 6.

Contract Deliveries Affect Grain Values

CHICAGO, Ills., December 29 (Canadian Press). — Liberal deliveries on December contracts here both in wheat and corn had an early bearish effect on grain values to-day. Advices were also at hand telling of free offerings of Argentine wheat abroad Opening unchanged to ⅛c down, Chicago wheat quotations subsequently underwent a setback all around. Corn started ⅛c to ¼c off, rallied a little, and then in some cases dropped lower than before. Oats were easy. Provisions likewise tended to sag.

Mystery Surrounds Fire In T. J. Parson's Hardware Store Last Night.

MAN ARRESTED.

OMEMEE, Dec. 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—Fire of an incendiary origin broke out in the hardware store of T. J. Parsons last night about 8.30. There had been no fire in the building for two weeks. Smoke was noticed by passersby who gave the alarm before the fire gained much headway. The contents were carried out by workers who gathered at the scene of the fire and who braved the smoke. The fire brigade and equipments worked very hard to save the building, which was a frame structure and mostly used as a storehouse. Much damage was done by smoke and water. Some insurance is carried.

While Fire Chief C. L. Morcombe was on guard after the fire last night he saw a car draw up to the curb and a man come out from the shed of J. F. Brooks carrying a automobile tire on his shoulder. Mr. Morcombe gave chase, but the man get away. However, Mr. Morcombe secured the license number and phoned the Lindsay police, who arrested a man by the named of Roberts, as he passed through the town.

The white way of the city's principal streets will shine forth with a clearer and brighter brilliance to-night because of the cleaning operations done by the Utilities Commission to-day. District Churches

ROSENEATH UNITED CHURCH.

(Examiner Correspondence)

ROSENEATH, Dec. 29. — Even though there is a great deal of sickness both in the village and surrounding neigrborhood, a large attendance gathered at the United Church on Sunday evening to hear Rev. M. R. Brown deliver a beautiful and interesting Christmas message. Taking his text from Luke ii, his first outline was, "If we go to Bethlehem this Christmas we must go in reverence and humility." Continuing, he said: "Once again the travelling months have brought us near the best day of all the year—Christmas Day—with its cheer, its joy and gentle good-will. Only one other day can compare with Christmas day, and that is Easter, with its 'song of those who answer not, however we may call,' and being Christian days, they are both days of hope. It is real fitting that we have a festival of the dawn of life linked in our faith with the Easter-hope at sunset.

"Only God could have thought of Christmas. Its beauty is beyond the wit of we mortals—so simple in its sublimity, so homey, yet so heavenly.

"On a tapestry woven of stable-straw and starlight, it unveils a picture to soften and purify the hearts to bring us back from a wisdom that is not wise. It is hard, unholy and unhopeful.

"Man could have made Jesus' coming a splendid pageant, its stage directions as follows: Array of great ones; the army marches by; the blare of trumpets; enter the King. Man's pageants pass and fade, but God works in slower and more secret ways.

"Man has one answer to every problem—force; but that is not the way of God. He did not send an army to conquer the world; He sent a babe that made a mother ponder. It is a scene to purify the world as if to teach us that God enters the life of man by lowly doors attended by staring ideals and simple shepherd feelings. No hope is too high, no dream too holy to be fulfilled, even the hope and dream of 'Peace on earth among men of good will.' No wonder it is a scene of mirth and music.

"And once a year at least the world turns toward Bethlehem at Christmas time, humanity is on trek again to the little town. Little towns and villages have much to do with world history. We are all fascinated by the large cities, their tremendous buildings, their commercial and political power, but we forget that some of the noblest souls of the world came from small towns. Two thousand years ago there were huge cities, cities of power and influence, but the world's Prince of Peace passed these by and came in a small Judean village. And when our trek is ended and Bethlehem we reach, we hear again the angel voices saying, 'Behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people, for unto you is born this day in the City of David a Saviour which is Christ the Lord.' Heaven and earth gathers in joyful adoration around the Christ-child as He lay there in the manger; this blessing comes to us once a year and as we travel to Bethlehem there are no agnostics, no sufferings, for the presence of the Babe dispels all doubts and fears. Surely it must teach us something about simplicity and the greatness and wonder of little things.

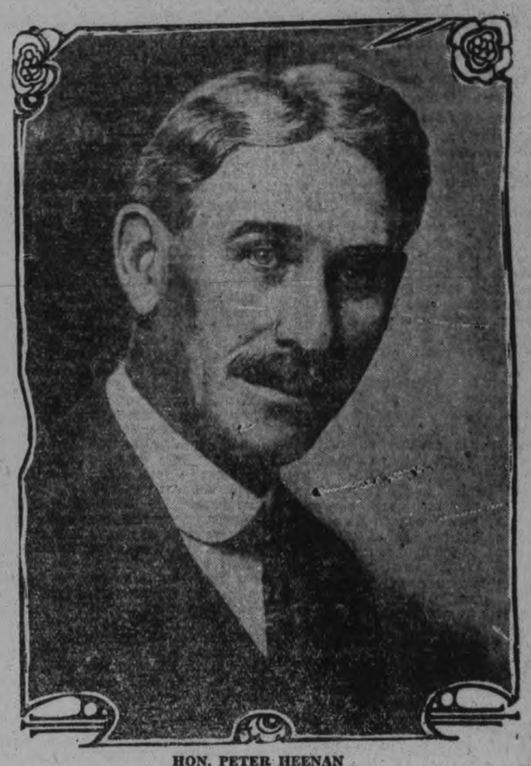
"As we remain and stand beside the manger bed, surely our pride and self-seeking and false ambitions must have their rebuke. If we would truly follow the Holy Christ we must do more than that, we must every day visit the Christ and humbly give Him room that He may rule our life. The greatest of all miracles is the fact that in our high-powered city civilization, Jesus survives.

"If Jesus had been born in a city it would have been unnoticed, for the birth of a child is not news to the city, but in the village it's a great event A baby born in a village is a hope; a baby born in the city is a problem. The birth of Christ was a great event. The shepherds who kept their flocks by night heard an angel's song, 'Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace.'

"It takes large people in a small town to breed men large enough for the great task of finishing the work which Jesus began. The things of Christ seem less real to you than they did last Christmas. Perhaps you do not pray as much as you once did. Bethlehem is as near as the good-will and the peace that is in your heart toward all men.

"And this Christmas season, may the Lord bless you and keep you and be gracious unto you. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon you and give you happiness and peace."

PAYS VISIT TO PETERBOROUGH



HON. PETER HEENAN

Federal Minister of Labor, who last night addressed a meeting in the interests of Labor in the Trades and Labor Hall. Mr. Heenan reviewed Labor conditions in the Dominion, and told of the splendid progress made in recent years.

L. I. F. E.

O vernal days, long past;
When youth's prime sun,
In strength, full run,
Gave thought and deed long last.
On Life's emblazoned field,
Vert; enaur'oled stars,
Tuned 'tween sky's bars,
Did dancing music yield.
O days, houred with hope's alms!
Thy gifts, sweet vernal time,
In Christ were mine.

Summer's blest burnished days—
Aureate thy store—
Didst on me pour
Envitalizing rays.
O'er life's embroiderd robe,
Pinxt; each rooted,
Flowered, and fruited;
Gifts by thee, golden wove.
Days of full noon-tide power!
All thy warm orbed time,
In Christ was mine.

Autumn! Imperial
Fruit crown-ed time,
Ending earth's prime,
With glory encaustral.
Oranged, incarnadined;
Earth's bare brown breast,
By thee caressed,
Blushes revivified.
Days of life's harvest store!
All of thy bearing time,
In Christ was mine.

O winding sheet of earth;
Covering all;
Soft argent pall;
Robe me, of vigor dearth.
Nor by thy cere-cloth, chill,
Is life bereft;
To ope at vernal thrill.
Come, death—Life, invert spelled—
Thy gift, all aeoned time
In Christ is mine.

THEATRES.

two reel comedy is one of the season's biggest screams, "We Faw Down" with that great pair of comedians, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy.

George Bancroft has an exceedingly strong supporting cast in "The Docks of New York," which opens Monday at the Capitol Theatre.

The cast is headed by Betty Compson, who returns to the Paramount fold after a long absence.

Another screen luminary is Baclanova, who is rapidly winning the highest honors in film work. This Russian actress has had an interesting and colorful career.

She has had ten years of brilliant stage experience. She was born in Moscow, Russia, and was educated in the Moscow Institute. At the age of 10 she was allowed to attend the rehearsals at the Moscow Little Theatre through the influence of an aunt, a famous actress. At the age of 16, she was chosen from 400 applicants for admission to the Moscow Art Theatre Musical Studio She showed so much promise in the dramatic department that it was not long before she was playing leads and finally was starred.

She came to America under contract to Morris Gest, the producer, with "Carmencita And The Soldier."

NEW YEAR'S MIDNIGHT FROLIC.

This year's Midnight Frolic at The Capitol promises to be the greatest event of its kind ever staged in the Capitol. A specially selected programme of pictures and vaudeville has been arranged. The Kiwanis Entertainers will be featured, and some very snappy numbers are promised. The Harmonica Band and E. Vernon Morphet, black face artist, will be among the features, which will also include many others. Eddie Jackson will lead the community singing, and there will be noise makers and favors for all—so come and join the happy throng.

Millbrook C.G.I.T. Group To Present Concerts

C.G.I.T. GROUP HOLDS MEETING

Group Decides To Hold Special Gatherings During the Winter Months.

AT MILLBROOK.

(Examiner Corespondence.)

MILLBROOK, December 29. — The Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. Group held its Christmas meeting on Wednesday evening at the leader's home, fourteen girls being in attendance, and a profitable and enjoyable time being spent.

The president, Miss Wilma Fallis, was in the chair, and the discussion of business items led to the decision to put on several special gatherings during the winter months in order to add to the funds of the group. The girls contributed ten dollars to the Missions and Maintenance Fund of the church this month, and also sent three dollars to the Santa Claus Fund of the Deaconess' Home in Toronto just before Christmas.

The Scripture lesson took up the story of the visit of the Wise Men, and Beatrice Jones read a poem, "No Room in the Inn." Elsie Spence, "Christmas Joy," while Jean Burnham's selection was "Three Gifts."

The leader's talk covered the story of the birth of Christ, with emphasis upon many points in connection with the coming of the Saviour and its significance to the world, the poem, "The Inn That Missed Its Chance," being read.

A social time was enjoyed at the close, with contests and the service of refreshments before the gathering was brought to a close.

The girls presented their leader with two well-bound copies of E. Stanley Jones' books, "The Christ of the Indian Road" and "The Christ of the Round Table," as a token of their love and esteem, the gift being placed upon the Christmas tree at the family gathering on Christmas Day.

The weekly meeting will be on Wednesday, January 2, at 7.30 p.m., when it is hoped that two or three of the former members, who are now attending school out of town will still be at home and able to be present. Some of these girls were welcomed at the Christmas meeting.

Personals.

Owing to the illness of some of the characters, the play, "Green Stockings," which was to have been presented on Friday, December 28, by the young people of Centreville in the Community Hall, has been postponed for two weeks, the date now fixed upon being Friday, January 11, 1929.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Jones and baby girl, of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jones, of Newtonville, and their two children, spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. John Hatherly.

Rev. G. H. Williams, who has recently delighted his hearers at two entertainments in the village, will be the special preacher for the anniversary services of the United Church Sunday School on Sunday, January 30, at 10.30 a.m. and at 7 p.m. The Sunday School session will be combined with the regular morning worship and the awards for the year for attendance and learning verses presented. There will be no afternoon gathering. Special music by the choir at both services.

The many friends of Mrs. I. E. Needham will be glad to learn that she is making satisfactory progress toward recovery from her recent illness.

Dr. N. H. Young, who has practised medicine here for the past two years, is leaving the village and will reside in Peterborough after the New Year, purposing to return to Millbrook three mornings each week, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, for professional purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jordan are spending the Christmas holidays with his parents at Mitchell, and will be with her parents at Hamilton for over the New Year.

Mr. Thomas Bradburn has moved into the village and taken up his residence in the home recently purchased from the estate of the late Nelson Janes.

APPLIED BRAKE TOO QUICKLY ON SLIPPERY ROAD

Reynolds car. Witness described the injuries which had terminated fatally for Reynolds, and also the accident to the second car, two of whose passengers were take nto St. Joseph's Hospital. Constable Thompson also spoke of a hoar frost which had formed on and made the highway slippery.

Dr. Herbert Young.

Having received a call to an accident "that a man was dying," Dr. Herbert Young of Millbrook, visiting in the city, had hurried to the scene and had found Reynolds dead, owing to a fracture on the left side of the skull, and also at the base of the skull. Witness said he had travelled the road the day before and had driven to the scene of the accident without finding it particularly slippery.

"How fast were you driving going out?" asked Coroner Dr. Young.

"About 40 or 45 miles an hour, sir," came the reply.

"Then you were exceeding the speed limit?"

"—going to an accident, sir."

"How fast did you drive coming home from it?" was the next question.

"About 15 miles an hour," came the unexpected reply.

"Why the difference in speed?" asked Dr. Young, Sr.

"Because you told me to, sir"—respectfully.

Witness went on to describe the slippery condition of the road as he had found it when alighting from his car. "The road was slippery, due to a freezing of the dew formed on the road by the cooling of the earth," said he.

The final witness was Inspector of Highway Traffic Fred J. Jerome of Toronto, who submitted a number of snapshots which he had taken of the scene of the accident. His presence was necessary partly due to the fact that there is no highway officer on this section at the present time.

The jury was then charged by Dr. Young, and retired. Its personnel was as follows:

H. J. McCannan, foreman; Arthur Robertson, John Kylie, Ray Best, John Malane, Frank Barrett, Frederick Hills, J. M. Payton, D. M. Minicola, Andrew Duthie, Ivan T. Lillico.

Wedding Bells

JACK—BLAIR.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Dec. 29.— A very pretty Christmas wedding was celebrated at the home of T. E. Burnside on Saturday, December 22, at 11 a.m., when his niece, Miss Sarah Emma Blair, was united in marriage with Robert Clarence Vaughan Jack, only son of Alexander Jack, of Renfrew.

The bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr Burnside, was beautiful in a French period gown with duchess lace veil caught up with a bridal wreath of orange blossoms and carrying a bouquet of roses. The wedding march was played by Mrs. J. Craigmyle, of Toronto, and Miss Grace Phillips, of Fort William sang very sweetly "Until" during congratulations and the signing of the register.

The groom's gift to the pianist and soloist were gold brooches

The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. W. Revers, B.A., B.D., of Trinity United church.

After the bountiful wedding dinner had been enjoyed by about thirty guests, toasts were proposed to the bride by Rev. G. W. Revers, and to the groom by Charles Thompson of Stirling, to Mr. Burnside and Mrs. A. Thompson as host and hostess by Archie Ashley. After that had been duly responded to, the happy couple left by motor amid showers of confetti and good wishes. They will make their home at Fort Erie, Ontario.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND RODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., December 29 (Canadian Press). — Trading in cash grain in the Montreal market yesterday was again of a limited character. The tone of the market was steady and prices showed no change.

The spring and winter wheat flour markets were likewise dull, with the prices steady.

The holiday slowness had likewise affected the millfeed trade. The weather was said by dealers to be unfavorable to heavy demand for the various lines. Prices were steady. There was a fair demand for rolled oats at unchanged prices.

The egg market is showing an upward trend at the present time, the movement being three weeks ahead of previous years, due, most likely, to the continued mild weather. There were no price changes yesterday. Receipts were 1,296 cases.

The potato market took on strength and Prince Edward Island potatoes were selling at higher prices with the whites at 84 cents and the Green Mountains at 90 cents per 90 pound bag.

The bean trade was quiet and steady.

Butter recipts were 127 packages. A stronger feeling developed in the market and prices scored an advance of ¼ to ½ cent per pound. The market was more active than it had been for several days.

The cheese situation showed no change, with prices stationary, and the volume of business was small.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Dec. 29.—Movement of butter in a wholesale jobbing way made no great headway this week, due to the absence of any particular demand on a between-holiday market. A feature of the week was the arrival on track last Saturday of the initial supply of New Zealand finest creamery. The newcomer to the local butter market is being prepared for distribution to the consumer as rapidly as possible by first hands. Prices have been the subject of daily markets, and at an asking price of 41½c to 42c per lb. the New Zealand product is maintaining pretty much the same levels as the domestic range of values. Moderately active daily, small quantities of Ontario and New Zealand have changed hands from holdings on spot, which are relatively light, but about equal to the prevailing demand for domestic consumptive sources. Creamery men report current production much lighter now than at this time a year ago. Under this condition it is not expected that the first supply from New Zealand will materially affect the local situation, even when the bulk of the New Zealand butter begins a steady movement out of wholesale to retail hands within the next few days. Some sales have been reported this week at 42c per lb., and very little butter was turned over yesterday at any lower figure. In some quarters the range was swinging narrowly at from 41½c to 41¾c per lb. for No. 1 solids, which is the trend maintained here for several weeks past for Ontario make. Dealers are looking to the arrival of more butter from New Zealand creamery as the season advances, but it is fairly generally admitted that it will be well on into January before the second supply of boxes of New Zealand creamery can be unloaded here. In the meantime dealers are marking time, with business sentiment conservative in a market operating under good control.

PRODUCE MARKETS

OTTAWA, Dec. 29. — (Canadian Press).—There is no change of any importance being reported from Canadian egg markets today. The situation continues easy under continued production.

MONTREAL — The egg market here continues dull under accumulation of stocks. Present weather conditions are greatly against the sales of both poultry and eggs.

VANCOUVER—The local egg market continues easy but the majority of dealers are still holding to previous price quotations.

ST. JOHN— This egg market is dull with prices continuing easier. The mild weather is favoring heavy production.

Chicago spot unchanged, Dec. 28½, Jan. 25½.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Big deliveries both of corn and wheat in settlement of Chicago December contracts did much yesterday to force grain prices down. Yesterday's deliveries of corn here totalled 87,000 bushels and of wheat 10,000 bushels besides enlarged estimates of the exportable wheat surplus of Argentina and Australia were current.

Closing quotations on corn were nervous ¼c to 1¼c a bushel net lower. Wheat finished at the same as Thursday's latest prices to ⅞c off; oats ⅛c to ¼c to ⅝c down, and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 25c.

To the surprise of many traders who had been looking forward to a scaroity of corn supplies here and to a consequent squeeze in the corn market before December was at an end, more corn was being handed over in Chicago yesterday to new owners than the buyers appeared ready to occept. Well ahead of the time when the day's trading began, nearly half a million bushels of corn was thrust upon holders of December contracts here, and the total was added to afterward until the days aggregate finally came to not far from a million bushels. This was by far the largest delivery which had been witnessed up to now in the December settlement, and was duly reflected in the circumstance that the market closed at day's bottom level of prices.

Predictions of colder weather likely to accelerate the movement of the corn crop tended further to weaken the corn market. Moreover, there were sales of corn into store here yesterday to the extent of 370,000 bushels on the other hand, dealers elsewhere outbid Chicago for corn at down-state points in Illinois. Yesterday's receipts of corn here were of only moderate volume, 265 cars, and country sales to arrive were next door to zero. Houses with eastern connection did much of today's selling of December corn.

Wheat values were especially influenced by announcement that the combined surplus of wheat in Argentina and Australia is 348,000,000 bushels, contrasting with 286,000,000 bushels cleared last season. To-day's figures showed 18,000,000 bushels increase over the latest previous estimate from Argentina as to the surplus there. Oats followed the trend of other grain.

Provisions were firmer on account of scattered commission house buying based on government reports about the size of the big crop.

PENSIONS ACT FOR ONTARIO

very among labor men of the limitations both in the age and amount received by those benefits pointed out that this is only for the first step in this direction and after the idea has been well received by everyone amendments enlarging the number of those who will come under the scope of the act will very soon be made as in the Compensation act. Also great and important work is being carried by the employment service branch, which placed 362,741 men in jobs in nine months. This branch also prevents false propaganda as to the labor conditions, as to the employment conditions in certain districts being spread. There is also the branch which places handicapped veterans in positions which they can fill, and last year 6600 such men were placed in jobs. The branch investigating combines which causes suffering to citizens is also doing efficient work in a quiet way, doing more to prevent such combines, by timely investigations, than in court actions. Technical investigations also receive the full scrutiny and management of a special branch and there is also the Publications branch to investigate problems that may arise.

Lauds Prime Minister

Speaking in regard to the Prime Minister, Mr. Heenan said:—

"I am indeed glad to be a member of the Government that has at its head a gentleman who is so sympathetically inclined to the interests of the labouring men as the Right Honourable W. L. Mackenzie King.

"I have an impression that perhaps the laboring classes of Canada have not yet fully realized the great friend they have in Mr. King. In the first place I would like to remind my hearers that the very creation of the Department of Labor, over which it is my privilege to be the head, was largely the result of the studies which Mr. King had given to social problems in various parts of the country following his graduation from university, and then after the creation of the Department, of which he became the Deputy Minister and later Minister, we find him responsible for several very outstanding pieces of legislation, as well as being responsible for a number of other policies of great benefit to labour, for example, there is the legislation which is so well known as the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, which is might be said was wholly the work of Mr. King."

Disputes Adjusted

"No more effective instrument has yet been devised in the interests of Industrial peace. During the past two years 47 disputes have been adjusted without one days loss of time.

"There is also the Fair Wages Policy on public contracts which has been in effect for many years, attributable to the efforts of the present Prime Minister, and more latterly the policy of inserting in all leases for water powers and timber limits a clause for the protection of the workers

"Another piece of legislation of great interest to the workers was the passing of the law a year or two ago to provide for the registration of union labels.

"I desire now to make reference to a very important piece of legislation enacted under Mr. King's premiership, that is, the Old Age Pensions Act. It is interesting to note that up to date all provinces in western Canada except Alberta are now paying Old Age Pensions, and I might add that it is expected pensions will become payable in the Province of Ontario during the forthcoming year, and possibly in Alberta, as well as other provinces in the Maritimes.

Grand Trunk Strike

"While speaking of these activities of Mr. King I might say that in 1910 Mr. King was successful in bringing about the settlement of the Grand Trunk strike. One of the important conditions of the settlement was that all strikers who had not been found guilty of acts of violence should be reinstated in their former positions. Later the Grand Trunk refused to live up to this condition, and while the company restored most of the men to their former positions, they absolutely refused to reinstate any of its striking employees in their pension rights and the men were thus deprived of their full rights for eleven years.

Amended Act

"When Mr. King was returned to Parliament in 1919 one of his first acts was to move an amendment to the Act for the acquisition of the Grand Trunk Railway Company to compel a recognition of the pension rights of the employees. This amendment was defeated in Parliament. Immediately after the return of the Liberal Government in Decemember, 1921, Mr. King started negotiations looking to the redress of the wrong of twelve years' standing. As a result of these negotiations, every employee or his estate was given the benefit of his pension rights as from the day on which he first became entitled to a pension.

"Another outstanding effort on the part of Mr. King which should be mentioned is the action he took as Prime Minister during 1922-23 to bring about the cancellation of the Order which had been issued by Mr. Hanna, a former President of the Canadian National Railways, to debar employees of railways from offering themselves as candidates for public elective offices.

"More recently the Prime Minister has brought about the formation of the Joint National Councils for the Civil Service of Canada and again the recent creation of a joint Superannuation Board for the Civil Service.

Prevented Wage Reduction

"I desire also to mention the part played by the Prime Minister in 1922 in connection with a move made by the two major railways to reduce the wages of the shop crafts throughout Canada. Many thousands of men were affected and an effort was made by the companies to reduce the wages before a Board of Conciliation and Investigation under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act dealt with the case. The Prime Minister insisted upon the railways respecting the law and as a result of this many thousands of dollars were saved to the workers.

"These things represent but a few of Mr. King's achievements in the interest of the working classes. I only regret that time does not permit of more references. Suffice to say that he is also the author of a very outstanding volume entitled "Industry and Humanity," which has had a tremendous circulation throughout the world. May I here just quote one short sentence from this book which I think will indicate Mr. King's mind on matters as they affect the working classes. The sentence is this: "Where the interests of industry and humanity conflict, those of industry must give way."

"I often wonder if the labouring men of this country are fully cognizant of Mr King's record of achievements on the behalf."

Co-operation Needed.

In closing his speech, Mr. Heenan made a strong plea for co-operation among Labor men and the fair consideration of their problems before hasty actions were taken, pointing out also, that the people of Canada are willing and eager if the matters are put before them openly and squarely to always do the fair thing.

Mayor Denne, in a few words, welcomed Mr. Heenan to the city and urged him to make a return visit during the Old Boys' Re-union.

E. A. Peck, M.P., paid a compliment to Mr. Heenan for his great work in preventing strikes and the resulting losses to the country by his happy faculty of understanding Labor conditions and the laboring man. He also reiterated Mr. Heenan's statement that Canadians are always behind the measures that will benefit the laboring man if the conditions are fairly presented before them.

Dr. J. J. Craig, in moving a vote of thanks and appreciation of Mr. Heenan's address, expressed his pleasure in the knowledge that the Labor Department was striving, as do the professional men, to prevent trouble before it arises and reaches a critical stage.

W. J. Scollard seconded the vote of thanks in a happy manner.

The meeting closed with the singing of God Save the King.

INSPECTOR LOUGHEED CONDUCTS SEARCH

Verney Heath, James Gibson, William Stewart, Robert Mumby, Victor Irwin, Howard Finch, and Stanley Finch. After being duly sworn, they were escorted to view the remains, and brought back to a room in the house. Melville Fitzgerald identified the remains as those of Morley Murray, and the burial permit was issued. The inquest was then adjourned till eight o'clock on the evening of Friday, January 4, in the Council Chamber at Stirling.

It is expected that there will be many witnesses called when the hearing is resumed. Although the remains have been identified as those of Morley Murray, it is not known now or when he met his death. The evidence so far deduced shows only that he ate breakfast and that he had not eaten another meal at home that day. He seemed his usual self at the school meeting and was talking to some of his friends afterward, before returning to his home. The cattle were not stabled at the usual hour that afternoon, nor had Murray been visiting any of his neighbors within easy walking distance. He apparently sold his car after the school meeting.

LONDON POPULATION

TWENTY-ONE DIE FROM 'FLU'

Estimate Places Number of Persons Ill With Disease at 40,000.

HOSPITALS RUSHED.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 29 (Canadian Press).—There were 21 deaths in Toronto yesterday from influenza and pneumonia and a newspaper estimate places the number of persons now ill with the disease at 40,000.

Dr. C. G. H Hastings announced last night that his department had nothing to indicate that there was any widespread epidemic of influenza in the city. He admitted that from September to December there had been 214 deaths from the disease.

Dr. H. W. Burgess, a city coroner, declared last night that "It was absurd the way they were talking about the situation not being serious." He was almost "rushed off his feet" with influenza patients, he said, many of whom were gravely ill.

Two other prominent physicians voiced the opinion that the public should be made aware of the situation, and "There was not the slightest let-up in the spread of the disease.

There is a steady call for the small contingent of nurses available and one hospital reported "too rushed" to give out information regarding the situation.

In addition to the hospitals, nearly all business and mercantile institutions of any size, continued to be under-staffed owing to the indisposition of many employes from the malady. There are 70 members of the police force absent and 33 firemen, while the official total of absentees of the Transportation Commission have not been revealed, but is estimated around 175. There are 30 cases of "flu" and pneumonia in the Hospital for Sick Children.

FOURTH WICKET FEATURE OF PLAY

Australians Score 276 Runs For Four Wickets in First Innings.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 29.—(Canadian Press.)— At the close of play to-day in the third cricket test match, Australia in their first innings had scored 276 runs for four wickets against England.

A splendid partnership between A. Kippax and J. S. Ryder, the Australian captain, for the fourth wicket which yielded 161 runs was the feature of the first day's play. The Australians had begun very badly, losing three wickets, those of W. M. Woodful, R. L. Hendry and V. Richardson, for only 57 runs. Kippax scored an even hundred, while Ryder was undefeated at the end of the day with 112 to his credit.

The attendance during the day reached 63,247, a new world's record for a cricket match.

CANDIDATES DESCRIBE POSITIONS

year he was chairman of the Finance Committee, and took Ald. Ackerman's place as chairman of the Property Committee to complete the term caused by Ald. Ackerman's resignation. He has had a varied experience in municipal affairs, and this year was chairman of the Board of Health.

ALD. STANLEY A. LOWE.

"One reason for offering myself again to the electors of the city is my special interest in the Old Home Week celebration," said Ald. Lowe. "From the very beginning I took an active interest in this celebration, urging the Council to take it up in a whole-hearted manner, and because of my activity in promoting it this year, I should like to be in the Council at the time of the Old Home Week itself. However, that is a matter for the ratepayers.

One term in the Council has been a great help in learning the way the city's business is carried on, and I think that I should be more useful than ever if I am again elected. Peterborough is flourishing, and I think some credit for that condition should be given to the members of recent Councils."

Ald. Nagle Phelan.

"Most of the ratepayers probably are aware of my experience in the Council," Ald. Phelan told The Examiner. "I have been nine consecutive years as alderman, and in that time I have missed only one meeting of the Council. And it was my privilege to be chairman of the Finance Committee during the last eight years. The Council is finishing this year with a surplus, and in good financial shape. We got the best price on our bonds of any city in Ontario, and that fact is due to our strong financial position. If I am elected for 1929 I shall try to carry on the city's business as in the past. Peterborough is busy and prospering. Everybody is aware of that, and in so far as a member of the Council can assist in this progress I shall be glad to do my part if the people give me the opportunity."

Fred Tuggey.

Fred Tuggey has a fellow feeling for Brook Sykes, the former Toronto alderman who is opposing Mayor McBride for the Toronto Mayoralty.

"I came to this country a month or so after Mr. Sykes," Mr. Tuggey related to The Examiner. "We are both bricklayers, and while Mr. Sykes has made a big success in Toronto, I have shared on a smaller scale in the prosperity of Peterborough. And as a candidate for the City Council this year, I would like to emphasize that point, that I have a stake in this city, and its best interests are mine. I am paying taxes on an assessment of between nine and ten thousand dollars, and I am sure that no ratepayer would believe that I would do anything hurtful to the city's interests if I were given the responsibility of an alderman.

"I want the confidence of the people. That would certainly be a great satisfaction to me, and I would repay by the best service I could give. I know what it is to be a small taxpayer, and all those citizens would have my special care and attention in the Council.

"I am in favor of the Johnston Motors by-law, because I believe it is going to expand and add to property value in Peterborough.

"I am also going to vote for the Gas Company by-law, but that does not mean that I am urging others to vote for it. From the information provided the ratepayers I cannot see where the city can make a mistake in buying the gas plant.

"If I am elected I shall give every question my best consideration, and keep in mind the interests of the city as a whole. I make one promise, that I won't be a mouthpiece for anybody."

Daniel J. Holland.

"As a candidate for the City Council, I have a special interest in the welfare of East City (Ashburnham)," Mr. Holland said. "Of course the affairs of Peterborough as a whole would be my main concern, if I were elected to the Council, but I think that it is only reasonable to expect that our section of the city across the river should not be unrepresented. In the past Ashburnham has sent first-rate aldermen to the Council board, and their contribution of judgment and advice certainly helped Peterborough to its present sound position.

"I may say that I have had more than twenty-five years' business experience, and I would try to exercise that intelligence and good judgment which such an experience develops. If the electors honor me with their confidence I shall do my best to prove worthy of their trust."

Functioned Well

"I intend to place my name before the voting public on the strength of my past record," declared E. F. Reid when approached regarding his entry in the Board of Education contest. "The board has functioned well and has done a good work during the past year."

Mr. Reid's record is a lengthy one, for he has been a member of the vocational committee for seven years, chairman of the property committee for three years, a member of the finance committee for one year and during 1928 was a member of the building committee.

Isaac P. McNabb

By virtue of his B.A. and M.A. degrees, obtained at Toronto University, and six years of experience as a teacher, Isaac P. McNabb will enter the field as a candidate for the Board of Education, feeling well prepared to give service.

Mr. McNabb is perhaps best known to Peterborough citizens as a Chartered Life Underwriter and as President of the Peterborough Kiwanis club in 1927. But his honors in Kiwanis have been more extensive, for he has been elected Lieut.-Governor of the Ontario, Quebec and Maritime district of Kiwanis International for 1929. He is also a veteran of the Great War. "Generally speaking, I approve of the work done by the 1928 Board of Education, and I feel that I shall be able to help carry on the work of the Board, if elected," said Mr. McNabb, in conversation with an Examiner reporter to-day.

On Vocational Committee

Having served on the vocational committee for a number of years and having gained executive experience as President of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, President of the Bread and Cake Bakers' Association of Canada, as a member of the Board of Administration of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, as treasurer of the Peterborough Presbytery, and a trustee of the Canadian School of Baking at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, James Dutton feels justified in offering his services as a member of the 1929 Board of Education.

"I am entirely in sympathy with the vocational school in all its departments and strongly favor the incorporation of agricultural classes in it, that the sons and daughters of farmers may take advantage of the privileges offered by the school," said Mr. Dutton to-day. "I would also like to see an arrangement reached between local manufacturers and their apprentices, whereby the apprentice would be encouraged to take advantage of the vocational school course in which his work interests him and at the same time, receive some remuneration. We have a fine school which the vocational committee and the Board of Education have tried to improve. If elected I should continue to adhere to that policy," concluded Mr. Dutton.

Like to Finish Job.

"There is work that I would like to finish as a member of the Board of Education, and that is one reason why I am standing for re-election," said J. F. Strickland in discussing with The Examiner this morning, his candidature for the 1929 board.

Mr. Strickland has gained much valuable experience in the workings of that body during the past four years, as he has been a member of it for that length of time. In addition, he was chairman of the finance committee in 1927, and held the chairmanship of the committee on appointments during the year just closing.

New in Field

Claude H. Rogers is a new man in the field, but with a reputation for executive ability feels prepared to help carry on the work of the Board of Education, which he considers a most important body. Several years ago he was associated with the Board of Health by appointment, and he has always been interested in the growth of the city's educational system.

Organize Curriculum

Four years of immediate past experience on the Board of Education and as chairman of the supervision committee have given W. R. Turner, Jr., a grasp of the work which, if the electors decide in his favor, he will be pleased to carry on for another term.

"The greatest problem which the Board faces at the present time is the arranging and organization of a curriculum for the new vocational school which will benefit graduates of the school and industrial concerns as well," said Mr. Turner. "There are details of the new building yet to be cleared up and an important matter in the organization of a class in Agriculture. It is an excellent thing in which I have been particularly interested."

To Further Work

Dr. J. A. Morgan is one candidate who, while not having been actually connected with the Board of Education, has watched the school system of Peterborough for the past 25 years and seen it grow to its present high standard. He has had experience in health work in schools in this community, having to make report to the government on 16 schools each year. In placing his name before the electors for a place on the school board he is interested in keeping the schools of Peterborough in their present high position and doing anything he can to further improve them.

Carry on Good Work

"I think that the 1928 Board of Education has acquitted itself admirably, and the new vocational school is a credit to it. If I am elected I shall endeavor to carry on in the same constructive manner," said Dr. A. Moir, candidate for the Board of Education in the coming municipal elections. "It will be my first year of service in such a capacity, though I have been a resident of the city for seventeen years, and have been interested in its progress.'

Lilacs Do Bud Here At End Of December

Proof positive that lilacs DO bud in Peterborough in the end of December was brought to The Examiner Office to-day by John A. McNabb.

Mr. McNabb plucked a branch from the bush in his garden, and showed that it has a dozen buds on this short length.

Owl Is Seen.

Not only has the unusual weather fooled the lilacs—it has had its effect on the animal and bird world, too. This morning, Mrs. Brownlee, Stewart Street, saw an owl sitting in a tree wagging its head in either wisdom or sorrow—it didn't say which—but looking very mournful.

Every Family Suffers As 'Flu' Sweeps Village

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Dec. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The village of Griersville, a short distance from Meaford, is severely handicapped by the influenza situation. Every member of every family, with the exception of one man, is confined to bed with the malady. Kindly neighbors make daily visits to feed, tend the live stock and do other chores. A truckload of groceries left Meaford yesterday for the "stricken village." The epidemic is said to have originated at a community festival at which every family was represented.

ARCHITECT IS COMING TO CITY

John T. Hornsby Intends To Make Peterborough His Headquarters.

MOVING FROM LINDSAY.

Though he has maintained an office in Peterborough for the past five years, John T. Hornsby, architect, has made his headquarters in the town of Lindsay. His decision to establish his home here will be learned with interest as Mr. Hornsby has been prominent in Masonic, church, and Boy Scout work there. The Lindsay Daily Post writes of him as follows:

Lindsay is to lose a highly respected, active, and energetic citizen in the person of Mr. J. T. Hornsby, well-known architect, who leaves on Friday for Peterborough.

In the year 1911 Mr. Hornsby arrived in Lindsay, from Montreal, and was engaged in the building of the Georgian Bay seaboard railway. He has maintained an office in Lindsay ever since and during this period of years he has been employed as architect on a number of beautiful residences in Lindsay, as well as on several larger construction jobs in and out of town, especially in the building of schools in Victoria, Ontario, and Peterborough Counties.

In 1923 he opened a branch office at Peterborough, with Mr. John Allan in charge. This branch of the business has proven to be quite successful, with the result that Mr. Hornsby has decided to locate in the Electric City, with an office at 332½ George Street.

Mr. Hornsby will be greatly missed in Lindsay, especially among the Boy Scouts. His work among the Scouts has been outstanding. He will also be missed in Masonic circles, especially in Faithful Brethren Lodge, No. 77, of which he is a Past Master. He is also an active member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

PROGRESS IS MADE IN 1928

cord they had built up this year in their district.

"It used to seem to me that we were never getting anywhere," he proceeded. "We'd hold our dairy meeting in the fall and meet the makers in the spring, but it seemed to be only one criticism after another. This year, our makers have come to where I used to think they should be, and I'm proud of them. They are among the best in Ontario.

After referring to the opposition of New Zealand cheese, Mr. Irwin said: "There is no question about our holding our position in the British market, if we make the same high standard cheese that we made this year, and you'll always be sure of one or two cents a pound more for your cheese. Keep in mind that only the high grade cheese will bring the best money."

What had brought about this recent improvement? Mr. Irwin said that after looking over the causes and eliminating those that were known, it was found in six years of government grading that where there was an efficient cheese-maker there you found a factory running along from 98 per cent to 100 per cent in every single case. It was also found that when makers were changed and more competent men engaged there were similar high records in every case.

Organization Necessary

"So it was evidently necessary to organize the makers themselves so as to eliminate the poor men. We've get them pretty well wiped out in our district, and I hope there will be none left next year."

Mr. Irwin said there were not enough cheese-makers from Central Ontario sending their product to the Royal Winter Fair and the Toronto Exhibition.

"We pride ourselves in Central Ontario about being the best makers in the province, but we haven't got our cheese up there. And you can't win the prize if you don't send your cheese."

Quebec has improved its first grade cheese 17 per cent this year, Mr. Irwin told his audience. Upon ending his speech, which was the final one, he presented a new hat to Mr. W. J. Moore, dairy instructor, "on behalf of —well I'm not just going to say who it is from."

Bank Shows Interest

Mr. McDermid, in presenting the Bank of Commerce silver cup to its first winner, said that Mr. Borland's success was due to his own fine efforts and to the support of his patrons.

"This organization has accomplished wonderful results," Mr. McDermid continued. "The improvement of ten points in the grade of this district's cheese during the last year is a sign of great progress, and is also an evidence of the good work of your instructor, Mr. Moore. It appears that the same makers as last year were engaged in the district this year, with one or two exceptions, so that your success must be due in a large measure to the influence of your association. The Bank of Commerce is interested in the cheese industry of this district, and it is a great pleasure to give this cup for three-year competition."

Worthy of Praise.

Mr. A. J. Reynolds, manager of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Commerce, quoting the aphorism of the pathway to the best mousetrap-maker's sylvan abode, said that every man who makes better goods than his neighbor deserved praise and emulation.

"Especially is this true of the men who make our foods," he declared. "I believe they have not been properly recognized, and we find a very discouraging commentary in the fact that Herman Trelle, three times winner of the cup for the best wheat, recently stated that he would have to give up his special grain growing because he was not making any money out of it. Food is a primitive need of the human race, and our hearts go out in gratitude to the men who produce it. Mr. Borland has done a splendid thing in winning this cup. It is a symbol of his work and skill, and I am glad to join in congratulating him and the other makers who built up this district's record."

Tribute to Makers

Mr. W. V. Drewry, who was introduced by Mr. Allan as "one of the men who helped us a good deal in getting our association under way," professed to be somewhat pessimistic about a better record next year.

"We had very favorable weather," he recalled, "and our makers were determined to put it over. I can't see how we can make much of a gain next year. Still, it is a British trait to aspire for the best, and we can set out for 100 per cent. I attribute most of the success this year to the makers getting together, and every man trying to do better than ever. There is also a stronger fellow feeling in the association, a desire to see our neighbors making good instead of failing in their work. That spirit is a great help."

Mr. Gillespie's Compliment

"Everyone will have to be on his toes next year to live up to our 1928 record," said G. A. Gillespie. "It has taken us a long time to attain this altitude, and great credit is due the makers for the results. It is interesting to note that our older men have done so well. They should be an object lesson to the young men who are coming along. You have a record of what you have done this year, but for years and years we have been making those same kinds of records, only we didn't know it. That is due to the grading system. But this year was undoubtedly a climax, and it was only by hard and efficient work that any man could accomplish such a record. By the system of instruction, grading and also requiring certificates of the makers a man must improve or drop out. On the other hand we must have the co-operation of the milk producers on the farms."

Mr. Gillespie pointed out that the export price of cheese was the basis of the domestic prices of all dairy prices. And for the information of consumers generally, he added that one pound of cheese possessed as much food value as 2½ pounds of meat for which the people were paying 40 and 50 cents a pound.

More Co-operation Seen.

"The credit belongs to the cheese-makers," said W. J. Moore, district dairy instructor. "Without them, the rest of us wouldn't count much. There has been more co-operation this year between the producers and the makers and the instructor than in any other year since I have been instructor. Mr. Drewry says we had a good season. We certainly had. I don't think I ever saw a better season both for the milk producers and the cheese makers."

Has Seen Big Changes.

H. B. Cowan of "Farm and Dairy" organized the first two groups of cheese factories in Eastern Ontario for dairy instructional purposes, one at Ottawa and the other at Cornwall thirty years ago.

"As I look back at the conditions of the cheese makers then and their conditions now," Mr. Cowan recalled, "I realize the great changes that have taken place. The grading of cheese and the certificates for makers are two regulations that have worked out to the very distinct benefit of the makers. The day has disappeared when a man could spring up over night and get a factory and then start cutting prices. This is the day of the maker who can produce the best goods. We all agree that the key man in this industry is the cheese-maker. He is the one who comes in contact with the producers. We might miss the dairy commissioner and the instructor, but certainly if the maker wasn't on the job things would happen right away. These prize-winners are men who know not only how to make good cheese but also how to work with the producers."

Britain Wants Best.

James S. Cook of Belleville, buyer of cheese in this district for forty-two years, urged the cheese-makers to set their aim for a grade mark of 100 per cent.

"The Englishmen want the best cheese we can give them," he said. "I have not had much trouble in our district, but the Belleville, Campbellford, Stirling, Madoc and all the other boards. All through the section we are having nearly 100 per cent. cheese, and I'm proud of it. I'll tell any maker who turns in second grade cheese that he can have them back. I don't want them. And I have noticed that the makers who do not attend these meetings are the men who are losing out and they are bound to."

Weather Not Big Aid.

W. E. Brennan of Belleville took issue with some of the preceding speakers on the question of the effect of the weather last season.

"I don't agree with them," he asserted. "My opinion was that I never saw a season that required greater attention to make cheese. There was a lot of wet weather, and it was more of a handicap because it was inclined to make soft cheese. And that is why I think the makers deserve so much credit. Much credit should be given to instructors like Mr. Moore, who have posted themselves and made themselves more efficient, and who have been a big influence among the makers."

"I appeal to the cheese-makers to stay with this association. The results we want can be gained only by your active assistance. Next year the makers of this district are undertaking something big, but they are starting with the confidence that the mark of 98 per cent. has been reached, and I hope that when the records are read next year this district's will be at least 99 per cent."

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind

MILLBROOK.

Simcoe Institutes tried out a plan this fall that proved quite original and successful. Early in the fall months a letter was sent to all Institute secretaries in the district stating that a competition in new ideas for preparing and serving hot dishes, suitable for the colder months, would be the next thing on the program, and all were asked to participate.

"What I Fed My Family" on a date mentioned, was the heading of the competition, and rules were to be observed as follows: (a) The menu for the whole day must be printed, written, or typed on your Poster, or done separately and pasted on; (b) We would like pictures or illustrations to accompany these posters, as these add life and color; (c) At the foot of the Poster put reasons for choosing the foods used, preferably printed or typed; (d) On the reverse side of the Poster put four representative dishes you have used in your menus, such as different ways of preparing meats or vegetables, a recipe for dessert, or any other dish you wish specially to mention; (e) Every member of the Institutes in Simcoe County is eligible to enter this competition; (f) Prizes will be :1, A complete set of cookery books compiled by the Women's Institutes of Scranton, Penn.; 2, Canadian Cook Book; 3, The Boston Cook Book.

Other Institutes in the province might try a similar competition with lasting beenfit to both attendance and interest.

The local branch of the Women's Institute sent a number of "Christmas cheer" baskets to sick, aged, or shut-in people in the community on Christmas Eve, these being packed at the home of the president, Mrs. Thomas Harkness. Contributions toward these supplies were received at the December meeting, when each member was asked to bring something in the grocery line that could be used when the baskets were to be made ready for sending out just before Christmas; a generous response was made, and gifts of money were also sent in that helped to buy meat, flour, etc.; local merchants also contributed for this worthy purpose, and the committee in charge was not hampered in any way for lack of supplies when the time for fulfilling their task had arrived.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office

"Dear Marion:

We do seem to be making a battle-ground of the 'Women's Page' among us all, don't we? At any rate, we are not stagnating.

I am that wearer of no mean title bestowed upon me by yourself, 'A Woman—Proud of it,' because I had unwittingly chosen the same pen-name as that heir of all the ages, 'Another Thinker.' I'm flattered that he seems to think I'm a foeman worthy of his steel.' Here let me pause to remark that I am not a 'spinster,' whatever that quaint old Victorian creature may be. Sometimes I wish I were, when the high cost of living gets too unruly, but that would hardly do since I have given hostages to fortune, would it?

Why should this man assume that it is only unmarried women that are bitter towards men? Quite the contrary is true. It is the ones that have been 'hooked' that are able to speak from sad experience. Most of the 'unhooked' are still fondly dreaming of an Eden lost that never was on land or sea.

I'll admit that I'm one of those pests with the gift of the gab, but did you ever hear tell of any man who was not fond of the sound of his own voice? (What a lot of 'of's'). You might not think it, but I am, when not in action, quiet and reserved. It is only in print that I can let myself go, and I assure you, moreover, that my husband is not 'henpecked.' Of course, he is a good listener. He doesn't like ridicule, this other thinker, yet he fairly asks for it, and as he wants to know where I would be if it were not for Adam, being Irish I'll answer his question by asking where he would be if it were not for Eve. Same place, I dare say.

Anyway, that old Adam wasn't much of a 'head' man. He didn't show up in a very attractive light, did he? And he was not above hiding behind Eve, figuratively speaking. He didn't assert his place as 'head' man at all, in fact. Not when punishment was coming his way.

'Another Thinker' says there would be no friction if the hub were not there. What good the wheel be if the hub were missing which supplied the NECESSARY friction?

Besides, we don't believe in 'peace at any price.' When he says there is no reason why women should not drive trucks and do other such feats, he is saying precisely what I pointed out. There IS no reason why they shouldn't. What I was trying to get was this, that if women are capable of doing these things they are also capable of invading man's realm in any other way. Up to a few years ago, women, no matter how intelligent or how well educated, had no voice in the matter of how the things which affected them most should be done. She must suffer from the effects of laws men polled, but had no voice in righting the wrongs. She was classed with children and idiots when it came to voting. Any drunken, ignorant, illiterate male could cast his vote as he pleased, though. What think you of that for justice? Ah well! It would take a thousand tongues to cry out the shame of this, and I have only one. Besides, I am aware this is beside the point—though it does show where men stood in their attitude toward women.

May I conclude by saying I am not a man hater. This world would be a howling wilderness without the dear creatures. Cause why? There would be nothing to laugh at—that's why.

'Twenty-one' evidently knows her Bible, but in spite of the fact that war and peace are, as she says, in accordance with the Divine plan, I do not stand corrected. That does not alter the fact that war IS a man-made institution.

I am considerably older than twenty-one, and I believe by the time that writer has lived another dozen years she will admit that women have a right to enter politics. Why on earth not? Do you think Lady Nancy Astor, who is in Parliament, is not as able a member as any man in it? Wherever there is a wrong to be righted her voice is heard. I think 'woman place' is wherever she can do her duty as she sees it as well as in the home. Of course, it is her natural element 'all else confusion.' But she should not be a prisoner there.

Yours truly,
A Woman—Proud of it."

I'm very pleased to have you answer that letter, and you have done so noble work that there is nothing for me to add.

You remark, however, that a thousand tongues would be required to put across the message, and you have only one. My dear, that is just the idea of bringing matters like this out on our pages—your message has to-day been given more than ten thousand tongues. If there are five readers to a home (a conservative estimate, I believe) you have delivered your message to 50,000 people!

I hope this is the last time you will have to use this lengthy pen-name I chose for you, and that you can soon go back to your interesting letters under your other name.

"Dear Marion:

So we have 'Another Thinker'—but what a different line to the one when I answered first. I don't seem to understond this guy at all.

May I say that I got severely 'razzed' because you said I was a champion among men? I just like to see the fair sex get their rights. But I do, in one way, agree with this bird. We men do get some real but unnecessary knocks from your page.

However, 'Mr. Another Thinker' you speak of your wife being sharp-tongued. Did you ever dream that it may your own fault? By beating around the bush like you did in your letter, you played with fire, and should she get wise and tongue-thrash you, it is your own fault. But to have such a 'cruel' wife as you have, I imagine, if I were in your boots I'd be afraid to say 'meow.' But you seem very jocose about the matter. Methinks you wrote in for fun, and wanted to see what someone would say to you. Personally, I don't believe she is that crabby sort, and knows all about your 'slamming' her. If such IS the case, I again say it is probably your fault. Perhaps before you were 'hooked' as you term marriage, you told her and showed her that you had no bad habits, but sort of changed the tune when the parson declared her yours for life.

You know, I happen to be going with a steady girl and she has the opinion that I'd do that sort of trick. Sort of down on men, for she has seen a lot of that done (and so have I). But 'It's a poor crocodile that can't live in mud as well as water,' and if I did a trick like that and got her changed to a 'talking machine' I'd feel that I deserved it. When I wrote my letter to your head man it was only about fifteen minutes after her paper arrived until the 'phone rang and yours truly went through a severe cross-examination. She wanted to know if it was my line that was signed 'Respect.' I tried to change the subject, but No, sir; I either had to lie or give in. I don't profess to be an angel, or a woman's man (for I have my own ideas, too), but I gave in, and as aforesaid, got 'razzed'. Guess she doesn't agree that I'm a champion (I don't either).

Now, sir, just light a new fag and sit your poor maltreated self down to think, and if you don't find out that it is your own fault, I'm a dub. (Perhaps you are too stubborn to give in anyways).

Thank you, Marion, and I might say that 'Twenty-one's' letter was sort of amusing. I'd like to meet that guy if he is alone yet, but I don't think Peterborough young people are too slow to make up with a stranger.

Sincerely,
Respect."

Thanks, "Respect," for writing again. There is only one point on which I would like to take issue with you—I enjoy all the rest. You object that our pages give men unnecessary knocks. Did you ever read the jokes on the sport page, or on any men's pages of a newspaper, or in a men's magazine? Try it. They are all take-offs on women, ringing the changes on the stale old "Mother-in-law" jokes, and others equally musty with age. If a joke doesn't make some woman look ridiculous, it is not worth space on thees pages. WE have not been so unkind—and recall the fact that this argument was started by a MAN.

People are like that, though. There are those who do things they should not do, and break into the news; then they jump on the newspaper and say "It's bad publicity for the city" or "It will hurt business." It's not the newspaper's fault—it is merely holding up a mirror to the life of the community—and these people make the ugly faces they see. When a person starts something, let him take all that's coming.

How about it, neighbors?

"Dear Marion:

Your pages make such an interesting addition to The Examiner for us women folk. The two so-called 'Thinkers' served one good purpose—they roused us to rally round your banner and you will find out that much sooner how much we love and respect you. I have been wondering what kind of lives the wives of those two men must have—that is if two women were foolish enough to marry them. They were probably deceived by fine words and many promises.

I just wanted to make one or two suggestions to the younger girls with their boy friends. These suggestions rise out of a remark I heard about a young married woman the other day. It was that she had never allowed any young man to kiss her except the one she married, and she had never been sorry for it. If the girls heard some of the boys, yes most boys, express their opinions to their mothers and sisters of the girl who lets the fellows kiss her, they would see through their attempts at petting and promptly squelch them. Do you know the boys so often say, 'I just wanted to see if she would.' And does not a girl have the feeling that she has cheapened herself and later wishes she had let him see that she would NOT. And on the other hand, a man could pay no finer tribute to his wife than to be able to say, 'She was the only girl I ever kissed.' What do you think of it? The words of the poet express all this so well:

"Ah wasteful woman! She who may
On her sweet self set her own price,
Knowing he cannot shoose but pay
How she hath cheapened Paradise!
How gives for naught the priceless gift
How spoiled the bread and spilled the wine
Which, spent with due respective thrift
Had made brutes men, and men divine!"

Betsy Jane Ann."

Thank you, "Betsy Jane Ann" for the nice things you write. I'm surely glad to know I have the support of you neighbors.

Thanks, too, for the advice to girls, and the poem—and come again, please.

"Dear Marion:

I do not in the least think you are an old maid, and if such were the case; I have known some of the dearest and best people who were unmarried men and women. Even St. Paul says the unmarried careth for the things that please God, but I am glad to read you do not care what thoughtless thinkers say.

You see our letters certainly look different in print and give us a worse shock than perhaps anyone else; but however, long may you continue your good work.

Just Thankful."

Indeed, "Just Thankful," I don't see why your letters should shock you, because they are splendidly composed. Please tell me why you inclosed a stamp, as you did not ask for any helps.

Thanks for your encouraging message to unmarried women.

"Dear Marion:

Would you please send me the following helps: Christmas decorations, Christmas menus, and Christmas gift suggestions?

I am sending a hint on making cookies. After making the dough, make it into a nice roll, set away to cool. Then cut off in thin slices, put in pan, and bake. This is a great time saver. I will send in other recipes later.

I do enjoy your page, and it is a lot of work for you. But there is always a lot of pleasure in doing things for the other fellow, isn't there? And always a joy in doing good work. That is the way I find it. Now I will wish you the Merriest of Christmas joys and a glad New Year, and hoping you will be able to continue the good work.

Yours sincerely,
Keene. Rand."

Thank you, "Rand," for the hint about cookies, and for your nice remarks about our pages. I will be looking for those other recipes you promise.

"Dear Marion:

Will you please send Christmas helps which I have checked off, for which I enclose stamps? I appreciate very much the women's page and recipes. Have used a few of them and found them good. I think if you were to print the recipes and helps in book form, as I remember one paper doing in the Old Country, they would have a good sale. I enjoy reading the letters and daily readings. I am glad you started it. Keep it up. Wishing you success, also a very happy time this Christmas. Thanks for the helps.

Yours sincerely,
City. Blue Bell."

I am very glad you find the recipes and hints useful, "Blue Bell." Your idea is worth considering, but hardly comes in my department. Please write soon again.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

The new cavalier collar and cuffs as worn by one of the younger set on a navy-blue crepe de chine frock. The ensemble is completed by a large flowing tie and a velvet beret.

Here they are! The new Cavalier collar and cuffs. They are made of slightly stiffened white linen and all the girls in our town—who have seen a certain popular play of the season—are most enthusiastic about them. They are wondering whether they would have the courage to wear the cuffs as large and as flaring as those worn by the charming girl in the play who is really responsible for the new fashion.

If I were just "going-on" seventeen or eighteen I am quite sure I'd have a frock of navy-blue crepe de chine as much as possible like the one shown in the sketch—and I'd have cuffs every bit as large as the ones shown. I'd wear a soft flowing tie of navy blue and a little velvet beret pulled somewhat down at the left side.

A stage costume that provides a bright idea for the woman who wants an unusual evening gown that would not be difficult to make, shows a foundation slip of satin striped with red, dark green and yellow. The red and green stripes are quite wide and the yellow stripes are fairly narrow and the material is used so that the stripes run round, not up and down. Over this colorful slip is posed an over-drapery of black chiffon, plain over the top and gathered on the skirt. The girdle is of dull gold metal cloth.

However—just because a frock takes your fancy when you see it on the stage or screen does not mean that it would be as pleasing off the stage. Often it would look rather crude and extreme this side of the footlights.

SAUCE FOR CHRISTMAS PUDDING
(Contributed by Lucinda.)

Put 1-2 cup of granulated sugar in an aluminum pan over a quick fire. Stir until the sugar melts and turns a dark amber color, then add one cup of hot water. Rub 2 teaspoons of butter, 2 teaspoons of flour, 1-2 cup of sugar together, add to first mixture, stir until it boils 2 minutes, or until it thickens, then add grated nutmeg and 1 teaspoon of vanilla and a little salt. Serve hot.

A 1-2 cup of stewed raisins may be added.

ROAST BEEF WITH YORKSHIRE PUDDING.

(Contributed by Lucinda.)

When a roast of beef is within half an hour of cooked, drain off the gravy in a bowl, leaving about two tablespoonfuls in the dripping pan. Lay a gridiron over the pan (if you have not one to fit). Prop the meat on clean sticks of oak or hickory (not pine), laid across the top of the dripping pan. Pour in the pudding, letting the fat from the roast drop on it as it cooks.

WEDDING BELLS

PARKER—BOYLE.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, December 29. — St. John's church, Humberside avenue, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Mary Elma Boyle, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Boyle, Toronto, became the bride of Harold Thomas Parker, B. A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Parker, of Caledonia, Rev. J. W. Minto officiating. The bride who was given in marriage by her brother, Harry Boyle of Peterborough, looked charming i na gown of beige georgette with hat to match, and wearing a fox fur, the gift of the groom. She carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses and lily of the valley. The bridesmaid, Miss Millicent McMullen, wore a gown of gold lace, with brown and gold hat and brown fox fur. The groom was attended by Mr. Hugh Henry of Stratford. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was held at the Carls-Rite Hotel. The eighteenth annual "At Home" of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, which includes the Vocational School this year, was held last evening in the gymnasium of the new building, where a large enclosure and a splendid dancing floor, with a commodious gallery for spectators, affords a fine opportunity for a jolly and successful dance. The affair last evening was one of the best in the history of the schcol and was attended by about three hundred pupils and their friends. The decorations were very attractive and were carried out under the supervision of Miss Mayme Montgomery. Across the hall, from the balcony at either side, were strung paper streamers of red and pale green and silver tinsel, with pendant balloons in red, green and silver. Groups of the same pretty balloons were placed about the hall and decorated the orchestra stand, which was draped with red bunting and had a dignified guard at either side, in the form of a tall wooden soldier, gaily colored. At one side of the hall, a large orange moon face was banked with evergreens. Fine music for dancing was provided by Stuart Widdess' Silver Slipper Orchestra, augmented to nine pieces last night. Patronesses for the occasion were Mesdames H. R. H. Kenner, C. S. Browne, C. E. Jamieson, E. B. Fowler, W. G. Howden, J. M. McCulloch, S. D. Hall, R. Denne, J. M. Gemmell, W. Comstock. DAILY READING

A FEW MINUTES A DAY WITH THE BEST OF THE WORLD'S AUTHORS CONDUCTED BY THE NEIGHBORS AND MARION

The drawing to a close of this old year, and the near approach of a New Year, makes reproduction of Kipling's "Recessional" appropriate to-day. Kipling was born on December 30, 1865.—.

DECEMBER 29, 1928

God of our fathers, known of old
Lord of our far-flung battle line—
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies—
The Captains and the Kings depart—
Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

Far-called, our navies melt away—
On dune and headland sinks the fire—
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Judge of the Nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

If, drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not Thee in awe—
Such boasting as the Gentiles use,
Or lesser breeds without the Law—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard—
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not Thee to guard,
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy Mercy on Thy People, Lord!

ENTERTAINING GUESTS

A Series Giving Hints on Arranging Parties.
By LAURA.

New Year's Eve.

Almost everyone sometime or other entertains at a New Year's Eve party. Just before the younger set start back to school and college, it is lovely to entertain for them, inviting every one they wish to have, as New Year's comes only once a year.

If it is planned particularly for the younger people something jolly and informal must be provided for, if it is not to be entirely a dance. Or make every other dance in the form of a game. A jolly time can be had in guessing the months. As soon as a month is decided upon, the one who impersonates it rises, and recites at least four original lines pertaining to that month. The more ridiculous or witty they are the better they will take.

After the next two or three dances, pass to the guests in turn, a note book in which a New Year's Resolution is to be written below their name. An entire page to be provided for each guest so that no one will know what his neighbor had written. While this is being done pass to the guests cards bearing appropriate quotations, such as "Time and tide wait for no man." Each guest is to amuse the company for the length of time it takes the sand to run through a minute glass from one end to the other. This may take the form of a story, poem, song or in the form of a pantomime, using for the purpose of entertainment some thought suggested by the quotation on the card. After each one has done his part, the hostess announces that she will do hers, and proceeds to read each resolution that has been written in the book. The names being given will add to the merriment.

Nut shells, set sailing in a basin of water, may be named, one for the girl and the other for the boy. If they keep together, it is an indication that the pair will be married before the year dies, but if they separate the fate of the twain is sealed for another year.

The door into the dining room may look like a leaf from a giant calendar, with Jan. 1" printed on the white ground in thick black letters. The hostess will push this open like an ordinary door at the last stroke of 12, and the guests pass through this out of the Old Year into the New.

The long table from which buffet luncheon is served has "Jan. 1" in huge black letters in the centre. Or this may be at each end, and in the centre place a white-iced layer cake on which is printed in chocolate "Jan. 1." In the middle of the cake have a small white candle, for the little New Year's first birthday.

Salads are topped with "Jan. 1" and "1" appears in red piemiento on the top of the sandwiches. The smaller cakes have "1" in raspberry and chocolate icing, and the ice cream has "Jan. 1" in hardened chocolate fudge on the top.

Gay crackers which are much in prominence at this season, add to the amusement.

Decorations are carried out in the usual red and green Christmas colors and evergreens are much in array.

A NEIGHBOR writes asking what she should do to win success in the New Year, and what resolutions she should make. I can only reply at random, because the opinions of people on how to succeed fill many hundreds of volumes.

• • • • • • •

"It is so disappointing," this neighbor writes, "when one has planned to do better and then fails."

• • • • • • •

But is it any worse, neighbor, than achievement? In one of his books, "Modern Arabian Nights" I think, R. L. Stevenson makes one of his characters say "Is there anything in life so disenchanting as attainment?" That's worth thinking over.

• • • • • • •

The only fun we get out of life, after all, is in the struggle for something. And when we get what we want in one line—or all we can get—then we start reaching for some other world to conquer.

• • • • • • •

It is thus that progress has come to the world. If everyone were satisfield with what he has, no one would push on to new heights, or use his imagination to think up new spheres of endeavour.

• • • • • • •

I hope that I shall never reach the end of my imagination, or become satisfied with things as they are. It is all right to feel satisfield with one job (although personnally I seldom do) but if we wish to remain wholly alive and virile, let's not stop there.

• • • • • • •

Attainment is disenchanting, too, because when we scale one peak we are so likely to see so many more that we had never thought of.

• • • • • • •

I holidayed in the north of Peterborough county one year, and remember yet a hike I took over rocks and through bush seeking a lake. At the foot of every new hill I thought: "When I reach the top of this hill I will see the lake." But I struggled through the tangle for two hours before being gratified.

• • • • • • •

I might have been satisfied with attaining the top of the big hill behind my camp. I would have had a pretty good view, too, and the air was all that might be expected of those farther heights.

• • • • • • •

But I would have missed my lake, and missed the thrill of struggling through the swamp and undergrowth, the thrill of seeing a bear run across my path, the wonder of every new crag, and the constant questioning as to whether I could get where I wished to arrive.

• • • • • • •

Which seems to point the necessity for an ulimate aim, a lure to which we can strive to achieve. It's not good enough to say we are endeavouring to reach "perfection." That is too vague, for we have little idea what perfection is.

• • • • • • •

It is not enough, on the other hand, to say we desire to be something better. That is too indefinite.

• • • • • • •

I wish to be a perfect neighbor to all you good neighbors—there is something definite. Having hitched my wagon to that star I may fall short, but I cannot go astray.

• • • • • • •

And that mention of a star brings up another phase of the subject. Don't aim low. It is better to aim too high than to not have a great enough ideal.

• • • • • • •

Let's try, neighbors, to put a definite mark in front of us for the New Year, and then strive, and encourage others to strive, toward it.

• • • • • • •

There are two ore three things I think we might keep in mind. One is to avoid envy, one of the most disrupting influences that can enter a woman's life. Envy, hate, jealousy, and suspicion are by-products of ambition, self-preservation and family instincts. Let one of your New Year resolutions be to banish envy and her sisters from your mind.

• • • • • • •

In his "Treatise on Painting", Lecnardo de Vinci says about the picture of envy: "This envy is represented making a contemptuous motion toward Heaven, because, if she could, she would use her strength against God."

• • • • • • •

"She is made with a mask upon her face of fair appearance. She is made wounded in the sight by palm and olive. She is made wounded in the ear by laurel and myrtle to signify that victory and truth offend her"

• • • • • • •

"She is made with many lightnings issuing forth from her to denote her evil speaking. She is made lean and wizened because she is ever wasting in perpetual desire. She is made with a fiery serpent gnawing at her heart."

• • • • • • •

"She is given a quiver with tongues for arrows, because with the tongue she often offends, and she is made with a leopard's skin, since the leopard from envy slays the lion by guile."

• • • • • • •

'She is given a vase in her hand full of flowers, and beneath these filled with scorpions and toads and other venomous things. She is made riding upon death, because envy, never dying, has lordship over him; and death is made with a bridle is his mouth and laden with various weapons, since these are all the instruments of death."

• • • • • • •

It is a very terrible word-picture which the great Italian painter gives us, but no worse than envy deserves. All uncharitableness is locked up in the word "envy"; envy hates the excellence it cannot reach; envy is wasteful, poisonous and destructive of the best that is in us.

• • • • • • •

It was envy that sent Lucifer crashing to his doom; it was envy that made Mark Antony play the fool; it is envy that keeps many women and men little. Freedom from envy might set them free from their failures by releasing forces now wasted.

• • • • • • •

THAT would be one of my suggestions for a positive New Year resolution—"I will not envy anyone anything."

• • • • • • •

Of course you know the story about the little fellow who had been lectured by his mother. Said he: "I want to fink my own finks for myself." Probably most of you wish to think your own thinks, and make your own resolutions.

• • • • • • •

When you do, please write and tell the neighbors; not for the sake of the prize alone, but for the help it will be to them and to yourself. The exercise in writing out your resolutions will impress them all the more soundly on your mind and aid you to maintain them.

• • • • • • •

And if, as I remarked before, at the end of 1929 its now fair white page IS a little smudged, RIGHT NOW the resolving to do better will do you good.

To Marion, c/o Examiner office:—

I think it would be nice to have the neighbors judge the "New Year Resolution" competition, and I will tell you my opinion as to the best letter, after publication. .....

I think it would be preferable to have you judge the "New Year Resolution" competition. .....

IN WOMAN'S REALM.

By JEANETTE.

"'A friend in need,' my neighbor said to me.
'A friend indeed is what I mean to be:
In time of trouble I will come to you,
And in the hour of need you'll find me true.'
I thought a bit and took him by the hand:
'My friend,' said I, 'you do not understand
The inner meaning of that simple rhymne.
A friend is what the heart needs all the time'."

One of the interesting minor societies of the city is the Junior Humane Society, which has an energetic membership of children who are pledge to do all they can to make the lives of animals endurable and pleasant.

Everyone knows the type of little boy who will catch flies and deprive them of their wings, leaving them to crawl about helplessly and in torture just for the sensation of watching their misery. A girl who once witnessed the actions of a couple of small boys teasing a cat, will tell to this day, with much horror, the story of the kitten whose tail came off in the hand of the little chap who was twirling it about by the tail and was as much surprised as the kitten when it suddenly parted company with the rest of the pussy.

At the last meeting of the Junior Humane Society, Mrs. W. R. Morris told the children something about cats and their ability to respond to training of the right sort. Speaking on "Cats that I have known," Mrs. Morris related experiences of her own with cats belonging to her household. One of these was a yellow Persian that was unable to purr or meouw and learned to do such things as twist the handle of a door when it wanted to come into the room.

The members of this society are watchful at all times of actions which might hurt or torture dumb and defenceless animals, and many a kind act is done by the little boys and girls.

Speaking of humane actions brings to mind the story, which is a true one, of the old spaniel which was taken by its owners and placed on the city dump, right in our own town. It was blind and very aged, and was unable to do anything to help itself. The idea, of course, was to leave it there to die, instead of getting rid of it by more humane means.

But the odd part of the story was the rescue of the spaniel by a family that is very poor. They took it home and are keeping it carefully. It will not have to die by starvation or cold on the city dump as long as there are people who will give of scanty means to help a defenceless, dumb animal.

Duffy is a small and very fat black Persian kitten. She is coal black from the tip of her nose to the end of her little tail, which she carries like a flag, upright, most of the time. She lives in Ashburnham.

The other day, she got lost. Confidingly, she followed a member of her household whose thoughts are generally far removed from cats, as he towers nearly six feet in the air and did not notice the fat little bundle of fur which followed him down the street. Her mistress went looking for her and found her engaged in a silent but evidently very important conversation with a small terrier. A grim battle of wits was going on. Whether the dog or the kitten would win out was a matter for conjecture. But Duffy refused to retreat. Sitting up very straight, she defied her foe to advance an inch nearer. Such was her tantalizing manner that he at last ventured to approach with a snarling, open mouth that boded ill for a small kitten. Gauging her distance perfectly, Duffy lifted a small paw and side-swiped him energetically and very forcefully.

Tucking his tail between his legs and yelping with the pain of a badly scratched nose, the terrier made off down the street. Duffy hunched herself into a small ball of fur and eyed him reflectively as he disappeared.

The Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. remembered the soldiers who have gone on to immortal lives where Christmas has possibly little significance, when they placed a wreath of holly and poinsettias on the Murray street cenotaph, for Christmas Day. Side by side with this wreath are two others, one inscribed "To Ted," and the other "In loving memory from Branch 52, Canadian Legion."

COLD HEART.
(Contributed by "Sheila")

Oh! Heart of Thine!
Wilt thou not respond unto my love?
Surely thou art sunk deep in some great icicle.
Could I but hold thee in the hollow of my hand,
There would I cradle thee in the warmth of my affection.
There would I breathe upon thee,
There would I kindle in thy coldness a tiny spark,
There would I fan thee with the breath of my adoration,
Until that one small light would leap into some great high flame,
Reaching the very portals of Heaven itself and burning,
Burning brightly, fiercely with Love for me, for me alone.
Oh! Heart of Thine!

WEDDING BELLS

COOK—ROLLINS.

(Examiner Correspondence).

IVANHOE, Dec. 29.—The marriage took place on Wednesday morning at eleven o'clock, at the manse of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, of Tillie Rollins, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rollins, Ivanhoe, to Howard Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cook, of West Huntingdon. The Rev. A. N. Reid was the officiating clergyman. Mr. and Mrs. Cook left for a honeymoon in Toronto and Chatham. They will reside at West Huntingdon, Ont.

McGIFFIN—BATTEN.

A very pretty Twilight wedding was solemnized at half past six o'clock last night in George Street United Church, when Adelaide, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Richard Batten, of 20 Wolsley street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to John Stuart McGiffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard McGiffin, of Ottawa. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. J. E. Todd. The choir loft was decorated with palms and ferns. The body of the church was almost filled with the many friends who attended the ceremony.

To the strains of the wedding match, played by Mr. G. F. Liddle, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She wore a lovely French sleeveless frock of white beaded georgette, made with scalloped hem, long in the back and short in the front. The skirt, circular in style, was ornamented with spirals of beads.

With this was worn a black velvet hat trimmed with silver flowers, long white kid gloves, silver slippers and hose. The bride's only ornament was a necklet of brilliants and she carried a shower bouquet of dark red Matchless roses.

A sister of the bride, Miss Winifred Batten, acted as her attendant, wearing a gown of white transparent chiffon velvet, sleeveless in style and with long side points to the hemline. She wore a black velvet hat trimmed with sequins, long white kid gloves, silver slippers and hose, and carried an arm bouquet of Matchless roses.

A brother of the bridegroom, Mr. Allan McGiffin, of Ottawa, was best man and a brother of the bride, Mr. Henry Batten, of Lakefield, sang "Love's Coronation" during the signing of the register.

Ushers were Mr. A. M. Porter, Registrar of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph and Mr. O. E. Cameron, of Ottawa, a member of the teaching staff of Ridgetown Collegiate Institute.

For the signing of the register, which was witnessed by the bridesmaid and best man, the younger sisters of the bride and bridegroom were escorted to the vestry by the ushers. Miss Jennie Batten was in flame colored Salome velvet with a black hat, and Miss Kathleen McGiffin, of Ottawa, wore peach georgette trimmed with gold lace and a brown hat.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bridal party were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Richard Batten, waring black georgette and black hat and Mrs. Richard McGiffin, of Ottawa, in black lace with a black hat. Both wore corsage bouquets of pink roses.

The rooms were decorated in Yuletide fashion with holly and mistletoe and the bride's table was centred by the cake, and arranged with pink candles in silver holders.

Mr. McGiffin and his bride left on the nine o'clock C.N.R. train en route to Montreal, the bride travelling in a navy Rodier ensemble trimmed with beige, with hat to match and seal coat. On their return, they will live at 33 Dennistoun avenue.

Miss Batten was a popular member of the Public school teaching staff of the city and Mr. McGiffin is editor of The Canadian Horticulturist.

HAILSTONES WRECK HOUSES.

How big do hailstones grow? To answer this frequently asked question, the U.S. Weather Bureau has listed some of the historic hailstorms of the past. In 1647 hailstones that measured fourteen inches in circumference are said to have fallen in New South Wales. Others, weighing four and a half pounds, were reported after a storm at Cazorla, Spain, in June, 1829, says Popular Science Monthly.

Thousands of bombarding balls of ice, each as large or larger than a big league baseball, fell at Dallas, Texas, a couple of years ago, causing nearly half a million dollars' damage. The most amazing report of such a bombardment from the sky came from Cette, France. Here, in October, 1644, such huge hailstones are said to have fallen that they wrecked dwellings and sank vessels anchored off shore.

The formation of large hailstones begins at heights estimated at between 15,000 and 40,000 feet above the ground.

GORMAN AGAIN FLAYS NEW YORK RANGERS

RESENTS CLAIM OF AMERICANS GETTING 'BREAK'

Losers Not Real Sports, Declares Manager of Star Spangled Club.

WINNING GOAL LEGAL.

Pilot of Americans Lays Complaint Against Ranger Goal Referee.

NEW YORK, December 29. — That Christmas night hockey game was being played again by the hockey fans in New York city during the week. The aftermath was played without ice because no ice could hold its own against the warm blasts which blew from the rival camps. The Rangers make their headquarters at the Garden and the Americans hold forth at the Forrest Hotel down toward Broadway.

Inasmuch as the Americans came out of the scuffle with the honors and the lone goal which passed official inspection it might be believed that joy and hilarity ruled in the Forrest Hotel. No such thing.

Thomas Gorman, major domo of the Dwyer forces, had been reading the public prints, and was literally burning up by the minute at the insinuations that Santa Claus had saved his team from being trimmed up like a Christmas tree.

It may be recalled that there was harshness in the air waves along 49th street after the first game between the Rangers and Americans on Nov. 18. That game ended 1 to 1, and brought some charges of roughness and counter charges of poor sportsmanship.

Gorman Starts Blast.

The following blast from Mr. Gorman shows how the other half played on Christmas night:

"The 'cry-baby champions' are squawking again. After we had tied them in the first match of the season, they accused our players of roughing it up and filed a complaint with Cooper Smeaton. This time they are blaming President Calder's officials. Why don't they take their licking like real sports? Colonel Hammond made the request last week for the appointment of the officials, stressing the importance of the match, and he expressed himself as delighted when Mike Rodden and Billy Bell were named for it. Now he, too, is squealing

"Stabott" McVeigh's shot, which won the game, drove the puck right into the back of the Ranger net. There was no disputing it. Referee Bell saw the puck strike the twine and sounded his whistle before he knew that the Ranger goal umpire had tried to take it away from us.

Complain of Umpire.

"Both the Montreal and the Ottawa clubs complained about this same umpire after recent games at the Garden, and I pleaded with our club owners to ask for his removal. club owners to ask for his removal. Bill Dwyer would not let me go through with this because he thought it would not be sportsmanlike. The guy ought to get a trophy as the most valuable man in the Ranger club. He will never umpire another match where the Americans are concerned.

"We have had more injuries," continued Gorman, "than any other club in the league. But they were all in the game, and we are not complaining. Joe Simpson and Norman Himes have both been battling along with badly hurt ankles and Babe Dye is playing with two cracked ribs, Jess Spring is just recovering from an attack of tonsilitis and Leo Reise went into Tuesday's game with injuries that would have kept most players in bed.

"The same applies to Johnny Sheppard He was hardly able to skate, but he insisted on playing, against doctor's orders, and gave as plucky an exhibition as I have ever seen. He carried rubber padding on his hips and legs, and refused to come off the ice. We may not have the greatest team in the world, but we have the gamest bunch of players that ever went on the ice."

Fight Results

WINS ON TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 28.—(Canadian Press.)— Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City, Iowa, light heavyweight, defeated Chuck Doris of Detroit by a technical knockout in the second round of a scheduled ten round boxing contest here last night. Doris was down twice in the first round and twice in the second before his seconds tossed in a towel Griffiths weighed 176 and Doris 173¾.

LIVES UP TO REPUTATION.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 29.—(Canadian Press.)— "Ace" Rudkins, the Nebraska wildcat, lived up to his reputation as a slashing slugger last night when he gained a close decision over Rene Devou, hard hitting Belgian middleweight, in a spectacular ten round match at Madison Square Garden.

RISKO SINKS LOWER.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 29.—(Canadian Press.) — Johnny Risko, the Cleveland baker boy, dropped a few more rungs down the fistic ladder here last night when he lost a close ten round decision to Ernie Schaaf, the rugged Boston ex-sailor heavyweight. Schaaf led in five rounds, Risko in four and one was even.

Managers Rebuild Clubs For Second Lap

CANPRO CLUBS MAY UNLEASH NEW BRAND OF RINK TACTICS

Changes in Various Organizations Presage Bitter Campaign For Hockey Clubs.

BISONS SHOW STRENGTH.

Kitchener Outfit Suffers Loss of Savage But Expect To Continue Victory March.

LONDON, Ont., December 29. — No less than twenty players were placed in the waiver list in the Canadian Professional Hockey League in one week. This supports the contention that the team managers are reconstructing their clubs for the second lap of the league race. Few players have been thrown on the open market as the majority of the managers favor placing their surplus men rather than handing them their outright release.

The Buffalo Bisons are no longer the doormat of the Canadian pro. circuit as Percy Le Sueur's sextette has been playing smart hockey and demonstrated their ability by playing two tie games on consecutive nights. The fact that they held the league-leading Detroit Olympics to a scoreless tie proves that the Bisons have come into their own and will be heard from during the remainder of the schedule.

Savage Is Injured.

Kitchener Flying Dutchmen with their sturdy defence and speedy front line were handed a hard jolt when Tony Savage, substitute defence player, was badly injured in the game against Detroit. The Dutchmen now are in the market for a high-class defence man, and will no doubt continue to be consistent winners.

Toronto Millionaires have not been attracting the support they deserve and the fans have not warmed up to minor pro. hockey in that city.

The Detroit Olympics are the most popular club in the circuit and prove to be a great drawing power on the road as well as at the million dollar Olympia in Detroit. In Charlie Stuart, they have a great goalie, while the Brydge-Rockburn defence is of a major calibre.

The London Panthers are being rebuilt by Manager Bert Corbeau, and the London pilot has collected some outstanding men, including Joe Ironstone, Carl Voss, Jack Arbour, Joe Primeau, and George Redding. Of these five men, London owns three of them outright.

Windsor Bulldogs aided the Niagara Falls Cataracts when they sold Rene Fournier, the husky French-Canadian defence player. Fournier still has a wicked shot and fits in well with the Cataracts. Windsor is still without a goal-tender of its own and is using Porky Levine, sub-goalie of the Detroit Olympics. Manager Herbie Mitchell made an effort to purchase Jakey Forbes from the New York Americans, but was unsuccessful.

Bellefeuille Leads.

Niagara Falls is enjoying the best hockey season in years. The fans in the Roar City are enthused over Newsy Lalonde's collection of players. Sammy Godin and Frank Steele, two new recruits, are performing like real veterans. Godin is the second leading scorer of the circuit.

COUGARS WILL OPEN WEEK AT DETROIT RINK

Chicago Black Hawks Travel To Border Town On Sunday.

CANADIENS START SLOW.

Apparent Lethargy of Montreal Outfit Seen As Scheme To Save Finish Till Last.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 29.—The Detroit Cougars will play three games with the Chicago Black Hawks, entertaining the Hawks at Olympia this Sunday them hop to Chicago for New Year's Day and next Sunday night.

After January 20th, the Chicago Black Hawks will play all their home games at Detroit Olympia, providing Detroit fans with additional attractions.

With the Cougars out of the city, the Olympics will provide the entertainment on Monday and next Sunday with Windsor Bulldogs and Niagara Falls Cataracts. The midweek attraction on Thursday brings the Buffalo Bisons, the only sextette who tried the Olympics this season.

Using Strategy

The Canadiens are slow to get going this season. Two reason are given for this. One is that the team finds that opposing defense tactics centre their closest scrutiny upon Morenz and Joliat, the brilliant goal-scorers. Another is that they are content to breeze along without burning themselves out in the early campaign, so that they will have something left for the windup. The Canadiens, it will be remembered, ran away from their opponents in the early season a year ago and then were found wanting and lacked punch for the playoffs.

Mild weather has frustrated the scheme as laid down by the schedule makers in the American Association as Tusla, Okla., was forced to postpone its four games at Kansas City and up to last week were only able to play three games, while St. Louis and Kansas City each figured in eight contests.

League Race Close

The race in the American League is exceptionally close with only two points separating Boston, Springfield, Philadelphia and New Haven.

THIRD CRICKET MATCH TO-DAY

British Need Victory To Retain Championship "Ashes."

AUSSIE TEAM RE-ORGANIZED.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 29 (Canadian Press Cable). — England and Australia meet on the historic cricket grounds here to-day for the opening of the third test match. The Englishmen have come here with the prestige of having won two tests, while Australia goes into the contest with a team composed of nine of the players who were on the elevens who failed so badly at Brsibane and Sydney, and with two new bowling hopes. The moral advantage is undoubtedly with the tourists, but they are meeting a team which is fighting with their backs to the wall, because loss of this test means that the championship "ashes" go back to England, where they were won in 1926.

Expect Record Crowd

Preparations have been made to house what may quite probably turn out to be a record crowd and the excitement here and throughout Australia is at its highest among cricket followers.

Reports of the match as it progresses will be wired, not only to England, but to Canada (and from the latter to the United States and South America) and South Africa and India.

The board of control in selecting the Australian team was subjected to a newspaper "barracking" by critics who demanded a change of captain and the bringing in of much new blood. It refused to adopt panic tactics and stuck to J. S. Ryder, who skipped the Australian team in the first two tests. Concession was made to the critics in the matter of bowlers, R. Oxenham and E. A. Beckett being included in the eleven. D. Bradman, a Brilliant Colt, who played at Brisbane and twelfth man at Sydney, is on the roster of regulars. Captain Ryder will depend on six men to do the heavy part of the batting—himself, W. M. Woodfull, R. L. Hendry, A. Kippax, V. Richardson and D. Bradman. They have all had test match experience, though only Woodfull and Hendry have been successful against England on this tour in international matches while Ryder was moderately successful at Sydney. The Australians have an ominous looking "tail" in Oldfield, Grimmett, Blackie, Oxenham and A'Beckett thought Oldfield, apart from being a wonderful wicket keeper, is in a pinch a great test match player, as he showed at Sydney, if he can get somebody to stay with him.

A. P. F. Chapman and his advisers will pin their faith to the same English team which won at Sydney. He has six really first class batsmen—the veteran Jack Hobbs, Herbert Sutcliffe, Wally Hammond, P. Hendren, D. R. Jardine and himself, but the "tail" of the English team is quite strong, H. Larwood, M. Tate, G. Geary and G. Duckworth all being capable of Getting a lot of runs off tired bowling. On the play so far the English bowling is in every way superior to the Antipodeans, the latter having done nothing to compare with Larwood's six wickets for 32 runs and J. C. White's four wickets for seven at Brisbane and Geary's five for 35 at Sydney.

There is one advantage that Australia can still secure and that is to win the toss, on which so much depends in "down under" cricket.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F.D.C.

Present day students at the Collegiate Institute who are keenly interested in P.C.I.'s football and hockey teams may not know that back in 1910 their school was represented in the O.H.A. with a junior team and a rattling good one too, although they were outlucked in the second round of the series.

The Collegiate team of that year included some promising young stars, several of whom starred afterwards in faster company. Among these was the late Fred Denison who did fine work later for both junior and intermediate teams in Peterborough and was a member of the famous Hamilton Alerts, and Ken Crane, afterwards a star with the Toronto Riversides, Senior O.H.A. champions. There were two junior teams in Peterborough that season, the Peterborough Juniors including such players as Frank Heffernan, who was making his O.H.A. debut and Cyril Grioux. A line up selected from the two organizations would have gone a long way toward the junior championship.

As it was the two Peterborough teams clashed in the group race and the Collegiate, thanks to sensational playing by Denison, Crane and young Hughie Burritt, a 15-year-old wonder, won the argument and were tossed in against Markham in the second round.

The P.C.I. team lost a hard fought game in Markham by 6 to 4 but were quite confident of overcoming this lead in the second game which was played at Brock street rink on February 7, 1910.

The unexpected happened. Markham, led by Pete Reesor, the hero of many a thrilling battle since that time, put up a tough defensive argument, their close checking being difficult to shake off. As a result there was little to choose in the first half, which wound up with the teams tied with two goals each.

Early in the second half the Peterborough students took the lead and looked to be on their way to victory. Then the break came. A Markham forward took a shot at the Peterborough goal and Angus Richardson, the P.C.I. net guardian, stopped the rubber with his pads and it rolled into the corner of the rink. The Markham goal umpire momentarily raised his hand and then pulled it down again and Denison secured the puck and started a beautiful rush, passing to Crane who transferred the disc to Burritt and the latter registered. That apparently left the score 4 to 2, tieing the round but as the teams skated back to centre the Markham goal umpire claimed that the shot made on Richradson had scored. To P.C.I.'s dismay Referee Angus Campbell of Varsity counted a goal for Markham, and refused to allow the score made by P.C.I. That left the figures 3 to 3, and they remained that way until the finish.

The outstanding player for Peterborough that night was Harold Matthews, who met a heroic death overseas when the bigger game of war was being played a few years later.

ELIMINATION BOUT IS SET FOR MIAMI

Jack Sharkey and Stribling To Tangle On February 26th.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 29. — (Canadian Press.) — Promptly at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Tex Rickard announced that W. L. (Young) Stribling, a Georgia boxer, and Jack Sharkey, Boston sailor, would meet here on February 26 for the right to contest for the heavyweight title. Announced expectation that the bout would produce a logical contender for the crown vacated by Gene Tunney, Rickard said that Jack Dempsey probably would meet the winner in a championship match in September.

Dempsey, en route to Miami, was quoted in Salt Lake City despatches, however, as saying that so far as he knows now his only chance of entering the ring with either aspirant to the championship would be as referee in their bout.

WINDSOR TIES LEAGUE LEADERS

Canpro Teams Stage Hectic Game in Border Cities Arena.

WINDSOR, Dec. 29.—Though they couldn't quite do all that 6,000 fans begged them to accomplish, Windsor Bulldogs finally stopped the Detroit Olympics here last night. They stopped them but they couldn't push them back and were forced to accept a 2-2 overtime draw verdict.

The battle offered seventy minutes of the most hectic hockey that Border Cities Arena patrons have seen since the structure was erected. The cross-river feud is no make-believe affair and the teams went at it hammer and tongs from first gong to last. Referee Jerry Laflamme, skating more than is his wont, spotted 22 offences meriting minor sentences and handed out a major to Fraser for tripping McBride, when he was right through for a goal late in the second period.

The teams:

Detroit—Goal, Stuart; defence, Fraser and Rockburn; centre, Goodfellow; left wing, McCabe; right wing, Bellefeuile; subs, Foyston, McInenley, Hinsperger and Gillie.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

The weather we been having, Mac, is enough to make any bird what is expected to talk about hockey and such stuff throw up his hands and go down for the 3rd time. It's all right for them bergs with artificial ice, Mister Sporting Editor, but how in heck can anybody get excited over hockey when they ain't enough natural ice around to chill a Y. M. C. A. cocktail? Our 3 teams was all billed to hop off for the 1st time Fri. night, but one of the 1st rules of the game is that it has to be played on ice, so they ain't nothing to do but sit back and wait until a cold spell concludes to wander down this way. When a bunch of golf bugs takes their stymies or whatever they use and trots around the linx on Christmas a.m., they ain't no sense in even thinking about winter sports.

Of course, the pros is still performing, and our graduate, Mister Irvin Bailey, has climbed right up to the top of the N.H.L. scoring list with such sharks as Mister Howie Morenz and Mister Nels Stewart. Right now Mister Bailey is the cream in the coffee, the salt in the stew, the starch in the collar, the lace in the shoe, and the whole works for the Toronto fans. Mister Bailey, 1 of the best that ever wore a Peterborough unie, has forged right up in the front row of pro stars, and I for 1 am tickled to death because they used to be some birds that insinuated that we over-rated the Bracebridge lad when he played here.

Well, Mac, I hope you weathered the Christmas festivities all right, and that you didn't get no fractured ribs in that last-minute traffic jam outside the Drayton filling station Mon. You remember, I kinda insinuated you oughta do your Christmas shopping early, and if you got anything broke, well, you can't blame me.

Mister Lou Marsh come out with a bright thought the other night, Mister Sporting Editor. Lou sez they ain't nothing in the rules to prevent a manager pulling out a goalkeeper and shooting in a forward in his place. So why not, sez Pick 'n Shovel, when a team is a goal down with a coupla mins. to play and the other fellows draw a penalty or 2, shove out a forward in place of the goalie and send all hands and the cook up on the attack in 1 grand scramble to get the tieing goal? There's something to mull over, Mac. Any pro team what introduced a situation like that would sure have the cash customers goofey with excitement, what I mean, and it would be worth while trying it for the extra kick it would put in the game. I move Mister Marsh be given a free pass to the next Can-Pro game as a reward for introducing a new idea. All in favor of the motion signify in the usual manner, as the master of ceremonies said after the Egyptian dancer had done her stuff.

If this weather keeps up, Mac, the Collegiate football team oughta dip out their unies and stage a New Year's Day gridiron battle as a novelty. They has been football played in much worse weather than we been getting lately, and the boys what figgered in such a belated rugby struggle would go down in sporting history and mebbe have their pictures in the paper 25 years from now when some bird started digging into the old records. I pass the tip, without any cover charges, on to Mister Carl Browne.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, to keep up excitement while we're waiting for Jack Frost the Wise Cracker handicap scouting contest is announced. The rules is simple. Every person what sees a live caterpillar between now and next week scores 3 points. Fresh buds on the trees is good for 4 points, ripe strawberries count 7, spotting a outdoor swimming party entitles you to 15 (skaters falling thru the ice don't count), and anybody seeing a straw hat on the street makes a grand slam and annexes 25 points. The person getting the most points up to next Wed. night wins the contest, and will have the choice between a 1928 liquor permit or a copy of Wilson Macdonald's poems. This competition is open to everybody, so send in your score sheets early.

And now, Mac, I gotta interview the candidates for the Council and see what they propose to do about this here weather.

Wishing you and the customers the best of luck in 1929.

GREAT BOXING PROMOTER DOUBTS WHETHER DEMPSEY WILL ATTEMPT COMEBACK

Famous Boxing Promoter Ventures Opinion That the Georgian Fighter Will Be Crowned World's Heavyweight Champion During 1929—Loughran Has Chance To Win Honors.

SATISFIED THAT MANASSO MAULER HAS FOUGHT HIS LAST RING BATTLE

Believes New Champions Will Be Crowned in Every Ring Division With the Possible Exception of the Lightweight Class, Where Sammy Mandell Is Enthroned.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Tex Rickard, in his annual signed boxing forecast for the New York Evening World today doubts whether Jack Dempsey will attempt a comeback and puts his finger on W. L. (Young) Stribling as the most likely successor to the heavyweight throne vacated by Gene Tunney.

While in the predicting mood, the promoter also ventures the opinion that new champions will be crowned in every ring division with the possible exception of the lightweight class, where he regards Sammy Mandell as well entrenched.

While he carefully side-steps any positive forecast, Rickard takes up the subject of Tunney's successor thus:—

Stribling Likely Champion

"If I must express an opinion as to the man most likely to come through I would suggest that you keep an eye on Young Stribling.

"Although Jack Sharkey has disappointed me at times, as has every one of the recognized contenders for the heavyweight honors, I have thought all along that he is in the class of the big fellows but one thing in connection with the pretensions of Stribling has struck me forcibly — none of the challengers for the place left vacant by Tunney is anxious to box the Georgian. Even Sharkey shied at the match with Stribling down in Miami the last week in February. Sharkey intimated he would rather box Stribling in New York for half the money he will get for the same match in Miami beach. I must say, however, there is one challenger who is not averse to meeting Stribling and that is Tommy Loughran."

Despite his intimation to the contrary in Miami Beach yesterday, Rickard says in The World:—

"There probably will be no comeback by Jack Dempsey. I would like to see him climb through the ropes again but any one who is trying to create the impression that Jack is certain to make another bid for the title is talking without any basis of fact. Only one thing would encourage Jack to make another try for his title and that is if a certain type of fighter should come through as winner of the heavyweight eliminations. I do not care to commit myself further on that point but I am pretty well satisfied Dempsey has fought his last fight."

Whether or not Dempsey comes back, the "big shot" by which Rickard hopes to turn out a recognized heavyweight champion in 1929 will be touched off in New York, despite reports that Boston, Montreal or another site would be chosen. Rickard also believes Loughran has a strong chance to win.

HAILED AS CHAMPION.

All entries for the Church Hockey League should be in now, and the executive will soon draw up the schedule.

Hockey games all over the province were postponed this week because of the lack of ice. The fine spring weather may be glorious to some people, but it is just plain unpopular with the hockey players.

There was a fairly good sheet of ice on the Brock Street Rink about a week ago, but the mild spell and a heave in the boards both combined to make it disappear.

On Thursday night on the professional hockey program eight games were played, and not one of the losing teams scored even a single goal. Something must be done about pro. hockey, and quickly.

All four games have been played in a single week, and it was a tired team that met the University Club of Boston, the best amateur team in the United States. The Americans used fifteen substitutes, and they did not spare the tired Canadians at all, using three complete forward lines and changing them at will.

MERCHANT OF VENICE.

3d-153.

Anyone anxious to spend a highly complicated hour might take the set of circumstances out of which Miss Clemence Dane has created her most famous play, "A Bill of Divorcement" and see whether it is possible to work out a satisfactory solution.

Among the most ultra-modern of current dramas and the most powerful of modern dramas, "A Bill of Divorcement" comes to the Grand on Saturday, January 5th, for an engagement of one night only with the brilliant London actor, Gordon McLeod, as its star, his superb supporting company headed by Lilian Christine and a complete London production.

Hilary Fairfield marries at the outbreak of war, enlists and goes to France. He returns as a mental case, suffering from shell-shock and is confined to an asylum. There he stays till 1932 when, on Christmas Eve, he escapes and starts for home to see his wife and the daughter who was little more than an infant when he last heard of her. He has, naturally, had no news of his family for years.

In the meantime, though he is quite ignorant of it, his wife has divorced him. She is engaged to be married again. The ceremony is to be held in a few days time and she is apparently in love with her new fiancee and has almost completely forgotten her ex-soldier husband. The daughter, also engaged, may find her romance upset by the arrival of her father about who she knows very little.

There is Miss Dane's starting point for "A Bill of Divorcement". There is, however, one definite certainty about the matter. Anyone who works out his own personal arrangement of the problems involved will find, on seeing the play, that Miss Dane has developed a different one and that it forms a thoroughly exciting and intense evening at the theatre.

WHAT THE PUBLIC WANTS AND GETS LEAST OF

Plays that are represented by a company of capable artists. There must be a reason for the lack of such plays, and there is, as you will note in the following statement made by a very famous director of plays known as the better class. He states that the public is being deprived of seeing plays worth while because dramatic artists the last few years have given way to plays of a frivolous nature. How true this statement is. Plays are written, presented and soon forgotten, and why? Because they are mostly of the frivolous kind. Now, let us reflect back on plays of merit, plays that will always live in the memory of those who have enjoyed seeing them, for instance, Shakespearian plays such as Hamlet, Othello, Romeo and Juliet, and last, but by no means least the immortal comedy, "The Merchant of Venice." And incidentally may I say that this is the play that Mr. H. A. Kingston has selected for your entertainment, which will be presented at the Opera House, New Year's Day, Tuesday, January 1, matinee and night.

The Merchant of Venice company is under the personal direction of Mr. Hugo Pelham, a director who has spent years directing Shakspearian productions, and with his knowledge of the necessity of having capable artists to present such plays has selected the following ones Chas. Winfleet, Hugo Pelham, Ray Nasser, Fred Mann, Arthur Fitzgerald, Garry McGarry, Jr., Harkinston, Robert Coates, James Williams, F. Mortimer Mitchell, Martha Edwards, Thelma Slack, Jane Aldworth.

This cast has been selected to support Mr. Kingston, who will be seen in the character of Shylock. Mr. Kingston has made a special study of Shakspearean plays and gives a masterful impersonation of this character. The production is mounted with special scenery and electrical effects which are carried by the company. The style of costume worn in that period has been carried out in every detail; in fact, there is nothing but a perfect presentation in this great play assured you. In recognition of the size of your city, the management have arranged to make the prices 50c, 75c and $1.00.

Although the customary prices for this production in larger cities are from $1.00 to $3.00 with the management's guarantee that this production will be carried out in every detail, it is expected that not any of the citizens of Peterborough will miss the opportunity of seeing this worth while play. For to miss it will be to regret it.

Reserved seats are now on sale at the Opera House.

AT THE REGENT.

A THRILLING DRAMA OF THE SOUTH SEAS

Love under the tropic moon—grim shadows of the money-hungry man—fantastic scenery; far flung, gorgeous but terrible—a thrilling drama of a dying race.

These factors all contribute to make W. S. Van Dyke's production, "White Shadows in the South Seas," which comes Monday to the Regent Theatre, a picture that is human, natural and different. The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production soars to a new high level of popular interest.

Van Dyke has taken an idea; namely that the white men, wherever they find their way around the world, bring with them a shadow which when thrown over primitive races results in disease, destruction and death for the simple savage. On this new but simple theme he has woven a screen drama, violent and terrible but tragically beautiful.

The story opens with Monte Blue as Dr. Lloyd, a beachcomber physician, salvaging the lives of native pearl divers on a South Sea island. These natives, urged on by the white man's cupidity, dive to great depths in search of the elusive mussels, and as a result are dying out rapidly from the tremendous pressure. Lloyd finds in his own maimed heart a great pity for these simple islanders.

After many hardships he finds a native village which has never seen a white man and the natives take him to their heart. It is his love for little Fayaway, the daughter of the chief, and his determination to keep her and her people away from the contaminating influence of his fellow whites which make the picture a mighty epic of the hearts of men as well as of the beauties of tropical nature.

The photography has deservedly been declared the most beautiful scenes of the South Seas ever filmed and due to Director W. S. Van Dyke the story move rapidly to a dramatic conclusion.

LARGE SHRINE TO BE OPENED AS MEMORIAL

Chamber of Peace Tower Embodies Sacrifices and Achievements.

CANADA'S GREATNESS

Great War Naturally Occupies the Large Place in National Memorial.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 29 (By The Canadian Press).—The history of Canada, carved in stone, is told in the Memorial Chamber of the Peace Tower which was officially opened by Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister, following the Armistice Day ceremonies on Parliament Hill.

The lofty, vaulted chamber is destined to become Canada's national sanctuary, a shrine within which are embodied sacrifices and achievements that have made this country great. Its atmosphere is cathedral-like and this is made the more impressive by the altar that will become the repository of the Book of Remembrance and upon which rests the Holy Bible, presented by H. R. H. the Prince of Wales. In the Book of Remembrance will be inscribed the names of all those Canadian men and women who surrendered their lives during the Great War.

The interior of the chamber, with its high, slender columns, its stained glass windows, its lofty arches and exquisite sculpture, is instinct with proud and solemn memories. Around the walls are panelled niches, 17 of which are devoted to telling in simple language the story of Canada's war achievements. Those elements are adorned with pictorial tablets on which are carved some group illustrative of the subject with which each panel deals; above these are shields bearing the coat of arms of the city or province in France and Belgium where the deeds recorded took place. Within the pediments of the arches that enclose each panel, the spandrels, cusps and quatrefoils bear sculptured groups, all of which enlarge on the story in its many ramifications.

Canada's history, as set forth in the Memorial Chamber, begins with the old French regime, and it is appropriate that within the first element there should be carved the royal arms of the French kings, with the lilies of France alongside.

Represented by Carvings.

The military occupation of the country is represented by the carvings in the diapers, beginning with the badges of the 12 regiments of Old France which served in Canada. These were the Royal Roussillon, Bearn, Guienne, Languedoc, Carignon-Sallieres, La Reine Artois, Bourgogne, La Marine, Berry, La Sarre and Artillery. One follows the story from them to the military forces of England which played their part in the conquest and subsequent development of Canada. Of these there were no fewer than 110 and all their badges are carved chronologically within the diapers. Volunteer regiments raised in British North America and which served on this continent find their place in the general scheme, and coincidentally enough there are 12 of these—the same number as French units which served in this country. These are the Royal Canadian Rifle Regiment, the King's American Dragoons, the 1st American (Queen's Rangers), the King's American Regiment, the King's Royal Rifles of New York, the Royal Provincials, the 10th Royal Veterans, the New York Volunteers, Butler's Rangers, the Nova Scotia Regiment, the New Brunswick Fencibles, and the Royal Canadian Volunteers.

The Great War naturally occupies the larger place in the memorial. The badges of the 260 Infantry Battalions that were raised during the conflict are given their position, prominent in relation to their activity. The active service battalions have their badges carved in the cusps and quatrefoils while the reinforcing units are wreathed in the crockets around the angular pediments. All services are represented. On the finials surrounding the arches are symbolic groups representing trade and commerce.

Seventeen Elements.

The 17 elements indicate: The Crossing; Ypres; Festubert-Givenchy, Troops assisting civilians in a village under fire; St. Eloi Craters—Mont Sorrell and Sanctuary Wood; The Somme—Albert; Vimy Ridge—Mont St. Eloy; Passchendaele; Medical and Railway Services; Amiens—Cavalry and Tanks; Arras—Beaumont Gate and Seige Artillery; Canal du Nord—Cambrai; Mons; The Rhine; North Russia; Forestry; and the Departure for Home.

In the niche of the arched doorway is a symbolical group of the Recording Angel, while on the finial above the entrance is a Mother with two children. The "Mother's Cross" hangs pendant from the arch.

The white stone for the chamber was the gift of the French Government. The corner columns are of French marble, while the black marble base was the present of the Belgian government. Great Britain made a gift of the altar, around which are carved the coats of arms of the nine provinces, with one blank to enable the inclusion of a tenth. On the ends of the altar are the Royal Arms of Great Britain and those of Canada. The floor stones are from the devastated areas in France and Belgium, and on these at intervals are inset eight of the principal battles of the Canadian Corps.

Little now remains to be done to the Chamber. With the setting in place of the Book of Remembrance it will be complete and Canada will have both a memorial and a shrine worthy of the purpose on which so much time and labor have been expended. The story is the product of the Historical Section of the Department of National Defense, and in their researches the directors have obtained details of vast historical wealth and value.

HOSPITAL WAS FIRE TRAP

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 29 (Canadian Press).—A jury, under Coroner Dr. J. E. Craig, was unable at its adjourned inquest last night to establish the origin of the fire at Sacred Heart Hospital at Hull, Que., on Christmas morning, which cost the life of Rev. Sister Ste. Cecile, one of the hospital staff. The jury found that Sister Ste. Cecile came to her death from shock following burns.

Fire Chief Alphonse Tessier, of the Hull Fire Department, delared the material of which the hospital was built "made it a veritable fire-trap."

'FLU' EPIDEMIC

Health, this morning, in discussing the prevalence of influenza in different parts of the Dominion. Dr. Amyot did not think, though, that the present type of the disease was severe.

Reports coming in from the various provinces, with the exception of Nova Scotia, Dr. Amyot said, make no mention of influenza. In his opinoin, Dr. Amyot declared, this would indicate that many who were sick with the disease di dnot consider their illness sufficiently serious to require medical attention, or that the doctors attending these patients held the same opinion, and did not report these cases to the provincial authorities.

There were very few cases of pneumonia, however, Dr. Amyot said. The number suffering from pneumonia was he thought, lower tha nthat in December of last year.

The GAS PLANT

The price of $335,000.00 includes the gas plant and also the street car barns on King street with about half an acre of land, the former Otonabee Power Co. sub-station on Simcoe street, a lot at the corner of Park and McDonnel streets, to be used for rounding the corner, and a lot on Water street next to the C.N.R. Lakefield line. The car barns can be used for storing the city's street machinery and tools, etc., and the Simcoe street and Water street lots for factory sites.

The Provincial Government will take the city's debentures bearing 4¾% interest for the purchase price. This is a low rate of interest, as the market rate is about 5%.

In the year ending October 31st, 1928, the revenue from the gas plant was $92,639.39, and the operating expenses $59,348.64, leaving a favorable balance of $33,290.75. The interest and principal payments on the debentures will average $21,127.42, leaving a surplus of $12,163.33 for extensions, improvements and other purposes.

The replacement value of the plant is $616,405.15, and the depreciated value $365,659.15. The price, including the other properties, is, as stated, $335,000.00.

The generating plant has a capacity for making nearly three times the gas now made.

The distribution system is in good condition. The feed mains have been renewed within 16 years. Pipes that had been in the ground for nearly half a century have been found to be in good condition. The small shrinkage between the quantity of gas made and the quantity paid for by consumers shows that the pipes are well maintained.

The number of consumers has increased from 2,662 to 2,993 in ten years, the quantity of gas sold from 33,586,900 cubic feet to 49,588,200 cubic feet, and the revenue from $56,223.85 to $92,639.39 in the same time.

ENDORSES I. P. McNABB.

Peterborough, Ont., Dec. 29, '28.
The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I just wish to crave space to express my appreciation of the candidature of Mr. Isaac McNabb for the Board of Education. I think it is splendid to have a man of his calibre offer himself for election.

I know Mr. McNabb personally. I know that he is a graduate of Toronto University, as MA., and that he has had that practical experience in school training which will go so far toward an understanding of the school problems of Peterborough.

Surely this practical ability and practical knowledge counts in the civic arena as it does in other walks of life.

As an executive, Mr. McNabb has showed his qualification in his business and as vice-president and president of the Kiwanis Club.

It would be a pity, I think, to overlook so many good qualities in a prospective member, and I sincerely hope that Mr. McNabb may be sent to represent us on the Board of Education with all the ability he undoubtedly possesses.

Yours truly,
J. J. CRAIG.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

Prejudice is premature judgment on any subject. Bigotry is irrational clinging to some theory, with an intense unwillingness to look into the rightfulness of any other idea. Ignorance is simply a lack of knowledge. These three traits of character are generally joined one to another, to a more or less extent. When truth is presented, if the individual refuses to give ear to the same, and will have none of it, it only remains for that one to continue in the dark. Truth will endure the most exacting counting and will continue to live on forever. Error will eventually have its doom. It is best to push out and investigate things for yourself.—M. T. Boys Tap Maple Trees; Draw Sap In December

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 29. — (Canadian Press).—Indications of an early spring are already manifesting themselves here. While enjoying the Christmas holidays, David and John Thompson of North Easthope, tapped a number of maple trees in their laneway and obtained a quantity of sap. As proof of their venture, the boys now have a large cake of maple sugar in their possession. The old spring cry "Sap's running," seems almost appropriate for December—in this district.

THE OLD AND THE NEW YEAR

As we look back over the past year what do we see? Failure no doubt! But surely we have had success as well. Don't let these failures discourage us as they might easily do. Neither should we use success for a couch on which to rest but rather a stepping-stone to still higher things. The best that has been need not necessarily be the best that can be. Let us enter the New Year with our faces toward the light and all the shadows will fall behind us. Only in this way can we have a Happy New Year.

COMMUNIST EDITOR RESCUED BY BRITISH GOVERNMENT IN 1919 LATER EMIGRATING TO CANADA

Hannes Sula Was Sentenced To Life Impirsonment in His Native Finland.

MEMBER OF RED GUARD.

Along With 40 Other Leading Communists Made Homes in Northern Ontario.

(Special to The Examiner.)

SUDBURY, December 31. — Sentenced to life imprisonment in his native Finland, for his activities with the Red Guard in the civil war, rescued from that sentence by the British government for his part in the battles of the Finnish Legion, conducted to Canada by that same British Government, in company with 40 of his fellow Communists, such are a few of the threads in the tangled skein which constitutes the life history of Hannes Sula, one time 100 metres champion of Finland, and now one of the editors of the local Communist Daily Vapaus, whose chief editor, Arvo Vaara, was committed a few days ago for trial for seditious libel.

In the editorial office of Vapaus, and in his room at the co-operative boarding house, Sula to-day told with obvious pride of achievements how he, an acknowledged Communist, owed his presence in Canada to the British government. The genesis of Communism in Canada has always been in doubt, he admitted, but there was a suggestion in his smile that the prime minister of the province in his search for the origin of Communism in Ontario, might consult with the British government about the dumping of 41 of the leading Finnish Communists, in 1919, at New Liskeard and other points in New Ontario.

Sula declared that after the Bolshevik rise he and 39 other Legionaires, were taken to England; since there was a price on their heads in Finland, the government finally decided that Canada was the best place for these men, who were too Red for their own country. And so it happened that in 1919 a ship arrived in Quebec bearing Oskari Dakoi, First Independent Premier of Finland, the editor of the leading Socialist newspaper, and Sula of the Red Guard and Finnish Legion.

The British government went so far as to find jobs for them, Sula says, in the lumber camps, mines and construction camps in the district around New Liskeard. Sula and many of the others came scooting to Sudbury, the centre of the Finnish community in Canada, and he was later asked to join the editorial staff of Vapaus.

Youth Of City Fed Up With Mild Weather

The youth of Peterborough is fed up!

Skates, skiis, snowshoes, toboggans, sleighs, hockey sticks and pucks that came in Santa's sack last week, are useless for lack of snow and ice; happy have been the youngsters who asked only for indoor toys!

But some are not pining under this adversity. One boy was seen on Aylmer street on Saturday making the best of unseasonable weather. He had roller skates and played a kind of half-ice, half-field hockey.

But something must be done quickly, or Santa's workshop will have no business in winter sports goods next year.

FLU EPIDEMIC IS INCREASING

Premier Ferguson Issues Warning To Citizens of Province.

PUBLIC INDIFFERENCE.

TORONTO, December 31 (Canadian Press). — With the flu epidemic now proved more virulent and destructive than people expected, the Ontario Department of Health, through Premier G. Howard Ferguson, issued the warning last night that in districts where the disease is widespread School Boards should postpone the opening of schools and municipal and other authorities should seriously consider the matter of disallowing public gatherings until conditions improve and serious danger is past.

In a general statement of the situation the Prime Minister declared that the Department's warning was not intended unduly to alarm the public, but was regarded as a wise and necessary measure toward the suppression of a malady that, since its inception, has spread with great rapidity, until it now prevails all over the Province.

SNOW FALLS TO USHER OUT THE OLD YEAR

Festive Preparation For Ushering in 1929 Go Merrily On in London.

5,000 TO ATTEND BALL.

Trumpeters of Crack Regiments Will Demonstrate Their Skill at Midnight.

LONDON, December 31 (By Thos. T. Champion, London Manager of the Canadian Press).—The Old Year is departing in Britain like a blustering old curmudgeon. Snow fell rather heavily in the north yesterday, and at night reached London, but by daylight to-day had changed to a slippy drizzle in the Metropolis. Festive preparations for ushering in 1929 proceeded apace since the King was deemed out of imminent danger. All the big hotels arranged revels for the evening on an unusually grandiose scale.

This is the night when the trumpeters of crack regiments earn much honest money by proclaiming with a fanfare the incoming New Year, and more than one lady and gentleman renowned in musical comedy or vaudeville will act as hostess or host at exclusive midnight gatherings. Five thousand persons are attending the Chelsea Arts Ball, one of the genuinely happy assemblies of the season.

Dean Inge and the August Chapter of St. Paul's Cathedral are taking due precautions along with the city police that the New Years ambitions of those who will gather in thousands around the Cathedral shall be kept within due limits. No watch-night service will be held there, and the crowd will not be permitted on the steps, but will be kept gently and persistently on the move in the precincts.

Many Changes in Office.

The Old Year has been remarkable for the number of changes in high office. There is a new Lord Chancellor, Lord Hailsham; new Archbishops both of Canterbury and York; and a new President of the Royal Academy.

Very few dramatic works of outstanding quality have been forthcoming. Shaw, Barrie, Galsworthy, or Somerset have turned out nothing new. Eden Philpotts has given two plays which, while agreeable enough, are not to be reckoned equals of "The Farmer's Wife" or "Yellow Sands." One of the best successes of the year was achieved by Julian Van Druten, with "Young Woodley," while Edgar Wallace has been as prolific as ever, yielding no fewer than five plays of a healthy crook type.

In the making of books, 1928 passed its predecessors with a total of 10,612 new books and 3,787 new editions. Whether this betokens growing appreciation of literature and a thirst for knowledge is perhaps debatable. Obviously, however, in such a bulk of published works, an unknown author of talent has difficulty in making himself heard.

Families Killed Coming To City

The Challenge of the New Year

The old year, with its triumphs and its setbacks, its joys and its sorrows, its laughter and its tears, is swiftly and relentlessly pressing on to the inevitable end.

Impatient at the threshold on this New Year's Eve is young 1929, eager to present a new and fresh page.

To-night the burning question is: "What are we going to write thereon?"

This challenge of the New Year, this three-fold challenge to us as individuals, as citizens of Peterborough, as Canadians, how is it to be met?

The individual challenge, though all important, presents perhaps the least difficulty if we are honest with ourselves. We know all our shortcoming and our faults. We know where and how and when we have erred in the months that are gone for ever; we know wherein we have failed to measure up to the standard we realize as essential. And, knowing these things, it should be possible to draw up a new chart by which our course in 1929 may be guided along a safer, a surer, and a better course.

The challenge to us as citizens of Peterborough can best be met by a deeper faith in the possibilities of our home city, by a stauncher loyalty to its interest, by a wider realization of the advantages that come to us as residents of Peterborough.

Civic faith, civic loyalty, civic pride—these are the weapons with which we should resolve to-night to battle throughout 1929 on behalf of our city.

Sometimes it seems as if they have been lacking from our armoury, as if we have left it to outsiders to discover the opportunities and possibilities and advantages of Peterborough. We have been dumb when we had an opportunity to say a word for Peterborough; we have been inert when something was being done for Peterborough; we have been indifferent when policies that concerned Peterborough were being decided.

What better time than the eve of the New Year to shake off apathy and inertness and to decide that henceforth as citizens of no mean city we are determined to work for and talk about and believe in this beautiful place in which we have been set to work out our destiny?

There are indications of great days ahead for Peterborough, prospects of large industrial expansion, definite signs in the sinking of outside capital in the city's business world. Never has there been such a rush of large mercantile concerns to locate here, and more are coming; sure harbingers of expansion and growth, for the shrewd direction of such big institutions leaves little to chance.

The outsider sees Peterborough's possibilities; isn't it time that we ourselves realized what business and industrial leaders have apparently realized that the coming years are to be Peterborough's?

Our resolve to-night should be that 1929 will find us loyal, enthusiastic citizens, ready to back up our elected representatives in public office, in their efforts for a better Peterborough, eager to enthuse over the city when away, behind every honest endeavor aimed at civic betterment and improvement.

And finally as Canadians we can answer most effectively the challenge of the New Year by a broader conception of what it means to be a Canadian; by striving to acquire a national, rather than a parochial viewpoint; by less thinking in terms of Ontario, or Quebec, or the Prairie Provinces, and more thinking in terms of the whole Dominion, by a kindlier welcome and more ready help for new citizens, by the development of a deeper love and loyalty for this great country, by endeavoring to know more of the history and the present problems of Canada, by a greater pride in Canadian achievement.

The old year is almost gone. With high resolve, stout courage, and firm faith in ourselves, our city, and our country, forward into Nineteen Twenty-Nine!

Butterfly Is Found In North Monaghan

Another sign of an open winter was the finding of a full-brown black butterfly that alighted on the woodpile owned by R. A. Dobbin, of R. R. No. 3, Peterborough.

Last Saturday, Harold McKnight, who is employed by Mr. Dobbin, found the butterfly, a fine black specimen, on the woodpile, and took it into the house. Later, he let it go again, thinking that a butterfly that had the energy to make its appearance so early in the year and under such forbidding auspices, should be allowed its freedom.

DOCTORS ARE FACING MOST BIG PROBLEM

His Majesty Passed Another Quiet Day Yesterday—Conditions Favorable.

BULLETINS ARE TERSE.

People Are Eagerly Waiting Some Definite Report of Progress.

LONDON, December 31 (Canadian Press). — The exhausted condition in which King George's prolonged serious illness has left him is presenting a difficult problem to his physicians which they frankly acknowledge in this morning's official bulletin.

Five of the seven principal doctors who have been attending His Majesty signed this morning's report, which was more detailed than recently, and although it recorded a rather disturbed night it announced some improvement in the King's appetite, and that he is holding his own as to general condition.

All five doctors were in Buckingham Palace before ten o'clock this morning, but the bulletin was not issued until after 12.30, as a long consultation followed the examination of His Majesty.

To-day was one of the coldest and most disagreeable of the winter, but a considerable crowd was outside the palace anxious to learn the news from the royal bedside.

There was general gratification among the public that the King had had no setback, and that the bulletin was not without satisfactory features, but public anxiety is bound to continue while the patient remains in the present state of extreme weakness and day after day goes by with him making little if any progress toward recuperation.

Not Too Satisfactory.

In palace circles it was indicated that the bulletin was not regarded in too satisfactory a light. It was pointed out, however, that there was no definite setback and that the doctors are satisfied with the way things are going except for the patient's weakness.

There was an expression of hopefulness that the increased readiness of the King to take nourishment may help to remedy this condition, which is felt to be the real crux of the whole situation at the present time.

The disquieting feature of the bulletin was the stress laid on His Majesty's state of exhaustion which, as previously indicated and is now reiterated, is baffling the efforts which his big staff of eminent medical attendants are making to overcome.

A Restful Day.

It was authoritatively stated at Buckingham Palace at three o'clock this afternoon that King George was having a restful day.

LONDON, December 31. — Canadian Press. — King George yesterday passed another quiet day without change, according to the bulletin issued at the palace at 8.30 p.m. Under the circumstances this must be regarded as favorable. It is now three days since the discouraging reports, which alarmed the country on Thursday, and the best that can be said is that if there is no noticeable increase in the strength of His Majesty, at least there has been no diminution.

The medical bulletins continue to be extremely terse and non-committal, and to that extent are disappointing, as the people are hungrily looking for some definite report of progress made.

The present reports of mere quiescence give rise to all kinds of rumors and suspicions, which the public would like to see authoritatively dissipated.

Until the physicians are able to give such a reassuring report anxiety and even apprehension will continue.

King George's physicians to-day issued this bulletin:

Eight Persons Killed In Crash at Cataraqui

Wreckage and Bodies Scattered Over Half Mile of Track When Train Hits Vermont Car This Afternoon—Identification Made.

FRAGMENTS OF CLOTHING YIELD NAME AND PRAYER BOOK GIVES SMALL CLUE

KINGSTON, Ont., December 31 (Canadian Press). — Alexander Dupuis, of Cornwall, on his way to Peterborough where he intended taking up his residence, was instantly killed and seven others with him, when a Canadian National train struck a closed car at Cataraqui crossing this afternoon. The wreckage was scattered over half a mile of track, and identification of the bodies was impossible until a late hour.

There were in the car, two men, two women (their wives), and two boys and two girls, all instantly killed.

Had Worked Here.

Alexander Dupuis, the owner of the car, had worked in Peterborough for a month, and had gone to get his family to bring them here to live. He was employed with the Vermont Marble Company, now the Ontario Marble Company, as a cutter, and was expected back at the plant immediately after the New Year. He left Peterborough just before Christmas.

Prior to coming to this city he was in the head office of the Vermont Marble Company, Vermont.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Carl McGee, a 31-year old farm hand, alleged by police to be one of the bandits who murdered S. Digby Poyntz, 56 year old druggist, in his store here Thursday night, is dead, and Detective Charles McIvor, of central headquarters staff, is in hospital seriously wounded following a gun battle in front of a rooming house in the centre of the city last night.

It was following interrogation of the youths that the police commenced search for McGee.

Seeking the slayer of the druggist, Detective McIvor accompanied by three other officers went to the house

BRITISH ISLES ARE PREPARING FOR GENERAL ELECTION IN 1929

Old Land Faces New Year of Drama in Politics and Foreign Trade.

FOUR BY-ELECTIONS.

One Candidate Is Advocating in His Platform Home Rule For Scotland.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—(By George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press).—The old land faces a new year of drama in politics and promise in trade. Parliament does not resume for another three weeks. So far as politicians are concerned London is deserted. But out in the constituencies plans are being laid and organizations whipped into line for the inevitable general elections of the coming years. The Government has not yet intimated on what issues it will appeal or when parliament will be dissolved. It may practically be taken for granted however that extension of the safeguarding of industries scheme, with schemes of migration to the dominions and to Canada in particular, will be much discussed in the battle of ballots.

There are now four by-elections in the offing. In that in North Midlothian, which Gladstone once made famous by his intense campaig one of four candidates stands on the issues of home rule for Scotland — Lewis Spence of the Scottish Nationalist Party.

When parliament does resume sharp fighting is expected. The derating bill, providing for practical removal of local taxes from agricultural, industrial and transportation properties, has still to plough its tortuous way through committee. On April 19, unless amendments are made in the meantime, the new provisions of the Unemployment Insurance Act come into effect and these according to labor men will add tens of thousands to the list of destitute in the mining districts.

Kiddies Unable To Make Use of Christmas Gifts

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, December 31. — Many of the juvenile gifts brought by Santa Claus were of the nature of sleds, skates, hockey sticks, skiis, etc., and in this sort of Christmas they are very hard gifts to use. Optimistic youth dragged sleds up and down hill, but the going was hard, as it needed a microscope to see the snow. The sidewalks are used as rinks for the hockey games, but there is little zest, and skiis are merely ornamental so far. One feels that next year's letters to Santa will contain many requests for snow.

FRENCH CRISIS IS AVOIDED WHEN PREMIER DECIDES TO STAY

Cabinet Persuades M. Poincare That He Has Not Completed His Work For Country.

SITUATION IS COMPLEX.

Parliament Will Convene Early in January With Premier Leading in Debate.

PARIS, Dec. 31 (Canadian Press)—Premier Poincare to-day frankly told his cabinet that he had accomplished his main tasks and was ready to resign because of present unrest. But the cabinet persuaded him he had much to do, particularly in regard to reparations, and M. Poincare agreed to remain.

At the opening of the cabinet session Premier Poincare told his colleagues that he had reorganized the Armistice Day ministry in order to insure prompt adoption of the budget. This had been done before the end of the year and as stabilization of money was assured he felt this work was done.

The Premier concluded by saying that in view of the complex political situation he would present the cabinet's resignation to President Doumerge.

All the ministers devoted themselves to convincing the Premier that the Government faces a grave problem in revision of reparation and adjustment of domestic political differences. They unanimously declared that Poincare's continuance as leader of the government was "indispensable."

Poincare finally agreed to remain. Thus in the opinion of his supporters he definitely avoided a crisis and greatly strenghtened his hand by compelling the whole cabinet in which there was reported to be dissension to insist upon his retention in the leadership. The Premier, therefore, will face parliament when it convenes on January 8, and lead a debate on the general policy of the government which th cabinet decided to-day shall be on lines already followed.

The fire was finally extinguished with $2,000 property damage.

BOY IS RESCUED BY HIS BROTHER

Charlie Murduff Fell Into Creek at Jackson Park This Morning.

Little five-year-old Charlie Murduff, son of Mr and Mrs. Murduff, of Elm Street, fell in the creek at Jackson Park this morning, while sliding on the ice with some other small boys, and was in danger of being drowned. His ten-year-old brother pulled him out and he was taken to the home of the park caretaker, R. L. Orde, where it was found that his clothes were soaked through. He was wrapped in a hot blanket and attended to until his father arrived and took him home.

Mr. Orde wishes to emphasize the danger of allowing little children to come to the Park and slide around on the surface ice of the creek, where only a thin layer has formed and where a strong, swift current runs beneath. "There are too many of these little tots doing this," he says. "It is very dangerous for them, and they might easily be drowned."

ESCAPED PRISONERS ARE RE-CAPTURED

Two Inmates of Ontario Reformatory Make Break For Liberty Saturday.

GUELPH, Ont., Dec. 31 (Canadian Press).—J. Colvin and R. Bennett, inmates of the Ontario Reformatory, had a brief term of freedom when they escaped from their ranks as they were being escorted to their quarters here Saturday. A party of guards immediately gave chase, and after a ten-minute marathon the prisoners were recaptured just as they were about to enter a thick bush. They will now be transferred to the Burwash Reformatory to complete their sentence.

All Attempts at Saving Celtic Have Failed, Cut Vessel in Two.

DISCHARGING CARGO.

COBH, Irish Free State, Dec. 31 (Canadian Press).—The liner Celtic, having survived the stress of sea and weather, experts to-day were considering the problem of salving her in parts. There was no prospect of hauling the liner off the Cow and Calf Rock, on which she grounded three weeks ago, but it was believed that it would be possible to cut the vessel in two or three sections and tow each into the harbor, as was done in the cases of the steamships Suevic and Glenmonar.

The principal efforts were

Motor Boat Race Being Planned On St. Mary's River For New Year's Day

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., December 31 (Canadian Press). — A motor boat race on the St. Mary's River, which is planned for to-morrow, will be something of a novelty for New Year's Day in this section, but as the river is quite clear of ice, it is expected to provide a real thrill, as well as something new in the way of winter sports. C. V. Legg, a machinist in the U.S. Coastguard, will drive over a five-mile course an outboard motor boat, the boat he drove in the races at Chicago, while Bob McArthur, in a boat of the same type, will be his opponent.

Although there is a slight covering of snow on the ground, the St. Mary's River is practically free of ice, and the U.S. Coastguard cutter Chippewa, which made a trip 21 miles down the river, reports that it found no ice anywhere.

FIRE SWEEPS SMALL TOWN

$100,000 Damage Has Been Caused and Blaze Is Still Raging.

HELP BEING RUSHED.

RIVER HERBERTY, N.S., Dec. 31 (Canadian Press).—Fire that spread from the roof of a small shop in the rear of a moving picture house at Joggins Mines, near here, last night, at nine o'clock had burned to the ground six residences, a theatre, the post office, the town's eight-room modern school building, and a shoe store. The first was not completely under control at that hour and the damage already caused was estimated at $100,000. Fire engines from Amherst, Parrsboro and Springhill were en route to Joggins Mines, where no apparatus was available.

...RMED BANDITS STAGE ...RING HOLD-UP IN OFFICE ... TORONTO BREAD COMPANY

... Forced To Kneel ...bbers Rifle Safe ...ake $2,574.11.

...EN AUTOMOBILE.

...re Unable To Find Any ... of Bandits—Discover Car Used.

...ONTO, Ont., Dec. 31 (Canad...ress).—Three armed bandits ...d into the second floor office ...e Lawlor Bread Company, 11 ...es Avenue, at 8.20 Satuday even... ...cowed the occupants—two women ...ks and three drivers—with levelled ...s, and calmly robbed the safe and ...e money drawer of $2,574.11 in cash ...d cheques. Police have been un...ble to trace the men, who made their escape in an automobile.

Fifteen minutes elapsed from the time the unmasked leader of the hold-up trio ordered Mrs. Mable Scott, book-keeper, to "open that safe and come across," until he and his companions, their loot crammed into a cloth bag, had hurdled the kneeling forms of the other employees, and were fleeing down the stairs, the way they came, to a waiting motor car around the corner on Thompson Street.

From that moment on the police have no trace of their movement, except the dash of their big black sedan east on Thompson Street.

The leader leaned over the office rail and pointed a revolver at a junior girl clerk, crying, "Come on! Come on! Stick them up." His confederates stood by, adjusting handkerchiefs as masks to hide their identity.

Forced To Open Safe.

With their masks adjusted, the other two men proceeded to cover the clerks and drivers with their guns. The two clerks and three drivers, taken by surprise, held their hands above their heads and were forced back against the wall and ordered to crouch down with their heads forward. Mrs. Scott was then ordered to the safe, which was open, and forced to open the inner doors behind which the bills and silver were kept.

When satisfied that all the money in the office had been obtained the bandits left, warning that if there was any outcry they would fire. As the leader passed the cash drawer he scooped up about $200 in bills and silver and added it to the money in the bag.

The telephone call was put in to police headquarters as soon as the robbers left the office, and squads of motor cycle police scoured the city without result. It has been established that the car used by the robbers was stolen during the evening. It was found abandoned at 7 o'clock this morning.

Two years ago the office was robbed and the safe blown and on two other occasions had been ransacked by thieves.

TUXIS BOYS HONOR KING

Resolution For Promotion of Friendship Among Boys Endorsed By Members.

EIGHTH SESSION.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 31 (Canadian Press).—Sympathy with His Majesty King George in his illness was expressed from the floor of the Eighth Ontario Tuxis Boys' Parliament Saturday when members stood for one minute in silence.

Resolutions for the promotion of world friendship among boys, beginning with the boys of different nationality in the constituencies represented in their parliament, and extending by corresponding, to boys of other lands, and for the holding of the annual leadership training camp at Beausoleil Island and the institution of a new camp at Beau Rivage, were passed.

A bill passed was one for the institution of a joint Canadian Girls in Training and Tuxis conference, and the passing of the budget introduced by the Minister of Finance.

The latter bill was the subject of much discussion and enthusiasm, nearly every member throwing out a challenge to the others and pledging his constituency to raise the apportionment. The bill provides for the sale of bonds of $1.00, $5.00, and $10.00 denominations totalling $12,000 required by the Ontario Boys' Work Board to carry on the Tuxis work.

He also sought to abolish the clagrette by total prohibition. Spence, of Alice Aileen Whitmore daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Whitmore, to Rexford Brian Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson, Young's Point.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH RETURNED BY JURY

George Ferguson Died As Result of Burns Received When His Home Was Burned.

NEW LISKEARD, Ont., Dec. 31.—(Canadian Press).—Accidental death with the origin of the blaze unknown, was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury here Saturday at the adjourned inquest into the death of George Ferguson, who died from burns sustained when his home in Kerns Township was destroyed by fire on Nov. 3, last.

Neighbors said that Ferguson had told them that some person unnamed was trying to "get him" and that he had spoken of having found either a pillow or a bundle of rags burning on the stairway when the alarm was raised.

Coroner Dr. W. C. Arnold declared that it was possible this idea had become obsession with Ferguson, and that statements he may have made must be accepted "for what they are worth."

COUCH FAMILY ARE PIONEERS OF LOON LAKE

On a Beautiful Day in July Young Couple Establish Home at Landing.

MANY HARDSHIPS.

Moses Couch Paid $15 For First Cow—Earned Fifty Cents a Day.

APSLEY, Dec. 31—(Examiner Correspondence).—"What do you think of them? I can see nothing but starvation ahead of them!" Not a very encouraging parental benediction for a young wedded couple, starting out on the great adventure, to hear, but perhaps the gloomy prophecy justified by the circumstances. How the prediction was unfilled, and how, instead, the man of 18 and the maid of 19, endowed with health of body, vigour of mind, and that most priceless of all possessions, mustual love, literally hewed their way if not to affluence, at least to comfort and independence, constitutes almost an epic in pioneering life.

Moses Couch was born near Trenton 78 years ago and soon after his birth the family moved to Tongamong Hastings County where they settled and remained for a number of years during which time his mother never once saw a white woman. When Moses was about sixteen his father decided to move to Chandos township and they came to the west end of Loon Lake, to what is now known as Scotts' Landing, about a mile from where they located a lot, and Mr. Couch senior started blacksmithing. It was a trek of about twenty miles from Tongamong to their place of settlement. The cattle were driven all that way through the woods, while the household stuff was brought over the lake in roughly made canoes and rafts. Couch had for neighbors an English family named Woods, and it was not long before young Moses fell in love with the daughter, a year older than himself, and at the age of eighteen and nineteen respectively they were married. They had to journey to Lakefield, about thirty-five miles, for the ceremony, borrowing a horse and buggy, the only one in the district, for the purpose. On their return they set out from Scott's Landing in a canoe to search for a place to build a home and start housekeeping. There sole possessions consisted of a few provisions, the clothes they had on, an axe and fifty cents in cash which belonged to the bride. As their fathers watched them paddle down the lake, the hopelessness of their situation struck them so forcibly that they summed it up in the terse sentences with which this hostiry opens.

59 Years Ago

It was a beautiful day near the end of July fifty-nine years ago when Moses and his wife struck out from the landing and after paddling about a mile keeping along the south shore they picked on a spot where the land seemed to slope down towards the lake and pushed the canoe into the dense growth that lined the shore, so dense that the young bridegroom had to literally carve a way with his axe to enable them to land. Moses at once began to clear a space, and not more than twenty feet from the highwater mark chose a site for their house and thus they became the first settlers on the south side of Loon Lake. A shanty made of pine logs was soon erected with no tool but his one trusty axe, the shingle for the roof being made with the axe also from white pine logs. The furniture consisted of a table and two seats roughly constructed from logs, while the bed was simply poles nailed to log walls and covered with marsh grass. It was two years before they procured a stove and then Mrs. Couch bought one with money she had earned by sewing for men in the jumber camps.

Cleared the Land

Moses started clearing the land for cultivation and before winter came had four acres sown in wheat which he harvested the next year and threshed at night over a barrel

FIRE DESTROYS BARN AT LANG

Girl Breaks Window of Bedroom To Waken Sleeping Family.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, December 31. — Fire of unknown origin destroyed a small barn and summer kitchen on the property of Mr. Fredenburg of Lang, about 12 o'clock on Saturday evening. The fire was first noticed by Mrs. Bowie, a near neighbor, who had not yet retired. Her daughter Lillian ran to warn the Fredenburg family. After failing to arouse them by knocking she broke the glass of a bedroom window with her bare hand. Only the heroic efforts of the many neighbors who gathered, prevented a conflagration of the village. A team was hitched to the lean-to kitchen and woodshed and it was hauled away from the main body of the house, which was saved by water-soaked quilts and blankets spread on the roof. A very high wind was blowing and it is remarkable that the fire was controlled. A call was sent to Peterborough for help, and the fire department responded with their pumper. When the firemen arrived, however, the fire was completely under control.

Great credit is again due to Miss McFarlane at the telephone office at Keene for notifying the neighbors for miles around in a very short space of time.

MORLEY MURRAY LAID TO REST

Friends Pay Tribute As Body of Rawdon Farmer Is Interred.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 31 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—"Verily, verily, I say unto you, that ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice: and ye shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy." These words, the twentieth verse of the gospel of St. John, the sixteenth chapter, were the basis of the oration at the funeral service of the late Morley Murray, whose charred remains were found in the burning ruins of his barn following the fire which started sometime during the evening of December 26th. With hundreds of friends in attendance to pay their last respects, the mortal remains were conveyed from the residence at one thirty yesterday afternoon to the church at Rylestone where service was held following interment. The Rev. G. F. Gardner of Rylestone assisted by the Rev. D. A. McKenzie of Burnbrae, performed the last rites of the church. The pall bearers were Chester Meiklejohn, William Stewart, Howard Finch, Vernon Heath, William Morton and Jason Baker.

Loved by All

The late Morley Murray was a man whose circle of friends embraced all who knew him. His death not only shocked the entire community but has cast a gloom over the entire district. He was an ardent churchman and a regular attendant at worship. He was a man of quiet, regular habits, friend of all, enemy of none. The hundreds of friends who attended the funeral yesterday afternoon attested his wide popularity. The church at Rylestone was jammed to the doors, and many were unable to find room inside. Even before the funeral cortege arrived, the church was practically filled. During the service Malcolm Totten sang, "We'll Meet Again."

Morley Murray was in his forty-ninth year, and had been a life-long resident of Rawdon Township, occupying the farm which his father had purchased some fifty years ago. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Melville Fitzpatrick of Springbrook, and Mrs. Blake Ketcheson of Rawdon Township. There is also one brother, John, residing on the seventh concession of Seymour Township. Murray's wife died some three years ago. There are no children.

Missing Pipe Is Clue To Marmora Tragedy

Benjamin Osborne Had Taken His Pipe to the Barn For a Quiet Smoke When Disaster Overtook Him—No Inquest Considered Necessary.

SMOKE FROM BURNING HAY BELIEVED CAUSE OF DEATH OF RESPECTED MARMORA CITIZEN

MARMORA, December 31 (Examiner Correspondence).—Benjamin Osborne, 61-year-old resident of this village, was smothered in the fire which partially destroyed his barn on Saturday, and his charred body was found shortly before noon on Saturday. On the arrival of the coroner, Dr. W. Harper, of Madoc, it was considered unnecessary to hold an inquest.

The charred remains were found by neighbors who rushed to the scene of the blaze, and it is believed he was in the barn, with closed doors, when overcome by smoke from the hay, which had caught fire from ashes droppen from his pipe. One pipe of his collection is missing from the house. Mr. Osborne had been suffering from ill-health and a few weeks ago wandered away from home, being found only after a day's search. He had been recovering, however, and his death came as a great shock to the community, where he was highly respected.

On Saturday morning he walked through the village, exchanging remarks with many acquaintances, and no indication of the approaching tragedy cast its shadow before.

Coroner Dr. W. S. Harper arrived at 3.30 on Saturday, in company with Provincial Constable Hamner, of Belleville, and after an investigation decided an inquest would be unnecessary. It is supposed that while having a quiet smoke in the loft of the barn, near the house, Osborne dropped ashes from his pipe, and the smoke of the smouldering hay quickly overcame him. Twelve hens were also smothered in the barn. According to statements from the family, Osborne had been absent from the house only about ten minutes when the fire was noticed.

Besides his widow, one son Ernest, in Winnipeg, and two daughters Dora and Marion at home, deceased is survived by two brothers and five sisters, Daniel of Marmora, James of Seattle, Mrs. M. E. Meeham, Harwood, Mrs. W. A. McKeown and Mrs. Albert Taylor of Vancouver, Mrs. David Taylor of Warsaw, and Mrs. Henry Loucks of California.

Arrangements for the funeral await the arrival of the son from Winnipeg, expected this afternoon.

GRAIN ACTION IS DISMISSED

His Honor Judge Huycke Delivers Judgment in Williamson Vs. Douglas Case.

CLAIMED $200.

At the last sittings of the Division Court, an action of W. B. Williamson vs. John Douglas, was tried by His Honor Judge Huycke.

The action arose out of a transaction, in February, 1925. Mr. Douglas, at that time, maintained an elevator at Fraserville, for storage of grain. Mr. Williamson brought 168 bushels of fall wheat to Mr. Douglas's elevator for storage. Mr. Douglas gave his usual receipt, acknowledging to have received the quantity of wheat, and the receipt contained a notation that Mr. Douglas should not be responsible for loss. Some considerable time later, and while the wheat was still in storage, Mr. Douglas's elevator was burned, together with all the contents.

Mr. Williamson's evidence, is that sometime after the fire, he asked Mr. Douglas to pay for the wheat, and Mr. Douglas refused. Nothing further was heard of the transaction, until November last, when Mr. Williamson, through his solicitor, S. T. Medd, K.C., made a claim on Mr. Douglas for $200.00, the price of the wheat, abandoning the excess over $200.00, to bring the matter within the jurisdiction of the Division Court.

The matter came on for trial in the regular way, and was heard by His Honor, and judgment reserved. J. A. O'Brien, appeared for Mr. Douglas, at the trial, and Mr. O'Brien's contention throughout was, that there was no responsibility on the part of Mr. Douglas, by reason of the express stipulation on the receipts, that Mr. Douglas should not be responsible for any loss arising by reason of the storage. His Honor handed out judgment dismissing Mr. Williamson's claim.

Important Changes in Long Distance Telephone Rates

Effective February 1, 1929

We have filed with the Board of Railway Commissioners a revised schedule of rates for long distance telephone messages over 224 miles.

Together with the reduced rates embodied in this schedule, we propose to make effective some important changes in operating practice, for the greater convenience of telephone users and to encourage the use of Long Distance Telephone Service.

Reversed Charges on Station-to-Station Calls

Heretofore the reversal of charges has been available only on person-to-person calls. As a further convenience to the public this privilege will be extended to station-to-station calls where the rate is 25 cents or more.

Longer Reduced Rate Period

Reduced rate hours for station-to-station calls will begin at 7 p.m. instead of 8.30 p.m. as formerly.

Between 7 and 8.30 p.m. the discount will be approximately 25 per cent of the day station-to-station rate; from 8.30 p.m. to 4.30 a.m. the discount will be about 50 per cent of the day rate, with a minimum evening rate of 35c, and a minimum night rate of 25c. Because of the unsatisfactory service conditions which it brought about, the existing midnight discount will be discontinued.

Messenger and Appointment Calls

The extra charges previously made for Appointment and Messenger calls over the regular person-to-person calls are eliminated. In the case of Messenger calls, the exact charge made against the Telephone Company for the service of a messenger will be added to the charge for the telephone call, as heretofore.

Report Charge

The maximum report charge will be reduced from $2.00 to $1.00.

On messages to United States points, effect will be given to the new schedule of reduced rates announced by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

While reductions on the individual message are not large, the net result of the changes proposed will be a saving to the telephone users of Ontario and Quebec of approximately $80,000 and greater convenience in the use of the service.

We shall be glad to furnish further information concerning the proposed rates.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 31.— (Canadian Press.)— Buying support gave out in the wheat market Saturday, and with selling pressure becoming heavy a regulation Jack-and-Jill upset of values took place. Corn also tumbled. Big deliveries on December contracts both in corn and wheat had much to do with bringing about the price down-turns, which resulted in all wheat touching within a fraction of the lowest level yet this season, and March breaking the record.

Closing quotations on wheat were weak, 10 to 1¾c. net lower, corn finished 1-8c. to 1¼c. down, oats unchanged to a shade decline, and provisions varying from 12c. setback to a rise of 2c., with as much as 804,600 bushels of wheat handed over here Saturday to holders of December contracts and with 1,300,000 bushels of corn also thus put forward, it speedily became evident that there was no difficulty in sight relative to meeting the needs of all traders who wanted actual delivery of grain specified as due to be transferred to new ownership prior to January 1. The bear side of the wheat market was meanwhile given a further advantage by the fact that Liverpool wheat quotations were lower than looked for, and that foreigners were active sellers here. In a general selling movement that ensued, many standing orders to let go of holdings and thus cut off losses were automatically forced into operation.

Bottom-most prices of the day were prevailing for wheat in the final dealings. Persistent scantiness of export demand for wheat from North America was a handicap to friends of higher prices, and so, too, was word of free offerings of Argentine wheat abroad. Besides, there was talk in some quarters that indications pointed to the carry-over of wheat on the present crop being the largest known since the end of the world war. Counter assertions that decided improvement of domestic mill demand for wheat is expected after the first of the year failed to act as an offset. Although sales were announced today of 200,000 bushels of hard winter wheat here to millers elsewhere.

Weakness of corn was chiefly in the December delivery, complaints of drought in Argentina helped give relative firmness to deferred deliveries. Exporters bought 50,000 bush. of corn to-day in Chicago. Country offerings of corn to arrive here were meagre, despite favorable weather in the corn belt. Oats as well as corn were unsettled, but oats prices kept within narrow limits, and December oats went to a wider premium over May Upturns in quotations on hogs tended to make provision prices average higher.

LITTLE LAKE WATERS OPEN

First Time in Fifty Years Lake Open At This Season.

PICNIC HELD IN 1877.

Further evidence of the extraordinary and extreme mildness of the present weather is found in the amazing fact that for the first time in over fifty years Little Lake is open at this time of year. The lake's surface is free of all signs of ice and little waves and ripples play over its blue shining waters just as in midsummer.

History carries one back to that epoch-making event in the year 1877, when a winter almost paralleling the present conditions in its spring-like warmth, occurred, and our hardy forefathers taking advantage of the balmy sunshine got steam up in the boat that plied the waters of the Otonabee in those days, and embarked Christmas Day on a happy, frolicking excursion down the river, lunching at the grove on Rice Lake. How often have we heard the old-timers speak of that merry party ""You'll never see the like in these days."

But to-day the conditions are exactly the same, and anyone having the inclination to enjoy a water trip, as did those people of more than fifty years ago, may do so with equal pleasure and under similar unreal conditions.

"Our Lady of the Snows," said Kipling in writing of Canada, but if the great poet came to this district now, he would likely feel that there was some mistake.

CANADIAN SCULPTOR

Sculptors, like all artists, never grow old; they keep young with their enthusiasms. That is one of the reasons why McCarthy, the veteran Canadian sculptor, is still working away on his creations with the same zest as he did in earlier years. He is now over seventy. This famous artist is shown here together with a view of his statue of Champlain on Nepean Point, Ottawa, which he considers one of his best works.

SMALL FIRE IN MILLBROOK STORE

Considerable Damage Is Done By Smoke and Water to Stock of Chas. Thorndyke.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 31.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A small fire broke out in the rear of Charles Thorndyke's merchant tailor shop shortly after twelve o'clock noon on Friday, water and smoke doing more damage to the stock than the flames.

The origin of the blaze is unknown, but had there been any delay in its discovery it is quite probable that the whole block would have been destroyed. Mr. Thorndyke was at dinner when the fire was noticed and it was necessary to break in the large sheet of glass filling the upper part of the door to effect an entrance.

T. J. Lang is the owner of the property and the loss is fully covered by insurance.

OFFICERS INSTALLED.

St. John's Night Fittingly Observed By Millbrook Masonic Lodge.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 31 (Examiner Correspondence).—Saint John's night was fittingly observed by the local Masonic Order, J. B. Hall Lodge A.F. and A.M., No. 145, on Thursday, December 27, when the following officers were installed by A. Jemison and Charles Thorndyke, for the ensuing year:

I.P.M., George P. Berry; W.M., Clifford Hall; S.W., Stewart McGill; J.W., Lloyd J. Byam; secretary, Charles Thorndyke; treasurer, A. Jemison; chaplain, John Riddell; S.D., Ivan L. H. Gray; J.D., H. R. Scott; D.C., T. H. Bradley; S.S., Willis Hall; J.S., W. P. Britton; organist, W. H. Coombe; I.G., Wasson Hanbidge.

The fourth degree was enjoyed at the close of the lodge session, when brief addresses were given by a number of the former officers as well as by several of those newly-elected to the various position. The attendance was good, and the opinion generally expressed that Saint John's Night had never been more suitably or enjoyably observed.

NOMINATON DAY.

Contest Deemed Likely For Marmora Township and Village Councils.

(Examiner Correspondence).

MARMORA, Dec. 31.—To-day is nomination day for both Marmora Village and Marmora Township Councils. It looks at present as though an election will be necessary to decide in each case who shall be Reeve and also councillors during 1929.

The dance held in the Town Hall on Thursday evening under the auspices of Marmora Women's Memorial League, despite the epidemic of colds, was well patronized. Mason's Orchestra, of Belleville, was engaged for the occasion and their music was much enjoyed. The proceeds are being devoted to the fund for furnishing the new Library.

Personals.

Mr. Alvin Loveless, of Detroit, has been visiting his brother, Mr. Harry Loveless.

Mr. N. M. Cooke, of Ottawa, has been visiting friends in Deloro.

Miss Ferga Burns is home from Toronto on a visit.

KAMLOOPS FATE IS TOLD IN NOTE

Bottle With Message Found By French Trapper Proves To Be Genuine.

WRITER UNKNOWN.

TORONTO, Ont., December 13 (Canadian Press).—Washed up along the Algoma shores, a tightly-corked bottle containing a laboriously-written message may become the memento of futile moments spent by one of the Kamloops victims while waiting for death in the Lake Superior storm of over a year ago.

The writer, who is believed to have been a woman, intended that the message should set at rest any doubts and speculations amongst her (or his) family on her manner of death. After over a year's immersion in the water, however, the document has become so affected by moisture, despite the tightness of the cork, that the signature which alone could make the document the prized relic of some family, is no longer legible.

Word of the letter was brought to Toronto on Saturday by Captain J. H. Brian, of Kingston, brother of the commander of the Kamloops. Captain Brian had just returned from Agawa Point, District of Algoma, where he had gone to investigate the finding of the bottle by a trapper named Louis Coutu. When Coutu reported his discovery some days ago, doubts were cast both upon the authenticity of the letter and upon his own disinterestedness. Captain Brian, however, declares that such doubts have been quite unfair. The letter, he says, is undoubtedly genuine. Coutu, moreover, acquitted himself most creditably in regard to it, surrendering it to Captain Brian without any suggestion of payment.

The letter proved to be two and one-half pages in length and the writer refers to herself (or himself) as "Al." The hardships that had been endured are recounted, and the wish is expressed that the finder of the letter should forward it to the writer's relatives so that they "may know my fate." An account is also given of the cause of the accident to the Kamloops, but Captain Brian declined to disclose what the letter contains in this connection.

Captain Brian is retaining possession of the letter. His hope is that any relatives of those aboard the Kamloops who believe that they could identify the writing will communicate with him so that he can mail the letter to them for examination.

THE BOY SCOUTS.

The appeal that is being made on behalf of Peterborough's Boy Scout Association should be looked upon as an opportunity to invest in good citizenship.

No movement in the field of training boys, The Examiner believes, has such a wholesome effect or produces more satisfactory results.

The Boy Scout program is based on a wise appreciation of the temperament of the average boy, and along lines that tend to develop the best that is in him.

It builds him up physically, mentally, morally.

It teaches him to use his faculties, to be obedient to and order, to think of others, to be fair and honorable to play the game, and no young boy who once takes interested in Scout work and imbued with the spirit fails to benefit from his association with the movement.

The budget of the Scout Association is not a heavy one, but a certain amount of funds is needed, hence the present campaign, which should be as successful as the merit of the cause warrants.

Splendid progress has been made by the Peterborough Association, but there is room for many more troops—and every troop is a training school from which emerges good citizens and staunch Canadians.

THE C.P.R.'S RECORD YEAR.

Comment has been made on the splendid record made by the Canadian National Railways during the first eleven months of this year, and now the reports indicate that that other great Canadian institution, the Canadian Pacific Railway, so long associated with the progress and development of this country, has also been reaching a new standard of achievement.

It is announced that last month was the best November in the history of the C.P.R. with gross earnings amounting to more than twenty-four million dollars and net earnings reaching the splendid total of well over seven millions, in both cases a record for any November.

Unless there is a huge loss during the present month, and there is no reason to fear that contingency, this will prove the most prosperous year in C.P.R. annals, for during the first eleven months of 1928 the net profits were $10,695,273 ahead of the same period last year.

This new peak for the Canadian Pacific and the record showing of the Canadian National reflect not only businesslike and successful administration, but also the general prosperity of Canada.

Railway earnings are a good yardstick by which to measure national prosperity, and viewed from that angle, the success of Canada's two great railways offers most gratifying evidence that the condition of Canada is most sound.

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY.

It is perhaps unusual in these columns to call attention to coming theatrical performances, but the sad fact that we have been suffering so long from a famine in so far as the spoken drama is concerned justifies perhaps a reference to the presentation to-morrow of Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice," which comes to the Grand Opera House, headed by H. A. Kingston, a seasoned actor of much ability.

Developments in the world of entertainment in recent years have left the smaller cities with comparative few opportunities to witness worth-while stage productions.

The situation created by the universal popularity and adaptability of the "movies" is in that respect at least regrettable.

While providing cheap entertainment, the screen has caused the educative value of the spoken drama to be lost.

A generation is growing up that seldom sees a stage play—a condition that leaves much to be desired.

The appearance here, therefore, of a Shakespearian company is a distinct event—an oasis in the desert—and it is to be sincerely hoped that the opportunity to witness a performance of one of the greatest plays of the greatest playwright will be taken advantage of to an extent that will lead to a chance to see other stage productions.

THE DUTY OF TO-MORROW.

Good citizens will begin the New Year to-morrow by exercising their franchise at the municipal elections.

The Examiner hopes that the majority of those on the lists will demonstrate that they are fittingly described by the first two words of this article.

Property owners have a double responsibility, inasmuch as they have to decide the fate of two important bylaws, as well as to use their vote in the selection of five aldermen and, in the case of Public School supporters, of four members of the Board of Education as well.

As to the bylaws, The Examiner has no hesitation in recommending both to the favorable consideration of the ratepayers.

In the case of the Johnson Outboard Motors measure the city gains an industry that gives promise of quick expansion in exchange for a concession that may be described as trifling.

The gas purchase proposition has every indication of being good business for Peterborough.

The price is right; the plant is in good condition; it has been piling up surpluses under Hydro management large enough to take care of the deal without increasing the tax bills or interfering with the city's borrowing power; the transaction includes other property of value to Peterborough; the purchase of the plant carries with it the regaining of a franchise that should not be allowed to get into private hands; in short, the city has much to gain and nothing to lose by taking over the gas plant.

Both measures should be carried to-morrow.

In regard to the aldermanic election it might be as well to point out that the electors may vote for five candidates if they so desire, and that they must vote for at least four in order to make their ballots valid.

For the Board of Education, four candidates are to be elected, and an elector may vote for four, three, two or one as he sees fit.

The candidates for the Council are Nagle Phelan, Malcolm McIntyre, Stanley A. Lowe and Harry C. Huffman, members of this year's Council, and Dan. Holland, John A. McNabb and Fred. Tuggy.

For the Board of Education the field consists of Ernest Reid, J. P. Strickland and W. R. Turner, Jr., whose terms on the board have expired, and Dr. A. Moir, Dr. J. A. Morgan, Claude H. Rogers, James Dutton and Isaac McNabb.

It is to be hoped that citizens will remember their responsibility to-morrow and make it a point to use their votes.

TORONTO'S CAMPAIGN.

The following information, quoted from the Toronto Board of Trade Journal of December, 1928, is supplied by the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce:

"Considerable progress has been made towards the appointment of a commission of industries and publicity for the city of Toronto, a matter which has for some time engaged the attention of the Council of the Board of Trade.

"At a conference of representatives of civic organizations held in the City Hall under the auspices and chairmanship of His Worship the Mayor, in June last, a resolution was passed approving the proposal to appoint a commission of industries and publicity for the city of Toronto. It was recommended that the appointment should have no connection with the government of the city other than an annual grant of a fixed amount of money from the city to the organization, on the understanding that the additional amount required for its maintenance and operation will be assumed by the business men's organizations, merchants and others of the city.

"From the board of directors (of the commission) a small working executive would be authorized by bylaw of the corporation to carry on the active management of the corporation.

"An industrial commissioner would be appointed by the executive, with the approval of the directors.

"The objects of the corporation would be to take all proper steps from time to time to secure new industries for, and aid existing industries in, the city of Toronto and surrounding territory.

"The Board of Control has approved a grant of $25,000 per year for four years. The recommendation will be placed before the City Council at their next meeting, and the Legislature will then be asked to validate this—probably in February or March next.

"Some progress has already been made in securing the promise of support from several important business concerns of $5,000 and $10,000 each per year over a period of five years, provided an independent organization such as that recommended is placed in charge of the work. There is reason to believe that a substantial sum will be available under similar conditions."

A STAGGERING LOAD.

One of the most striking statements issued recently by the British Government in relation to the burden of debt entailed by the Great War, was the announcement made by the Minister of Pensions, who said that by March, 1929, $4,300,000,000 would have been expended in pensions to injured and disabled ex-service men. This is an astounding statement, and speaks convincingly of Britain's gigantic effort in the terrible struggle of a decade ago. The number on the pension roll totals 970,000, aggregating, with dependent wives and families, 1,500,000 persons. Final awards on life pensions were granted to 370,000 officers and men.

In the 11 years of its administration the department has spent on medical treatment $275,000,000 on special allowances to patients and families during treatment $172,500,000, and is spending yearly on this branch of work $15,000,000. Since 1927 the Ministry of Pensions and the Ministry of Labor have expended over $240,000,000 in the training of ex-service, disabled and other men, including allowances to families during training. A sum of $50,000,000 was spent in civil liabilities grants. The number of unemployed disabled men has been reduced to 19,000, of whom only 7,000 are classified as men whose disablement makes it difficult for them to work at their former occupations, or at similar ones.

Moreover, the policy adopted of persuading employers to give work to disabled men has led to the engagement of 380,000 men. The expenditure of the Ministry of Pensions for the current year is $285,000,000. A comparison of statistics shows that while Great Britain has actually expended $3,935,000,000, France has spent $2,250,000,000 and Germany $1,750,000,000. One creditable feature of the statement is that the percentage of unemployment among disabled ex-service men is smaller than among the civilian population.

In addition to this tremendous outlay for pensions to disabled men, Britain has been paying the debts to the United States which were contracted by the Allied nations, and which were guaranteed by the British Treasury, as well as providing for the recovery of the nation from the economic impoverishment caused by the war. It is a record of which the people of the British nations everywhere may well be proud.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

To all readers our best wishes are extended for a gladsome New Year.

Start 1929 right by qualifying as a good citizen. Use your franchise to-morrow.

In one respect the New Year is likely to differ from the old. It is not likely to have a December like this one.

Peterborough will be away to a flying start in 1929 if both bylaws are carried to-morrow. Vote "yes" in both cases if you want to contribute something to the expansion of your home city.

The Toronto mayoralty seems to have been converted into a street brawl.

Italian bachelors who think with Kipling that "a woman's only a woman but a good cigar is a smoke," are going to be hit coming and going as taxes on both bachelors and tobacco are to be increased.

As yet none of those radio conferences have succeeded in making the static behave the night you bring a friend in to hear the new set.

Hamilton applicants for naturalization were asked if they had ever been bootleggers. Evidently the judge thinks that new citizens should know all about the customs in this country.

That McGill squad should be arrested on their return from the United States on a charge of falsely representing themselves as a hockey team.

Franz Schubert never dreamed that a century after his death the Winnipeg Free Press would mention him.—Brandon Sun.

A Thought

I. Corinthians x., 26: "For the earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof."

We plant our fields, and we scatter the seed with a careful hand.
Ploughing and Harrowing, sowing and reaping, we gather the wealth of the land;
We look to our barn and byre, to cattle and horses, and grain,
We count as our right the sunshine,
the former and latter rain.
And if our crop be bounteous we laugh to ourselves and say,
"Tis my hand, and strength, and foresight that brings this return to-day."
And yet, if we pause and raise our eyes to the Heaven above,
Will not a glimmer enter our hearts of the all-providing love
And care for His human creatures, that comes from God's tender heart?
Benefits scatt'ring in plenty, if only
we do our part.
Yea, but the earth is the Lord's, and blessing He granteth in store.
Shall not our hearts uplift, and praise Him for evermore?

BUYING FOR THE FUTURE

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear sir:

According to the plan of financing proposed to take care of the purchase of the Peterborough Gas Plant without adding to the tax rate, it will take thirty years to complete the transaction. What is going to happen to the gas industry in that period?

If the consumption of gas is to increase yearly, encouraged probably by lower gas rates, then, judging by past profits, the gas plant looks like a first-class investment.

In almost every newspaper articles are being written emphasizing the inroads being made upon our natural resources in the development of power. Again, huge blocks of power are being purchased for delivery in Ontario, and the actual power development hundreds of miles away.

The newspapers also refer to the wave of prosperity which is sweeping in over Canada and will have its effect in the encouragement of immigration. Conservatively speaking, if we are to believe what we are told and what we read, Canada's population should treble in the next thirty years.

Assuming for the sake of argument that it will treble, Ontario, before the purchase of our local gas plant is completed, will have a population almost as great as the present population of the Dominion. It is all right to say that immigration will take care of the great vastness in the west, but one should not lose sight of the fact that industry is to centre in new and old Ontario and Quebec, which Provinces are already enormous consumers of electric energy.

With the expansion of industry and the added population in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec it is feasible that available sources of power may become severely taxed. Is is not then possible that in the future the domestic use and certain industrial usages of gas must increase very substantially because of the fact that the sizable blocks of electrical energy utilized for the electric washing machines, cooking, vacuum cleaners, electric irons, and so forth, will be required for industrial purposes?

In some thickly populated states and countries where power shortages have been encountered, Commissions have been formed for the sole purpose of educating the public to the need for conservation of electrical energy for industrial purposes. Such commission are faced with the task of educating the public to the absolute need of utilizing gas for as many domestic and industrial purposes as possible.

True, the gas consumption in the City of Peterborough has declined some 7,000,000 cubic feet since the year 1924. As operators of the municipal gas plant, may we not for the reasons quoted above look forward to a sizable increase in the consumption of gas during the time in which our gas during the time paying for itself?

RATEPAYER.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—While returning on the train to the city Saturday evening I was pleasantly surprised when a prominent business man of Peterborough told me Isaac P. McNabb (manager of the Dominion Life Insurance Co.) had offered himself as a candidate for Board of Education. As an interested ratepayer and having children attending school, I think Mr. McNabb is one man in whom I have the utmost confidence to assist in guiding our educational interests, and from my experience with him I have learned he is not only a keen business man but a courteous educated gentleman as well.

Mr. McNabb has all the qualifications for an efficient member of the Board of Education. He is not only a graduate of Toronto University, but also has had years of teaching and business experience.

Anyone who votes for I. P. McNabb for Board of Education will find their confidence will not be misplaced.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.

I remain, yours very truly,

An Interested Ratepayer.

HOW'D HE STAND IT?

SEMLIN, Serbia, Dec. 311.—A little village near here houses what is said to be the oldest married couple in the world. Demetrius Filicnovic and his wife, Zivana, with 89 years of married life, claim the title. He is 110 and she 107.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

BY RUBY M. AYRES

XXI—A LAST REQUEST.

"So you are really going on Wednesday," said George Paget to Hubbard.

"I'm going down the night before."

"The night before?"

"Yes. I hate goodbyes. One feels such a fool standing about waiting for a train or a boat to go, so I've arranged to go down the night before."

"Look here," Paget said suddenly. "I wish you'd have a talk to Marna before you go. Would you? You're a sensible chap, and she likes you. Just get her to promise to go and see a specialist, will you? She will listen to you, where perhaps she'd only laugh at me. Just tell her I'm anxious — I am anxious about her, beastly anxious don'tcherknow. Tell her I'd do anything in the world for her—give her anything she wants if she'll only say what it is. Tell her that, will you? It'll come better from you than from anyone else. You're my friend. Eh? What d'ye say?"

"My dear chap, interference——"

"Rot! You're too tactful to let it sound like interference. Marna understands you, too; she seems to understand all of us." Poor Paget said with a stifled sigh. "Wish I understood her half as well as she understands me, eh, what? Look here." He beamed suddenly. "What about to-day. Why not take her out to lunch? It's an off-day, Sunday—nothing to do. I'll take the Little Flapper to the Zoo. There's a new monkey there she wants to see—awfully keen on monkeys, Biddy is. You can have the two-seater, and take Marna for a run out somewhere. Do her good. Stay out to lunch, and don't hurry back."

"I can't. I've lots of things that must be attended to."

Paget's handsome face fell.

"Look here," he said bluntly, "what's up between you and me? Things have been queer ever since I was ass enough to make that suggestion about Dolly Benson. Know you said you wre not offended but you've been different since. Look here, Hugh——"

"Rubbish! I'm not offended. Never was."

"Well, then, do this for me, will you? Take Marna out. Dare say she's fed up with me, and she likes you, as I said just now. It would really be doing me a real kindness. You can have the two-seater."

"My dear old chap, I don't want to borrow your car."

"Don't be so dashed independent. What's mine is yours."

Hubbard winced and looked away, trying to laugh.

"Isn't that rather a rash statement?"

George went home and up to his wife's room.

She was dressed and sitting by the window and she turned with an effort when he opened the door and smiled.

"Hallo, darlin'!"

Paget went forward and bending, kissed her.

"Forgiven me?" he asked.

She leaned her head against his arm with a little sigh.

"Forgiven you? For what?"

"Being a clumsy ass last night. Serve me right if you did't speak to me again. 'Pon my word I don't know what made me say what I did about that chap Martin."

"It's all right. Don't let us speak of it any more."

Paget agreed heartily.

"No, we won't waste a thought on the fellow." He smoothed her hair with his big hand. "Feelin' all right?"

"Quite, thank you. Only a little lazy."

"A run in the country'd do you good; lovely out this mornin'. How'd you like a run in the country?"

"Anything you like. We might go after lunch."

Paget chuckled.

"I'm not going at all. Biddy and I are going to the Zoo to see the new monkey. Hugh's coming along to take you out."

Marna's hands closed convulsively over the arms of her chair.

"I suggested it," her husband went on blissfully. "He'll soon be gone so we might as well see as much of him as we can. Decent chap, Hugh, eh? You like him, don't you?"

"Very much."

"Good! Well, he'll be around in an hour. I've told Harnigan to get the two-seater ready. Have a run down into Surrey. It's a topping morning."

"Why don't you come, too? You and Biddy?"

"No, we'll stay at home. Sick of motoring. Be a change to toddle round to the Zoo."

"Very well."

He bent and kissed her again.

"Well, make yourself look pretty," he said.

Marna laughed.

"You evidently believe in preparing the lamb for the slaughter," she said in a hard little voice.

Paget frowned.

"Don't you want to go?" he asked anxiously. "Thought it would do you good to get away from me for a bit."

To his amazement the tears started to Marna's eyes.

"You're much too kind to me," she said choking.

He flushed like a delighted schoolboy.

"Nonsense! Not half kind enough. You get strong and well again like you used to be and I'll be the happiest man on earth."

"I am quite strong."

"Well, make yourself look pretty," he urged again and went out of the room whistling cheerily.

Marna sat very still for a moment, her hands clasped in her lap. So it had come. The day for which she had longed and yet dreaded. Fate, or George or Hugh, or all three of them together, had decreed this was to be the breaking point of her life.

Like Eve she was still to have her taste of Paradise before she heard its gates clanging against her. And the sun was shining and the air was soft and mild.

Marna put on her prettiest frock and a new hat, then she went along to Biddy's room.

"I'm going out, she said. She tried to add "with Mr. Hubbard," but somehow she could not.

Biddy turned.

"I know, darling. Uncle Gecrge has just told me. He and I are going to the Zoo when we've had lunch."

The two girls looked at one another for a moment, then Biddy put her arms around Marna and hugged her.

"I hope you have a lively ride, darling."

"It's a lovely morning," Marna said. She drew away from the girl's warm clasp and looked at herself in the mirror.

"Do I look nice?" she asked wistfully.

"You look beautiful."

But both their hearts were aching, and when presently George Paget called up the stairs to his wife Biddy stayed where she was and let Marna go down alone.

The two men were standing at the open door and they both turned as Marna joined them.

"George thinks it will be good for us to have a day in the country together," Hubbard said. He tried to speak lightly but his voice was very canstrained. "Are you going to be very self-sacrificing and come?"

"It seems that we have both got to do as we are told," Marna answered with an effort.

"Master of the house, you know," Paget said delightedly. "Must do as the master of the house orders! But no furious driving, mind!" he counselled.

He stood at the door till the little two-seater had turned out of the drive and disappeared down the road then he went back into the house and shouted for Biddy.

"Where are you Biddy? I want you."

After a moment Biddy came racing downstairs.

"Here I am. What's the matter, Uncle George?"

Paget put his arm around the Little Flapper's waist.

"Nothing, except that I feel lonely. Hate my own company, don'tcherknow."

Biddy squeezed his hand.

"Never mind, we'll have a lovely time with the monkeys," she said.

He laughed and tilted her face up by its little round chin, then his face changed.

"You've been crying!" he accused her.

Biddy flushed scarlet.

"I haven't!" she quickly denied.

But he was not deceived.

"What's the matter with everyone?" he demanded disconsolately. "Last night Marna was upset, and to-day you're upset."

Biddy squeezed his arm affectionately.

"Never mind," she said. You're never upset; that's one merciful thing—I don't know what we should do if you weren't always a perfect darling."

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Tuesday, January 1, 1929

(c.McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

For the first day in the year the stars are read as rather threatening according to astrology. While 1929 begins with an aspect conducive to big plans, the planetary government favors thought rather than action.

Under this sway it is wise to postpone work and to give up the hours to association with friends and to amusements.

There is a sign supposed to presage many upheavals of society and cnanges in national affairs.

All the signs appear to be most favorable to whatever has to do with waterways and shipping.

Great increase of commerce again is promised, and closer affiliations with nearby countries may be expected.

In the solar system unusual influences have been discerned, it is announced, and these affect Uranus and Neptune in a manner that may be reflected on the Earth in strange and terrible events.

Contest between material and spiritual forces will be more apparent in 1929 than formerly, it is foretold.

The eclipses of the year are held to be evil in their effect, threatening to Central Europe, China and Japan.

Abroad it will be apparent, the seers prophesy, that the people of the world are entering upon the last great tribulation.

This may mean wars that cause the United States to take special interest in preparedness, for the nation is to add greatly to its importance as keeper of the balance of world power.

The opposition of Saturn and Mars is likely to bring serious complications of far-reaching international relations.

Homes are to mirror external conditions and in a small way to suffer from the universal vibrations.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have a year of extraordinary experiences that severely test character. Fire may cause losses or accidents, also much anxiety.

Children born on this day will probably be gifted in more than one way. Many may have distinct mechanical talent. The subjects of this sign of Capricorn are exceedingly fond of travel and change. They may be too brilliant and attractive for their own best interests in practical affairs.

Wednesday, January 2, 1929

(c.McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Astrologers read this as rather an uncertain day, and for this reason there should be special caution in all important matters.

While there may be many opportunities for romance and courtship, the rule is one that is unlucky, and it is wise to avoid sentiment.

Entertaining is subject to a sway making for formality and extravagance. The year will be marked by splendor in mode of living and hospitality.

More and more there will be social lines drawn as a result of growing wealth, the seers prophesy, and a stronger demarcation between classes.

As the year begins certain discouragements will be apparent for the intellectuals of the nation who will find small returns along many lines of effort, but they are soon to be well rewarded.

Aviation may have more or less of a setback, owing to interest of the government in the navy and army, it is foretold, but a new leader is to assure great development of aerial navigation in 1929.

Under this direction of the stars it may be especially easy to break many good resolutions, for the claim of self will be strong.

Both men and women may be irritable and difficult to deal with while this rule prevails. In the domestic circle friction should be avoided with peculiar determination.

This is not a lucky day to seek employment or even to ask for an increase of salary. Persons who dispense salaries are likely to be captious and exacting.

Digestive maladies are likely to be prevalent at this time when diet restrictions will be difficult to remember, for the stars indicate much trouble with intestinal disorders.

Serious illness of a man much in the public mind is indicated and will extraordinarily affect the stock market, it is forecast.

There is a sign to-day supposed to induce a critical attitude of mind. Christmas presents may be looked on with critical disdain while this configuration prevails.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year in which mugh pleasure may be expected. Journeys are indicated, and so are love affairs. Discretion is counseled.

Children born on this day may be unusually charming and attractive in personality. These subjects of Capricorn are often artistic and able to accomplish big things, but they must be taught financial wisdom.

OTHER VICTORIES FOR SULIN

You have likely noticed ... of your friends gradually putting ... weight and feeling very well for ... time, but later there is a loss of we... he feel tired all the time, and y... learn tha... he has developed that dre... ailment—diabetes.

What is the cause of th... crease in weight, and well being, ... then the loss of weight and fatigu...

Dr. F. Fonseca investig... this and tells us that very thin folks, treate... with insulin, quickly gain in weight, not because the cells retain more weight, but because the digestive system works so well that it is able to store fat in the system from the food eaten. He thinks therefore that most cases of overweight are due to the fact that the pancreas manufactures too much insulin.

In diabetes, owing to the fact that the pancreas has been doing so much work, it gets exhausted, and then does not manufacture enough; hence there is the loss of weight, because the diabetic patient must now produce sugar from his own fat, and not from the food eaten. Dr. De Anciaes has found that insulin has a stimulating effect on th... hydrochloric acid manufactured in the stomach, also on the movements of the stomach, and increases the amount of gastric juice. What does this mean?

That if your pancreas is secreting a goodly amount of insulin that it will so strengthen the ability of the stomach to get most out of the food, that in addition to being sufficient to make blood and do the other work of the body, there will be some left over to be stored as fat.

Now while most folks are not wanting to store fat in the body, there are a great many individuals who need this extra amount of weight. How is this knowledge going to help humanity?

Insulin will be used in selected cases to build up a tired thin, worn out body. It will be used in undernourished children also.

When Banting determined to seek the cause of diabetes, and gave us insulin as the cure, he gave other research men a substance with which to experiment and the results have been of tremendous value to suffering humanity.

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Woman Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

'M going to be a better pal to folks than I have been before,
I'm going to try to help them when they're sad and maybe sore,
I want to add a smile at least to cheer them on their way,
And to make their burdens lighter that they carry day by day.

How it cheers me when I'm worried, and I'm blue from care and woe,
Just to have somebody smile at me, and only say "Hello."
How it helps to soothe my aching heart and makes me realize
The shadows in my face have gone—there's gladness in my eyes.

So I know how much it helps the other fellow now,
When I smile and say "Hello" to him as nice as I know how,
And when he lifts his head and smiles a cheerful "Howdy-do,"
It makes us both feel just like pals—it will do the same for you.
—Olive Irene Brockett.

* * * * * * *

Wouldn't this be a wonderful New Year's Resolution for us to make to-night?

* * * * * * *

I think there is far too much unfriendliness in our fair city, so wouldn't be just great to resolve to-night to be a better friend to folk? Not just a friend either, but a "pal"—one who is, as our poetess says, ready to cheer folk on their way!

* * * * * * *

Haven't you noticed yourself when you're feeling blue, that if someone speaks a cheery word to you, it makes you feel a whole lot better. Maybe you don't even acknowledge their greeting, but it sticks just the same.

* * * * * * *

So here's a New Year's Resolution that I've suggested for you, and I mean to try to carry it out more myself, for I know there are a great many people to whom I am indebted for a cheery word or greeting on blue Monday.

* * * * * * *

This is Monday, too, isn't it, but then we aren't feeling blue to-day because we have just gotten over a most joyous week and are looking forward to a most happy day to-morrow and the year which is to follow.

* * * * * * *

Don't forget to take all your old calendars down to-night and put up the 1929 ones in readiness for the New Year. I don't believe I ever really heard it was bad luck, but anyway we are sort of superstitious, aren't we?

* * * * * * *

Before I close the subject of New Year's Resolution, when you are making them to-night jot them down somewhere and send them in for the contest. Some may have many smaller things, while others are thinking of some big thing they are going to do—or not to do.

* * * * * * *

So don't forget and get yours in in time before the contest closes.

* * * * * * *

Peterborough people seem still to be suffering a great deal from the 'flu.' I wonder if our houses are thoroughly ventilated just now in this rather damp weather?

* * * * * * *

Often we see people who sleep with their bedroom windows half open every night of the year, and then spend most of the day in a most poorly ventilated place. This has a great deal to do with the getting of the cold and 'flu' too, I think.

* * * * * * *

Once every day—preferrably in the morning—the entire house should be thoroughly ventilated. Say after breakfast when hubby and the children are away for the morning, open the front door and the back door and at least one window in every room and leave them open for at least fifteen minutes.

* * * * * * *

Of course, we are not inviting the housewife to catch cold herself, but while you are ventilating the house, put on a sweater and you will find yourself refreshed when you are finished.

* * * * * * *

I am sure if Peterborough housewives could be impressed by the great benefit which would be derived from this simple daily task, they would do it most gladly.

* * * * * * *

Then, too, I think a number of children in Peterborough have too many clothes piled on them for the winter months.

* * * * * * *

It isn't the heavy clothing which is going to protect them from illness, but the light warm clothing. Fine woollen garments are much better than heavy cotton ones—yet how many mothers do not seem to get the idea!

* * * * * * *

Dress your children so they will not be over-burdened with clothes, but yet warm enough so as to be able to play continually in the open air.

* * * * * * *

VINEGAR FOR BEAUTY AS WELL AS COOKING.

(Contributed by Blanche.)

Vinegar is a valuable addition to the toilet table, as well as the work table.

For an oily skin, one part vinegar to nine parts water makes a splendid wash. Cleanse the skin first by thorough washing and then wash in the vinegar water, allowing it to dry on.

Used full strength it is splendid for whiteing and healing the hands when stained and roughened by work and if you put a little in the rinse water on wash day it will prevent the hands from chapping and roughening.

Vinegar added to water in which fish is cooked makes it tender, and tough meat is made more tender also by rubbing it with vinegar or adding a small quantity to the stew or pot roast.

Cleanliness by the way of Vinegar, may sound rather peculiar but it is not. To remove the white deposit from the water in flower vases, try washing them with a solution of salt and vinegar. They will come out as clear as crystal.

CREAM PUFFS.

Dear Marion:

In answer to to-night's SOS for Cream Puffs, enclosed is a tested recipe:

Put into a saucepan 1 cup hot water, ½ cup butter. When boiling, work into it until smooth 1½ cups flour, cool. Beat into this mixture, one at a time, five eggs. Bake in a quick oven until light. When cool, cut open and fill with whipped cream.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion,—

One day last week I noticed that your asinine column was headed by a contribution from the biggest donkey of the lot. Am sorry I missed the letter from the first 'Thinker,' because I enjoy a good laugh as much as anyone. You dealt beautifully with both of them, but it is almost a hopeless proposition to impress upon those two that they aren't the only things worth noticing in this city of ours.

The original 'Thinker,' whose letter I missed, seems to belittle the female of the species because she never produces anything, invents anything, and is a sort of necessary vegetable. She fills a lowly sphere that noble man would not stoop to enter. The enclosed clipping from the ——of last Friday is only one of many answers to such charges. Going back from modern days it might interest these thoughtful men to know that it was a woman invented the sewing machine, only her husband took out the patent in his own name, and reaped all the credit.

The whole trouble with these two men is that their poor little pride is hurt because they are finding out that women can do their jobs just as well as they can, and are no longer dependent on men for board and clothing. As a matter of fact, there are plenty of men who are more or less dependent on their wives' earnings to keep the home fires burning. If these two men, suffering from enlarged ego in the last stages, could just 'step aside and watch themselves go by,' I wonder what their honest opinion would be. What have either of you ever done to improve this world, country, city or even your own homes? If you both dropped off the earth to-day wouldn't your work go on just the same? Quite possibly some despised woman could step right into your shoes and carry on as well or better. There isn't a person on earth, occupying any position, that is absolutely indispensable. When Kitchener was lost during the war, people gasped and said, 'What in the world will we do now?' He was considered the best authority in his line. Yet his work was carried on to a triumphant conclusion.

Then looking at the situation from another angle, where would either of our 'Thinkers' be to-day if it wasn't for women? In the first place they wouldn't be here at all, and I imagine we could bear up under that omission quite nicely. Where would your homes be? It is a fact that women, or a large percentage of them, can do men's work, but how many men can run a home and make a success of it? Ask some man who has suddenly been bereft of his home-maker and you'll find out. If a woman's business is home-making she goes at it in a business-like way and makes a success of it. Some fail, of course. But I'll wager I can show a business man that is a failure for every woman that is a failure in the home. Then just count up how many girls are successful in their business careers. Yes, dear men, the day is past, when a girl has to sit patiently, doing fancy work, and waiting for some lordly male to come along and marry her. She can earn her own living, and unless a man can offer her the equal of what she can earn, he has a lot of nerve to expect any girl to marry him. Many of our girls to-day are 'old maids' from choice, not lack of choice. Man's position reminds me of the man who remarked, 'There are a lot of girls in this town who don't want to get married. I know, because I have asked them.'

Men who have amounted to something don't hesitate to give credit where it is due. Remember Abraham Lincoln's words: 'All that I am, I owe to my angel mother.' Lincoln's rise from obscurity to the greatest man of his time was spectacular and he wasn't ashamed of his greatest helper. Did you ever hear of the man who boasted he was a self-made man? His disgusted companion remarked, 'I'm glad to hear it, for it relieves the Almighty from an awful responsibility.'

Some women do fail at their jobs, and these 'Thinkers' have an argument there that can't be disputed. They are living, walking examples of how a woman can make a botch of raising her son. At that it isn't fair to blame the woman either—no one can make a silk purse from a sow's ear.

Then your nasty little slur at Marion's page, is just a stupid attempt to be funny. The page is only in its infancy yet, and I predict that when it is as old it will be just as great in its own scope as is the...page of the... Really you men should read that. Just study the letters from women who are keeping house on an inadequate sum and are always asking for ways and means of economizing, budgeting and saving. Perhaps it would be a revelation to you who think women are only here to spend every cent they get from their long-suffering husbands. I wish I could lay my hand on a clipping from the ... about a business girls' banquet. For your benefit I can give a general outline. This girl calculated her earning power in the number of years until she should reach the age of fifty. Then she set about to save a percentage of her wages, so that when invested she would have an income (at fifty years of age) equal to what she had been earning each year. When she began she found she was saving only four per cent. of her earnings. By budgeting she had increased that to fourteen per cent. at the time she was writing, and hoped to be able to increase the percentage to twenty. Now I wonder just how many young boys ever think of applying such methods. Don't you believe if that girl marries she will be just as careful of her housekeeping allowance?

I think Marion's page is very good and helpful. I don't agree with everything she writes, but I know she won't mind that. I don't believe she is a sour old maid, anyway she has a sense of humor and can take a joke. But then most women can, and a big percentage of them do—and be it to their everlasting credit, they live with them and make the best of it now the mischief is done.

'Another Thinker's' criticism of the present fashions is about on a par with the rest of his letter. Men are always very ready to criticize a woman should she dare to smoke, for instance, but who sets her the example? I don't believe in smoking. It is a low down, filthy habit, fit only for men, but you who live in glass houses don't throw stones. Girls' dress of nowadays is not immoral, and anyone who thinks it is, is immoral in his own heart. Remember that no girl ever yet went the downward path without a hearty shove from some man. The only difference is he was able to scramble back, but she wasn't.

Have I said too much, Marion? I feel better anyway. I have contemplated writing you for a long time on other things, but this got me started on a different topic. I am wishing you joy in your work and continued success.

With best wishes to all,

Cee Bee."

Thank you, "Cee Bee" for your long letter of championship. I reproduced the salient parts of that clipped story in the Whatnot last week.

Maybe now that we have so enthusiastically squelched these presumptuous men, we can get down to business on constructive work? I'll be looking forward to receiving many interesting letters from you, "Cee Bee."

"Dear Marion:

I am now reading your page, and like it. I feel as a man I'd like to air a few expressions.

I regret I missed the paper with "Thinker's" letter and therefore missed the match which caused the bonfire. I am at present interested in this bonfire.

I've just read "Another Thinker's" letter, and do you know, I like that man. He has a sense of humor.

You seem to be hitting at men really heavily, don't you think? But you don't mean it. Women aren't men haters. If they were there wouldn't be so many weddings! You know there is an old saying that man came first and woman after, and she's been after him ever since! And sometimes I think it's true. And I take off my hat to the woman who has a good husband and appreciates him—likewise do I respect the man who has a good wife and appreciates her. For there are many good ladies. By "ladies" I mean women of culture and refinement, with a sense of humor, with some pride and independence. Women who help their husbands by their sympathy and understanding—who rejoice in his happiness and stick by him in his sorrows—who make the most of everything, who make a home the pride of a man's heart. He is not ashamed to bring his friends home and have this woman of refined appearance and dignified bearing open the door. He loves to turn to his friends and say, "This is my wife and 'our' home."

The co-operation and understanding of this man and wife is complete. She is the ideal wife, help-mate, and mother.

Many of us have mothers of this glorious type. They are the kind of woman who command respect.

Why? Because their trust is in God. They have noble ideals, they are cultured, and get all the best there is out of this life. Then there is another type of woman.

The type that plaster on rouge and lipstick and eyebrow pencil every block. The type that keep the cigarette handy, that take a nip of the bottle. That wear their skirts about 3 inches above the knee, that couldn't make a cake, or make a home. That have no room in their silly noddles for any thoughts, save the picture show, the card table, etc. That live their empty life from day to day with no thought of refinement or education.

This is the type of woman and girls that men despise and do not respect. An article appeared recently in the "Betty Brown" column of an American paper. Two girls just wanted a good time. They were harmless girls, just out with the boys, and drank a little and smoked a little—yet could not understand why the men did not seem to respect them, Marion. You know why this type of girl cannot be respected.

You know why a boy or man with these loose habits cannot command respect.

Then let us be just a wee bit more old-fashioned—I mean both sexes—and live our lives, clean and wholesome—and partake of sports of a clean nature and let music play a big part in refining our nature. Let our characters be kept clean and spotless and then we will find many ladies and gentlemen who got the best of life by enjoying each other's society.

Sincerely,

GENUINE."

Your letter, "Genuine," doesn't seem so. You are a woman, aren't you? No he-man, such as you represent yourself to be, ever wrote flourishes like that!

I'm sure, whoever you are, there is a lot of meat in your letter.

"Dear Marion:—

I don't want to take up too much of your time but I just felt that some one would like my recipe of cranberry jelly. It tastes so good with turkey and is so easy to make. You can make it one day and use it the next—or in fact, a few hours after it is made—as it jells very quickly. Some time ago one of the neighbors asked how to remove perspiration stains from clothes. If the garment can be washed, soak it in strong salt water for half an hour before washing. I think that could be tried on material that couldn't be washed by simply patting the salt water on the stain and letting it stand the half hour and then sponge and press with a damp cloth and hot iron. I don't see why that wouldn't answer as well that way, Dear Marion.

I am sorry to think you are getting such abuse from that awful man "Thinker." In my opinion he has another think coming.. You know Marion the old saying if you give him rope enough he'll hang himself. I hope so anyway.

Well I won't take up any more of your time. Wishing you every success possible.

I remain, yours sincerely,

"Wildfire."

Thank you, "Wildfire," for the recipe, which I rushed in before Christmas, and for the hint in response to our S.O.S. Surely "Thinker" has had that other 'think' by now!

"Dear Marion:—

"Our pages" are a great improvement to The Examiner and so interesting and helpful, that I'm asking for some helps also. Wishing you continued success and a Merry Christmas.

Thanks for your kind wishes, Mrs. R. A. T.

DAILY READING

A FEW MINUTES A DAY WITH THE BEST OF THE W... AUTHORS CONDUCTED BY THE NEIGHBORS AND M...

I like the last of Lowell's poem, "To the Past," where he intimates that we move into the New Year attended by all that is "brave and excellent and fair" from the past. May it be so indeed with every neighbor!—M.

December 31, 1928

Wondrous and awful are thy silent halls,
O kingdom of the past!
There lie the bygone ages in their palls,
Guarded by shadows vast;
There all is hushed and breathless,
Save when some image of old error falls
Earth worshipped once as deathless.

There sits drear Egypt, 'mid beleaguering sands,
Half woman and half beast,
The burnt-out torch within her moudering hands
That once lit all the East;
A dotard bleared and hoary,
There Asser crouches o'er the blackened brands
Of Asia's long-quenched glory.

Still as a city buried 'neath the sea
Thy courts and temples stand;
Idle as forms on wind-waved tapestry
Of saints and heroes grand,
Thy phantasms grope and shiver,
Or watch the loose shores crumbling silently
Into Time's gnawing river.

Titantic shapes with faces blank and dun,
Of their old godhead lorn,
Gaze on the embers of the sunken sun,
Which they misdeem for morn;
And yet the eternal sorrow
In their unmonarched eyes says day is done
Without the hope of morrow.

O realm of silence and of swart eclipse,
The shapes that haunt thy gloom
Make signs to us and move their withered lips
Across the gulf of doom;
Yet all their sound and motion
Bring no more freight to us than wraiths of ships
On the mirage's ocean.

And if sometimes a moaning wonder-eth
From out thy desolate halls,
If some grim shadow of thy living death
Across our sunshine falls
And scares the world to error,
The eternal life sends forth melodious breath
To chase the misty terror.

Thy mighty clamours, wars, and world-noised deeds,
Are silent now in dust,
Gone like a tremble of the huddling reeds
Beneath some sudden gust;
Thy forms and creeds have vanished,
Tossed out to wither like unsightly weeds
From the world's garden banished.

Whatever of true life there was in thee
Leaps in our age's veins;
Wield still thy bent and wrinkled empery,
And shake thine idle chains;—
To thee thy dross is clinging,
For us thy martyrs die, thy prophets see,
Thy poets still are singing.

Here, 'mid the bleak waves of our strife and care,
Float the green Fortunate Isles,
Where all thy hero-spirits dwell, and share
Our martyrdoms and toils;
The present moves attended
With all of brave and excellent and fair
That made the old time splendid.

—Lowell's Poetical Works.

"Thanatopsis" is particularly apt to-day, at the end of the year. It is by William Cullen Bryant:

To him who in the love of Nature holds
Communion with her visible forms, she speaks
A various language; for his gayer hours
She has a voice of gladness, and a smile
And eloquence of beauty, and she glides
Into his darker musing, with a mild
And healing sympathy, that steals away
Their sharpness, ere he is aware. When thoughts
Of the last bitter hour come like a blight
Over thy spirit, and sad images
Of the stern agony, and shroud, and pall,
And breathless darkness, and the narrow house,
Make thee to shudder, and grow sick at heart;—
Go forth, under the open sky, and list
To Nature's teachings, whil... around—
Earth and her waters, and t... of air,—

In majesty, and complaining brook... That make the meadows green; and poured round all,
Old ocean's gray, and melancholy waste,—
Are but the solemn decorations all
Of the great tomb of man. The golden sun,
The planets, all the infinite host of heaven,
Are shining on the sad abodes of death,
Through the still lapse of age. All that tread
The globe are but a handful to the tribes
That slumber in its bosom.—Take the wings
Of morning—and the Barcon desert pierce,
Or lose thyself in the continuous woods
Where rolls the Oregon, and hears no sound,
Save his own dashings—yet—the dead are there;
And millions in those solitudes, since first
The flight of years began, have laid them down
In their last sleep—the dead reign there alone.
So shalt thou rest—and what if thou withdraw
Unheeded by the living—and no friend
Take note of thy departure? All that breathe
Will share thy destiny. The gay will laugh
When thou are gone, the solemn brood of care
Plod on, and each one as before will chase
His favorite phantom; yet all these shall leave
Their mirth and their employments, and shall come,
And make their bed with thee. As the long train
Of ages glide away, the sons of men,
The youth in life's green spring, and he who goes
In the full strength of years, matron, and maid,
And the sweet babe, and the gray-headed man,—
Shall one by one be gathered to thy side,
By those, who in their turn shall follow them.
So live, that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan, that moves
To that mysterious realm, where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go not, like the quarry slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave,
Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.

I hope every neighbor reads this poem, and clips it out to read again and again as years roll by. It will make life happier and more tranquil—and every new year brighter for the chance it gives to so live.—M.

Strong Position Shown By Bank Of Toronto

The statement just issued by the Bank of Toronto for the year ending November 30, 1928, shows the Bank to be in the strongest position in its history.

Cash and other liquid assets, including call and short loans against securities, stand at $81,360,946.16, an increase for the year of over $4,200,000, and represent just over 50 per cent. of the bank's entire liabilities to the public.

The total deposits at $105,326,798, show an increase of over $4,000,000, and the total assets are up over $5,000,000.

Net profits at $1,264,970.82 represent an increase for the year of over $99,000. After the payments of dividends and bonus, amounting to 13 per cent., and providing the sum of $360,000, for accrued taxes, officers' pension fund, and writing off Bank Premises account, there remains the sum of $254,970.82, slightly over 5 per cent. on the paid up capital of the bank, making the amount carried forward to Profit and Loss account, $901,175.11.

Canadian Pacific Makes New Record For Earnings

MONTREAL, Dec. 31.—Last month was the best November in the history of the Canadian Pacific Railway, it is revealed in the statement of earnings and expenses for November and for the first eleven months of 1928, made public yesterday. The November showing did not quite come up to the record figures of October, but in the past there has frequently been seen a decline in earnings in November from October.

As the month of November goes, however, it was a record month, with gross earnings at $2,358,668 and net at $7,306,109, neither of which figures have hitherto been attained in any November. Outside of the record month of last October, both gross and net were the greatest since October of 1925.

It would take a tremendous loss in the current month to prevent 1928 from being the most prosperous year in the history of the road, for last month's increase of $930,316 placed the Canadian Pacific Railway no less than $10,695,273 ahead of the first eleven months of last year in net profits.

The nearest approach to the gross showing of the first eleven months of 1928 was in 1920, an inflation year, when gross for the period was $196,037,181, as compared with 207,947,199. Net for the first eleven months of the current year was $48,537,678, the nearest approach to which was in 1916, when the total was $45,455,070.

Wheat Values Reach Low Mark At Chicago

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 31 (Canadian Press).—All wheat to-day went under the lowest prices which the market had heretofore touched this season. Good-sized deliveries on December wheat contracts here together with world shipments of wheat on a large scale had a decided bearish effect. Opening unchanged to ¾c lower, wheat values later showed a material setback all around. Corn, oats and provisions were a little easier, with corn starting at ⅛c off to ¼c up, and subsequently showing slight general declines.

Cattle Trade Stronger On Livestock Exchange

TORONTO, Dec. 31.— (Canadian Press).—The market on the Toronto Livestock Exchange was stronger on the long run. One load of good good heavy steers brought $11.00, the bulk of the butcher steers and heifers sold from $9.25 to $10.25 with some down to $7.00. Good cows sold up to $8.00. Butcher bulls sold from $7.00 to $7.50. Calves were firm at $15.00 to $16.00 for top.

The hog market was unsettled with prospects at $9.75 f.o.b. for selects or $10.75 off-car, outsiders playing slightly higher.

Lambs were stronger at $14.00 for the best, with bucks at $11.00 to $12.00. Sheep were steady at $6.50 for best light ewes.

Cattle receipts 1400.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

A despatch from Rouyn is to the effect that the shaft on the Gilbec is being enlarged to permit the installation of a collar. The report states that this work of enlargement has shown the ore to have a present width of seventeen feet with the average grade being 6% to 10% copper across the present width of the deposit. Total dimensions are unknown as yet. Gilbec is the centre of a good deal of public interest at present. Interest was attracted during the summer months when a large showing of chalcopyrite was uncovered. This is thought to be a replacement body, similar to the more important ore depositions of the Rouyn camp. Where the shaft is being put down a large test pit was sunk to a depth of 12 feet over a width of 25 feet. Across this width, chalcopyrite is said to appear in stringers, and opinion is expressed that the body apexes at this point. Over all, the grade is stated to run approximately 5 per cent. copper. It is rumored on the street that large mining interests are interesting themselves in Gilbec through the purchase of a large block of shares.

Two diamond drill outfits are said to be on their way in to the Macot and East Bay properties, to the east of the Gilbec in the Rouyn field. It is anticipated that drilling will commence in the first week of January. A considerable amount of preliminary prospecting has been carried out on these two properties, particularly on a mineralized pyrite zone. Some gold values were said to have been obtained in this showing. A few years ago, some diamond drilling was carried out on the East Bay property by the Nipissing Mines of Cobalt.

Favorable results are said to prevail at the Granada, the manner in which the No. 2 vein is improving with depth giving cause for enthusiasm, according to northern advices.

Reports from Sudbury give the width of the ore encountered in Sudbury Basin's No. 30 drill hole as 164 feet. This hole was spotted some 100 feet to the west of the No. 29 hole, which also yielded favorable results. These holes are in the Vermillion Lake section.

Drifting east on the No. 2 south vein on the 325-foot level of the McMillan Gold Mines, with which Sudbury Basin interests are identified, has been giving very good results, according to information from Sudbury. Including the cross-cut, the ten assays to date have yielded an average of $16.12 in gold, it is stated. The last three samples have run considerably above that figure and a channel sample from the presented east face of the drift is said to have $40.80 for a width of 36 inches. This vein was discovered on the 325-foot level in crosscutting south from the Lake Shore vein. It lies 30 feet south of the latter and between the two is the No. 1 south vein on which no development work has been done. The ore is said to consist of dark quartz carrying pyrite, pyrrhotite, chalcopyrite, and some arsenopyrite. The surface outcropping of this ore body would be under House Lake and it is said to have been visible from the shore before the dam was raised to it's present height. What is thought to be an extension of the same vein has been cut on the 525-foot level, south of the Lake Shore vein.

A searcher after the cigar store wooden Indian cannot discover one left in Boston and only two in New York and three in Philadelphia.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

ELECT
to the Board of Education for 1929, where his abilities as a business man and his experience as a school teacher will work to the best interests of all concerned in the educational problems of Peterborough.

Mr. McNabb has the experience, training, and ability needed to really guide the destinies of education in Peterborough. He is a graduate of Toronto University; his six years' teaching experience made him well acquainted with the PRACTICAL problems of teaching, and his business success indicates his ability to act as an executive for the people.

Mr. McNabb, too, is experienced in public life. As President of Kiwanis Club in 1927, he was brought in touch with many Peterborough people, and did outstanding work. So much was he appreciated by Kiwanians that a few weeks ago he was elected Lieutenant-Governor of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime District of Kiwanis International for 1929. He will make a worthy representative of the people on educational affairs.

The Board of Education
needs a man like Isaac P. McNabb. His educational honors include B.A. and M.A. of Toronto University; he has since won the degree C.L.U. in his business as Manager of the Central Ontario Branch of the Dominion Life Insurance Company.

He is one of the most unassuming of men. While quite willing to act as the people's representative on the Board of Education, he refuses to be a party to any "boosting" of himself, and it has been necessary for his friends to tell the facts about his qualifications.

Mr. McNabb served with distinction in the Great War. He was seriously wounded at Sanctuary Wood, sacred to all Canadians for the sacrifices made there.

He served his country in war; he is qualified to serve his city in peace.

when the day's work is done. He sold the wheat for a dollar a bushel and with part of the proceeds bought his first cow for $15. Besides clearing the land he was able part of the time to work out on neighbouring clearings across the lake for 50 cents a day, which with money derived from trapping enabled him to buy flour that at this time cost $10 a barrel. It was seven years before a road was made from his settlement to the main road leading to Apsley, and during that time, to get supplies from the village the trip had to be made by boat to Scotts' Landing, from which there was a trail to Apsley. Moses' immediate ambition was to possess a yoke of oxen as being indispensable to further cultivation of his land, and his ambition was realised, in the third year, in this way. The cow he had purchased, presented him early the following spring with a calf and about the same time he traded his hat with a neighbor for another calf, thus procuring at practically no cost, a yoke of oxen that eventually stood him in good stead for many years. The third or fourth year it was found necessary to build a barn. Moses cut the logs and his wife with the young oxen went to the woods, skidded them, and drew them to the barnyard. The barn still stands as a monument to woman's strenuous life in pioneering days.

For twenty-one consecutive winters Moses worked in lumber camps while his wife with a young and increasing family carried on at home. Deer were very plentiful and with no game laws they had plenty of meat in the shape of venison. On one occasion Mrs. Couch saw a deer swimming across the lake. She at once gave chase in the canoe, killed it with her paddle and towed it home.

It is to Moses Couch that the tourists of to-day owe their enjoyment of the bass fishing in Loon Lake. There were no fish in the lake except shiners or "chub" as they are known locally, when Couch settled there. Thirty years ago he induced a neighbor, Steve Scott, to go with him to Burleigh Falls, where they caught twenty good sized bass. These they put in a barrel, and brought to Loon Lake. One of the twenty died on the trip, the nineteen were put into the lake where they thrived and increased so prolifically that to-day Loon Lake teems with these game fish.

Twenty-eight years ago Moses who had for years been a sufferer from asthma decided, as practically all the timber in the county was cut to seek new pastures, so he went to New Ontario, leaving his son George to reign in his stead. During his occupation of about thirty years he had cleared approximately seventy acres, all of which were under cultivation Their family consisted of five boys and four girls, all of them still living and all thriving prosperously, five of them living in the vicinity of Port Arthur. Mr. Couch at the present time keeps a store at Gillies, of which place he is also postmaster. He is seventy-nine and his wife eighty, both active, keen and cheerful, and hope to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding next July. Mr. and Mrs. Couch paid a visit this summer to the scene of their early struggles, where now their children to the fourth generation are reaping the benfit of their industry, and where they lived again in memory, those years of hardships and privatons, endured cheerfully and uncomplainingly fortified by the bond of mutual love which never weakened, and is as strong now as it was sixty years ago.

Peterborough City Upheld By Athletes In Field Of Sport

Local Teams Act Like Sportsmen in Battling to the Last Ditch, Although Not Bringing Home Any Provincial Championships.

BASEBALL NINES LOST OUT IN TWO PROVINCIAL PLAY-OFFS BY FLUKES

Much Good Hockey Seen in City League Series—Soccer and Softball Contests Provide Many Hours of Real Sport.

Looking over the field of sport for the past year, there is nothing startling to relate about the achievements of any local teams; and yet, although no provincial championships were gained and no great victories won, it can be truly said that the name and honor of Peterborough in the sport world was well upheld by her athletes. The teams all carried themselves like sportsmen, played clean, and battled to the last ditch.

In hockey the Petes had perhaps the most unfortunate year in history. Not a single victory in the O.H.A. series, senior, intermediate or junior, crowned their desperate, hard-fought attempts, and the record of a winless year was written deep on the scroll of hockey history. However, in the many leagues operating in the city, scores of games were played and hundreds of youngsters and veterans handled their sticks in organized hockey. In the City Hockey League the smart C.G.E. Tool Room won the silverware; Queen Mary were champions of the closely-fought Public School League; and there were nearly twenty teams playing in the Church League. A sixteen-team league at the C.G.E. gave every man who desired to wield a stick a chance to get on the ice, and after a hectic season the Tool Room scratched out to the top.

Basketball League.

A City Basketball League, composed mostly of industrial teams, in which the C.P.C. were primirent, kept the ball moving at the Y.M.C.A., and the P.C.I. played a series of exhibition games.

The Peterborough Badminton Club holding forth at the Armouries, supplied many hours of sport to the devotees of the racquet, completing the season with a stiff tournament with the Port Hope Club.

Made Their Mark in Baseball.

Peterborough teams made their mark in the provincial baseball play-Club, and went into Intermediate O. ships by flukes. The Raybestos team emerged champions of the East Peterborough League after being extended to the limit by the Cognawaga Club, and continued on into the O. A.B.A. play-offs, defeating all they met with ease. After a two-weeks' lay-off they were ordered to play the northern champs, Copper Cliff, in a sudden death game, and in a heart-breaking contest they slipped into defeat.

The great little Royals team won the championship of the Junior City League, defeated Belleville, and were drawn against the Elizabeths of Toronto in the Ontario finals. The Royals were defeated in Toronto, and then in one of the finest exhibitions of baseball during the whole season took the Elizabeths into camp at Exhibition Park. The championship was decided in a game at Oshawa, and the Royals went down to defeat, outlucked and outfluked more than outplayed; and another championship was lost.

Riley & Hickey's smart Bantam team battled their way to the Ontario finals, only to lose out to the strong Toronto Eliabeths.

The Kiwanis Juveniles, victors in the City League, were defeated in the play-offs.

Keen Contest.

Early in the fall Central Park became the scene of many spirited and closely contested softball games. Harrison's North-End team emerged champions, battling their way after a torrid series with the De Laval crew.

The City Soccer League supplied the lovers of "footer" many hours of real sport; the competition being keen and the standard of play high. The C.G.E. team became undisputed champions of the city, and showed their class by winning over many outside teams.

Collegiate Team to Fore.

The Peterborough Collegiate rugby teams won the plaudits and support of the whole city by their tenacious and gritty playing. Coach Browne's great little senior team downed every team in the Eastern Ontario group, triumphing over the heavy Oshawa C.I. and Albert College twelves. They met defeat in the Ontario semi-finals at the hands of the smart, heavier University of Toronto Schools' squad, but their great playing will long be remembered by local fans. Ernie Legon's Intermediate youngsters also covered themselves with honor by their game victories over huge opposition.

BOWLING ALLEY GOSSIP

(By Pin Boy.)

Leo Martyn is making an effort to round out the City Bowling League into a ten team loop instead of nine and has been lucky to such an extent scouting for players that his line-up boasts some of the heaviest hitters of all the leagues. It is generally known that this crack aggregation have revenge in their eye and will certainly make their opponents on the other nine teams earn every point they get. The following list of players will probably play the most prominent part, Leo Martyn, George Williams, Les Chisholm, W. Crary, Harry Baptie, S. Lewis, and George Gimblett, Jr.

Cochet Defeats Borotra In Christmas Cup Play

PARIS, Dec. 31 (Canadian Press).—Henri Cochet wound up a highly successful season yesterday by defeating Jean Borotra in the finals of the Christmas Cup Dover Court tennis championship.

Cochet won in straight sets, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3.

The former ball boy of Lyons confirmed the choice of virtually all tennis experts, who ranked him the number one singles player in the world this year. He merely toyed with Borotra and the latter never was dangerous.

1928 SPORTS REVIEW

USHERING IN THE WORLD'S BRIGHTEST BOY

SPORTING FAN.—"Well, I wonder what sort of kid he'll be, anyhow?"

EVERY SPORT BRANCH FURNISHES ITS SHARE IN CALENDAR YEAR

Cagel Gave Bigger Thrill To Football Crowds Than Any Other Carrier.

HAGEN STAGES COMEBACK.

Ruth's Homer Off Sherdel Provides Big Moment in World's Series.

There was no long count to furnish the one big dramatic spot of 1928. In fact the ring was conspicuously lacking in the drama it furnished in the years that Dempsey was in the spotlight.

To any one roaming observer who happened to be on the sport for some of the year's most exciting moments it is a tossup which of these half a dozen events packed the most vivid elements of drama and thrill.

"Red" Cagle's daring gridiron romps for the Army against Yale, to list his biggest afternoon.

"Babe" Ruth's home run of Will Sherdel after the famous pitch in the seventh inning of the final world's series game.

The California crew's crowning victory over Britain in the Olympic finals.

The California crew's crowning victory over Britain in the Olympic finals.

The spectacular comeback of the youthful United States polo big four to twin the final match with Argentina for the championship of the Americas.

Johnny Farrell's triumph over Bobby Jones in a playoff for the national open golf title in which each bagged birdies on the last two holes with only a stroke separating them at the end.

There is no question Cagle gave a bigger thrill to bigger football crowds than any other ball-carrier in the land this year, whether or not the Army ace's performances were more meritorius than those of Scull, Clark, Carroll, Mizell, Crabtree, Strong or Harpster.

Cagle has the same flair for doing the brilliant and unexpected that made "Red" Grange famous.

Baseball's most exciting moments came in the closing stages of the two pennant races but an otherwise colorless world's series had it main moment of drama in the final game as Ruth and Gehrig finished the big cannonade. And the turning point came when Sherdel sneaked over a third strike on Ruth in the seventh, only to have it disallowed and then see the Babe put one out of the park.

Yet this was scarcely more exciting than the way the Californians kept America supreme in rowing by getting the jump on Britain's finest crew at the start and holding it down to the finish in spite of the most desperate counter-challenges.

Walter Hagen's come-back to win the British open, after being slaughtered in a special match by Archie Compston, was a thriller. So was big Bill Tilden's conquest of Rene LaCoste after the American Davis Cup captain had been reinstated for the challenge round in Paris.

Jones and Farrell put on one of the greatest of all open championship finishes at Olympia. Bobby also had his exciting moments in the National amateur when he was carried to an extra hole to beat Ray Gorton on the first day of the match play, but otherwise the Georgian's march was too one-sided to be thrilling. The same thing was true of the performances of Helen Wills, who took most of the excitement out of the womens' tennis campaign by the way she dominated from start to finish.

TIGERS-ARROWS IN SCORELESS TIE

Boston Misses An Opportunity When Philadelphia Players Serving Penalties.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 31 (Canadian Press).—The Boston Tigers and the Philadelphia Arrows battle through an overtime scoreless tie here Saturday night in a Canadian-American League hockey game.

The Tigers missed a golden opportunity in the second period when they were unable to score with three Philadelphia players serving penalties. Briden supported Maurice Roberts nobly, and they staved off the Boston attack until reinforced by their punished teammates.

Battle to Tie

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 31 (Canadian Press).— Springfield and Newark struggled to a 1 to 1 tie in a Canadian-American League game at the West side Arena here Saturday night before a crowd of 4,800.

THREE FISTIC DIVISIONS IN BADLY MUDDLED STATE

Flyweight, Bantamweight and Heavyweight Thrones Lack Authentic Rulers.

1928 POOR YEAR.

Loughran Was Busiest Title Holder of Year—Dundee Poorest.

The year now closing did not witness anything extraordinary in the fistic world except the retirement of Gene Tunney as the undefeated heavyweight champion.

Champions who were active in defending their titles were Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight, and Ton Canzoneri, featherweight. In Canzoneri's case his willingness cost him a championship, held only a few months. Loughran fared so well that he ran out of opponents, and at the present time is operating as a heavyweight.

3 Deserted Thrones.

Three crowns—flyweight, bantamweight and heavyweight—have been thrown into open competition. Tunney's withdrawal and a similar gesture by Bud Taylor leaves the heavyweight and bantam title vacant. Taylor quit because of weight-making difficulties and as he has not been active as a featherweight it may be assumed that he has retired.

The flyweight situation is as badly muddled as it was a year ago when Izzy Schwartz and Frenchy Belanger of Toronto, both claimed the title. Schwartz was recognized in New York as the winner of a series of eliminations which ended with his defeat of Newsboy Brown at Madison Square Garden. Belanger's claim was based on a decision of Ernie Jarvis, of England.

International Bouts.

Schwartz has beaten some mediocre challengers at the weight in New York this year, but throughout the country Frankie Genaro, former champion, is recognized as champion by virtue of a decision over Belanger.

This complicated situation now has claimed the expert attention of Tom McArdle, matchmaker for Madison Square Garden and if his plans are carried out a new champion will emerge from international competition.

Only last week McArdle obtained Schwartz's signature to a contract pooling the issue with Genaro, Emil Pladner, French champion, and Johnny Hill, British title holder.

For more than a year matchmakers have endeavored to bring Genaro and Schwartz together. They may eventually meet but as matters now stand each will take on a foreign foe here in a double main event show at the Garden late in February, the winners to decide the championship in March. McArdle proposes to place the names of the French and English champions in a hat and let Schwartz and Genaro draw for them.

The heavyweight muddle will not be cleared up so quickly as there are six or eight prominent candidates for the throne vacated by Tunney and not more than one or two are willing to submit to a prolonged elimination test.

Heavyweight Tangle.

The trustees of the Muldoon-Tunney Trophy discussed ways and means to bring order out of this chaos at a meeting last week but in the end decided to leave the problem up to Tex Rickard's promotorial ingenuity.

Young Stribling seems to be the only candid willing to follow Rickard's dition. Some months ago he sign a blank contract and told the proter to designate his opponent. to date Rickard has not been a to coax any of the other big b into a match with Stribling although it appears likely now that Ja Sharkey will hook up with the Soarner at Miami Beach late in Febrry or early in March.

Loughran's ambition to enter the tournament blocked by the New York Boxing ommission which insists that he must fight here as a light heavyight as long as he clings to thatitle.

It may be ossible for Tommy to press his lyweight claims in other boxing centers and if he is successful h may then quit the light heavies as Jack Delaney did and blossom out as a heavyweight. Delaney, howe, never made much headway agai beefier opponents and is back the 175-pound class.

Dund Worst Champ

Mickey Walker's only two notable achievements of the year were defeats of Arrand Emanuel in San Francisco and Ace Hudkins in Chicago. As a ght heavyweight he stopped Emanel, but at 160 pounds and the middleweight title at stake he was hard pressed by Hudkins. The decision i favor of Walker was hotly disputed.

Joe Dundee welterweight champion, has not added to his laurels in the last twelve months. When he was a contender Dundee fought often and was a pleasing performer. As a champion he has kept his title in a glass case and suffered loss of prestige by being knocked out at catchweights by Jack Thompson. Dundee has been offered either Thompson or Jackie Fields for a title go at the Garden, but both matches hang fire.

Sammy Mandell proved himself a classy lightweight champion when he tamed Jimmy McLarnin by a superb exhibition of boxing at the Polo Grounds last Summer. Mandell was in line for another big shot at the Garden this Winter, but suffered a broken collar bone in a catchweights affair with Jimmy Goodrich last Fall and is still out of commission.

O.H.A. Bulletin

Oshawa juniors will not play at Peterborough to-night, but the Oshawa at Bowmanville junior fixture scheduled for to-morrow afternoon at 3 p.m will be played with Ernie Wortley of Toronto as referee.

The Stouffville at Lindsay intermediate game scheduled for Friday, December 28 and postponed owing to mild weather will be played Thursday, January 3.

Canadian Athletes Excel

Year's Review Shows Canucks Among Leaders in Sportdom.

AT HOME AND ABROAD.

Many New Records Made in Track and Field Events.

TORONTO, December 31. — In reviewing the athletic activity of the year, it is necessary to repeat much that has been said before. The importance of the Olympic games gives them priority in any review, and the showing of the Canadian Olympic team in competition with the world's best athletes at Amsterdam served to show how high the standard of athletics has reached in Canada. The comparison drawn for certain Canadian athletes, whom we must confess, proved to be of higher calibre than some of us suspected prior to the games. Our sprinters for instance, while we felt that they could hold their own in any field, greatly exceeded our expectations. Their showing was the very best. Williams of course, realized the hope of all sprinters, in winning both Olympic sprint crowns. Fitzpatrick, in reaching the final of the 200 metres, disposed of many champions to get that far. Hester and Adams gained victories over the best sprinters of other nations. While Warren, a Canadian student attending Oxford, who was added to the team, but did't compete at the games, won the 100 metres championship at the Tailtean metres championship at the Tailtean games. Jimmy Ball, who almost captured the 400 metre Olympic event, proved that he was also good over the 200 metre route, by winning the Tailtaen event at that distance in record time.

The outstanding athletic performances in Canada this year were the thousand yard run at the exhibition, and the eight hundred metre run at the Olympic trials by Phil Edwards, who is not a Canadian but who represented Canada at the Olympic games, add to this his brilliant quarter in the 400-meter relay at Hamilton where he is credited with having bettered Liddell's world's record, with a flying start. The Walter boys, Dave Griffen, Docherty and Wilson, proved to be the best middle distance men of the year, and have some really fine marks to their credit.

Keay, Kibblewhite and Hornby were best over the two and three mile routes, while Bill Dahl scored an exceedingly good two mile run at a Varsity twilight meet. At five miles, Hornby, Michell, Webster, Snell and McCluskey headed the list with a number of first class runs. Michell and McCluskey showing the greatest improvement of the group.

Newton, Moss Phipps, Roberts, Campbell, Cuthbert, Porter, turned in good performances. The best of the younger men were Brown, Bretherton, Yeamans, McCurdy, Burnside, Butler, Spencer, Wilson and Wilding.

Canadian marathoners did not do as well as expected at the Olympic games, but the fact that five of them finished within the three hour limit was good. Canadian marathoners did well in American competition, however, Frank Hughes winning the Detroit marathon, and Percy Wyer making his usual good showing at Port Chester. The Monarch club captured the team prize in the latter event, and Gladstone scored at Detroit.

The Monarch Club also won the team trophy in the Buffalo Courier cross country run. Reynolds and Snell were fourth and sixth respectively in the Berwick annual nine-mile classic, while McCluskey and Phipps turned in the best times in the Buffalo six mile derby.

In the field events the best performers proved to be Doral Pilling, who hurled the javelin over 200 feet for a new Canadian record. Zvokin has shown marked improvement in this event too. While Alex Munroe reached 6 feet 3 inches in the high jump, Pickard, due to his great vault ing at the Olympic games and his showing in competition across the line, is classed as one of the world's five best pole vaulters.

Montebone created a new Canadian record for the 400 metre hurdles at the Olympic trials. Of the walkers, Mahon, Barnes, Life and Cleman stood out from the rest, although great improvement was made by Haysom during the year. 1928 has been by far the greatest year for track and field in Canada.

BRITISH LOSE WICKET FOR 47

Ryder Declared Out After Scoring One Run To Saturday's Total.

AUSSIES ALL OUT 397.

MELBOURNE, Australia, December 31. (Canadian Press Cable.) — The Australians in the first innings of the third cricket test match set England the task of getting 397 runs. The Australian innings closed to-day and England had lost one wicket for 47 before stumps were drawn.The match has been in progress for two days.

J. S. Ryder, captain of the Australian team, 111, and Don. Bradman, 26, who were not out on Saturday, resumed the Antipodean innings this morning. Ryder, with A. Kippax, had made the valiant stand which had lifted the score from three wickets for 57 to well over 200. He was dismissed when he had made only one run to-day, the Australian score then being 282 for five. Bradman went on with the remaining Australian batsmen, to score 79—a mose useful innings to his side. E. A. Beckett, a newcomer to test matches, scored 41.

England was left about an hour to bat before the close of play, and during this time the Australians captured the wicket of Jack Hobbs.

By F.D.C.

Back in 1910 when O.H.A. hockey was not cutting a great deal of ice in Peterborough the City League battlers occupied a lion's share of attention and provided some thrilling arguments. There were no restrictions in regard to O.H.A. players and as a result the star juniors and intermediates were all in action and the hockey played was of stellar calibre.

The feature contest was the play-off between the Strathconas and West Ends for the city title. The teams had finished the regular schedule all even and the play off had the fans divided into two wildy excited camps.

The Strathcona team had the late Leo Derocher in goal, and Charlie Ray, Pete Weatherstone and Herb McMillan on the forward line, along with Hughie Burritt, the 15-year-old sensation of the P.C.I. Junior O.H.A. team. On the defence were Ira Moore and Fred Denison. Ben Dusty who started the season with the Straths jumped to the Brantford pros in mid-season.

The West Ends included Crane, the clever rover of the P.C.I. team, Bill Short and Giroux of the Peterborough Junior O.H.A., Len Dobson, Jack Seymour and other well known performers.

1200 fans saw the battle which was considered of such importance that Lawson Whitehead, well known O.H.A. official, was brought down from Toronto to handle the bell.

Strathconas won by 9 to 4, but only by a garrison finish for with 12 minutes to play West Ends led by 4 to 3. The strong finish of the champions turned a thrilling fight into a rout on end but it was a wonderful game until the losers caved.

Strathconas scored first after 7 minutes. McMillan doing the trick but Giroux evened it up on a pass from Crane in 30 seconds. Burritt sent his team ahead again by scoring from a scrimmage but his schoolmate and chum, Ken Crane, tied it up again with a long shot. Fred Denison converted a ring length rush into a goal for the Straths before half time.

One minute after the second half opened Crane again tied the score with a drive from well out and five minutes later he came back with another, putting West Ends ahead 4 to 3.

It was even going for the next few minutes but finally Charlie Ray tied the score and all at once West Ends seemed to collapse. Burritt put the Strathconas in front and Ray made it 6 to 4. Then Burritt, Weatherstone and Ray scored in quick succession, leaving the final score 9 to 4.

Burritt, the youngest player in the City League, who scored 3 of the Strathconas' goals in this game scored no fewer than 26 counters in 7 games for the champions, although he was only 15 years old and weighed but 115 pounds.

The line up:

Only two or three of these players are now living in Peterborough it will be noticed.

P.C.I. GYMNASIUM IS READY FOR USE

Physical Culture Course Will Begin On Re-opening of School Term.

The gymnasium in the new wing of the Collegiate will be ready for use on the re-opening of the school for the next term. The physical culture which is included in the courses at the Collegiate will be held in its. The principal requests the students to provide themselves with the proper rubber-soled shoes in order to take these classes in the next term.

Lines are being laid for basketball courts. Two separate courts are provided for, which can be shut off from each other by means of a large folding door. When the gym. is opened up a full length court of regulation size can be used. Besides the balcony, there is plenty of standing room for spectators along the sides of the gymnasium. Some difficulty has been experienced in erecting the basketball backboards. Two of these hang from the ceiling in such a way that they can be pulled up out of the way when not in use. It has been found that they swing when struck with a basketball. This will necessitate them having to be braced.

The equipment in the gymnasium includes a high bar, a horizonal bar, parallel bars, wall racks and horizontal ladders.

TECO EMPLOYEES MAKE PRESENATION

Assistant Manager Leaves Tomorrow To Take Up New Duties at Picton.

Clarence O. King, the popular assistant manager of the local Teco Store, who leaves to-morrow to assume his new duties as manager of the Canadian Department Stores in Picton, was presented with a wardrobe trunk by his fellow employees of the local store, on the occasion of the Teco Club dance at the Downeyflake last Thursday evening. The presentation was made by the manager, W. F. Butcher, who also read the address which accompanied the gift. Mr King replied as follows:

"In my endeavors to respond to the words in this address in presenting me with this beautiful gift signifying as it does a token of your esteem—it seems almost impossible to find words to tell you of my gratitude and appreciation for I cannot think that I am deserving of all the trouble that you have gone to in my behalf. May I say—soon I shall enter upon my new duties at the T. Eaton Co. Store in the thriving town of Picton that my esteemed Company have seen fit to place me.

"Changes unforseen come in all our lives but in leaving this prosperous Teco Store, I do so with many regrets, particularly because of the associations and friendships that I have formed with all my comrades here and out over this flourishing city of Peterborough. May I also just say in passing that we are employed by the greatest merchandising organization in all the world because honor, honesty, and service are their ideals and as we continue to work in the interests of our Company, keeping in mind all their ideals, those doors shall always be rewarded.

"Here I cannot refrain from paying a tribtue most deserving to our efficient manager, Mr. Butcher, who has always been so friendly and considerate with, I am sure, the entire staff.

"Let me tell you again of my thankfulness and appreciation for this mark of esteem that I have received at your hands to-night.

"Assuring you that I shall ever hold the most pleasant memories of the friendships that I have made while here and wishing you all continued happiness and prosperity as the New Year dawns, for Canada is the land of opportunity and development, and the Empire the greatest in all the world."

AT THE GRAND.

MERCHANT OF VENICE.

Don't miss the theatrical treat of years. Coming to Grand Opera House New Year's night, "The Merchant of Venice," with a real English cast. 3d-153.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

When the London press, following Gordon McLeod's sudden appearance at the Garrick Theatre in the leading role of "Scaramouche," hailed him as one of the really great younger British actors, it was apparent that he had established himself as a star in his own right.

Gordon McLeod

But because of his long connection with Sir John Martin Harvey and the fact that it was to fill the breach following the famous actor-knight's illness that he stepped into the leading role—and also into stardom—his name is apt to be associated, in the mind of the average theatre-goer, with that of Sir John.

All this is well known to Canadians, but with the facts of another one of Mr. McLeod's outstanding successes, they are not so well acquainted.

As the star of "A Bill of Divorcement," he played the leading role in this powerful ultra-modern success, famous on two continents, for a matter of 62 consecutive weeks—a remarkable run for any production.

It is in "A Bill of Divorcement" that Mr. McLeod and his company return to the Grand on Saturday, January 5, for a one-night engagement, not only the first time that he has ever been seen here in a drama of this type, but also the first time that this notable piece of the theatre by Clemence Dane has ever been played here.

The date of the play is Christmas, 1932. Its action revolves around the question of divorce and revolves, moreover, very rapidly, unexpectedly and somewhat abruptly with the result that, from the point of view of the audience, the story which develops on the stage, is a fascinating one.

The production was brought from London in its entirety and the supporting players are as superbly cast as was "Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner," in which Mr. McLeod was seen earlier this season.

AT THE CAPITOL.

BIG HOLIDAY ATTRACTION AT THE CAPITOL OPENING TODAY, GEORGE BANCROFT IN "THE DOCKS OF NEW YORK," EDDIE JACKSON, RADIO TENOR, AND STAN. LAUREL AND OLIVER HARDY IN "WE FAW DOWN"—THREE SHOWS NEW YEAR'S DAY: 2.30, 7.00 AND 9.00.

The Capitol's big holiday attraction opens to-day, with George Bancroft in "The Docks of New York" as the feature screen attraction. Eddie Jackson, the popular radio tenor, will be heard in new songs, and Stan. Laurel and Oliver Hardy will be seen in a new side splitter, "We Faw Down."

Mr. George Bancroft, who is now in second position as the screen's most popular star, prior to his film career, had given many stage characterizations that thrust him in the front ranks of dramatic players on the American stage. His part in "Driven," which was that of a murderous mountaineer, was a striking delineation. For a number of years he was one of Broadway's best known actors, some of his important plays being "The Trail of The Lonesome Pine," "Paid in Full," "Old Bill M.P.," "Cinders," and "The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly."

His first part on the Paramount lot was in "Gods of the West," and it was his characterization in that picture that brought him to the attention of James Cruze, who was preparing the famous, "The Pony Express." He made such a hit in this picture that Cruze gave him one of the featured roles in "Old Ironsides." His next big part was in "Underworld" and this picture brought him the stardom that all players strive for.

His first starring film was "The Showdown," directed by Victor Schertzinger. Then came "The Drag Net," which was directed by Josef von Sternberg, who directed the history-making "Underworld." Film fans throughout hailed this picture with tremendous enthusiasm, and Paramount again assigned Sternberg to direct the star in "The Docks of New York," Bancroft's third starring picture.

in the South Seas," the stirring emotional story that opens to-day at the Regent Theatre.

It is the white man's shadow that is the cause of their destruction. It is a picture that points a moral that can never be remedied; but a lesson which is never the less poignant. Before the onrush of the white civilization these natives are easy victims to the white man's greed and his vices. Gin and the lure of bright baubles are enough to cause their ruin.

On this theme idea Director W. S. Van Dyke has built a real and human motion picture. After picturing the present status of these natives under white civilization, he takes his leading character, Dr. Lloyd (Monte Blue), and throws him on an undiscovered island where the natives still live in their primal beauty.

He makes this Dr. Lloyd a man who loves and pities natives and he gives him a yet stronger motive by his beautiful love affair and finally marriage to the island princess (Raquel Torres.) And then he introduces untold wealth in pearls and shows how Lloyd, in spite of his intentions, is bound to run true to form and cause—practically without his own volition—the destruction of the people he loves.

Monte Blue as the doctor torn by conflicting passions has the best screen role of his career. He has hitherto shown himself an actor of feeling—now he adds a sense of mastery. Raquel Torres, as the island princess, is equally perfect. We see a great future for her. Robert Anderson, as the heavy is likewise perfect, while the camera work of Clyde De Vinna, is the best island photography yet brought to the screen.

REMIND OF ELECTION

Rotarians Not To Forget To Use Franchise Tomorrow.

TO-DAY LUNCHEON.

The attention of Rotarians was called by President W. R. Morris at to-day's luncheon to the fact that tomorrow is not only New Year's Day but election day and that two members of the club Dr. A. Moir and Claude Rogers are candidates for the Board of Education.

A musical program took the place of the usual address to-day and the numbers given by the visiting artists were thoroughly appreciated. Rotarian R. F. Dey did the honors in introducing the artists.

Miss Nile Norman was heard to much advantage in a vocal solo to her own accompaniment. Two violin duets by Arnold Spencer and Stanley Northcott with Harry Northcott at the piano were delightfully played, the young musicians showing a surene of style and mastery of technique that were most striking. Two mezzo soprano songs were given by Miss Greta Chapman of Toronto, whose splendid voice was used most effectively. Cyril McElhinney of Toronto rendered during the program with a couple of delightful baritone solos playing his own accompaniment. Rotarian John Crane was at the piano for Miss Chapman's songs.

Former Rotarian Max Sauer who is home from Winnipeg was given a rousing welcome and called upon for a speech. He briefly referred to enjoyable visit to the Winnipeg Rotary club which organization he said had one defect—it lacked a John Crane.

Rotarian Ensign Green of the Salvation Army thanked the Rotary club for the assistance given the Army in its Christmas relief. He reported that 77 families had been looked after at Christmas and a number of New Year's baskets were being sent out.

TWO GUIMEN SHOT TO DEATH

Chicago Beer Racketers Engage in Gun Battle in South Side Cafe.

GANGSTER CAPTURED.

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 31 (Canadian Press)—Two "touch buys" of the Bernacket, William "Gunner" McFadden and Hugh "Stubby" McGovern were shot to death early to-day at the Granada Cafe, 68th street and Cottage Grove avenue.

Nearly two hundred patrons who had been dining and dancing dived under tables, dashed for exits or hid behind pillars at the sound of the shots, fired in rapid succession. Of the number present, very few witnessed the actual shooting, which was at a table in a secluded corner of the cafe, one of the better-known night clubs of the south side.

George Mahoney, a pistol in his hand, was arrested as he stood among the frightened guests a moment after the shooting. Police said 6 shots had been fired from his revolver.

McGovern was described by police as a former associate of Al "Scarface" Capone, and reputed foe of Ralph Capone in beer operations on the south side. McFadden, a pal of McGovern, was a business agent for the Asbestos Pipe Union.

The slayer's marksmanship was unusually accurate, as gang shootings go. Both men were shot through the heart, and there was a bullet hole in McGovern's forehead. The first shots went wide, giving McGovern a chance to draw his pistol. It was still in his hand, unfired, when he fell. McFadden had no weapon.

McGovern, McFadden, two other men and four women had entered the cafe about 1 a.m., and had been seated about an hour when Mahoney, a male companion, and two women entered and took a table nearby. Witnesses said Mahoney walked over to the others' table, said a few words to McGovern, and then the guns flashed.

EIGHT KILLED

occupants of the car were being gleaned from the following:

A pair of men's pyjama trousers, marked "P. Johnston;" a Roman Catholic prayer book bearing the name of "Rose Alma Desrosiers, Casteton R. R. Cornwall," and also the name of "Edgar Rivet."

The license number of the car was Vermont 25-520, while on the cylinder of the car was the number 345453.

Carried for more than half a mile on the front of the engine, the car in which the party of tourists was driving, was badly battered, and nothing seemed left whole on the car.

Engineer Whalen stated that he did not once see the car until just as the crash came.

Thomas Burtch, who lives near the crossing, was apparently the only eye witness to the accident.

"I could see the train coming," said Mr. Burtch, "and I also saw the car. It looked to me as though there was going to be a crash. I noticed the driver of the car apparently put on the brakes, and the car slowed down until it seemed to be going not more than 15 miles an hour when the crash came."

Words almost fail to describe the terrible scene at the accident, with parts of bodies strewn everywhere, and not a sign of life from the entire party of at least seven people.

Bodies Mangled

Identification of the bodies taken from the wreck at Cataraqui has been made practically impossible because of the fact that of the seven bodies which have been found not one of them has the head. Every body was terribly mutilated and the heads severed by the terrible impact.

A few yards from the scene of the accident was found the body of a man, minus the head, and badly battered, while a few feet away a number of human limbs were found. A short distance from this was picked up what seemed to be the body of a boy of eight or nine years and this body was also without the head.

Most pathetic was the scene at the accident where a quantity of baby clothing was picked up, all blood-stained and mingled with clothing of adults. For many yards down the track there was nothing but wreckage and the most of it was human wreckage. Arms, legs, pieces of skull and other parts of bodies were strewn everywhere, and through all the wreckage could be seen parts of the remains of little children, victims of the most horrible accident that Kingston ever experienced.

Assembling of the parts of the bodies taken from the accident scene at Cataraqui has just been concluded and it has been found that there were one woman, two men, two girls and three boys, a total of eight who were killed in the crash.

Bound for Peterborough

Identification of the bodies of the eight people killed in the accident was made this afternoon by Coroner M. J. Morrison, which disclosed the fact that the owner of the car was Alexander Dupuis, who recently moved to Cornwall from Proctor, Vermont, and was on his way to Peterborough, where he had intended taking up residence. The other male adult in the car was Edgar Rivet of Cornwall, while it has been established that there were two women, the wives of Dupuis and Rivet, and the two boys and two girls were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Dupuis.

The apparent mystery of the name of Rose Alma Desrosier which was found inside the prayer book picked up near the wreck was cleared up when belongings of the victims showed that Edward Rivet, one of the men killed in the accident was married to a Casselman girl of that name. The marriage certificate of the Rivets showed that they had only been married in August last.

Take 7 Seven or eight

Among the effects picked up at the scene along the track and in the ruined parts of the car as well as on the bodies of the victims was a bill of lading which showed the furniture of the Dupuis and the Rivets had been shipped from Cornwall to Peterborough in a joint shipment. Dishes and other pieces of small furniture were found which indicated that the families were making their final move to their proposed new home in Peterborough after having shipped all their heavy furniture.

On the body of Rivet was found an operator's license issued in June last and bearing the number 205985, and which gave Rivet's address as 25 Second street. In addition there were rent receipts, a marriage license and other itemized accounts as well as a blank bank book.

Coroner M. J. Morrison has instructed the summoning of a jury to hold the inquest to-night.

To The Examiner and Citizens of Peterborough:

In connection with the purchase of the gas plant by the city, I wish to state that I think it is a real good bargain for the city of Peterborough to get this public utility at this low price. I think every voter in the city should come out and support the by-law and purchase the gas plant. I am going to vote for it.

NEW LICENSES ARE ISSUED

Frank G. Stinson Makes Public Regulations Governing Issuing of Plates.

The following letter, received by the Peterborough motor license issuer, Frank G. Stinson, sets forth, briefly, regulations governing the issuing, which work has already begun. To Ernest Ross, of R.R. 6, fell the honor of purchasing the first 1929 license issued locally, the number being 269-401, while William Darling of R.R. 1, Warsaw, ran him a close second, getting number 269-402 for his new Durant sedan. Number 269-403 went to John A. Bertram of Smith Township, while W. H. H. Harris of Hamilton, who has made a practice of purchasing his markers in Peterborough for a number of years, obtained number 269-404. The last of the first five licenses purchased went to S. G. Hall of 424 London Street, Peterborough. The license plates for commercial vehicles have not yet arrived at the local issuer's office. The colors of the markers are black and gray.

The letter reads:

"This is to advise you of your reappointment as an issuer of motor vehicle permits and drivers' licenses for the year 1929. Supplies and forms of application, permits and licenses are going forward from this office, and registration plates are being shipped to you from the factory at Hamilton.

"Fees: No change has been made in the fees for motor vehicle permits, other than those for two purpose vehicles. These are vehicles equipped with two bodies and used at times with a passenger car body, and at other times with a delivery body. The fees for these permits are now the same as those provided for passenger cars.

"Operators' Licenses: This is the first year that operators' licenses have been renewable. You will note that the instructions printed on the books containing these licenses require that every applicant for a renewal of his operator's license return his present year's license. This regulation must be complied with absolutely in order that these renewals, which are issued without examination, may be issued only to those entitled thereto.

"Original operators' licenses must be issued only to those who present applications duly endorsed by the local examiner. Instructions received by you last year relative to the refusal of licenses to persons who have any physical or mental disability are still effective.

"Operators' licenses to replace instruction permits are issued only from Head Office."

J. P. Bickell,
Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

Greetings For 1929

We look into the year 1929 with that note of optimism which seems to be prevalent in our fair city, and express our sincere wish that all our friends and business acquaintances shall enjoy their full share of that prosperity in the coming year.

We also wish to take this opportunity of thanking our many customers who have made the year 1928 the largest in our 13 years in the automobile business.

Reeve Middleton Intimates That He Will Not Seek Re-election.

TWO FOR DEPUTY.

There was a large and enthusiastic attendance at the nomination meeting for the Township of Smith held in the County Court-House to-day between the hours of 1 and 2 p.m.

Two were nominated for Reeve: J. A. Middleton being re-nominated to the office, which he has filled during the past year, and Henry D. Coons, Deputy-Reeve in the last Council, being also nominated for the senior position. However, in a speech after the nominations had been declared closed, Reeve Middleton declared that he had no intention of standing for re-election, and under those conditions Henry Coons will receive an acclamation to the position of Reeve.

Gordon Fitzgerald and Allan B. Mann, both experienced men in the handling of the township's business, were nominated for Deputy-Reeve.

Five were nominated for the three vacancies on the Council and it is likely that there will be a keen contest. The following are those nominated to the Council: William Lane, E. G. Mullins, Gordon Fitzgerald, Herbert McConkey and Vivian Millburn.

In a short address after the nominations, Reeve Middleton thanked the mover and seconder of his nomination, but declared his intention of dropping out of the Council. Speaking of the War Memorial to which the township had subscribed the sum of $500, he said that he was in support of the memorial, but that the design could perhaps have been better selected. The expenditures on the roads for the year had reached the sum of $12,454.89, and at present there is an overdraft on the bank of approximately $2,300; but there is yet $4,035.53 outstanding in uncollected taxes and when these are in there will be a small surplus in the treasury.

Henry Coons paid a compliment to the efficient work of Reeve Middleton and expressed his sorrow at the knowledge that he was retiring. Mr. Coons remarked that the tax rate will likely need to be increased for the coming year and especially the rate on the roads taxation.

ISAAC McNABB IS QUALIFIED

Meets All Requirements of School Board Journal—and More.

SHOULD BE ELECTED.

Isaac P. McNabb is essentially the man for Peterborough on the Board of Education, since he has every qualification needed.

In the Canadian School Board Journal of April, 1928, there is set out a list of the needed qualifications, as follows:—

1. Belief in the Public School.
2. Willingness to learn.
3. Interest in the community.
4. Ability to co-operate.
5. Progressiveness.
6. Financial ability.
7. Knowledge of education.
8. Ability to get things done.
9. Ability to withstand criticism.

The Journal remarks that "very few individual trustees have all these qualities."

Peterborough is fortunate in having for election a man who HAS all these qualifications, in the person of Isaac P. McNabb, a man who has two qualifications not called for by the Journal—the supreme confidence of men who know him best, and a record of service and sacrifice for his country in the Great War.

We believe Peterborough cannot do better than elect Isaac McNabb to the Board of Education.

This is inserted by a number of his friends, without Mr. McNabb's knowledge.—(Advt.)

BANDIT SHOT

shortly before ten o'clock last night. A few minutes previously McGee had received a mysterious telephone call, and was attempting to leave the house when he was accosted at the door by Detective McIvor and another officer

McGee, according to a police statement, immediately opened fire, wounding McIvor. The detectives then fired, and McGee dropped with seven bullets in his body. He was instantly killed.

From papers found in the bandit's room it was ascertained that he had worked in the harvest fields, and had returned to Winnipeg only a few weeks ago. He had taken a room at the house six weeks ago, but little was known of him there. A medical certificate which had been issued by the Montreal Harbor Commission, proved his identity. It showed he had worked as a harbor hand in Montreal previously to coming west.

Tipped Off Police.

A Winnipeg gunsmith, whose tip to the police was the first step on the trail that led to the killing of Carl McGee, alleged slayer of Leslie Digby Poyntz, druggist, may be in line for reward totalling $5,500 for the apprehension of the bandit whose gun, it is believed, sounded Poynts' death knell on Thursday night.

It was on information from this gunsmith, who identified bullets which dealt death to Poyntz and threatened murder to another Winnipeg drug storekeeper, that police traced McGee, of San Quentin Prison, alias Young, to his hiding place in a McDermott Street boarding house.

Suspecting, from police inquiry, that a customer was guilty of two drug store hold-ups in Winnipeg recently, the firearms expert followed McGee to his lodging and informed authorities of the whereabouts of the bandit. McGee was lured last night from the house by a fake phone call from two alleged accomplices, Eddie and George Vanderlip, who had been arrested during the afternoon.

Seven bullets from the weapons of four detectives felled McGee to death, but not before a trio of shots from a gun concealed under McGee's overcoat had severely wounded Detective Sergeant Charles McIvor.

The Weather

The weather conditions prevailing here in Peterborough the last day of the year 1928, are extraordinary they are the usual of general remark. No snow on the ground, which is but little frost, the temperature above the freezing point, a sky that has more the appearance of March than the end of the year, all combine to mark this "white" year being in a class by itself. And yet we have been told by several that it does north there is now good sleighing and has been for three weeks or more. The white line reaches southward to a little above Young's Point and Selwyn. — W. P.

Forty-Three Years of Successful Service

SINCE 1885—under the leadership of such men as J. Banneli Sawyer, Geo. S. Bean, J. J. Rooney, A. Blanchard, W. McCrae, Wm. Pringle, E. E. Logan, and the present owner, the PETERBOROUGH BUSINESS COLLEGE has served faithfully and well this central section of Ontario—by training for business positions thousands of young men and women.

MANY OF THESE Graduates are now the managers and owners of large Business Firms. Many are private secretaries to General Managers.

SINCE ITS establishment in 1885—it has always been the policy of the owners to give the best training possible, and the result has been that the graduates are always in demand.

UNDER THE present management—this idea of giving the best is uppermost. Teachers of experience, who are vitally interested in each student, are employed. Modern office appliances are purchased for the training of the students. Modern Books by practical men are used as texts. The famous Gregg Shorthand is taught. This system is fast taking the place of the more antiquated systems. Our standards are higher than in most schools—our students must reach this higher standard.

IS THERE ANY WONDER THEN:
1—That PETERBOROUGH BUSINESS COLLEGE Graduates are successful.
2—That some firms depend upon us almost entirely for help.
3—That we have to advertise for Stenographers and Bookkeepers to fill the demands on us.
4—That we cannot fill the requests for office help.

WHY HAVE WE spent Thousands of Dollars on equipment? We believe, and you will agree with us, that a student who has been trained to use office appliances will be of more value to a business man than one who has to learn after getting a position. What business man has the time to train those who are supposed to know?

Building Permits Total $625,577

Fifty-Seven Homes Have Been Erected In City During 1928

Three Hundred and Seventy-six Building Permits Were Issued By City Engineer in 1928, Compared to 281 in Previous Year.

TOTAL EXPENDITURE SHOWS INCREASE OF $1,282; GREATER VARIANCE IN CLASS OF PERMITS

September Witnessed the Most Extensive Building Operations Amounting to $266,105—May Was Second With a Total of $79,187.

The story of how the City of Peterborough has benefited by a decided increase in building activities throughout the year just closed was told by records available this morning at the City Engineer's Office. They revealed that during 1928, no less than 376 permits had been issued, providing for a total expenditure of $625,577.00, and permitting the erection of 106 garages, private or public, costing $21,190.00; 57 dwellings totalling $194,700.00; 8 service stations valued at $33,250.00; and 205 miscellaneous amounting to $376,597.00.

The above figures stand favorable comparison with those of 1927, when 281 permits were issued providing for a total expenditure of $624,295.00, comprised 94 garages costing $22,268.00; 38 dwellings totalling $143,700.00; and 149 miscellaneous amounting to $457,327.00.

The comparison is the more conspicuous in that during the past year there were eight of the much-discussed service stations erected in the city, being that number more than in 1927; nineteen more dwellings, twelve more garages and fifty-six more miscellaneous permits.

Some may point to the fact that the 1928 total expenditure was only $1,282.00 more than that of 1927, but the greater variance in the classes of permits indicates more widespread and diversified building inclinations.

Best Building Months

The City Engineer's records also established several other facts, among them being that the month of September witnessed the most extensive building operations of the year so far as the issuance of building permits was concerned. During this period, 48 permits were issued providing for the erection of 14 garages costing $2,065.00; 5 dwellings costing $25,700.00 and 29 miscellaneous totalling $237,740.00. In other words, September's total expenditure in this regard amounted to $254,105.

The month of May, with its total of $79,187 was the second best month. During the 31 days, 64 permits were issued, providing for the erection of 14 garages at an approximate cost of $1,900.00; 12 dwellings costing $41,740.00; one service station costing $3,500.00, and 37 miscellaneous costing $32,047.00.

Next in order was the month of August, with 34 permits to build 13 garages at a cost of $985.00, 5 dwellings costing $12,300.00, and 16 miscellaneous costing $58,810.00 and all totalling $74,095.00.

The other months in the order of expenditure were:

October—45 permits for 9 garages, 9 dwellings, and 27 miscellaneous totalling $38,720.

April—53 permits for 18 garages, 5 dwelling, 4 service stations, and 26 miscellaneous, totalling $38,827.

July—42 permits for 12 garages, 6 dwelling, 2 service stations, and 22 miscellaneous totalling $37,885.

November—25 permits for 8 garages, 6 dwellings, 11 miscellaneous, totalling $29,360.

June—37 permits for 4 garages, 7 dwellings, 16 miscellaneous, totalling $25,013.

February—5 permits for 5 miscellaneous, totalling $17,860.

December—9 permits for 3 garages, 1 dwelling, 1 service station, and 4 miscellaneous, totalling $16,765.

January—3 permits for 1 dwelling and 2 miscellaneous, totalling $7,515.

March—11 permits for one garage,

134 DEATHS ARE REPORTED

Toronto Officials State There Are 1,000 Cases of Influenza in City.

BRIGHTER OUTLOOK.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—Twenty-two deaths was the toll of the influenza epidemic in Toronto during the past two days according to fyles at the City Clerk's office. Eight were reported last night and one to-day. The total deaths now number 134, while the official number of cases now number an even thousand, with 543 additional telephone, transportation, police and fire departments' employees added to the sick list.

Hospital authorities and physicians, however, took a brighter outlook on the epidemic yesterday and to-day with the return of colder weather. Suburban schools have followed the action of the City Board of Education and have suspended the re-opening of the schools until January 8 or later.

It is impossible to estimate the exact number of cases in the city, as every street has a large number of cases being treated at home, which are not reported to the health department. Many whole families are ill and are being looked after by neighbors.

While the "flu" is not definitely the cause of so many deaths, doctors state, it is a contributory factor, along with pneumonia and bronchial pneumonia.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—No official figures on the progress of the influenza epidemic in Montreal were available to-day, but indications point to a decline in the spread of the disease locally. Schools and colleges will re-open, following the holidays as scheduled.

REDUCE NUMBERS.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., January 2. — Canadian Press. — A bylaw asking permission to make application to the Ontario Legislature for legislation to enable the council reduce its numbers from 12 to 8 was approved by the electors yesterday. The vote was 1544 to 840.

KING GEORGE SHOWS SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT

New Hope of Hopefulness Sounded By Queen Mary in New Year's Message.

NEW TREATMENT USED.

New Name Added to List of Physicians Already in Care.

LONDON, Jan. 2.— (Canadian Press.)—Announcement that calcium treatment was being administered to King George with beneficial results today raised the general hope of a steady betterment in the King's condition.

The promptness of the patient's reaction to the calcium treatment was regarded as a good sign, while the method of administration in the King's case was not made known it was assumed that it was by injection with a hypodermic syringe into a vein. It was believed that if calcium were being taken in nourishment through the mouth its absorption would be slow and uncertain.

The medical authority said the calcium would probably be used as a tonic for the blood and circulatory system. It would assist the work of the heart and relieve it of the heavy strain of prolonged illness.

Professor Edward Charles Dodds, whose analysis of the King's blood, coupled with Dr. L. E. H. Whitbys bacteriological examination, led to the adoption of the calcium treatment, is the eleventh physician to be called in to treat the King. He is also the youngest, being only 29 years of age.

Professor Dodds' rise to the front rank of the profession has been startling in its rapidity. He won his first qualifying diploma only seven years ago. Since then he has acquired numerous first class honors, established a high reputation in Biochemistry and written several valuable papers on medical and chemical subjects.

Optimistic Note.

There was an optimistic note in today's news about King George. He has retained the improvement which the doctors reported last night, the Cabinet Minister who is closest to affairs at Buckingham Palace by virtue of his position. Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Home Secretary, feels so reassured, he says, about the King's condition that he left to-day for a brief holiday in the south of France.

"I feel that the worst of the illness is over," from the Home Secretary were the most cheering words about the Royal patient that the public has heard for many a day.

Even the restless night for His Majesty which the doctors reported this morning did not cause him to lose any ground since the improvement noted last night. Palace circles were gratified that there has been no check in this progress which, however, continues to be slow.

It is understood that the new calcium treatment for toning up the blood, in connection with which Prof. E. C. Dodds, brilliant young chemical pathologist from the University of London, was called in, is being continued and further benefits from it are hoped for.

From the fact that the King's doctors did not make their usual visit to the Palace this afternoon it was gathered that they were satisfied with the progress that His Majesty thus far is making.

It is understood that their next visit will be at the usual time this evening prior to issuance of the regular night bulletin.

LONDON, January 2 (Canadian Press). — A note of hopefulness sounded by Queen Mary in a New Year's message which she sent to the Lord Mayor of London yesterday received confirmation last night when a medical bulletin announced "A slight improvement in the general condition of the King." The bulletin also said that the King had passed a restful day.

The improvement in the general condition of the Royal patient is what the doctors, nurses, Royal Family, and nation have been anxiously awaiting in the many recent days of suspense.

Several days ago it became known that the local condition of the disease had been virtually conquered. Efforts to build up the general strength of the sick man were therefore watched closely.

New Treatment.

Last night's bulletin also revealed the new line of treatment which had been previously referred to by the doctors but kept secret so far as its nature was concerned. The bulletin also added a new name to the already long list of physicians who have been called into the case. The newcomer is Professor E. C. Dodds, Professor of Bio-Chemistry in the University of London. He seemingly is responsible for the carrying out of the new treatment which resulted from the chemical examination of the blood, and consists in the administration of calcium.

The Queen has written to the Lord Mayor of London as follows:

"I have received the message on New Year's Eve which the Lord Mayor never fails to address to the King. This message, with its expression of loyalty, devotion and sympathy from the citizens of London, comes to me at a time of great anxiety. The King's illness must take its long and arduous course, but, please God, I may look forward to the lifting of the clouds and to the happy realization of the nation's faith and hope. The love and affection extended to me and my children throughout these dark days have indeed been a support to me, and to those near and dear to me; and when health and strength shall, as we hope, be vouchsafed again to the King, it will be a source of happiness to him to know that in his suffering he was ever in the thoughts of the citizens of London. I pray you, my Lord Mayor, to convey to one and all, my heartfelt thanks."

The letter was dated from Buckingham Palace and signed "Mary R."

Playing With Figures

Some interesting gleanings from a comparison of the vote of yesterday with that of previous years.

Some interesting comparisons may be gleaned in looking at yesterday's election results alongside those of the preceding two years. Alderman McIntyre, for instance, headed the poll yesterday with 2,667 votes, whereas in 1927 he was at the bottom of the list of chosen with 1,361 votes. Alderman Phelan, who was second yesterday with 2,549 votes, was also second in 1927, with 2,477 votes, being led on that occasion by Alderman Denne, who had 236 more votes. Alderman Phelan has, therefore, cut his handicap exactly in half.

Alderman J. A. McNabb, third this year, did not run in 1927, but contested the Board of Education last year. In a field of eight contestants he was last, with 1,316 votes against 3,052 of the leader, so that this year's triumph in another field indicates an addition to his following of nearly a thousand voters.

Alderman Huffman, who was appointed to a vacancy in the 1928 Council, yesterday participated in his third election, and finished in fourth place. He received 2,240 votes this year, against 991 in 1927 and 1,131 in 1928, an increase in votes of 1,249 over the first time his name appeared on the ballot.

Alderman-elect Holland, who was eighth in a field of fourteen in 1928, yesterday jumped to fifth place and a seat on the Council with 237 more votes. He had 2,094 yesterday, and 1,837 in 1928.

Ex-Alderman Lowe, appointed to the Council last year to fill a vacancy, was sixth yesterday with 1,797 votes. In 1928 he was also sixth, but with 1,875 votes, a decrease in support this year of 78 votes. In 1927 he was seventh, with 1,069 votes, 728 fewer than yesterday.

Mr. Tuggy, [illegible] month with 831 votes, yesterday polled 1,212 votes, an increase of 381, but remained last in the list.

There were 2,667 votes cast for the leading man yesterday, compared with 3,409 votes in 1928, given to Alderman Cotton, and 2,413 votes in 1927, given to Alderman (now Mayor) Denne. There were seven contestants this year, fourteen in 1928, and twelve in 1927.

Board of Education.

The same comparison cannot be made in the Board of Education figures, because of acclamations in past years, but it is interesting to note that in 1928, with eight men in the field, the same number as this year, the leader won his position with 1,661 votes. The second man this year had 121 fewer votes than his leader, while in 1927 that position polled 419 fewer than the leader. That the winning candidates were about the same as favorites is indicated by the fact that in 1928 the first and last men were separated by 298 votes while this year 411 separated them.

Voters Are Consistent

Voters are fairly consistent, rumor to the contrary notwithstanding. The proof lies in the figures of successive elections, but figures do not lie.

The largest vote in 1928 and 1929 was at poll 23, Queen Mary school, with 945 and 644 in the respective years; the second highest was at poll 24, at the same school, both years, with 890 and 622 votes for Aldermen; but poll 18, Prince of Wales school, lost the honor this year to poll 19 at the same school. In 1928 poll 18 was high with 870 votes for aldermen; yesterday poll 19 snatched the laurels with a high for third place of 561. Poll 19 had only 536 aldermanic votes this year.

This doesn't really tell much, because the division of voters is not equal. Equality of opportunity counts and probably it is because of their reserve of voters that these polls win high place.

But when it comes down to voting for individual candidates, then consistency tells. And the result of investigation indicates that the voting citizen of Peterborough is fairly strong in his opinions.

For instance, Mr. Holland was high in the same three polls last year and this year— and his lowest vote was also at the same place both years. In 1928 he received 142 votes at poll 37, King George school; this year, 120; in 1928 his vote at poll 36, Immaculate Conception school was 106; this year 102; and in 1928 he received the support of 99 voters at poll 24, Queen Mary School; this year 102. When it comes to lack of votes, this was most evident at poll 15, City Building, both years, with 15 votes in 1928 and 22 in 1929.

The three polls that gave Mr. Tuggy's biggest votes last year yielded a total of 171 votes, and this year the same three gave him 275, indicating a gain in popularity there of four votes. They were: In 1928, at poll 28, Central school, 71 votes; in 1929, 70; at poll 36, Immaculate Conception school, 50 votes; in 1929, 47; at poll 37, King George school, in 1928, 50 votes; in 1929, 58 votes. But Mr. Tuggy's low point in 1928 is increased by 9 this year, and the poll has changed. In 1928 poll 32, Queen Alexandra school, yielded only six votes; this year his lowest vote was at poll 33, the same school, where he received 15 votes.

The only consistent poll in its treatment of Mr. Huffman is number 18, Prince of Wales school. Giving him a high of 86 in 1928, this poll raised the ante in 1929 to 108. The theory of consistency lapses here and it is found that poll 8, which gave him 78 last year, yielded only 63 votes yesterday, while poll 23, which last year gave only 57 votes, leaped to second place yesterday with 102 votes. Poll 17, South Central school, was third last year with 73, and this year that position was usurped by poll 24, Queen Mary school, with 89 votes. Poll 15, City Buiding which last year awarded Mr. Huffman only 13 votes, gave him 30 yesterday, and poll 7, at South Central school, was low with 30 votes.

When Mr. Phelan ran for the Mayoralty in 1928 he received his highest vote at poll 24, Queen Mary school, with 138 votes; the same poll showed the same enthusiasm yesterday by giving him his highest individual vote for Alderman, the highest vote recorded at that poll, 120. His second highest vote in 1928 was at poll 37, King George school, which yielded 111 votes; this year poll 23 took the second place with 115. Poll 23 is at Queen Mary school. Poll 4, Sacred Heart school, which was third last year with 103 votes, gave up the honor yesterday to poll 37, King George school, with 107 votes. The only other consistency this year was poll 15, City Buildings which again took bottom position, even though it gave Mr. Phelan 29 votes against the 19 of last year.

Not So Consistent

When Mr. McIntyre ran for council in 1927, his highest vote was at poll 24, Queen Mary school, where he was given 62 votes; yesterday he received his highest vote at 23, the same school, which yielded 119 votes. Second place in 1927 was at poll 38, Central school, with 61 votes; poll 19, Prince of Wales school was second this year with 115 votes. In third place in 1927 was poll 36, Immaculate Conception school, with 60 votes, and this year poll 24, Queen Mary school, with 113 votes. This is the poll that was highest this year. Poll 17, which gave Mr. McIntyre his lowest vote last year, 38, yielded 75 votes yester-

He Knows His Mind On Factory By-laws

There is one consistent opponent of fixed assessments in the city, and he votes at Division 14, City Building.

In 1928 the vote at this booth on the Westclock bylaw was 31 for and 1 opposed.

In 1929 the vote at this booth on the Johnson Motors bylaw was 34 for and 1 opposed.

Consistency is a virtue!

EPIDEMIC OF DIPHTHERIA IN GREAT NORTH

Hudson Bay Forts Send To Edmonton For 500,000 Units of Anti-toxin.

ONE DEATH REPORTED.

Doctor Reports 200 Persons Are Suffering From Dread Disease.

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 2—(Canadian Press).—A. Logan, Factor in charge of the Hudson Bay Company at Fort Vermillion, is dead and an epidemic of diptheria is raging at two far northern posts, Fort Vermilion and Little Red River.

At 11 o'clock this morning an airplane piloted by Captain "Wop" May, will leave this city carrying 500,000 units of anti-toxin which were requested by Dr. H. A. Hamman who is stationed at Fort Vermilion, six hundred miles north of Edmonton.

The message making the request for help was dated December 18. It was brought by dog team from Little River to Peace River, a distance of 167 miles and from the latter place it was wired through to Dr. M. R. Bow, Deputy Minister of Health at Edmonton, Tuesday.

Although only one death had been reported up to December 18 it is altogether possible that more may have occurred since. According to Dr. Hamman there were several "suspicious throats" and every indication that more than the 200 persons at the two forts were suffering from the disease.

Pilot instructor May of the Edmonton Aero Club, will undertake one of the most difficult journeys imaginable. The local plane is equipped with wheels. Going into the far north the flyer will have to find a suitable landing place. Repeatedly last night word was flashed over the radio to the north telling those who might be on the air, of the plans of the Edmonton officials to provide landing place at Fort Vermilion and Little Red River. If all goes well, the plane will arrive at Fort Vermilion Thursday afternoon.

AFGHAN REBELS SEEKING PEACE

All Is Reported Quiet In Afghanistan—Royal Family Returns to Kabul.

HOSTILE TO QUEEN.

LONDON, Jan. 2. — (Canadian Press).—Latest advices received at the Afghan Legation to-day said that all was quiet in Arghanistan and it was stated that peace negotiations have been opened at the instance of the rebels who were completely defeated.

King Amanullah and all the members of the Royal Family were reported at Kabul the capital, and the despatches indicated that the entire country within a short time will resume its normal aspect.

NEW DEHLI, India, Jan. 2. — (Associated Press). — Hostility to Queen Souriya and her family and opposition to abolition of the Purdah or seclusion of women, will be two of the problems which will come up at peace negotiations now going on at Jalalabad between the Shinwaris and Ali Ahmed Jan—former governor of Kabul—who already has handed substantial sums to the rebel tribesmen.

The terms proposed for peace are not known here but it is understood that the tribes are keen for the restoration of the authority of the Mullahs or Mohammedan priests in government affairs are opposed to abolition to the Purdah and are hostile to the queen.

Large reinforcements have reached Kabul from Kandahar and Mezarshariff, the roads between Jalalabad and Kabul are still blocked and no caravans are going to the Afghan capital.

THE WEATHER

The weather of New Year's Day was not of a very agreeable nature, with light snow and sleet falling. The temperature, however, was not low. A decided change occurred last night when the wind shifted to the northwest. At daybreak this morning the temperature was three degrees above zero. Later it went down two more degrees, and at noon was 8 above. Probably it will go below zero tonight.—W. P.

Five Out Of Nine Seat[s] On Council And Boar[d] Awarded To New Me[n]

Stanley Lowe Is Only Member of Council Defeated, But J. Strickland and W. R. Turner, Jr., Both Leave the Board of Education.

GAS PLANT BY-LAW ENDORSED TWO TO ONE AND JOHNSON MOTORS BY-LAW SIX TO O[NE]

Vote Is Light and All Returns Completed By 8.30 — F[ew] Brownscombe Is First To Hand in Returns and Thomas Pitchford Is First Complete.

The ratepayers of Peterborough, called upon on Tuesday to elect five of seven candidates for the 1929 City Council, to choose four of eight aspirants to the Board of Education, to decide in favor of or against the purchase of the city gas plant from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission and to voice approval or disapproval of a fixed assessment for the Johnson Motors Company, turned out to the polls in numbers comparing favorably with those of other years. Within three and a half hours after the polls had closed at five o'clock, the full extent of their decisions on all four matters was known.

By 1,214 votes to 764, they had endorsed the purchase of the gas plant, and by 1,730 ballots to 281, they had spoken in favor of the above-mentioned consideration for the latest of Peterborough's industries. In addition they had elected the candidates whose names appear below, together with the total of votes polled in their favor:

Aldermen.

Malcolm McIntyre	2,667
Nagle E. Phelan	2 549
John A. McNabb	2,249
Henry C. Huffman	2,240
Daniel J. Holland	2,094

Of the defeated candidates, Stanley A. Lowe polled 1,797 and T. Tuggy polled 1,212.

Board of Education.

Dr. A. Moir	1,661
Isaac P. McNabb	1,520
Ernest F. Reid	1,404
James Dutton	1,250

The four defeated candidates with the votes they polled, were: J. F. Strickland, 1,123; W. R. Turner, Jr., 809; Dr. J. A. Morgan, 697; and C. H. Rogers, 548.

It is noteworthy that in choosing their aldermen, the ratepayers showed respect for the experienced men Aldermen McIntyre, Phelan, and Huffman being members of last year's Council, while that the new men were appreciated is indicated not only by the election of Mr. McNabb and Mr. Holland, but also by the fact that three of the four successful candidates to the Board of Education will be serving their first year, namely Dr. Moir, Mr. McNabb, and Mr. Dutton.

Interested in Outcome.

The committee room adjoining City Clerk S. R. Armstrong's offices, where many an ambitious citizen has, in past years, learned of his standing in the opinion of a sometimes uncertain public, was a crowded but unusually quiet one as compared with election nights in the past. The city clerk, courteous and patient, attended to many details, the receiving of returns requiring a major portion of his time; while members of the press kept record of the reports from the various polling divisions and watched for the first indications of what the final results might be. Candidates J. A. McNabb, Reid, Lowe, Huffman, McIntyre, Phelan, Dutton and others spent most of the evening discussing the contest or tabulating the returns while some of the other men in the field must have been content to learn the outcome apart and away from what they may have hoped would be their meeting place in 1929. Ex-Mayor A. A. McIntyre, Mayor Denne and members of the council whose tenure did not terminate this year, were also in during the evening, as were a few private citizens.

Those Who Reported First.

The polls had closed at five o'[clock] sharp, and preparations for the reception of results were still in progress when Felix Brownscombe, deputy returning officer of Poll 14, located in the city building, proudly have submitted the first report other years, maintained his record announcing that the gas by-law had been approved at his poll by 20 and the Johnson Motors by-law 34 to 1. Thomas Pitchford, of St Peter's school polling division Number 21, won a "first" by bringing in his ballot box ahead of the while A. G. Metheral, of the Building, Division Number 13, was first to report an aldermanic result W. Fisher, located at the City Buildings also, turned in the leading port on the Board of Education H. Campbell, located at Poll Number 11, in King Edward school, was second to report on both the gas law and the Johnson Motors by while F. W. Edwards, of Poll Queen Alexandra school, was J. R. Metheral and W. Fisher Polls 11 and 13 respectively, reported in second and third order relating aldermanic results, while A. Metheral and J. R. Metheral at 13 and 11 completed the first of reports regarding the Board Education candidates, Mr. Fisher having been first.

How By-laws Fared.

The by-law to provide for the chase of the local gas plant at price of $335,000 met with the proval of the voters at all save polls: 26, (Central School); 32, Ward); 33, (Queen Alexandra) it was defeated by 32-17, 23-22, 33-19, respectively. At poll 26 votes were cast in its favor and against. All summed up, 34 declared in favor of the by three against and one divided.

The Johnson Motors by-law ever, was unanimously accepted being not one dissenting ballot Division 12, only one at Division and only 3 at Divisions 9, 13 27.

Where Candidates Fared.

Polling Division 23, located in tral school, proved a grave Candidates Lowe, McIntyre Nabb, who polled their biggest there, gaining 79, 119 and 1 tively. Four candidates for of Education found Number they being Messrs. Dutton I. P. McNabb with 79, Dr. 89, and Mr. Turner with 8 18 proved Alderman Huff for he gained 108 votes Mr. Tuggy secured his 1 70 in Division 23. Nagle set a record of 120 at Poll was equalled by Mr. Hol ing 120 at Poll 37. Dr. cured his high mark of Poll 14, Mr. Strickland high mark of 60 at Number Messrs. Reid and Roger with 77 and 30 at Poll 3.

With 18 p.c. of Total Aldermanic Vote Cast Alderman McIntyre Carried 21 Of 38 Polls

In 21 of the 38 polling places, Alderman McIntyre yesterday headed the poll. Alderman Phelan had that honor at ten polls, Alderman Holland at five, and Alderman Huffman at one. At one polling place, No. 1, Aldermen McIntyre and Phelan tied with 62 votes each.

The following are the percentages of the total vote for Aldermen won by each contestant: McIntyre, 18 per cent.; Phelan, 17 per cent.; McNabb, 15 per cent.; Huffman, 15 per cent.; Holland, 14 per cent.; Lowe, 12 per cent.; Tuggy, 8 per cent.

In the Board of Education contest, Dr. Moir led in 22 of the 38 polling places; Mr. McNabb in 10; Mr. Dutton in 2, Dr. Morgan and Mr. Reid in 1 each. Dr. Moir and Mr. McNabb tied at one poll with 20 each; and Dr. Moir and Mr. Reid tied at another, with 45 each.

The percentages of the total votes cast for the Board of Education are: Dr. Moir, 18 per cent.; Mr. McNabb, 16½ per cent.; Mr. Reid, 15½ per cent.; Mr. Dutton, 13½ per cent.; Mr. Strickland, 12½ per cent.; Mr. Turner, 9½ per cent.; Dr. Morgan, 7½ per cent.; Mr. Rogers, 6½ per cent.

FEW ACCLAMATIONS IN DISTRICT

Several Old Members Will be Absent When County Council Meets

Reeves Montgomery, of Norwood, Middleton, of Smith, and Scott, of Asphodel, Are Known To Be Out of the Municipal Contest.

REEVE C. S. TANNER RETURNED IN LAKEFIELD; DUMMER COUNCIL IS IN BY ACCLAMATION

C. H. Davidson is the New Mayor-Elect of Campbellford; J. M. Bygott is Re-elected Reeve; Contest Expected For Deputy and Council.

Throughout the whole district acclamations have been very scarce at the recent municipal nominations. There will be old faces missing in next year's Peterborough County Council as ex-warden Middleton is not running in Smith, Reeve Montgomery is out of the field in Norwood and Reeve Scott is retiring in Asphodel. Reeve C. S. Tanner of Lakefield, Reeve H. B. Rye of North Monaghan, Reeve James Hawthorne of Dummer and Reeve John Leahy of Douro have been returned by acclamation. Warden Morley Smithson is in the field again in Otonabee where a contest is not expected.

The annual municipal nominations held in the Lakefield Town Hall on Monday evening brought out a much larger and more enthusiastic audience than for several years. It was encouraging to those interested in the village to see the increased interest in village affairs. The meeting was very haronious and quite in accord with the "peace and good will" spirit which should prevail, especially at this season.

Nominations were unusually brisk and it is likely an election will be held for councillors and public school trustees. Reeve Tanner was declared re-elected by acclamation and W. J. Charlton was declared re-elected as a Hydro Electric Commissioner.

The village Clerk, T. B. Marling presided, and the following were nominated:

For Reeve—C. S. Tanner.

For Councillors—William Tedford, Fred Brown, William Doidge, Lawrence Charlton, Stephen Harrison, Jefferson Moore, John Charlton, A. M. FitzGerald, J. C. Strickland, J. F. Lillecrop, and N. A. Moore.

For Public School Trustee—J. W. Ridpath, B. Q. Dench, D. H. Charlton, E. J. Millage, J. E. Galvin.

Hydro Electric Commissioner—W. J. Charlton.

C. H. Davidson was appointed Mayor of Campbellford by acclamation at the nomination meeting held here on Monday afternoon. Mayor-elect Davidson has had considerable experience in municipal affairs, having been Deputy-Reeve last year and having passed many years on the Council.

J. M. Bygott was reappointed Reeve by acclamation this being the third term that he has held that office.

Three were nominated for Deputy-Reeve, and it is likely that all will stand for election. The following were nominated: W. J. Abernethy, I. H. Cole, and J. M. Stone.

Seventeen were nominated for the Council, but it is not likely all of these will stand for the election.

REEVE GIVEN ACCLAMATION

MILLBROOK, Jan. 2.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Nominations for the local Reeve and Council were received at a public gathering of the ratepayers held in the Town Hall on Monday, December 31, at 12 o'clock noon, when the following were moved and seconded for 1929:

For Reeve: W. T. Wood, moved by T. J. Lang, seconded by A. A. Smith; (elected by acclamation).

For Councillors: T. J. Lang, moved by C. W. Richards, seconded by A. A. Smith; J. R. Eakins, moved by A. A. Smith, seconded by T. J. Lang; V. C. Lambert, moved by C. W. Richards, seconded by T. J. Lang; P. Stinson, moved by C. W. Richards, seconded by T. J. Lang; P. I. Bentley, moved by C. C. Garside, seconded by W. E. Ball; W. E. Ball, moved by J. N. McGill, seconded by D. Sheppard; T. Ingram, moved by C. W. Richards, seconded by J. R. Eakins.

An election is probable for the council next Monday, January 8, for the first time in at least ten years. W. Sayles, who had been a member of the municipal council for years, having removed to no one vacant place had to be and a number of those nominated have qualified.

For school trustees the list for this: A. A. Smith, secretary-treasurer; L. W. Smith, J. A. Vance, Burnham, C. G. Garside is a member taking the place of Russell, removed, and W. H. is also added to the board A unexpired term of H. R. this time, the latter having filled by death.

GIVEN ACCLAMATION

BONARLAW, Jan. 2.—Municipal nominations in this district on Monday proved very interesting. The noon hour was chosen by Deloro and Marmora township while Marmora village nominations were received between 7 and 8 p.m. At Deloro the reeve and council of last year received acclamation. Deloro council comprises Reeve S. B. Wright and Councillors F. A. Bapsley, R. A. Elliott, J. H. Hemphill and H. A. McNally. Three new trustees elected were H. F. Berry, G. E. Blake and H. R. Haacke; other trustees retaining their seats on the School Board are W. Williams, H. C. Barlow and W. Mumby.

MARMORA TOWNSHIP.

In Marmora township three were nominated for the reeveship namely T. E. Laycock, retiring reeve, W. D. Nickle and L. E. Leal, the later has also been nominated for the council and as he has expressed his unwillingness to enter a three cornered contest so he is expected to withdraw and qualify for council. Others nominated for the council are J. I. McCoy, W. Gawley, E. Goodrich, W. Billings, O. Leonard and J. Downward, the last four mentioned comprising last year's council.

MARMORA VILLAGE

Nomination for various offices in Marmora village resulted as follows: For Reeve, G. B. Airhart, A. H. Connor, R. E. Bonter, H. W. Sabine; Council, A. Bundige, J. Reid, D. E. Bell, F. N. Marett, F. S. Johnston, H. W. Sabine, A. H. Connor. For school trustees, W. A. Anderson, R. E. Lumsden, F. S. Weet, P. Sopha. Hydro Commissioner, M. S. Doupe.

RAWDON TOWNSHIP.

G. Bailey was returned Reeve of Rawdon township by acclamation and E. Brown was likewise re-elected deputy reeve. Four nominations were received for councillors but as Mark Short has not signed his declaration it looks like last year's council being re-elected. The nominees are W. L. Stiles, John W. Johnson, W. J. Bateman and Mark Short.

CAVAN TOWNSHIP.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 2.—The nomination meeting for Cavan township was held in the Town Hall on Monday, a large number of the ratepayers being in attendance.

Ex-Warden Jas. L. McCamus was in the chair, and last year's Reeve, Deputy-Reeve and Councillors were all returned by acclamation, the list being:

FIVE DEATHS DURING HOLIDAY

Pneumonia Follows Influenza—Schools Are Not Opening.

PEOPLE NOT CAREFUL

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—Five deaths from pneumonia, following influenza, were reported from city hospitals yesterday. The warning issued by Premier Ferguson in connection with the break of influenza has met with a ready response throughout the province, health officers in many districts following it up by taking stringent precautionary measures. As a part of this action, the re-opening of schools after the Christmas vacation has been postponed in Hamilton, Brantford, Sault Ste. Marie, Stratford, Windsor, Niagara Falls, Waterloo and Toronto. Dr. C. J. Hastings, M.O.H., said last night that he expected reports of additional cases of pneumonia because persons recovering from influenza were not careful enough.

You will find many things in the Classified Ads. of The Examiner.

Pledge To Aid Science Fight Pneumonia Results In Development of New Serum

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 2.—(Canadian Press).—A pledge made by a New York millionaire to aid science in fighting pneumonia after his wife's death from the disease four years ago has resulted in the development of a serum that is expected to cut sharply into the death toll from the malady.

Dr. George W. McCoy, of the United States Public Health Service, who aided in the development of the serum, said that L. N. Littauer, millionaire glove manufacturer, of Gloversville, New York, resolved to do all he could to help conquer pneumonia after his wife's death and that funds he contributed aided materially in the development of the serum.

The new serum is based on a serum formerly in use but is said to be much more potent. It has had the approval of a number of medical physicians and physicians' organizations.

COMMITTEE OF EXPERTS TO FIX DOMINION STATUS

Will Deal With the Anomalies Which Still Exist.

MEETING DATE UNDECIDED.

Extra Territorial Legislation and Colonial On Agenda.

LONDON, Jan. 2 (By George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press).—The remaining anomalies of Dominion status are to be considered by an expert committee, representative of Great Britain and all the Dominions. The date for the meeting of the committee has not yet been decided. It will be affected largely by the political situation here, but preliminary steps with a view to the committee's formation are understood to be under way. The idea is that the committee, which will consist of recognized authorities, will explore the situation thoroughly, making recommendations for the next Imperial Conference in 1930.

Relationship With Dominions.

The questions to come before the committee are of the highest importance in the relationship between Great Britain and the Dominions. It will inquire and make recommendations concerning:

1. The existing statutory provisions requiring the reservation of Dominion legislation for the assent of His Majesty or authorizing disallowance of such legislation.

2. The present positions to the competence of the Dominion Parliaments to give their legislation extra-territorial operations. Also the practicability of giving effect to the principle that each Dominion Parliament should have the power to pass extra-territorial legislation.

3. The extent to which the Colonial Laws Validity Act of 1865 ought to be repealed or modified in the light of existing relations between the various members of the British Commonwealth of Nations as described in the report to the last Imperial Conference.

EARL OF PLYMOUTH SUCCEEDS LOVAT

Appointed Parliamentary Under-Secretaray of State For Dominion Affairs.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—(Canadian Press Cable.)— The Earl of Plymouth has been appointed Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs in succession to Lord Lovat. The Earl of Lucan succeeds the Earl of Plymouth as Captain of the Gentlemen-At-Arms.

The Earl of Plymouth had held the latter post since 1925 and was formerly Conservative member for the London division of Shropshire. Lord Lovat had held the position of Un-Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs since 1927 and recently toured the British Dominions, including Canada. The Earl of Lucan is Lord-In-Waiting to the King.

M. O. H. Forbids Opening Of Millbrook Schools

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 2.—The intention of opening the Continuation and Public schools of the village on Thursday, January 3, has been abandoned on the advice of the Medical Health Officer, Dr. H. A. Turner, who, in view of the many cases of illness in the vicinity, desires that the date be changed to Monday, January 7.

As far as possible teachers and scholars have been notified of the change. The Medical Health Officer believes that all public gatherings would be better omitted for at least two weeks, as fresh cases of sickness almost invariably follow such meetings, and they are evidently a means of prolonging the epidemic of flu in the community and surrounding country.

McBRIDE WINS BY OVER 15,000

Ex-Alderman Brook Sykes Goes Down to Defeat in Toronto.

VOTING WAS QUIET.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—Mayor Sam McBride was re-elected for Mayor yesterday over his opponent, ex-Alderman Brook Sykes, by a substantial majority, expected to exceed 15,000 when complete returns are tabulated.

Voters turned out in fair numbers for the civic elections, an annual New Year's Day event in Toronto, and in addition to electing the civic government, turned down a proposal to change the election date. Voting was conducted quietly, after a strenuous, though short, election campaign, during which the chief issue to emerge hinged on the proposed extension of University Avenue, a central thoroughfare, from Queen's Park to the water front. Charges were made and denied that the proposal was being used to benefit certain persons connected with municipal affairs.

The new Board of Control was elected as follows: W. A. Summerville, who will be a new figure on the Board, and who was an alderman last year, and Bert Wemp, Joseph Gibbons and A. E. Hacker, re-elected.

INQUEST IS ORDERED FOR AUTO CRASH

Inquiry Into Deaths of Eight People Near Kingston Monday Called For To-night.

BROTHERS ARRIVE.

Victims Will Probably Be Buried in Roman Catholic Cemetery at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—Coroner M. J. Morrison announced late yesterday that the inquest into the deaths of eight people killed Monday when their automobile was struck by a Canadian Nation Railways passenger train at Cataraqui, will be held in Cataraqui town hall to-night. Members of the train crew as well as a number of other witnesses have been summoned to appear at the inquiry.

The names of the four children of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Dupuis, who were killed with their parents and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rivet, were ascertained yesterday for the first time. They are: Modeste, aged six; Celina, four; Juliette, three; Gerard, between one and two years of ago.

It is probable that all the victims of the crash will be buried in the Roman Catholic cemetery here. Two brothers of Edgar Rivet arrived here yesterday to make arrangements for the funeral of Rivet and his wife. Coroner Morrison has been in touch with relatives of the Dupis, and they will make the necessary arrangements for the interment of the Dupuis family.

From relatives of Mr. Rivet it was learned that he was a native of St. Agnes, Que., where he was born 24 years ago. He later lived in Caughnawaga and for the past year and a half had lived in East Cornwall. His parents reside in Cornwall while his wife was a former resident of Casselman. It was also learned to-day that Mr. Dupuis was 45 years of age.

Coroner Morrison stated yesterday he had $25 which was found in the pockets of the victims, while information was given him by relatives of the Rivets that Rivet carried $50 when he left Cornwall. It is thought the money may be at the scene of the wreck, but a search has failed to reveal it.

FARMER FACES MURDER CHARGE

Sergt. Nicholson of Mounted Police Is Shot in Manitoba Scuffle.

OPERATING LIQUOR STILL.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—Hiding in the cellar of a neighbor's house, William Eppinger, 42-year-old farmer, was captured by a police posse yesterday, and is in the provincial jail here awaiting arraignment on a charge of having caused the death of Sergt. R. H. Nicholson, an officer of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Eppinger, a pioneer farmer of the Molson district, 38 miles east of Winnipeg, was alleged to have been operating a liquor still. Monday morning Sergt. Nicholson, accompanied by a provincial police officer, visited the farm. Eppinger is alleged to have seized a rifle, and in a desperate struggle for its possession, Nicholson was shot. The shooting occurred outside the farm-home. The police sergeant sustained a wound in his side, which was a foot long and eight inches in depth. Seven hours later the officer died.

THREATENING COLD ENDED QUICK WAY

Relief Began Instantly When Doctor Advised Home Use of Pleasant Hospital Method

Realizing that every common cold may be the forerunner of pneumonia—unless treated properly in time—hospital physicians are advising a pleasant remedy that is ideal for use at home. And numbers of Peterborough people find that it brings almost instant relief—then quickly drives the cold out of one's system.

Mrs. R. L. Snyder, for instance, had such a stuffy cold she couldn't breathe thru her nose and coughed so deep she feared pneumonia. Then her doctor prescribed double strength doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of wild cherry, terpin hydrate and other ingredients which have relieved the most extreme hospital cases.

Relief began with the first pleasant swallow. She felt its comforting, healing warmth from her nose passages deep down into her chest. In a few hours she began to get relief from the "feverish, grippy" feeling and in another day or so, the doctor reports, she was rid of the cold completely.

Note: Other cases reported daily—all certified by attending physician.

Just a few pleasant spoonsful of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral now and you, too, will feel like a different person to-morrow. Endorsed by all druggists.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—A feature of the domestic grain trade here Monday was the easier feeling that developed and spot prices were reduced one cent per bushel. Car lots of Manitoba No. 6 wheat sold at 98c, and feed wheat at 93c, and Manitoba feed barley at 74c per bushel, while Canadian Western oats were unchanged.

There was no change in the condition of the local flour market, prices generally being steady with a very small volume of business passing in all grades.

The trade in all lines of millfeed was dull but prices were steady. The holiday quietness also affected trade in rolled oats, and there was not much doing.

There were no further developments in the butter market, but the undertone was very firm on account of the light stocks on spot and the small supplies coming forward. The demand was very limited owing to the fact that buyers in most cases provided for their holiday requirements last week. The receipts were 522 packages.

The cheese trade was without any new feature to note owing to the continued absence of any demand of importance, but the undertone was steady. The receipts were 68 boxes.

An easier feeling developed in the market for eggs and prices for fresh grades were reduced three to five cents per dozen. Storage eggs, other than extras, were declined one cent per dozen. Receipts were 1,874 cases.

Canadian beans continued to sell at $5.25 to $5.40 per bushel.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, January 2. Canadian Press. — Flaring up of prices in the corn market Monday contrasted with a downturn of wheat values to a new bottom level for the year. Traders who were short of corn to fill December contracts were obliged to step lively in eleventh hour purchasing, but managed to avoid forcing the market to any abnormal height, despite settlement of accounts Monday that involved as much as 7,283,000 bushels of corn.

The closing quotations on corn were unsettled, 1-4c to 1 3-4c net higher, with wheat finishing irregular 1 1-4c down to 1-8c advance; oats varying from 1-8c decline to an equal gain, and provisions at 10c setback to a rise of a dime.

Corn prices began early Monday to show an upward trend. Adjustment of open trades known to amount to millions of bushels in the December delivery of corn soon became the dominating feature, and the adjustment process was given impetus by word that a large part of the corn handed over in the-end-of-the-month windup of dealings here was being taken by shipping interests, and was thus destined for immediate commercial use elsewhere. Under such circumstances, little heed for at least the time being, was paid to announcement that Monday's receipts of corn here were of liberal volume, 519 cars.

Predictions of a cold wave likely to increase the movement of corn away from farms, was also given but scant notice. A gain of 972,800 bushels on Monday in the corn visible supply total was likewise virtually ignored. Other bearish news included indications that country offerings of corn to arrive in Chicago were somewhat larger and that northern Argentina reported showers beneficial to the growing crop there. Nevertheless the highest prices of the day in the corn market were reached during the late dealings, with only a fractional set back at the last.

Despite corn market strength which tended at times to check declines in wheat, all deliveries of wheat went down Monday to a new low record for the 1928 crop. World shipments of wheat, 20,391,000 bushels for the last week, were nearly double the figures of a year ago, and talk was current that the United States is now practically certain to carry over a large proportion of the world's excess wheat surplus. North American xport sales of wheat to-day totaled about 800,000 bushels, but were mostly Canadian. Oats kept within narrow limits, shorts buying and cash houses selling.

Provisions averaged higher, responsive to an upturn in the value of hogs.

YOUTH RECEIVES PRESENTATION

William I. Knox Honored For Rescuing Two Girls From Drowning.

AT MARMORA.

(Examiner Correspondence).

MARMORA, Jan. 2.—The Christmas season was made the occasion of an interesting presentation as far as this village is concerned, for on the afternoon of December 24, two young girls of the village, Marian Flynn and Eleanor Green, called at the residence of their rescuer of a few months since, and proudly, on behalf of themselves and citizens, presented William I. Knox with a beautiful gold watch and chain. The watch bears the simple inscription within: "1928. Presented to William I. Knox by citizens of Marmora Village for heroism in saving two girls from drowning."

It commemorates the fact that on September 8 last, this fifteen-year-old youth, waiting only to divest himself of his sweater, jumped into the sluice which conveys water to Marmora's grist mill and rescued these two eleven-year-old companions from drowning. On the occasion of the presentation, E. C. Prentice, principal of Marmora Public School, of which Knox is a scholar, attended and gave a short speech appropriate to the occasion. It is the feeling of many villagers that the incident should be brought to the notice of the Humane Society that recognition may also come from that quarter.

R. A. NELSON

The late Mr Nelson was a valued member of Keene United Church, also the Curling Club and a director of the Rink Company. Until the passing of the Otonabee Agricultural Fair, he was a valued director and was always interested in agricultural pursuits.

BRIDGEWATER SCHOOL

(Examiner Corresondence)

MADOC, Jan. 2.—Bridgewater (Actinolite) Public school held its Christmas entertainment in the United Church on Friday evening with Rev. Mr. Waite, presiding.

Through the splendid and untiring efforts of the two teachers, G. Vardy and Miss M. E. Nickle, a lengthy and interesting program composed of choruses, songs, recitations dialogues held the attention of a large audience. The little folk distinguished themselves and their teacher, Miss Nickle, is presenting the pantomine, "Peter Pan." The story was read clearly and distinctly by Miss Katherine McNaughton and Helen Nolan acted the part of Peter Pan. The part of Wendy was taken by Muriel Hermon; that of John by Clarence Dafoe and that of Michael by Wallace Prevost. The costumes were characteristic and well chosen. These little folk also sang, "Away in a Manger." An amusing dialogue was put on by Mr. Vardy's pupils, entitled "O'Hafferty vs Tin Tung" with George Speck as Judge. Those taking the part of lawyers were Wilfred Nolan and E. Courneyea; Mrs. O'Hafferty was Marion Sedore; Mr. Pinky, Louis Woodcock, and Tin Tung, Elmer Wannamaker. An excellent dialogue was also presented by the young people of the community entitled "The Killer" in which Lee Sedore, George Scanglin, Mr. Kellar and Miss Iona Courney, took their parts exceedingly well.

A Christmas tree followed the program, from which all the little people were presented with toys, gifts and candy. Following this many adjourned to participate in a dance which was very much enjoyed.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2, 1929

THE ALDERMANIC RESULTS.

The fact that Ald. Malcolm McIntyre and Ald. Nagle Phelan were first choices in the aldermanic race yesterday was pretty generally anticipated.

Old members of the Council whose record has been straight and whose willingness to work at all times in the city's interest was recognized, they commanded general support.

Ald. Harry Huffman, appointed to the Council last year, drew a good vote in receiving a fresh mandate, while the two new members of the Council are John A. McNabb, well-known young business man and former member of the Board of Education, and Daniel Holland, whose election gives East City representation in the Council for the first time in years.

The new aldermen should make good.

Ald.-elect McNabb entered the fight in answer to the appeal for younger men to get into public life, and has received approval of his pronouncements.

Ald.-elect Holland is a highly respected citizen who can be trusted to conscientiously carry out his duties as an elected representative of the people.

THREE NEW MEMBERS.

As a result of yesterday's election the Board of Education this year will have three new members, Dr. A. Moir, Isaac McNabb and James Dutton, three well-known citizens with splendid qualifications for good service, and whose judgment and counsel should be of splendid value to the board.

While the election of three such well-qualified and popular candidates will occasion no surprise, there will be regret that their triumph could not be accomplished without the defeat of two former members of the board, W. R. Turner, Jr., and J. F. Strickland, both of whom have a good record of achievement.

In fact, only Ernest F. Reid of the members offering themselves for re-election was successful yesterday. He has been a hard working, useful and faithful member, and his return will occasion satisfaction.

The new members are outstanding citizens: Dr. Moir, one of the city's leading professional men; Isaac McNabb, former president of the Kiwanis Club, a graduate of Toronto University and an ex-school teacher, and James Dutton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, with experience on the Vocational Committee and in other capacities. All three are well qualified for the positions to which they were elected.

The unsuccessful candidates were unfortunate in that they formed part of a most excellent field of candidates among whom it was difficult to make selections.

THE BYLAWS.

Peterborough ratepayers yesterday signified their belief that the purchase by the city of the local gas plant would be a good business proposition, and re-affirmed their willingness to develop Peterborough as an industrial centre by approving of a fixed assessment for the Johnson Motors.

Both measures received a substantial majority.

The bylaw assisting the Johnson Motors carried every subdivision in the city, the approval of the ratepayers in every section of Peterborough testifying to the general desire of the citizens to encourage worth-while industries.

The large vote piled up in favor of this measure will be an encouragement to the new Council to reach out for more manufacturing concerns.

While the majority in favor of the gas plant purchase was not so large, it was substantial, with the centre ward showing the way with a 3 to 1 vote endorsing the bylaw.

Most of those ratepayers who went to the polls yesterday evidently believed that it was a good investment to secure the gas plant at a reasonable price and reclaim the franchise granted the Peterborough Gas Company many years ago.

The opposition to the proposal expressed in the negative votes was due for the most part to a fear that the transaction would be reflected in larger tax bills—a fear that has little real foundation.

The passing of the two measures, The Examiner is confident, was a good day's work for Peterborough.

CHRISTMAS TREES.

The Christmas tree argument is settled so far as Ontario is concerned by the definite announcement from Hon. Wm. Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, that the Ontario Government will not prohibit the cutting of Christmas trees in this Province.

The Government holds that the custom of using such trees is firmly established, is rightly held in high esteem, and is not contrary to the practice of forestry.

The Minister's statement has been made after a personal investigation occasioned by the fact that there has been the usual amount of criticism from citizens who have expressed apprehension that Ontario's timber resources were being affected by the cutting of Christmas trees and especially by their exportation to the United States.

Hon. Mr. Finlayson's contention that a thousand Christmas trees could be grown on one acre of land, or enough on 2,000 acres to supply every family in Canada with a tree, should be sufficient to allay the fears of those who have been campaigning against the trade in Christmas trees.

Compared with the area of timber operations each year, such a small acreage is not worth bothering about in the opinion of those best qualified to know.

THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

It is probably true, as Premier Ferguson points out in his warning in regard to the influenza epidemic, that the spread of the disease has been facilitated by generalessness on the part of the people of this Province who have undoubtedly been led by the opinion that present "flu" is not serious to disregard the necessary cautions.

Although the epidemic has been making headway, it may be necessary to take more drastic measures to check its progress.

So far as the local schools are concerned, the "flu" situation

[illegible] them to [illegible] appreciable extent before the Christmas season began, and as they are not due to reopen until next Monday, it is hoped that the situation will be so improved as to prevent any serious disturbance among the children.

Christmas gatherings and entertainments, however, have done much to spread contagion, and the general conditions locally with many families down with the disease at once is such as to make it a simple matter of common sense to follow the instructions of health experts in regard to the epidemic.

Probably the most effective rules are those that have been laid down by Surgeon-General Canning of the United States, which should be followed by citizens generally. They are as follows:

1. Avoid needless crowding. Walk to work when possible.
2. Take advantage of sunshine.
3. Sleep with windows open.
4. Avoid people who are coughing, sneezing or snuffling.
5. Wash your hands before eating, and do not put your fingers in your mouth.
6. Do not use napkins, towels, spoons, forks, knives and drinking-cups unless they are clean.
7. Use plenty of clean water, both inside and outside. Eat wholesome food. Sleep at least seven hours.
8. Keep away from houses with influenza.
9. Avoid undue chilling of the body.
10. Avoid dust and overheated rooms.
11. In case you do contract the disease, go to bed as soon as symptoms develop and remain there until thoroughly recovered. Call a physician at once.

TESTS FOR CAR DRIVERS.

In another attempt to stay the carnage that dogs the path of the automobile, the New York and Massachusetts State Legislatures have passed a new motor law expected to lead to the ultimate standardization of motor and traffic regulations throughout the whole country on the basis of uniform laws. That is a good idea that should tend to make the situation easier both for drivers and the public. Nothing is more disturbing to the equanimity of a driver than to find himself in a community with whose provisions and regulations he is completely unconversant and where he is in constant dread of violating some unknown local ordinance.

Under the License Act operative in the United States, not only is the physical examination of all drivers compulsory, but provides mental tests to prove possession of the capacity to meet emergencies. Tests are also ordered against color-blindness, and educational tests to show a knowledge of traffic rules and laws as well as an understanding of all signs and markers. The driver must not only be able to handle the car in any traffic, but he must be able to read and explain about it. Provision is further made for a police inquiry under the requirement that licenses will be denied persons having criminal records.

Nor are licenses granted to habitual drinkers or drug fiends. Furthermore, the law provides suspension or revocation clauses that are positively applied under certain conditions. No judge could alleviate and no political or personal pull permit the offender to escape these applications. In other words, the driver must not only be responsible for his job, but must have a definite and complete understanding of that responsibility. Under those circumstances a driver's license becomes a certificate of good character as well as of mental intelligence. Were all these stipulations applied, a lot of speed fiends would be pushing wheelbarrows instead of burning up the roads.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

THE VALUE OF ADVERTISING.

The value of advertising in introducing a new commodity was never more forcibly demonstrated than in the case of a chocolate bar recently placed upon an already well-supplied market by an Eastern Canadian manufacturing house which participates in the foreign as well as the domestic trade.

It is possible that there is to-day no article of confectionery so widely manufactured as the chocolate bar. According to one authority, there are at least 400 varieties upon the Canadian market, of which perhaps 200 enjoy widespread distribution and popularity. It will be realized that to gain a foothold in such a market for any new product of the same type is a fairly difficult matter and to assure a permanent demand for such a product even more difficult.

Yet this is what has been accomplished by the firm in question through the generous use of advertising space and through the creation of advertising matter that is distinctive and peculiarly appropriate. The method adopted was, first of all, to give the bar a thorough testing at the hands of a group of people representing a cross-section of Canadian population and then, having received their expressions of approval, to advertise it extensively in certain areas which are being gradually extended to embrace the entire Dominion.

The confectionery firm manufacturing these bars first advertised them only two months ago, and it has so far covered but three of the nine Canadian Provinces in its campaign. Yet to-day three shifts are at work in its factory making this chocolate bar exclusively and 43,200 bars are being produced daily in order to meet the demand. The latter has been constant and has grown rapidly as the extent of the advertising campaign has been broadened, and preparations are being made to manufacture a million bars weekly when the entire Dominion comes within the advertising campaign.

It is a remarkable achievement to attain such production and sale within so limited a period. But the fact is even more remarkable when it is remembered that before the bar in question was placed on the market, there were, as has been said, approximately 400 other varieties appealing for favor and about 200 of them well established in the public estimation. The same result may be attained by other producing concerns which adopt the same method.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The defeated candidates have the satisfaction of knowing that they played the part of good citizens in offering their services.

Those Toronto bandits were not apparently worrying about making New Year's resolutions.

We hate to hurt the Toronto Star's feelings, but the Lady Drake reached St. John from England during the week-end.

Anyway it is better to have run and lost than never to have run at all.

And now the new Council will have to select an alderman to fill the shoes of ex-Alderman Ackerman whose resignation was filed last month.

A Thought

THINGS WORK OUT

Because it rains when we wish it wouldn't,
Because men do what they often shouldn't,
Because crops fail and plans go wrong
Some of us grumble all day long,
But somehow, in spite of the care and doubt,
It seems at the last that things work out.

Because we lost when we hoped to gain,
Because we suffer a little pain,
Because we must work when we'd like to play—
Some of us whimper along life's way,
But somehow as day always follows the night
Most of our troubles work out all right.

Because we cannot forever smile,
Because we must trudge in the dust a while,
Because we think that the way is long—
Some of us whimper that life's all wrong,
But somehow we live and our sky grows bright,
And everything seems to work out all right.

So bend to your trouble and meet your care,
For the cloud must break and the sky grow fair,
Let the rain come down as it must and will,
But keep on working and hoping still,
For in spite of the grumblers who stand about,
Somehow it seems all things work out.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

Thursday, January 3, 1929.

(C. McClure Newspaper Syndicate).

Benefic planetary influences are strong to-day, according to astrology, which nevertheless finds in the horoscope certain sinister signs.

Discontent with money matters may disturb the average mind while this rule prevails. It is not a favorable day for looking into one's bank account.

For the skilled worker, satisfied to pursue routine employment, the signs are fortunate and labor should greatly benefit.

Industry is well directed, and there should be great profit for all engaged in building operations.

Beauty is to make an impression on those who guide the destinies of certain American cities, it is forecast, but it will be long before advertising eyesores will be removed.

While the demand for publicity of every sort will increase in the new year, astrologers declare that advertising is to be more closely confined to newspapers and periodicals.

There is a first rate sign to-day for constructive efforts of every sort. Co-operation on a world-wide scale will continue, it is foretold.

Physicians, surgeons and hospitals will benefit under this direction of the stars which presages tremendous strides in scientific regulation of the human machinery.

France, the Balkans, Poland and Germany are all believed to be subject to menacing planetary influences.

For months astrologers have prognosticated terrific convulsions of nature, many of which have manifested. They foretell for this month storms, landslides and seismic shocks in various parts of the world.

A serious railway accident is presaged, owing to certain weather conditions, as one of the incidents of this month.

Great demands will be made on behalf of the poor and suffering as the winter advances, astrologers predict, and they urge wise preventative measures wherever possible in large cities.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of great success in the coming year which will probably bring pleasant journeys as well as increase of income. It is well to guard one's speech.

Children born on this day probably will be successful in life, for they should have vision and enthusiasm. They should be taught to be wisely optimistic and not foolishly sanguine.

FIRE DESTROYS COAL SHUTES

Much Damage Done To Canadian National Railway Property in Lindsay.

DEFECTIVE WIRE CAUSE.

LINDSAY, Jan. 2 (Special to The Examiner).—Sunday evening a rather serious fire occurred at the Canadian National Railway yards when the large "ramp" or series of coal chutes were destroyed. The fire, which is supposed to have been caused by a defective electric wire, spread with great rapidity owing to the prevailing wind, and the combined forces of the C.N.R. and town fighting equipment was necessary to successfully cope with it. In fact it is due to the splendid work of the C.N.R. fire fighters that the fire was prevented from spreading to the shops, as the wind was blowing in that direction. The chutes contained a large amount of coal, a great portion of which automatically poured out on the tracks. The loss of the "ramp" will prove a great handicap as the locomotives will have to coal by hand labor until a new one is erected.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

BY RUBY M. AYRES

The story thus far:

Biddy Saunders—the Little Flapper—always called her young adopted mother, Marna Paget, the Luckiest Lady, for she thought Marna had everything heart could wish—youth, beauty, wealth and the love of a devoted husband. But Marna was unhappy. She had married without loving George Paget, and three months later had met Hugh Hubbard and given him her heart. He had gone to China, but after years of separation they realize that they love each other as much as ever. As the Little Flapper grows older she realizes something of the situation and worries about it. On a visit home Hugh one night takes Marna into his arms. Renny Martin, who is infatuated with Marna, tells her he has seen this incident. Because she fears him, Marna defends Renny when her husband says he dislikes him, and George becomes jealous of Renny. Just before Hugh is to return to China George arranges for him and Marna to have a ride together.

To-day's Instalment.

XXII.—A TRY FOR HAPPINESS.

To the two racing along through the morning sunshine speech seemed an impossibility.

"I will be happy to-day, just for to-day," Marna was telling herself determinedly. "I'll forget everything except that we are together. I'll forget to-morrow and all the to-morrows—"

But she found that she could not.

Then Hubbard said with an effort: "Haven't you anything to say to me, Marna?"

She looked at him for the first time.

"Did you want to come?" she asked.

He shook his head.

"No. George forced it upon me. I tried to refuse.'"

She flushed sensitively, and paled as swiftly.

"We can go back if you wish to,'" she said, with stiff lips.

"You know I don't wish to. You know— Oh, what's the use of saying anything?"

She was silent for a moment, then she said painfully:

"We might at least try and be happy. We might make the most of our last day."

"Eat, drink, and be merry, for to-morrow we die, in fact, is that it?" he asked harshly.

He slowed the car down a little.

"Where would you like to go?" he asked.

"I don't care. It's all the same to me."

The tears sprang to her eyes.

"I don't want you to be sorry for me," she tremulously. "It's your fault I'm unhappy."

"Marna!"

"So it is!" she accused him passionately. "You don't have to leave me alone. You don't have to go away. You're only going because you want to go."

He did not answer for a moment, then he said quietly:

"Would you come away with me if I asked you to?"

"No."

He drew a hard breath.

"Then what else is there left for me but to leave you?"

They drove some way in silence, till Marna asked:

"Why did George send you out with me?"

"He wanted me to speak to you. He thinks you are ill. He tells me you fainted again last night."

Marna shivered.

"I'm not ill, and, anyway, there is no need for him to worry you about me."

"Don't you think I worry about you as it is?"

She shrugged her shoulders.

Much as she longed to be kind to him and to have the memory of this day to store up as an entirely happy one, it seemed a physical impossibility.

"At any rate, you will soon be out of it all," she said.

She saw the blood beat up into his face; but when presently he spoke it was with infinite gentleness.

"Don't quarrel with me, Marna. It will hurt us both so terribly afterwards."

She looked away from him, her eyes blinded with tears.

"Well, you need not leave me" were the words which rose again to her lips, but she did not speak them.

She knew he was right to leave her.

What other course could they take? They were outside London now, running through a little straggling town towards which the great city was just beginning to stretch its greedy arms.

An old, ivy-covered church was gradually being hemmed in by new and ugly villas upon which it seemed to be looking down from its crumbling tower with worried amazement.

As they drove slowly by the clock struck twelve.

Marna glanced up at it with a little shiver.

Midday already!

With sudden impulse she moved a little closer to Hubbard and slipped her hand through his arm.

"I'm so sorry, Hugh," she said with a sob.

They went on and out into the country.

"There's a hotel further along—the other side of Crawley," Hubbard said presently. "It's got rather a fine garden. We might have lunch there. I'm afraid it will be rather crowded as it's Sunday, but I don't know of any other place, unless you do."

"I don't mind where it is. At any rate, we shall be together."

He pressed her hand closer to him.

It was nearly one o'clock when they reached Burford Bridge.

"Another hour gone," Marna said. "I don't think I want anything to eat, Hugh."

"You ought to have a wonderful appetite on a morning like this," he answered.

He drove the car into the hotel yard. There were a dozen others there.

"I'm afraid the place will be crowded," he said discontentedly. "If you know of any other place——"

'It doesn't matter. eLt's go and see the garden."

She slipped her hand through his arm, and he looked down at her with a sad little smile.

"Supposing we meet someone we know?"

"I don't care if we do."

The garden was beautiful. There were wild, undulating lawns closely mown, tall trees with spreading shady branches, and beds of scarlet geraniums that made a wonderful splash of color against the emerald background.

There were tables and chairs at one end and a few people scattered about. Hubbard and Marna walked away to the fare end of the garden where a slow river ran by at the bottom of a steep bank and the grass was allowed to grow long and tangled.

They sat down on a rustic bench under a pollard willow whose supple branches drooped right down to the earth, making a partial screen from the rest of the garden.

Hubbard took Marna's hand in both his own and raised it to his lips.

"It would have been kinder to each other if we had not come,' he said.

"I know." Then suddenly she broke out passionately. "Hugh, what am I going to do?"

"That is what I am asking myself night and day, day and night, and I can't find the answer. It's all so horrible, so impossible." For a moment he seemed to lose his self-control. "If George were a different man—— Marna, I've often wished that he was a drunken brute, who knocked you about, so that there might be an excuse for us; something—anything! But as it is, we both know he's the best fellow on earth.

He released her hand suddenly and rose to his feet.

"What the use of talking, anyway? It's got to be faced. We've got to say goodbye. Oh, my dear, do you think because I can't say everything that is in my heart that I'm not longing to say it? Do you think I want to leave you? Don't you think the thought of the future is unutterable hell to me?"

"You're free," Marna id with white lips. "And I'm tied. Some day you will meet another woman, and then——"

"No one will ever take your place in my heart."

"There are more ways than one of loving."

"If you're trying to hurt me——"

"I'm not. I'm only trying to make myself realize what may happen." Marna's hands were clasped in her lap to hide their trembling, and she sat staring away from him across the garden to the beds of flaming geraniums.

'I'm trying to make myself realize that perhaps some day someone will say to me, 'Hugh Hubbard's going to be married'." She forced her eyes to his face. "After all, you've got a perfect right to marry," she said. "I'm married. Why shouldn't you be?"

"Because in my heart and in my thoughts you are my wife, and always will be."

She laughed brokenly.

"That's how you feel about me now, but some day, after two years, three years——" She broke off, biting her lip hard. "Nobody ever expects a man to be faithful for years," she said defiantly.

"Whatever I say you won't believe me. Only the years can prove it to you."

'I don't want to go on living for years. I should like to die the day you go away."

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—by John Hix

FORMER MILLBROOK RESIDENT HEAD OF PALESTINE HOSPITAL

First Canadian Doctor To Serve As Superintendent of Mission Hospital.

INTERESTING WORK.

Many Renovations and Improvements Made Since Area Swept By War Ravages.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 31—(Examiner Correspondence).—Dr. T. W. Alvin Gray, a former Millbrook boy being the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth Gray of this village, has been in Palestine for over a year as Medical Superintendent of the Mission Hospital, Saint Luke's at Haifa, and a recent issue of "Bible Lands," has some facts that will be of interest to his many friends here in connection with his work.

Only the bare walls of the hospital were left standing after the war had swept over Palestine, but under the able and devoted leadership of the two Medical Superintendents who preceded Dr. Gray, it was fitted for use again and freshly equipped. One improvement specially noted was the installation of a pump to supersede the laborious and antiquated method of drawing every drop of water required for the hospital from the well.

Dr. Gray is the first Canadian doctor to serve as the head of Saint Luke's, and since his arrival and taking up his duties many improvements have been carried out. Dr. Gray took his bride with him when he journeyed from Canada to the Holy Land, though they made a stay of some months in England to enable him to pursue post-graduate work in the London hospitals, and some time had also to be spent in Jerusalem while the language was acquired. One year ago last October Dr. and Mrs. Gray reached Haifa, and like their predecessors took up living quarters in the flat over the hospital.

Since then a separate bungalow has been built in the hospital grounds, and in November of this year, Dr. Gray, his wife and baby daughter, Ruth St. John, the latter's birthday being in June, 1928, moved into their new home.

Many Improvements

A valuable X-ray machine is the newest addition to the hospital's equipment, and among other improvements Dr. Gray has made has been the pulling down of several partition walls, making access from wards and kitchens much easier; the whitewashing and painting of all the rooms on the ground floor; new windows in several wards that have greatly aided proper ventilation; the complete renovation of the kitchen, replacing the old charcoal stoves with those of a more up-to-date patterns; even the packing cases in which X-ray machine arrived have been utilized as cupboards and found very convenient.

Haifa, a town of 45,000 inhabitants is on the sea coast not far from Mount Carmel, and evidently has a great future before it; improvements to its harbor were begun this fall, and it is expected that it will become one of the finest ports on the Eastern Mediterranean coast, with an ever-expanding trade. Much of the freight for the interior will go in by way of this port and probably the pipe line from the Mosul oil fields will empty here.

Five Hospitals

There are five small hospitals in the town, Jewish, Italian, German, Government, and Saint Luke's, the latter being distinctly a mission hospital, hence not wholly of a self-supporting character. Dr. Gray writes "The patients who come to us are of many races and creeds—Jews from Southern Europe, Palestinians, Christians, Moslems, Druses, and British. In the wards they are placed side by side, irrespective of creed or race. In the afternoon the chaplain, Rev. J. Khadder, visits the wards, reading and explaining portions of Scripture. The patients enjoy the stories and the singing of Arabic hymns. Comments are frequently made, and often lively discussions follow. Large Bible pictures are much used to secure interest, and are liked; they are hung on the walls and changed from time to time. New Testaments and suitable tracts are given those who ask for them, but as only a few patients can read or write these are taken home, usually, and interpreted by the children. Frequently enquiries continue after the patients leave the hospital, and chaplain often has seven or eight inquirers who attend instruction classes at his home."

In an endeavor to teach preventive medicine in a practical manner, health charts are hung on the walls of the dispensary, and lantern pictures give the information in an illustrated form during the winter months.

English Nurses

There are two English nurses, of wide hospital experience, at Saint Luke's to assist Dr. Gray with the work which the Medical Superintendent is doing: "While he is a physician, he is no less an evangelist all through his working day. There are none in this modern world who have a greater right than such physicians to be ranked with the peacemakers who are called the sons of God. They reconcile man with man, and they bring men to peace with God. They are centres of goodwill in a world in which nothing is more needed."

PREMIER BALDWIN IS SURE OF RESULTS

Expresses Confidence For Conservative Party in General Elections.

LONDON, Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—Expressing confidence in the results of the British general election to be held in 1929, Prime Minister Baldwin, in a New Year message to the Primrose League, a Conservative party organization, makes a bid for the continuance of the government in power and indicates the important part the new women voters are likely to play. Mr. Baldwin said:

"No previous government ever carried through Parliament within a period of four years a greater number of reforms to improve the conditions of the people. Side by side with these reforms the government has steadily pursued a policy designed to promote peace both at home and abroad. With such a record behind us we shall appeal to the electors with the utmost confidence."

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

NORTHLAND

A deal of considerable magnitude and importance was announced Saturday by the president of Northland, whereby control of his company passes into the hands of the powerful Gold Centre Mines of New York City. This latter company owns properties throughout different parts of the world, and their internationally-known engineer, Mr. Lindberg, must have been very favorably impressed with Northland. Development at Northland has probably advanced further than at any other property in the Eastern Kirkland Lake field, and up to date has been financed privately, approximately $390,000 having been already spent. Under the new control an aggressive development campaign is being arranged and no doubt development of the spectacular find made some time ago in sinking the No. 2 shaft will be prosecuted with vigor.

Buckingham

A report from the north yesterday states that three more rounds have been taken out of the west drift of the Buckingham Mines, and much free gold and heavy mineralization persisted. It is purported to be the best showing at the property yet, and the probabilities of an extension to the east of the dyke are excellent.

Sherritt-Gordon

An unconfirmed rumor from the west last night stated that Sherritt-Gordon had ordered a pilot test mill for immediate delivery. The report stated further that recent diamond drilling was showing the best ore yet found at the property.

Macot and East Bay

Two diamond drills are now being transported to these properties east of Gilbec in the Rouyn field, and it is anticipatetd that work will start around the first of January. A considerable amount of preliminary prospecting has been carried out on these two properties, particularly on a heavily-mineralized zone of pyrite. In this some fair gold values have been had. A few years ago some diamond drilling was carried out on the East Bay property by Nipissing.

Towagmac

Following the very favorable results had at the bottom level of Aldermac, it is now expected the shaft will be carried to the 1,500 foot level.

Granada

Enthusiasm is rife in the Rouyn camp concerning the way the No. 2 vein is improving as each new level is reached. All the conditions favorable to the deposition of gold ore in quantity are present.

NEW YORK ISSUES REACH NEW LEVELS

Weekly Steel Trade Reviews Optimistic Regarding Business in New Year.

FORD ADDS TO PAYROLL.

January Dividend and Interest Disbursements Are Estimated Around Billion Dollars.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—A wild outburst of bullish enthusiasm in which nearly two score issues were lifted to record high levels ushered in the beginning of the New Year in the stock market. High money rates and rumors of heavy profit-taking by powerful financial interests were disregarded by speculators for the advance, who counted on an unusually heavy January reinvestment demand and derived encouragement from the widespread predictions of bankers and business men that prosperity would carry well into the New Year.

Call money renewed at 12 per cent. but a lower rate was looked for in a day or two when the January 1st disbursements returned to the banks.

Weekly steel trade reviews were again cheerful in character. Iron Age reported that "with steel output holding at 85 per cent., a record-breaking production year comes to a close."

Non-Ferrous Metal shares responded to the recent increases in the prices of export copper, brass and lead. New high prices since 1927, or longer, were registered by Anaconda, Calumet and Hecla, Chile, Kennecott, Miami and International Nickel.

January dividend and interest disbursements are estimated around a billion dollars, a new high record.

Business news continued favorable. The Ford plants began to-day the hiring of 30,000 additional employees.

Radio was the spectacular feature in to-day's market, soaring 20½ points to 395 as against a low of 275 in the break of last month, and a high of 420. Abraham and Straus ran up 15 points to a new top at 156 and General Electric soared 10½ to a new high at 231½, which compares with a low of 124 in 1928. National Biscuit jumped 8 points to a new high at 195½. Union Carbine, Motor Products, American Express, Victor Talking Machine, Warren Bros. Purity Baking, Dupont, Liggett and Myers, Rossia Insurance and Midland Steel Products Preferred sold 5 to 8 points higher.

National Bellas Hess was reactionary, slipping back nearly 6 points to 202, as against a recent high of 249¾.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—Heavy trading and sharp price advances marked the beginning of another year on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Hudson Bay dropped 10 to 20.90; Granada Rouyn 1 to 21, and Crown Reserve 1 to 10.

Liverpool Quotations Lower Wheat Values

CHICAGO, Ills., January 2. — Canadian Press. — Unlooked setbacks in wheat quotations at Liverpool led to lower prices early to-day in the wheat market here. Most of the wheat selling however consisted of small lots, and there was buying based on prospects of winter killing. Opening 1-4c to 5-8c off, Chicago wheat declined a little more, and then rallied well. Corn oats and provisions were relatively firm, with corn starting unchanged to 5-8c up, and afterwards holding near to initial figures.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, January 2, Canadian Press. — Foreign Exchange easy; demand rates (in cents): Great Britain, 484 5-8; Canadian dollars, 17-64 of 1 per cent. discount.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS

St. George's Sunday School.

St. George's Sunday school scholars held their Christmas party on Friday last (Holy Innocents' Day.) At 6 o'clock the children took their places at the tables and did full justice to the good things provided, the teachers and elder scholars being kept busy refilling plates and cups.

At 7.30 a number of parents and friends assembled for the concert which was to follow, together with the distribution of prizes to the scholars who had obtained the highest marks in their respective classes. The rector, Rev. J. L. Hughes, acted as chairman. The musical items were given by the girls of the Junior W. A., who had been trained by Mrs. Hughes. The programme was as follows:

God Save the King
Recitation, "Sending the Gospel" ... Ruth Farr
Selections on the Accordion ... Stanley Bride
Items from Operetta, "Santa Claus is Coming
Chorus, "Dear Old Santa Claus ic Coming" .... Girls of Junior W. A.
Solo and Chorus, "Just a Week Ago To-night" ..... Marjorie Sims
Solos and Chorus, "Old Santa Claus Sat by his Fire" R. Farr, H. Curtis Solo, "Dolly, I Suppose you Know" .. (Encore.) Agnes Sturgeon.
Distribution of Prizes.....
Solo and chous, "Here's the Message" Beatrice Curtis
Chorus and Trio, "'Tis almost Time".
E. King, R. McBride and R. Farr
Arrival of Santa Claus .....
Solo and chorus, "Well, Here's Old Santa Claus" .. Rev. J. L. Hughes
Address of Welcome .... Hilda Curtis
Chorus, "Good Night" .. Junior W. A.

The arrival of Santa Claus brought fourth cheers and applause from the children. The old gentleman was in a lively mood, and beat time briskly to the chorus of welcome. The bag on his back was full of gifts which were distributed to the scholars, Eva King giving Santa Claus a candy stick. He then left the room, the children waving him farewell in the "Good Night Chorus."

Before the prizes were handed to the winners by Mr. E. Tucker, the rector explained that regular attendance at Sunday school was not the only merit which determined the prize winners, church attendance and repetition of memory work also being considered. Three prizes were given in each class. The following boys and girls received prizes: Kenneth Gibson, Ernest Gibson, Harold Sowden, Alfred Field, Thomas Parkes, Alfred Johnson, Stanley McBride, Bernard King, Frank Ferguson, Lawrence Johnston, Douglas Johnston, Hazel Jones, Marjorie Sims, Frances Simmons, Doris Dossett, Doris Ferguson, Freda Field, Mildred Lush, Evelyn King, Mary Parkes, Theodora Johnston, Betty Ferguson, Ethel Sims.

Lakefield Presbyterian Church

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 2. [illegible] Correspondence). — The annua[l] Christmas tree and e[nter]tainment of the Presbyterian Sunday School was held on Thursday evening in the Queen street theatre with a fair attendance present and Rev. J. Ross in the chair. The program opened with "Oh Canada" which was followed by scriptural reading and prayer. Then followed a pleasant hour in which the children provided an excellent program under the direction of Mrs. Ross, who spent much time in drilling the children and whose efforts were appreciated by everyone present.

The first part of the program consisted of a group of short recitations which included selections by Ivan Tighe, Elsie Tighe and Kenneth Briant.

Lulu Smith played a piano solo and Jean Clark sang and Douglas Smith, Charles Moore, and Jack Craig each gave a recitation and the school sang a notion song for which Lulu Smith played the accompaniment. The audience sang that sweet child's hymn which is perhaps the first sung by baby lips—"Jesus Loves Me."

The second part of the program had a group of recitations also in which Julian Moir, Tommy Moore, Madeline Morin, Donald Smith and Jean Clark each contributed a number. The school sang another notion song and Donald Smith, Billy Clark and Jack Craig each sang a solo, the sweet child voices pleasing the audience.

A dialogue entitled "Aunties Love Affairs" was well received and was very amusing. Myla Begue took the part of Miss Pums, a Scottish spinster, Douglas Smith was Mr. Baldwise her love and the part of Christina, the neice of Miss Pums was taken by Lulu Smith.

Mrs. Clark was the accompaniment for her children. Dr. Smith played for his son, Donald. Mrs. Ross played for Jack Craig and Lulu Smith, the Sunday school organist played for the motion songs.

There were gifts on the tree for nearly everyone and these were distributed by J. M. Simpson, while the gifts were taken from the tree by Mrs. Simpson, Mrs. Ross and Clarence Duff.

There was only one disappointment and that was the non-appearance of Santa Claus, who had a pressing engagement elsewhere and could not make connections.

The entertainment was delightful to both the children and their adult friends and reflected credit in all concerned in the preparation and in the carrying out of the program.

Veteran's Tree

The annual Christmas tree of the Lakefield Post of the Canadian Legion took place on Thursday afternoon. The prevalence of colds accounted for many absentees. The auditorium of the Town Hall was the scene of the festivities which included Santa Claus and a large well-loaded tree and candy in generous bags.

Mr. Kenneth Mackenzie secretary of the Lakefield branch of the Legion, took the presents from the tree and Santa presented each with a witty comment which amused the children. Several new arrivals received their first present this year and about the same number had reached the age limit and were merely on-lookers. However some of these older children assisted the committee in leading the games which followed the distribution of gifts.

Mr. Mackenzie presided at the piano and played for the games which children all enjoy. J. R. Hill ((president of the Lakefield Post) and W. Chappell were present and distributed the candy bags. Mrs. Marling, past president, and Mrs. Stuart, president of the Ladie's Auxiliary, assisted also Mrs. Leonard, treasurer, and Mrs. J. R. Robinson, secretary. The attendance of mothers was much smaller than usual probably owing to sickness.

Mrs. Marling was the recipient of a gift from Santa Claus who was requested by the Ladie's Auxiliary to remember her for her years of faithful and devoted service to the work of the society. The gift was a handsome silver vase.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 2.—In the Baptist church, Knox United church, Presbyterian church and Regent street United church Christmas services were held on Sunday, December 23 and were well attended. Special music and appropriate sermons marked the season.

Midnight mass was celebrated in St. Paul's church on Monday night and was attended by a large congregation, which filled the church to capacity.

On Tuesday morning there was a celebration of Holy Communion at 8 o'clock and at 10.30 a.m. there was morning prayer, with sermon and holy communion. The latter celebration was choral, Mander's Communion service being sung.

(Examiner Correspondence)

WARSAW, Jan. 2.—The Baptist Church was well filled on Sunday morning, when Rev. Mr. Eikenaar, pastor of the church, preached a very appealing Christmas sermon and the Misses Armstrong and Tedford sang a Christmas carol.

The Presbyterian church had a splendid service on Sunday evening. The church was well filled as were all the churches for the Christmas service; better than they have been for several years. The service was largely one of song. The Keene choir was present and sang two anthems. Mrs. Wood, of Toronto, and her sister, Miss Campbell. Rev. Mr. McCleary and his brother sang some Christmas carols. Rev. Mr. McCleary's address, which was very short, was on "The Good Samaritan" and showed the attitude Christians should take, not only at Christmas but at all times.

YOUNG PEOPLE PRESENT PLAY

"The Will O' the Wisp" Staged Under Auspices of Omemee L.O.L. No. 113.

PLEASING PROGRAM.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Jan. 2. — The young people of Trinity United Church Y. P. U. added to their long list of previous triumphs on Christmas night by their commendable presentation of the comedy drama, "The Will o' the Wisp," which was given under the auspices of L.O.L. 113.

The story deals with a poor but aristocratic family in Ireland, who possess a beautiful though run-down estate. Magistrate Desmond, the owner of the estate and his daughter Shelia, are noted for their generosity to the poor, while their neighbor, Squire O'Malley, the richest man in the county, is noted for his tight fistedness, ejecting his tenants if the rent was not immediately forthcoming. The squire is very anxious to bring about a marriage between his nephew Terrence and Shelia, but Shelia is in love with Neil Dacey, a neighbor. The countryside is much wrought up over a highwayman known as the "Will o' the Wisp," who daily waylays some wealthy person, robs him and just as mysteriously leaves the money under the doorway of some starving family. The robber, who successfully evades all captors, seems to be a mere boy. Squire O'Malley, his nephew, Terrence, and Neil Dacey meet at the home of the Desmonds, a quarrel ensues and the Squire is shot before he reaches home. Neil is accused of the murder, but just before he receives his sentence, Terrence is ushered in to the presence of the magistrate by the Will o' the Wisp, who holds a pistol at his back. He confesses to the crime and Neil is freed. He finally captures the Will o' the Wisp who proves to be none other than dainty little Shelia Descond in disguise. All ends happily as Shelia assures Neil that should they ever be in need, she could once more don her mask and become 'The Will o' the Wisp.'

Sarah Callahan, the faithful old housekeeper and her grandson Danny play important roles in their championship of Shelia, as does also Shamus O'Brien, an ejected tenant.

Selections between the acts included two solos by Miss Mary Lowe, entitled, "How Ireland Got Its Name," and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," a duet in costume by Frances McPherson and Evelyn Morcombe, entitled, "Madame Will You Walk," a solo by Rev. Mr Blanchard entitled "They All Love Jack," and music by Miss Lillian Race, pianist and J. L. Brooks with traps.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Sarah, housekeeper of the Desmonds, Marion Rea; Anthony Desmond, county magistrate, Harry Lamb; Shelia Desmond, the magistrate's daughter, Mrs. W H. McPhee; Neil Darcey, Roy Faulkner; Squire O'Mallye, E. Cornell; Terrence O'Malley, the squire's nephew, N. G Henderson; Shamus O'Brien, C. Kennedy; the constable, H. Wilson; plainclothesman, Fred Parker; Ladies' Aid Mrs Oveholt, Mrs. W. Henderson.

Personals.

PROSPEROUS YEAR FOR AGRICULTURISTS

President of Chicago Board of Trade Makes Public Annual Review.

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 3—(Canadian Press.)— Farmer prosperity is greatly enhanced and the world in general is prosperous enough for anticipation of profitable outlet for practically all food products, Samuel P. Arnot, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, found in an annual review made public to-day.

Mr. Arnot also finds the livestock farmer better off than he has been at any time since 1920. The cotton grower prospered, grain prices good in the light of bumper crops and the prospect of farm purchasing power greater than at any time since the war.

Gross income of the American farmer for the year will be greater than that of the preceding year and net returns, after deducting costs of production, will exceed those of last year," he said He added that the increased purchasing power will be more uniformly distributed than in the past.

SEVERAL OLD FACES WILL BE ABSENT WHEN COUNCIL MEETS

ed by J. W. Hamilton, seconded by A. J. Henderson.

For Deputy-Reeve—R. J. McKnight, moved by J. H. McGill, seconded by G. F. Clarke.

For Councillors—J. H. McGill, moved by S. Hall, seconded by J. W. Hamilton; R. O. Ball, moved by J. H. McGill, seconded by G. F. Clarke; A. V. Thorne, moved by J. L. Fair, seconded by A. J. Henderson.

Addressing the ratepayers the chairman, in his opening remarks, made feeling reference to the loss sustained by the two counties through the death of two officials who had served with marked faithfulness and efficiency in their respective positions—Mrs. J. McMillan, as matron of the House of Refuge, at Cobourg; and Colonel Neil F. MacNachton, who for many years was the Counties' clerk, and untiring in his efforts to meet the exacting demands of his office.

Mr. McCamus mentioned his personal pleasure in the fact that Miss McMillan will, for the present at least, continue to act as matron in her mother's place, and that Colonel MacNachton's son has been officially appointed to the office which his father had filled so well.

Prizes Presented.

The feature of particular interest at this point in the meeting was the presentation of the Baptie Scholarship prizes to the two pupils who took highest standing in the township in the Entrance examinations last June; these were Miss Jessie Armstrong, of School Section No. 8 (Whitfield's), Miss Ethel McKnight being her teacher; and Miss Roberta Wood, of School Section No. 21, Miss Francis Bonnycastle teaching at this school, which is a union one on the provincial highway, not far from Donaldson's Corners.

Township Clerk J. N. McGill presented the prizes, mentioning the fact that in the three years since the Scholarship had been made possible through the will of the late Mrs. Baptie, it had been won five times by girls, and only once had a boy figured as one of the winners. Another item that was worthy of note was that Miss Ethel McKnight's pupils had been among the winners each year—the first year two of her scholars carried off the Scholarship; last year one girl, Hazel Morton, had highest standing, and again this year the largest cheque went to Jessie Armstrong, who held first place.

The cheques, which are respectively $35.00 and $22.50, being the interest on the $1,000 left by the late Margaret Baptie, of Ottawa, for the Scholarship, were presented on Monday, but the framed certificates which should accompany the money will be sent at a later date, as the clerk had not been able to have the work of framing them done in time for the annual meeting. Both pupils spoke briefly, expressing the conviction that the credit belonged mainly to their teacher, and not to themselves.

Arthur Wood, secretary of S. S. No. 21, was called upon to speak, and after expressing his pleasure in being present, added the intimation that he felt the matter of the Baptie Scholarship should be brought more forcibly to the attention of the teachers throughout the township, to induce a keener competition. Possibly each had been notified in the beginning, but the matter might have escaped attention in the intervening three years He felt that good teachers meant good scholars, and I am sure that we have two of the best teachers in the township in the schools where the Scholarship has been won this year. I congratulate the pupils, and wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year."

As there was no trustee from the School Section No. 8 ready to respond to the invitation to speak, the chairman proceeded to call upon Reeve Hootan to address the gathering.

Township Business.

Thanking the electors for returning him by acclamation, Mr. Hootan promised his undivided attention to township affairs, and that everything would be done above board, with no hidden transactions whatever.

The financial statement was gone into in detail, and reference made to the fact that a reduction of interest from 6 per cent. to five and one-half per cent. had been secured on the land from the Bank of Toronto. Application to the Department of Highways, in connection with the detour over the Cavan road had resulted in a grant of over $400, and the Reeve felt that the taking over of the road from Cavan to the highway as a connecting link meant at least $12,000 in the township treasury. The ten per cent increase in the subsidy hich the Reeve had been successful in securing from the Prime Minister, and the financial benefit accruing therefrom, was strongly emphasized, not only by Mr. Hootan, but also by subsequent speakers.

A deficit of $1,500 at the beginning of 1928 h been changed into a balance of $1,710.03 at its close, and the speaker explained in detail the extensive improvements made in the roadway on Concession 12, and justified with definite figures the expense incurred in the purchase of new machinery.

CANDIDATES ARE HEARD

MARMORA, Jan. 2.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Following the closing of nominations at the Council Chamber on Monday evening E. C. Prentice, village clerk, presided over a representative gathering of ratepayers who were keen on hearing what retiring members of Council and School Board with prospective members had to say concerning municipal affairs, past and present.

Reeve G. B. Airhart, who has held the office for nine successive years, speaking for forty-five minutes, explained various matters in connection with the county council. He told his audience that the reason for the half mill advance in the county rate was the creation of a miscellaneous account which later should be expended on a road program. Though county roads cost more money than formerly for upkeep, he felt there was no advantage in raising rates to create a sinking fund. The approximate cost of county roads to the county in the next five years had been worked out as one and a half million dollars. Eighty thousand dollars is the total being yearly spent on county roads at present but the necessity of building more permanent roads the county may be faced with the expenditure of three or four times the amount as now. He was in favor of the expenditure being spread over a number of years. Reeve Airhart said there was approximately 400 miles of county roads in Hastings county. Having referred to the provincial highway extending from Marmora to Foxboro, he mentioned that there was reason to believe that the road east and west of the village would be taken over by the province next year. Continuing the speaker touched interestingly on his work as auditor of the monies of the administration of justice and the work of the publicity committee of which he was a member and eeve Laycock, of Marmora township, the president.

Congratulates Board.

Next Reeve Airhart offered congratulations to Marmora's Board of Education. He felt it was to the credit of the community that so many of the teachers teaching in the vicinity had graduated from the Marmora Continuation School. Referring to the progress of Marmora he mentioned that the population of Marmora was about 200 more today then when local industries were dormant, were in swing. He concluded his remarks with reference to the new memorial building which he felt was of utmost benefit to the village and concerning which he had heard such favorable comment from residents of nearby towns and villages. W. A. Sanderson, the retiring president of the School Board and re-elected member, made the announcement that the District Inspector had classed the schools in Marmora as second to none. After giving a very concise statement of the Board's affairs, he advised the erection of an additional room to the public school to take care of children having to be accomodated in what was a poor substitute for a school. Answering an enquiry after stating the attendance at the Public School as being 246, he disclosed the fact that the average attendance was 231.

A Gain in the Field.

Councillor Marett in a brief speech said he was again in the field. Dr. R. E. Lumsden re-elected trustee, spoke of the harmonious feeling existing on the School Board.

Councillor Bell after giving a detailed statement on the finances of the Memorial Building was succeeded by Councillor Connor, who in a short speech conveyed the impression that he would stand for election as reeve.

Councillor F. S. Johnston spoke principally on the Memorial Building, mentioning that there could be no one present who was not proud of the structure.

R. E. Bonter, nominated for reeve, said he was not standing.

Albert Burridge, nominated for council, declared he would stand as candidate.

H. W. Sabine, a former clerk of the village, nominated for reeve and councillor, made no decision save to say that if the 1928 council could receive an acclamation he would not consider candidature.

John Reid, a former popular councillor, nominated again, was the concluding speaker and voiced his appreciation of the local Continuation School, which he considered a great asset to the village.

Votes $1,000 to Memorial.

As the result of a referendum taken of ratepayers of Marmora township at the nomination meeting on Monday the township council has decided to vote $1,000 towards the new Memrial Hall of the village. It is understood that the ladies of the village will endeavor to raise another five hundred on the ladies' rest room which is considered a most desirable asset to the building. Further assistance is also being looked for from Deloro Council now that the township council have acted so splendidly in the matter.

Stirling Village

The annual meeting for the nomination of candidates to fill the positions as Reeve and four Councillors for the village of Stirling was held on Monday night in the new community building.

It was with great satisfaction that those men who had composed the council for the past year could hold the meeting in this building, as they had worked faithfully to bring about what is considered a great forward stride. In presenting the financial statement for 1928, which was read by the Reeve, it was shown that the optimistic outlook of the representatives men of the village two years ago was not a dream as the revenue of the new building will be adequate to provide the funds necessary to pay the debentures issued, as they come due.

At seven o'clock, Mr. G. H. Lowery, clerk of the village, called for nominations for a Reeve and four Councillors to conduct the affairs of the village for 1929, also for three Trustees to take the place of three of the school board whose terms had expired. The time for receiving nominations having closed at eight o'clock, Mr. Lowery announced the result. The 1928 council and trustees being returned by acclamation.

Reeve, Thomas Montgomery Sr.; Councillors, Samuel Hatton, William Patterson, L. Meiklejohn and Elmer Sandercock, and as members of the school board, Messrs. T. Ward, Dr. H. H. Alger, and G. Bedford were re-elected. The clerk declared all these men duly elected, and invited them to the platform, also Col. R. Vanderwater and Edgar Morrow, the Reeve and one of the council of Sidney township, who are nominees for these position again.

In the statement, as presented by the treasurer and read by the Reeve it was shown that the financial condition of the village was in first class condition. The plan of collecting taxes twice yearly, which had been inaugurated in 1928, proved satisfactory as sufficient funds would be on hand to carry on until next tax collecting time. The cost of the new community building was $31,503.77.

Mr. Hatton, as chairman of the electric light committee, stated in his remarks that this branch of the village service was playing its way and had a substantial balance of $9,062.53 to its credit in the bank after equipping the beautiful store and office in the community building.

Mr. Patterson, as chairman of the street committee for 1928, gave an account of his work in that respect.

Mr. Sandercock in his remarks as junior member of the council, stated that he had learned considerable during the year and said that each member of the council was as careful in transacting the business of the village as though it was for himself. L. Meiklejohn, who has served on the council for a number of years, was the last speaker. Dealing more particularly with the financing and running of the theatre, he said they could get no better man than Mr. Sprental, the village electrician, to manage that part of the village business, as it was proving a success financially and otherwise.

Mr. F. T. Ward was nominee for the school board and stated that it cost a large sum to run the schools, but a great deal of the expense incurred was not within the power of the board to alter, and in order to keep the schools up to perfect efficiency, it was necessary to ask the village council for what the requirements of the board called for.

Mr. Morrow and Col. Vanderwater in their remarks, congratulated the villagers on being able to meet in their fine new building, also the councillors on their re-election. Mr. Vanderwater touched on some of the financial problems that the county council will have to deal with during 1929 and also spoke regarding the establishment of a school of agriculture in this district, since the one in Western Ontario had proved so successful and could not accommodate the students wishing to enter. He thought the county of Hastings was the proper place to locate a similar source of education in Central Ontario.

Dealing with criticisms which had been made, Reeve Hootan declared that the machinery owned by the township is all under proper cover, and also explained why he voted in favor of paving the streets of Hastings, Campbellford and Millbrook at the Counties' Council, urging that this was a wise measure, "and one from which we, as a township, are reaping a direct benefit at the present time."

Pointing out that the printed financial statements are now available for every ratepayer, and all items of expenditure open for inspection, or criticism, and adding his best wishes for the New Year, Reeve Hootan took his seat, amidst applause, and Deputy-Reeve, R. J. McKnight, was asked to speak.

Mr. McKnight thanked the ratepayers for his return by acclamation and for their support during the year, stating that he believed as one advanced in the council more was expected of him, and he had tried, and would continue to endeavor, to meet the demands of his position.

The Reeve had covered the financial affairs of the township in a most lucid manner, and the Deputy-Reeve added a word of personal appreciation: "I do not think there is a stronger man in attendance at the Counties Council than George Hootan; he is working for the municipality all the time, and with effectiveness and ability."

Covering briefly the work done in his own division of the township, the speaker gave figures to show that the purchase of the truck for the road superintendent's use had been good business; it has travelled 7,637 miles in 1928, saving nearly $1,150 as they used to allow the superintendent 15 cents a mile for the use of his car; it had hauled tile, lumber, and done other team work, earning $44 by work outside the township, totalling $1,457.05; operating expenses were $221.06, less fifty per cent paid by the government, leaving $110.54; the total earnings then were $1,346.51. Fifty per cent. of the superintendent's wages and expenses are paid by the government, as well as a like amount of the operating expenses of the truck.

Councillor J. H. McGill also thanked the electors for his return to the council for another year, and said he considered the construction of good roads the pressing question of to-day. Narrow roads are a thing of the past if travelling accommodation is to be maintained, and the speaker urged that good roads and low taxation are a combination not to be looked for.

Congratulating the Reeve on the record of the year, and declaring his conviction that the township had been well served, and also expressing his pleasure in the presentation of the Scholarships, adding that the homes, teachers and pupils deserved the highest praise, Mr. McGill closed with a brief reference to the value of education, the work done in his division during the year, and extended his best wishes for the ensuing twelve months

J. O. Ball voiced his hearty gratitude to the ratepayers for his acclamation to the council for another term, and also his congratulations to the pupils winning the Baptie Scholarship. He believed that as some of the previous speakers had declared the past year had been a 'lean' one so far as expenditure in thier respective divisions were concerned, for him it had probably been a 'fat' one as the extensive road improvements on concession 12 were in his territory. "However it will not likely come our turn again for some time, though there is still much work needed on the Twelfth Line"

Major A. V. Thorne spoke for the south end of the township, after warmly thanking the electors for returning him by acclamation, and mentioned the road improvements made in his division during the twelve months. He was followed by the township clerk, J. N. McGill, who devoted his time to an outline of the Weed Control Act, and the powers it places in the hands of the Weed Inspector, which office he holds. The co-operation and interest of the land holders concerned was urged, the speaker mentioning that he had covered the whole township, and had begun with his own farm in the cutting down of noxious weeds.

Reeve Hootan moved that the clerk and the chairman draft a letter of sympathy to be sent the families of the late Mrs. McMillan, and of the late clerk, Colonel MacNachton, expressing the deep regret felt by the Council and ratepayers of Cavan township in their sad bereavement. Deputy-Reeve R. J. McKnight seconded the motion, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

AT LAKEFIELD

Reeve Tanner.

Following the nominations, Mr. Marling, on motion of Robert Duff and J. C. Strickland, took the chair for the speech-making which follows the nominations.

Reeve Tanner was the first speaker. He thanked the ratepayers for the honor of re-election by acclamation. Work with last year's Council was a pleasure, he said. There were able men on all committees and the year's record is creditable. Financially, Lakefield is in better shape than for some time, although last year's Council do not seek to claim all the credit as much was due to past administration. Last year's Council worked faithfully and honestly for the village interests and were ably assisted by the clerk, who was always in the right place at the right time. During the past year the tax rate was reduced by 10 mills and there is a surplus at the end of the year of nearly $3,000.00.

Financial Statement Read.

Councillor J. F. Lillecrap, chairman of the Finance Committee, gave a statement in his department. There had been heavy expenditures during the past year; $1,700 had been spent in fire equipment, the road expenses were unusually heavy, and owing to the long winter the upkeep of the hall had been unusually expensive for fuel. Every account was carefully scrutinized before it was passed. Referring to some criticism he had heard regarding the taking of $6,000 from the Canada Cement Co., he felt that as the proposition came from the company, the Council would not be justified in refusing it. Mr. Lillecrap expressed pleasure at the increased interest in village affairs demonstrated at the meeting, and announced that he would not stand for re-election.

Councillor William Tedford, chairman of the Streets and Roads Committee, reported on his department. The roads and streets are one of the hardest problems and the work is still in its infancy, in spite of the fact that more was spent last year than ever on the upkeep. The main street is hard to manage, although the holes have been twice filled with oil and crushed stone, there is still a bad condition existing. More oil was purchased last year than ever before, as 1,000 gallons were procured. 336 yards of crushed stone, 150 yards of gravel were also used on the roads, and 456 feet of underground tile, much of it 30-inch tile; there was also 12-inch, 8-inch and some 6-inch tile used. A new street, FitzGerald Street, was opened during the year, and a new tank for fire protection erected on Nassau Street. The fire brigade need the support of the Council and the citizens. Extra expense was incurred this year by crushing the stone.

Town Hall Re-painted.

Councillor Stephen Harrison of the Property Committee reported that the wood work on the outside of the hall had been re-painted during the year. It had been a pleasure to work on the council which had striven to make Lakefield a better place to live in.

Councillor William Doidge reported that the demands on his committee (the charity committee) had been small this year, until the last month it had been remarkably small. Mr. Doidge announced that he will not stand for re-election.

Hydro Commissioner E. R. Tate reported for his department. The past year had been uneventful. Fifteen had been added to the domestic users and the commercial and domestic rates have been reduced, and it is hoped that a further substantial reduction can be made all round. Mr. Tate spoke of the remarkable efficiency of the Hydro, in Toronto, at the head office, they knew every detail of Lakefield, and of every place where the Hydro operates. The books are audited thoroughly three or four times each year; and if the reduction of rates comes into effect Lakefield will have a good rate and a good reserve. The commission has paid the power bills and debentures, and has a good balance. Last year $2000 was handed back to the municipality, and just recently $400 was given back as excess payment in street lighting. Each department of the Hydro stands on its own feet: street lighting, commercial lighting and domestic lighting In Lakefield we have been fortunate in having no severe ice storms, which cause trouble with the wires and runs up expense. With one exception we have had no serious electrical disturbances, the exception being the time the sub-station was struck by lightning. The reserve fund is low at present as it only amount to $190. The reserves take care of necessary repairs.

Report on School Board.

H. R. Wagar in the absence of J. W. Ridpath spoke for the school board. The High School has been separated from the Public school and it has been an improvement. Everything is running smoothly, and there were no complaints. The grounds have been kept mown, and next year the board will get snips to keep the grass neat around the trees. Mr. Webster made an excellent job of levelling the playground for the High school. After all expenses are paid the High School Board has a surplus of $200.

The installation of sanitary drinking fountains has been a great improvement. In the Public School everything is going well; toboggans and play ground equipment have been added during the year, and at present the school is being lighted on the recommendation of the Inspector and the Board of Health.

John E. Charlton expressed his surprise at being nominated and had not made up his mind as to whether or not he would allow his name to stand.

A. M. FitzGerald made his first appearance at a nomination meeting. He announced his intention of standing, saying that although he was young, one can always learn, and if elected will do his utmost for the best interests of the village.

J. C. Strickland also announced his intention of standing for election, and if elected will do his best for Lakefield. Mr. Strickland felt that the thanks for bringing down the tax rate should be given to the Canada Cement Co. He also enquired as to the disposal of the $2,400 which had been received from the Hydro Commission.

Mr. Marling, the clerk, stated that this amount had not been earmarked for any special purpose, and it had gone into the melting pot. The council is carrying forward nearly $3,000.00, nearly half of the amount received from the Canada Cement Co.

Mr. Strickland felt that this disposal was a mistake, and that the money received should have been used to take up the debentures of the Hydro, so that the plant would be paid for sooner than thirty years.

Reeve Tanner.—Mr. Tate had already explained that this sum had been paid from the excess paid on street lighting, and as it was paid out of current expenditure and not from capital expenditure, the council felt it should be used for tax reduction, because it was from that source it was received.

Mr. Marling said that the Hydro debentures carry themselves, and the debentures sold for 1 per cent. more than any other debentures ever yielded.

The discussion closed.

W. A. Moore thanked his nominators for putting forward his name, but as yet he has not decided whether he would stand or not. If he decided to stand, he would hespeak their support. Like the other speakers, Mr. Moore wished his hearers the season's greetings and compliments.

B. Q. Dench, representing the property committee of the public school board, spoke of the practice of some persons to drive through the school grounds, making it a highway, a practice dangerous to the children and detrimental to the grounds. Measures are being taken to safeguard the property.

J. E. Galvin announced his decision of withdrawing. Everything is going so well and as the old board are up for re-election, he felt it wiser not to stand.

According to Mr. Wagar things are going ahead fast and there is no doubt that the improvements are useful, but we have to admit that they are costly. When the older people see the cost of education mounting higher when the population is not much more than twenty years ago, they wonder why. But taxes for education and roads we should not kick against Mr. Wager stated the school tax three years ago was 16 mills and now it is 12.7 mills.

Mr. Marling gave a sketch of the financial position, which showed a balance of nearly three thousand dollars for the village. The high school board shows a balance of $287, and the public school board of $200.

Regarding Mr. Galvin's remarks on the increase in the cost of education, the figures show little more than $1,000 increase since 1923, notwithstanding that the salaries had been raised all round and many improvements made, including the installation of a new furnace and also the fact that the janitor has been taken on for the whole year instead of for only ten months as formerly.

Other nominees: F. S. Brioux, Lawrence Charlton, Jefferson Moore, W. J. Charlton, J. W. Ridpath, D. H. Charlton and E. J. Millage were not present. The meeting adjourned.

The New Year's Eve. dance which has become an annual event of the year, under the auspices of the Peterborough Tennis Club, was held on Monday evening at the holl of the Canadian Legion, with an attendance of about three hundred people in an event which lived up to the record it has made for itself in the past as one of the most successful dances of the season. Every item in the entertainment was carried out with attention to each detail, by the committee in charge of arrangements, from the unique invitations, which were lettered in black on gilt moire paper, to the decorations, which were extremely effective and quite out of the ordinary. They were the work of Mr. Erb of the Interlake Tissue Company of Toronto and were done in a design simulating Spanish shawls, which were made of cutwork paper of vivid shades of blue, yellow, red orange, mauve and green, and were hung in festoons from the ceiling and draped the walls. On the walls also were little sand panels with a pair of colored love birds on each, while the windows and door arches were curtained with paper in the same brilliant hues. The orchestra stand had the same adornment and the electroliers had long basket shades of brightly-tinted paper. Over the piano was placed an illuminated sign, also rainbow-hued, to call attention at midnight to the passing of the old year and the coming of the new. The little parlor at the south of the hall was also arranged very tastefully with wicker furniture and floor lamps, done by the Teco Store, while catering was the work of the Elite Sweets. The program included a large number of novelty dances, with horns, kazoos and plenty of favors for the midnight numbers and the music for dancing was provided by Roberts and Logan's Merrymakers of eight pieces, giving place at midnight to a mock band arrayed in pyjamas, with Sam Whitehouse as a soloist with the French horn. The committe in charge of arrangements for the dance was composed of Messrs. F. Bowness, H. A. Cranfield, Walter A. Jackson, H. Foster, F. Allen and William E. Jackson. The annual Hogmanay dance of the Caledonian Club took place Monday night in the W.O.W. Hall, and was the usual jolly affair. About one hundred Scots attended and a spirit of goodwill and hilarity prevailed. This time-honored custom of celebrating the dying of the old year and welcoming the new is held by Scotch people all the world over, and they forgather sometimes in large numbers and sometimes in two and threes to hold "Hogmanay night." Many of the old dances as well as the modern fox trots were enjoyed by all present. To this gathering, not a few old members came from quite a distance to be present and meet old friends. They were from Windsor, Detroit, Cornwall, Oshawa, Midland and other points, and received a special welcome from Mr. Robert Veitch, president of the club. Mr. Robert Gilmour directed the music, while Mr. John Rae acted as M.C. During the evening songs were sung by Mrs. Howes, Miss H. Shearer and Mr. Ed. King. These popular singers were well applauded. About eleven o'clock a ladies' committee served the company with dainty refreshments of tea, sandwiches and cake. By the time this was over the hour of midnight was drawing near. As another year drew to its close the thoughts of this little company whom circumstances had placed in Canada, were back in the homeland, and at similar gatherings with loved ones there. The whole company then rose and, joining hand, sang "Auld Lang Syne." Then Robert Gilmour led the singing of "A Guid New Year to ane an' a'." Forming into two circles, the company paraded round the hall, wishing each other a "Happy New Year." Dancing was carried on for another hour, and thus another "Hogmanay" was successfully ended for the Peterborough Caledonian Club. The following were among those present: Mr. and Mrs. R. Veitch, Mr. and Mrs. G. Nimmons, Mr. and Mrs. A. Duthie, Mr. and Mrs. R. French, Mr. and Mrs. R. Gilmour, Mr. and Mrs. A. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kingsbury, Mr. and Mrs. J. McPhate, Mr. and Mrs. I. Dr. and Mrs. N. D. Buchanan entertained at a Tea Dance, attended by nearly two hundred of their friends, in the hall of the Conservatory of Music yesterday afternoon. The decorations of the hall and stage and table were very artistic, the latter being extremely attractive. Behind a screen of evergreens that made a minature forest, music was softly played by Stewart Widdess' Silver Slipper orchestra. Christmas wreaths and borders in red and green and pots of red poinsettia decorated the hall and the windows were arranged with ferns and red candles. A cloth of exquisite blue damask draped the table, centered by a large bowl of deep red carnations, banked in springeri fern, this color scheme being extraordinarily beautiful. Red candles were in silver holders. Tea and coffee were poured by Mrs. J. B. McWilliams, Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, Mrs. H. M. Yelland and Mrs. Jas. F. H. Wallace. An added note of convenience for the guests was the presence of two smart small pages who directed the way to the cloak rooms.

The fourth annual ball of Cyzicus Sanctorum No. 24, Ancient Mystic Order of Samaritans, was held in the rooms of the Oddfellows' Triple Link Club on New Year's Eve, with a splendid attendance of about two hundred of the members and their friends. The affair was very successful and the arrangements were in the hands of a capable committee headed by Sheik F. J. Batten, Grand Monarch, assisted by W. F. Green, Registrar, Sheik E. Norman, P.G.M., C. Rusaw, J. L. Pearse, William J. Bull, C. H. Hotston, Sheik D. Moore of Bowmanville and Sheik C. C. Mowry, chairman. Mr. Mowry had charge of the decorations, which were very striking and were carried out with a profusion of the emblems and insignia of the Order, the members of which were in uniform for the occasion. The big dance hall and the outer rooms were arranged with flags and pennants, the emblem of the triple link, a string of camels crossing the burning sands, owls symbolizing the motto, "We Never Sleep" of the Order, and a large electric crescent illuminated in blue and green and gold. The large banner which was taken to Peoria, Illinois, at the recent convention of the A.M.O.S. also occupied a prominent place on the wall. At the stroke of midnight, the year "1929" was ushered in by an illuminated sign, and the supper dances included an "Oriental Waltz" novelty and other innovations. Excellent music was provided by the A.M.O.S. orchestra. Charter members of the Lodge, (which was instituted in 1901) present last night included Sheik E. Norman, P. G.M., W. F. Green, District Deputy Registrar and Alderman R. Cotton. At 12 o'clock when the New Year's bells rang out, colored lights blazed forth with the sign of "1929" and the members of Cyzicius Sanctorum marched in forming two lines, with upraised and crossed scrimitars, while the guests marched in couples beneath. During the evening the guests were called to order by Mr. C. C. Mowry and a number of presentations were made and special prizes awarded. Mr. Fred Mowry was presented with a gift in reward for his services during the year 1928 with a motto urging him to begin the coming year right. The draw for the lucky number door prize was drawn for by Margaret Cotton, small daughter of Alderman and Mrs. R. Cotton. This prize, a beautiful console mirror, was donated by Tribesman Harry Florence and was won by Mr. Louiston. The second lucky number prize, a very pretty table lamp donated by Tribesman Harry Zacks, was won by Miss Mary Wallace. The third prize, donated by Tribesman Roganw, was won by Mrs. A. Ferguson. An address of appreciation was read to Mr. Harry Cartes and congratulatory letter read from Palm Beach Florida. Mr. Paul Wagman Chicago received the prize for guest from the greatest distance and Tribesman Harry Zacks the baby member, received a useful present. Among those present were:—Mr. and Mrs. F. Mowry, Mr. and Mrs. R. Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. B. MacLean, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold McWilliams (Toronto), Mr. and Mrs. H. Beatty, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Mowry, Mr. and Mrs. W. The Whatnot

Conducted by Marion

(Copyright)

E have all been reading about Christmas for a number of weeks now and I am sure the readers would like something different.

But first of all, let me remind you of the contest now on and which every reader should enter.

• • • • • • •

After talking with a number of housewives in Peterborough, I have been surprised to find ever so many things used in the household that could be washed and aren't.

• • • • • • •

Everyone washes her hair brush and comb, much as a matter of hibit. I have found, however, that it does not occur to many that the washing of our tooth brushes is very essential.

• • • • • • •

There are many in Peterborough who could get a new brush every few days. Those of us who cannot do this should take time to wash the brush used for cleaning our teeth at least once a week.

• • • • • • •

Give the handle and back a good scrubbing in soapy water and then let the bristles of the brush soak for a few minutes in a weak solution of bicarbonate of soda. This not only cleanses the brush, but sweetens it too.

• • • • • • •

Such things as jewelry ought ought to be cleaned in some way. Many pieces such as beads and other trinkets may be washed with milk soap and warm water. Beads strung on cord should certainly be cleaned in some way and they are not harmed by washing if they can be dried thoroughly immediately after the washing.

• • • • • • •

When it comes to washing shoes, I mean leather ones, I find that very, very few do this. In fact, I had never heard of people doing it before, but nevertheless, it is a good idea.

• • • • • • •

Some leather, of course, cannot be put in water, but the soles of most shoes may be washed and some people say they really need it.

• • • • • • •

Those who do wash shoes make a solution of warm water and very mild soap and with a small discarded tooth or nail brush, wash the soles quickly and use very little water.

• • • • • • •

There is something else in the home which should be washed, especially as a precaution against disease. It is especially recommended now that so much flu is prevalent.

• • • • • • •

The mouthpiece of the telephone should be washed weekly. This is especially true where more than one uses the phone. As you know, the mouthpiece may be unscrewed from the rest of phone. It may be washed in soapy water and as an added precaution, a little disinfectant may be added to the water.

• • • • • • •

We read and have been told repeatedly, especially where epidemics are prevalent, that mouthpieces of telephones are great harborers of germs but still we do not take the precaution advised.

• • • • • • •

And then, too, housewives have found that brushes such as those used in cleaning bottles, carpet brushes, boot brushes and those used in cleaning cream separators, are rather expensive items of equipment. With a little care, and the thorough cleaning of these after use, the brushes will last twice as long.

• • • • • • •

Carpet brushes may be washed in hot, soapy water, and rinsed well in cold water. A final rinsing in cold water to which salt has been added will stiffen the bristles. The brushes should be hung with the bristles downard and if they are washed on a windy day they will be dry by night.

• • • • • • •

Carpet sweeper brushes should be removed and cleaned once or twice a week and washed perhaps once a week. Such brushes as these get much dirtier than ordinary brushes and therefore should be washed at more regular intervals. With careful drying, these brushes are not harmed.

• • • • • • •

What about washing boot brushes? Perhaps most people in Peterborough do not do their own shoes, but simply go to a shoe shine parlor. Still there are a number who blacken their own shoes but never think of washing the brushes. Of course it is impossible to get a good polish with a sticky, neglected boot brush. These may be washed in hot, soapy water, using many rinsing waters to ensure getting all the soap out of the bristles.

• • • • • • •

By hanging them up for careful slow drying outside, or in a cool room, they are not harmed by washing. Once a month would probably be enough for washing boot brushes.

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office

This must serve as my apology to all the following writers for the non-appearance of their letters. Really, though, it was not my fault. The letters were marked for December 15, but went missing in the composing room and turned up just last Friday.

"Dear Marion:

As this is my first attempt in writing you, I hope you will find this recipe more laughable than palatable. I am sending it to you for your delightful page:

"Recipe for Cooking Husbands."

A good many husbands are utterly spoiled by mismanagement; some women go about it as if their husbands were bubbles and blow them up. Others keep them constantly in hot water. Others let them freeze by their carelessness and indifference. Some keep them in a stew by irritating ways and words. Others roast them. Some keep them in pickle all their lives.

It cannot be supposed that any husband will be tender and good managed in this way. But they are really delicious when properly treated. In selecting your husband you should not be guided by the silvery appearance, as in buying mackerel, nor by the golden nut, as if you wanted salmon. Be sure to select him yourself. As tastes differ do not go to the market for him, as the best are always brought to the door.

It is far better to have none unless you will patiently learn how to cook him. A preserving kettle of the finest porcelain is the best, but if you have nothing but an earthenware pipkin, it will do with care. See that the linen in which you wrap him is nicely washed and mended, with the required number of buttons and strings sewed on. Tie him in the kettle by a strong silk cord, called comfort, as the one called duty is apt to be weak.

They are apt to fly out of the kettle and be burned and crusty on the edges, since like crabs and lobsters you have to cook them while alive. Make a clear steady fire out of love, neatness and cheerfulness; set him as near this as seems to agree with him; if he sputters and fizzes, do not be anxious. Some husbands do this until they are quite done.

Add a little sugar in the form of what the confectioners call kisses, but no vinegar or pepper on any account. A little spice improves them, but it must be used with judgment. Do not stick anything sharp into him to see if he is becoming tender. Stir him gently. Watch the while lest he lie too flat and close to the kettle, and so become useless. You cannot fail to know when he is done. If thus treated you will find him very digestible, and agreeing nicely with you and the children, and he will keep as long as you want, unless you become careless and set him in too cool a place.

Trusting this will be a benefit to some of the ladies and wives in Peterborough.

Yours sincerely,
Peterborough. Virgie.

I'm quite sure, Virgie, that your recipe will be of use to women readers—and may I add that if they use it, then the men will benefit, too. Thanks for sending it.

"Dear Marion:

I hope I am not too late sending for the Christmas Gift suggestions, menu, etc. (If you have the instructions for making flowers still, I would be very grateful to have them and anything in the line of artistic work.

I enjoy your page very much especially the poetry selections.

Thanking you in anticipation,

"Dear Marion:

I am enclosing coupon for this week's help. I may be late for the Christmas help as I am sure there are a great many asking for them. It is rather late, but better late than never, eh?

Have been thinking of writing to you for such a long time to tell you how I enjoy your page. We women surely get some good hints to say nothing of the recipes.

I am enclosing a recipe for Christmas cake and almond paste. I wonder if anyone has a good icing (white) for Christmas cake that does not get too hard. I also enclose a recipe for brandy, not Christmas pudding.

Christmas greetings to all.
Millbrook. Florence."

Thanks for your splendid recipes "Florence," and for the nice things you say about our page.

I hope some neighbor will tell you about the icing.

NEIGHBORLY HELPS

This column is used by Examiner neighbors to help out others who have requested recipes or advice. You may use it freely by addressing Marion.

Dear Marion:

Having seen 'Marleigh's' SOS for a Yorkshire Pudding recipe, I beg to offer mine:

1 1-2 cups flour.
1 egg.
Milk.
Pinch of salt.

Break egg into centre of flour to which salt has been added and mix thoroughly. Add milk gradually until batter is the consistency of cream. Pour from roasting meat enough fat to cover bottom of baking tin, pour in batter and bake in a moderate oven, until it has risen, and is a golden brown, usually about half an hour. The batter is all the better for standing in a cool place for an hour or so. The same mixture makes excellent pan cakes, pour enough into the pan to cover base and to which lard had melted (the size of a nut) and fry lightly, both sides. Serve with lemon and sugar.

I enjoy reading your page, also the opinions of the neighbors.

Hoping 'Marleigh' has luck and finds this to her taste.

Yours truly,
ICH DIEN.
City.

WAS HIS TIME

MARION, Ind., Jan. 2.—applexy was given as the cause of H. C. Clayton's death, but perhaps the poem he was reading to a friend had something to do with it. He was reading, "Forty Years Ago," and when he reached the word "go," in the line, "And when our time shall come, Tom, we are ca to go," he dropped dead.

DAILY READING

A FEW MINUTES A DAY WIT H THE BEST OF THE WORLD'S AUTHORS CONDUCTED BY T HE NEIGHBORS AND MARION

JANUARY 2, 1929.

Thomas Gray was born in London on December 26, 1716, and before his death on July 30, 1771, he wrote many poems that will live for ever, including the "Elegy written in a Country Churchyard," and "The Bard." He was offered, but refused to accept, the office of Laureate in 1757. Today's selection is his "Ode on a Distant Prospect of Eton College":

Ye distant spires, ye antique towers,
That crown the watery glade,
Where grateful Science still adores
Her Henry's holy shade;
And ye, that from the stately brow,
Of Windsor's heights th' expanse below,
Of turf, of lawn, of mead survey,
Whose turf, whose shade, whose flowers among Wanders the hoary Thames along
His silver-winding way:

Ah, happy hills! ah, pleasing shade!
Ah, fields beloved in vain!
Where once my careless childhood strayed,
A stranger yet to pain!
I feel the gales that from ye blow
A momentary bliss bestow,
As waving fresh their gladsome wing.
My weary soul they seem to soothe,
And, redolent of joy and youth,
To breathe a second spring.

Say, Father Thames, for thou hast seen
Full many a sprightly race
Disporting on thy margent green,
The paths of pleasure trace;
Who foremost now delight to cleave,
With pliant arm, thy glassy wave?
The captive linnet which enthrall?
What idle progeny succeed
To chase the rolling circle's speed,
Or urge the flying ball?

While some on earnest business bent
Their murmuring labors ply
'Gainst graver hours that bring constraint
To sweeten liberty:
Some bold adventurers disdain
The limits of their little reign,
And unknown regions dare descry:
Still as they run they look behind,
They hear a voice in every wind,
And snatch a fearful joy.

Gay hope is theirs by fancy fed,
Less pleasing when possest;
The tear forgot as soon as shed,
The sunshine of the breast:
Theirs buxom health, of rosy hue,
Wild wit, invention ever new,
And lively cheer, of vigor born;
The thoughtless day, the easy night,
The spirits pure, the slumbers light,
That fly th' approach of morn.

Alas! regardless of their doom
The little victims play;
No sense have they of ills to come,
Nor care beyond to-day:
Yet see, how all around 'em wait
The ministers of human fate
And black Misfortune's baleful train!
Ah, show them where in ambush stand,
To seize their prey, the murth'rous band!
Ah, tell them they are men!

With the advent of this New Year, a new slate of officers takes over the management of Legion affairs in Peterborough. The financial and business year formerly ended in September, but a change made in 1928 provides that the financial and business year shall coincide with the calendar year.

These officers desire, above all else, the hearty support of the members. By accepting office they are pledged to give of THEIR best to the interests of the branch, but the Legion can only become outstanding among Peterborough organizations when every man is behind the movement.

* * *

The officers and members take this opportunity of wishing every veteran a Very Happy New Year.

TRUSTEE RE-ELECTED

Annual School Meeting of S. S. No. 16, Otonabee Held on Wednesday.

The annual school meeting of S. S. No. 116, Otonabee, was held in the school house on Wednesday evening, December 16. The meeting was the best attended in the history of the school, practically the whole section being represented. During the past year the school has been equipped with an electric stove for household science, and the building well lighted.

This was the first annual meeting to be held in the evening, the intention being to give those whose employment prevented their being at a meeting held during the day, a chance to attend.

J. A. Wilson, chairman of the school board, opened the meeting and welcomed those present. He invited them to make a thorough inspection of the school, noting especially the electric equipment which had been installed during the past year. He asked for nominations for chairman to preside over the meeting. This resulted in the election of Roy Spears, who fulfilled his duties very well indeed. E. R. Frost was appointed secretary for the evening.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted on motion of A. Huston, seconded by S. Bennett.

The financial statement was read by the secretary treasurer, C. F. Kitney, who gave a summary of the improvements made during the past four years. "The school house is now in first class condition," he said; "the work of next year's board will be to drain and level the grounds, this would make a big improvement, placing it among the best in the country." He then gave those present an opportunity to ask any questions regarding the financing of the school.

On motion of R. G. Smithson, seconded by R. A. Wilson, the report was adopted.

It was moved by William Breckenridge, and seconded by Clifford Cox that E. R. Frost be appointed auditor for the section. — Carried.

The section then showed their appreciation of the work accomplished during the past four years, and their confidence in C. F. Kitney, by re-electing him trustee for the next three years by a large majority.

The school board for 1929 are S. Belfry, J. A. Wilson and C. F. Kitney.

The meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

IT PAYS TO ADV

CANADA'S 1928 Export Sales Review

Canada Enters 1929 with Hopes Well Grounded

TO-DAY the great race among the aggressive nations of the world is for export trade.

What is Canada's position in this far-flung competition?

Though ranking 28th in population, this New Year finds Canada:

Fifth in total exports
Third in absolute trade balance
Second in per capita exports
First in per capita trade balance

For the year ended November last Canada's export trade amounted to 1,349 million dollars.

The favourable trade balance at the end of November was 162 million dollars.

In six years Canada's export trade has grown from 754 million dollars to 1,349 million dollars—a business achievement in which all Canadians can take pride.

A recent survey shows 6,500 groups of articles, fully or partially manufactured in this country, while approximately 1,600 Canadian firms or corporations are active exporters.

Canada can look forward with confidence to a still further increase in export trade. Almost daily our Trade Commissioners, located in the world's strategic business centres, tell of growing demands for Canadian products.

During the past year the Department of Trade and Commerce has made intensive efforts to demonstrate to Canadian manufacturers and producers their opportunities abroad. Many of the Trade Commissioners have been brought home for a few weeks to interview personally Canadian firms with respect to varied export problems. They have shown that to be successful every Canadian entering export trade should:

1. Maintain quality standards.
2. Make the articles required by the importer.
3. Pack in the manner the importer desires.
4. Deliver promptly.
5. Maintain contract dates.

Additions have been made to Trade Commissioners' staffs. Trade enquiries and trade trends from abroad have been given wide publicity in Canada. Canadian products, displayed prominently at numerous exhibitions in Great Britain, have excited unusual interest. Buyers in other countries have been shown what Canada has to sell.

Steamship services from Canada to foreign lands, particularly to South America and the British West Indies, have been greatly augmented.

THE RESULTS ARE BECOMING CONSPICUOUS.

Again the Department of Trade and Commerce wishes to emphasize the importance of export trade to the prosperity of this country:

1. It stabilizes employment.
2. It lowers production costs.
3. It keeps our dollar at par.

Canada now has 25 Trade Commissioners' offices abroad. Men trained in the Commercial Intelligence Service have headquarters in these offices. They are acquainted with the requirements of the people in their territory. They will conduct preliminary surveys regarding the marketability of any Canadian product. They will put the Canadian exporter into touch with reliable representatives, or introduce his travellers to reputable trade houses. They constantly help in maintaining business contacts.

These Trade Commissioners communicate the latest trade developments in their fields to the Commercial Intelligence Service of this Department. The information they gather is at the disposal of every Canadian exporter or every Canadian interested in export trade.

Write to-day to the Commercial Intelligence Service, Ottawa, about your products and your capacity to participate in export trade. A big opportunity may be yours.

Bailey Leads National Hockey League Scorers

LEAF PLAYER HAS FIFTEEN POINT AVERAGE

Nels Stewart, Maroon Right Winger, Stands Second With Twelve Points.

TWO TIE FOR THIRD.

Toronto Club Making Drive To Retain Leadership in N. H. L.

MONTREAL, January 2. Canadian Press. — The latest drive which the Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey Club is making for leadership in the Canadian section of the National Hockey League, is reflected in the scoring figures. The weekly returns issued on Monday night from the office of President Frank Calder indicate that "Ace" Bailey, star right winger of the Toronto club, is not unworthy of the nickname thrust upon him, for he is leading the league with 15 points to his credit He has 9 goals and 6 assists.

Nels Stewart, the right winger of the Montreal Maroons, who led the scoring derby from the beginning of the season, ranks second to Bailey in the latest returns. Stewart got a goal against Pittsburgh, which brought his total up to 110, but he has had only two assists, so that he is three points behind the Toronto sniper There is a tie for third position in this section between Howie Morenz, the Canadian mid-ice star, and "Hooley" Smith, who occupies the same position for Montreal Maroons.Morenz has had six goals and five assists, and Smith has just reversed these figures, each, therefore holding 11 points.

Carson Cooper of Detroit, has swung back into the scoring lead in the American division The Detroit right-winger has notched seven goals and furnished three assists for a total of 10 points, giving him a lead of one over Bill Cook, redoubtable right wing of the champion New York Rangers. Cook scored six goals, and his centre-ice team mate, Frankie Boucher, has had four, along with five assists, giving him third position with nine points in all.

The Canadian section holds a big lead over the Americans in all individual performances. Not only do the scorers lead in that section, but penalties have been more freely earned. Lionel Conacher, robust captain of the section-leading New York Americans has served almost double the time on the penalty seat of any other player in either section. He has been awarded 71 minutes with the timers, as against 39 for Eddie Shore, the husky Boston Bruin, who leads the American section. "Red" Dutton, the hard working defence star of the Montreal Maroons, is second to Conacher, with 49 minutes, and the veteran "Punch" Broadbent, of New York, is third in the Canadian section, with 42 minutes. "Puss" Traub and McKinnon of Chicago Hawks, are tied behind Shore in the American section, each with 30 minutes.

SOME OF THE SPORT CHAMPIONS FOR 1928

The year 1928 marked the downfall of several champions of sport and the dominance of others of various classes. No year thus far has been as replete with sports upsets. The above photo, a composite, shows members of the sporting fraternity who have won, or who are recognized as champions, the best in the world in their lines of endeavor in the sport world. HAMMOND IS STAR PLAYER

Batsman Scores 169 Runs Not Out and Continues To-day.

SIX WICKETS TO GO.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 2 (Canadian Press Cable).—With their great batsman, Wally Hammond, again in wonderful form, England yesterday forged slowly towards their goal in the third cricket test match with Australia. Hammond scored 169 runs, not out, and continued his innings to-day, with England eighty-five runs behind the Australian first innings total and with six wickets in hand on their initial visit to the wicket.

Hammond alone yesterday played cricket worthy of the occasion. He has so far duplicated his remarkable effort at Sydney, when his masterly contribution, finally reaching 251 runs, placed England in a winning position. He began batting in the last half hour on Monday, after J. Hobbs had been caught out for only 20 runs, and H. Sutcliffe was having an uncomfortable time. He played till stumps were drawn in a careful, but confident manner. On resuming this morning he wasted no time in getting set and with Sutcliffe doing little more than keeping up his end, proceeded to annihilate the Australian bowling. He reached his fifty after an hour and a half's play and went on brilliantly scoring until he reached 99. At this point the Australians threw in their best efforts, and it was twenty minutes before Hammond got the odd run which completed his century. He had been batting just over three hours. He raised his score to 150 in an hour and received a tremendous ovation from the crowd.

London Panthers Rally in Final Period To Defeat Cataracts 5-3.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—Facing an adverse count of 3 to 2 midway in the last period of last night's Canpro fixture with Niagara Falls Cataracts and apparently being on the way to defeat, the London Panthers came to life with a vengeance and rammed three goals on merciless plays that took them boring close in on the harassed Falls goalie.

HAMILTON, Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—Battling fiercely to get out of the Canpro cellar, Hamilton carried the Flying Dutchmen into an overtime period here last night and finally emerged on the long end of a 5 to 4 count, furnishing the holiday customers the hottest argument of the season as an augury for 1929.

Fight Results

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 2. — (Canadian Press).—Joe Sanger of Milwaukee won the newspaper decision over Ted Morgan of Seattle, Wash., junior lightweight champion in a 10 round battle here yesterday afternoon. The title did not change hands because no decisions are allowed in Wisconsin.

Morgan had the fight won in the fourth round when he was fouled by a left hook to low territory but refused to accept it. They continued fighting after a short rest with Sanger always piling into him with busy body attacks.

Johnny Ryan, a Boston southpaw, won the newspaper verdict over Frankie Pall of Toledo in six rounds at 122 pounds.

In the opening bout Mitz Minikel, Milwaukee light heavyweight, knocked out Kid Guepe of Rochester Minn., in the first round with a right cross to the chin.

Louie New, Milwaukee's newest lightweight pride, fought six fairly even rounds with Vic Walter, a fellow townsman in the second bout. Jack London, Chicago lightweight, had the better of Jackie Nichols of Milwaukee in the six round semi-windup. Nichols was guilty of holding.

RANGERS WIN FROM LEAFS

New Yorkers and Toronto Hockey Clubs Play Smart Hockey.

CANADIENS IN TIE.

TORONTO, Ont., January 2 (Canadian Press). — Making full use of three goal-scoring openings, the New York Rangers defeated the Maple Leafs here last night 3 to 2. And while the pill was a rather bitter one for the club and its followers to swallow, it was well coated with a sweet covering in the form of speed, brilliant stick-handling, continual back-checking, sensational goal-tending, and smart combination plays that it was not hard to take.

MAROONS DEFEAT PIRATES.

PITTSBURG, Pa., January 2 (Canadian Press). — The Montreal Maroons started the New Year by defeating the Pittsburg Pirates in a National Hockey League game here last night 4-2. Nels Stewart, gigantic winger for the Maroons, proved a bulwark for his team, netting three goals, assisting in another and playing an all-round, bang-up game.

COUGARS WIN SECOND.

CHICAGO, Ills., January 2 (Canadian Press). — The Detroit Cougars made it two straight over the Black Hawks, downing the Chicago ice sextette last night, 2 to 1, in a National Hockey League game here. The Cougars defeated the Hawks on Sunday night at Detroit.

BRUINS HIT WINNING STRIDE.

BOSTON, Mass., January 2 (Canadian Press). — The Boston Bruins regained their winning stride here last night by shutting out the Ottawa Senators, 3 to 0, before a crowd of 15,000 appreciative spectators, who crowded the Garden to capacity.

DEAN'S PLAYING FEATURE OF GAME

First Division League Leaders Draw With Huddersfield Town.

LONDON, England, January 2. Canadian Press Cable. — The wonderful form displayed by "Dixie" Dean, centre forward for the Everton team, in a first division English Soccer League match yesterday, was the sensation in New Year's games. He scored three goals for his club against Derby county. Dunn had Everton's fourth. Dean netted first in the initial half and twice after the interval through clever work. The victory brings Everton, who won the league championship last season, to within striking distance of the clubs leading the averages at the present time. Forty thousand saw the game which was staged at Everton.

Sheffield Wednesday, league leaders just now, though they were playing at home, could only draw with Hudders field Town. Fifty five thousand people watched the match. Gregg put the Wednesday ahead in the first half, when he goaled after being given a fine pass by Hooper. Huddersfield squared the match near half time, when Dumming tallied, and that ended the scoring.

Both the goals secured by Blackburn Rovers at Newcastle came in the second half, Roscamp scoring the first and Bourton the second. The gate totalled 40,000.

Blackmore won the match for Bolton Wanderers who met Cardiff City, when in the second half he ran through and scored.

Sunderland gave thirty thousand of their own supporters a great treat when they trounced the visiting Arsenal by five goals to one. McKay and Halliday scored for Sunderland, but Parkin got one back in the first half. Robinson, Halliday and McKay made up the balance of Sunderland's quintette.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F. D. C.

Peterborough had plenty of exciting hockey in both intermediate and junior series in 1911 when the arrival in town of such good players as Bud Kelly of Ingersol, Alvin Sarles of Brampton and Maurice Park and the rapid development of youngsters like Charlie Ray, Fred Denison and Cyril Giroux furnished plenty of material.

Much of the excitement centered around the intermediate series with Trenton which town had one of the best teams in its history. The Petes went down to Trenton first with a weakened team and received a terrific drubbing but there was a different story in the second game.

The Petes built up a new combination, getting Fred Denison home from Trinity College school, Port Hope, persuading Rollie Glover to don a uniform again and playing Maurice Park, who had recently arrived from Saskatoon to join the public school staff, at centre. This proved a machine altogether too much for Trenton. The veteran Glover and the coming star Denison used the side-by-side defence system for the first time in local history in this game and the fast Trenton forwards could not break through. Fletcher, the Trenton star centre, ran into a couple of stiff body checks early in the struggle and he lost all interest in the proceedings.

The Petes won by 13 to 6, leading at half time by 7 to 2. Park added speed and scoring ability to the forward line, getting four goals himself and figuring in several other scoring plays while Fred Kelly turned in his best game of the year and badly outplayed his check.

The Petes early in the second half had run the score up to 12 to 2 but when they began to get careless and let up in their back checking, Trenton led by Art Armstrong, their crack left wing, who afterward played in Peterborough, scored four goals in a row, Armstrong getting three of them. Charlie Ray, the young captain of the Peterborough team, scored 13 to 6.

Trenton protested this game on the ground that Maurice Park did not qualify under the residence rule and they proved their point, the fixture being ordered replayed without Park. The Petes played Cyril Giroux at centre and beat Trenton 14 to 5 in the re-played game, Fred Denison getting six of the counters on beautiful rushes. This victory tied up the district and a sudden death game at Belleville was ordered. The story of that terrific battle will be told to-morrow.

The line up of the first Trenton game here:

Trenton—Goal, McGiffin; point, Croft; cover, McGaw; rover, Cummings; centre, Fletcher; right wing, Powers; left wing, Armstrong.

Referee—Lawson Whitehead, Toronto.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

Manufacturers' League

Ackerman and Co.'s quintet of alley bumpers handed the Canadian Pork Cutters a nasty Christmas gift in the form of an 8 to 0 defeat, taking every game in Thursday night's battle and piling up a 400 pin margin in total pinnage. Greig's outstanding exhibition of pin toppling for the Packers' went for naught before the steady good bowling of Lebarr, Olaveson and R. Everett, who bunched their high three scores around 550.

C.G.E. Shop League—Group 6

Because of the fact that there is but 8 teams instead of 10 in this group the players come in for a bit of extra slugging, but many of these games were slowed up greatly by the presence of "Old Man Dummy."

The Porcelain Pin Smashers were probably still recuperating from an overdose of their Christmas dinner with all the trimmings and failed to appear against the Tool Room No. 1 in their scheduled game and the machinists had quite a hot time all by their lonesome; Alf. Griffin showing the boys how to win with 252 single and a trio amounting to 610.

Playing three men to a team, the Structual Steel and Tool Room No. 3 staged a merry duel, the former copping two games out of three. McFarlane was still able to display his usual good form and carried off high three honors 576, being closely followed by Art. Primeau with 566.

Industrial Control No. 2 were whitewashed by Tool Room No. 2 but fought hard all the way, being nosed out by a few points each time. Armour bounced the bottles for exceptionally good high single and high three scores, 302 and 708. For the winners Cox turned in the nicest scores, having 207 and 576.

Tool Room No. 4 had an easy time with Industrial Control No. 1, who, handicapped by a dummy, lost every game. Norm. Gordon showed up well for the Die Makers, pulling down the pins for totals of 275 and 605.

WALLY HAMMOND SCORES TWO CONSECUTIVE 200 RUN TOTALS

Completes Score of 200 Runs in First Innings of Third Match.

BLACKIE ALSO STARS.

Hammond's Team Mates Make Poor Showing, Scoring 53 Runs For Five Wickets.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 2. — (Canadian Press Cable.) — Walter Hammond, great Gloucestershire batsman, playing to-day in the first English innings in the third cricket test match against Australia, completed a score of 200 runs before being dismissed. As he scored 251 runs at Sydney he thus creates a world's record in International cricket by making two consecutive totals of 200 runs in test matches.

The score of England at lunch time to-day was 365 runs for six wickets as against Australia's first innings score of 397.

The showing of the English team, outside of the innings of Wally Hammond, was quite poor. The last five wickets fell in seventy minutes for only 53 runs today.

Wally Hammond alone came out of the innings with distinction.

Blackie Also Stars.

J. Blackie was the most successful bowler on the Australian side, taking six wickets for 94 runs.

The Australian side began their second innings poorly and had lost the valuable wickets of V. Richardson and R L. Hendry before the close of play. A serious situation was corrected by W. M. Woodful and A. Kippax, who settled down to a stubborn partnership and played out time.

The attendance amounted to 28,000. The weather was brilliant, while the wicket was faultless and fast.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

With the unusual record, as far as both play and star are concerned, of running in England for almost 500 consecutive appearances, Gordon McLeod returns to the Grand on Saturday, January 5th for one night in "A Bill of Divorcement" by Clemence Dane.

This, in itself, is ample proof of the exceptional drawing-power of the production.

The action of the play, which takes place on Christmas Day, 1932, revolves about Hilary Fairfield who, after suffering from shell shock overseas, returns home to be confined in asylum. He is kept there for 16 years, hearing little or nothing of the wife whom he married just before he left for overseas or of his daughter.

On Christmas Eve he escapes and, naturally, starts for home. He is practically cured; in any case his discharge from the institution would be little more than a formality. But the announcement that he is on his way, created pandemonium in the Fairfield household. His wife, unknown to him, has divorced him. She is about to be remarried and the matter is further complicated by the fact that she is obviously in love with her fiance. Fairfield's daughter, Sydney, is also engaged.

It is on this state of affairs that the curtain rises for the first act. Clearly, there are all the elements of an entirely unusual and very intense drama. As Miss Dane handles them, they become one of the most powerful of all modern plays. As the play will be presented here by Mr. McLeod, it is one of the most superb London productions seen in many seasons.

BRANSBY WILLIAMS

In the new version of "Oliver Twist" which will be seen at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday, January 9, for one performance, Mr. Bransby Williams presents a consecutive story. He has eliminated some of the superfluous dialogue, and has redrafted the order of events, giving to each its proper place in sequence and dramatic value. This cuts out many slow changes of scene, and enables the audience to follow the magnificent story without being handicapped, or having the thread of its hypnotic force broken by side excursions. Everything is given, but the minor events are presented as "cameos" briefly crossing the stage to keep the story well-knit and complete. Thus are the greater moments properly played up.

MERCHANT OF VENICE

Despite the use of draperies in place of scenery, the elimination of certain characters and scenes and the fact that the voice of the prompter was at times audible out in front, the presentation of "The Merchant of Venice" by the H. A. Kingston Players at the Grand Opera House, last night, was a thoroughly sound and pleasing performance. M. Kingston has surrounded himself with a capable company who gave fine effect in the beauty of their lines, and convincing realism to the portrayal of their parts.

The curtailed version used in last night's production in which some of the Belmont scenes were dropped, such characters as the Prince of Arragon and the Prince of Morocco dispensed with, and a first act scene switched to the third act, was very effective despite these liberties with the original and even the introduction of a modern ballad sung in the scene under Jessica's window did not seem as incongruous as might be expected. Mr. Kingston's Shylock was an excellent piece of stage artistry. His conception of the role was convincing: he made the jew a real flesh and blood figure and in the more dramatic speeches that make this part one of the greatest ever written, he was thoroughly at home. The Portia of Miss Jane Aldworth was a delightful portrayal. Miss Aldworth was equally happy in comedy scenes and in her outstanding work during the trial scene in which her "mercy" speech was a feature. Raymond Nasser was a manly and likeable Bassanio, giving an admirable performance especially in the casket-choosing scene. Fred Mann, a breezy and whimsical Gratiano and Hugo Pelham a dignified and edequate Antonio. James Williams' conception of the chief comedy role that of Launcelot Gobbo was delicious fooling, and the other parts were in good hands and well looked after.

Last night's audience have Mr. Kingston and his players to thank for a very delightful performance of Shakespere's immortal comedy.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"STEAMBOAT BILL JR., BRINGS BUSTER KEATON WITH ERNEST TORRENCE TO THE CAPITOL THE LAST HALF OF THIS WEEK COMMENCING TO-MORROW. EDDIE JACKSON, IN NEW SONGS.

"Steamboat Bill Jr." called by many who have seen it, Buster Keaton's funniest comedy, will head the bill at the Capitol Theatre Thursday, Friday, Saturday.

The frozen-faced funny man who gave us such farces at "College" "The General" and "Go West," now becomes the well-bred son of a burly Mississippi River boat captain. When things start going from bad to worse for the father, his "sissy" son arrives on the scene. Bill Jr. doesn't exactly give dad any helping hand when he falls in love with the daughter of the rival captain, nor does he help to regain the business which the other has stolen from his father. However, a cyclone comes along and then Buster—but it doesn't require such imagination to think of the antics he indulges in!

Ernest Torrence, featured player in many films since "The Covered Wagon," won a juicy role when he was cast as Buster's he-man parent. It marks his first comedy characterization in many a day. Heading Keaton's supporting cast are Marion Byron, a pretty little newcomer; Tom Lewis, and Tom McGuire.

If you saw "Charley's Aunt" or "The Better 'Ole," you don't need to be told that Charles "Chuck" Reisner is a good comedy director. Why shouldn't he be? His early training was secured at the elbow of Charlie Chaplin!

MIDNIGHT FROLIC

With a capacity house for the Midnight Frolic on Monday evening, the Capitol Theatre sped the old year on its way and welcomed the New with plenty of jollity and merriment. The big building resounded with the din of the noise-makers distributed to the crowd, who enjoyed an excellent program put on by the Kiwanis Club entertainers and "Smiling" Eddie Jackson, who acted as Master of Ceremonies and led in the community singing.

The Kiwanis Harmonica band of thirty pieces, led by C. S. Thompson, played some bright numbers, E. V. Morphet, as a blackface artist, and H. J. McCannan, had specialties, and little Orval Wainman was a small performer who earned plenty of applause with his songs and clog dance. Ted Crowe, as Father Time, and little Sophie Yeates, as Miss 1929, had a brief appearance, the former giving a little speech and the latter a dance.

George Bancroft is the hero of the feature picture, which has its last appearance to-night, and is entitled "The Docks of New York." The pair of fun-makers, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, have a characteristic comedy vehicle in "We Faw Down."

VIEWS ON SPORT

There is a good sheet of ice at the Brock Street Rink and the hockey players will show their form in their first baptism on ice to-night.

With the season already underway as far as the schedule shows and with one postponed game behind them the Petes should get right down to serious business and no fooling.

A good coach has been secured for the Intermediate team and the weeding out progress will begin right away. Every player who turns out will get a chance but only the good ones will have a chance of sticking.

It is to be hoped that the City League will be able to begin their schedule next week. Some of the teams have already had several practises. Percy Harrison had a smart squad of players at a fast workout on Sacred Heart rink last Saturday night.

* * * * * *

The referees in the Canadian-American League are getting so roughly treated that an ultimatum has been sent out to the managers of the teams holding them responsible in protecting the person of the referees. The players complain that president Clapp has brought these regrettable conditions on his own head because of the poor grade of officials he has hired to operate in this league.

* * * * * *

Referees are often called crooked by the low brow type of fan, who hides behind the crowd, and it is these loud mouthed citizens who cause the trouble. Generally the referee is fair and is calling them as he sees them.

The Oshawa Intermediates have had several workouts at the Varsity Arena in Toronto and they are therefore more fortunate than many of the amateur teams in Ontario. The Motor City are sparing no expense to round out a good team for the season.

This is announced to be the outstanding heavyweight battle of the winter season, and certainly with the large amount of bally-ho that will immediately begin, the fighter who wins this bout will likely make a reputation for himself.

MUCH RIVALRY BETWEEN TEAMS

Cricket Has Made Great Strides During Last Few Years in Australia.

PLAYERS TURN PRO.

(J. B.)

Cricket, which is a distinctively English game, is the chess of outdoor games There was, and is, good cricket in the U. S. down Boston way, good cricket in Ireland in a limited way, and fair cricket in Scotland, while in Canada there never was really top-notch cricket. In Australia, however, the game developed wonderfully and in 1878 the first Australian team came to England. Let it be said to begin with that all Australian teams coming to England and at home, have been strictly amateur, while England always has a number of professionals on her side, it being the English custom to do so At present in Australia the whole English team, saving the captain, is professional. Many Australians have been retained in England, to become professionals, and on several occasions Australia has been beaten in England by her own former native Australian players, for all Australia players are not only amateurs, but native Australians. In 1878 the Australians visiting England shocked the latter by proving a little more than a (cricket) match for it In 1882 and 1884 Australia proved superior. Then for many years, the English teams meanwhile visiting Australia alternately, England resumed unquestioned superiority, although the total "test" matches were about even in number between the two.

The war played havoc with both countries' cricket but it is well under way again, England having won back the "ashes" a few years ago, and now being in possession of them She has a very strong side in Australia this year. Cricket has become so much a standard of fair play that in England to say a thing "is not cricket" at once condemns it. Sport is the greatest school we have for teaching and compelling fair play Bluff won't go there, nor pretence The crowd is always from Missouri.

TO LEAD FIGHT FOR REFORM

Salvation Army Council Will Open Its Session in England To-morrow.

UNABLE TO SEE BROTHER.

LONDON, Jan. 2 (Canadian Press)—Commander Evangeline Booth, leader of the American branch of the Salvation Army and sister of General W. Bramwell Booth, world head of the Army, will lead the fight of the "Reformist Party" for change in the Army's constitution at a meeting of the high council of the organization, which opens Tuesday at Sunbury-on-the-Thames—a meeting which may develop into a contest of the American wing of the Army against other national units.

This was indicated in an interview obtained with her here last night after a private talk with Colonel Samuel Tucker of the Salvation Army headquarters here, a great freind of General Booth.

The two interviews clearly revealed the issue which will be fought out in the high council as to whether the Salvation Army is to continue under the undisputed rule of General Booth, with maintenance of his present right to choose his successor, or whether there is to be a constitutional reform, rescinding that right, modifying the general powers of the head of the Salvation Army, and perhaps involving the immediate retirement of General Booth, who has been seriously ill for some time.

Because of this situation there is a decided coolness between members of the Booth family. It became known last night that when Commander Evangeline Booth sought to see her brother, General Booth, she received a letter from her sister-in-law, Mrs. William Booth, informing her that it would be impossible, because of the Commander-in-chief's condition, to do so.

Commander Evangeline Booth's desire to meet Commissioner Catherine Booth, daughter of the General, also remains unrealized. When Commander Evangeline visited the Army's international headquarters here she sent a note to Commissioner Catherine asking for a meeting, but her niece sent an answer that it was impossible at that time.

RECEIPTS SHOW BIG INCREASE

Customs House Collects $147,-443.04 During Month of December.

YEAR ENDS MARCH 31.

December of the year just closed, proved a decidedly busy one at the Peterborough Customs House, the collections for that period amounting to $147,443.04 as compared with $127,-688.89, $19,754.15 less, in the corresponding period of 1927.

Since the fiscal year does not close until March 31, the only other totals available this morning were those for the nine months which followed March 31, 1928, and the same period of 1927. From April 1 to December 31, inclusive, the total collection was $1,374,342.76, as compared with $1,-333,839.32 in the corresponding period of 1927. Thus a gain of $40,503.44 is noted.

FRANCE NEEDS STRONG LEADER

Hon. Rodolpe Lemieux Sets Sail From Paris On Return To Canada.

FAITH IN POINCARE.

PARIS, January 2 (Canadian Press Cable). — Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Speaker of the House of Commons at Ottawa, before embarking on the steamer Ile de France today with Madame Lemieux on his way home, stated he believed Premier Poincare would be retained in office and would some time bring about a successful solution of the international problems confronting France. The present lassitude in French politics and the threatened Cabinet crisis, said Hon. Mr. Lemieux, only stressed the need for a Premier like Poincare who would say: "I come always when there is a crisis and then have to take action which is not always very pleasant."

Asked whether he thought there was any significance to be attached to the forthcoming visit of General Henri Gouraud to India, Hon. Mr. Lemieux replied: "Nothing at all. The General expressed a desire to go to India within the hearing of the British Ambassador at Paris, Sir William Tyrrell, and the latter arranged it, knowing the General was a close friend of the head of the British Army in India." The Commander-in-Chief is Sir William Birdwood. Annam and Cambodia, the French possessions in Indo-China, had no connection with the visit, he added.

As the only Canadian Associate Member of the Institute of France, taking the late Cardinal Mercier's seat, Hon. Mr. Lemieux attended the Academy of Science, Morales and Politics. He had visited Malines where he was received at the Cardinal's palace, and had seen all communications between Lord Halifax and the late Cardinal—even to the latter's book opened as he left it before death. The Canadian Speaker expressed satisfaction at the weekly attendance of about 400 at his own lectures at the Sorbonne, when Marshals Petain, Joffre, and Foch were invariably present.

Thirteen Again Jinx; Three Losers Have It

Thirteen was a jinx yesterday, as it was last year.

There were 13 votes registered at four polls for Dr. Morgan; at two polls for Mr. Rogers, and at one poll for Mr. Turner. These three finished together at the end of the column. No other candidate had a 13 occurring in his list.

There were two 13's in the Johnson Motors by-law, but one counteracted the other as they were on opposite sides of the question.

Last year, everyone who received a vote of 13 was defeated, six aldermen suffering the jinx.

UNITED STATES SIGNS TREATY

Canada Will Assist in Beautifying Niagara Falls and Horseshoe Rapids.

FOLLOWS INVESTIGATION.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 2. — Canadian Press. — The signing of a treaty with Canada for construction of works in the Niagara River above the Falls to maintain and improve the scenic beauty of the Falls and Rapids, was announced to-day by the State Department.

The treaty was signed at Ottawa today by the American Minister Phillips and the Prime Minister of Canada, along with a protocol prescribing in greater detail how the work is to be done.

The convention provides for a temporary diversion of an additional amount of water on each side of the boundary not to exceed 20,000 cubic feet per second, for the purpose of determining the efficacy of the works.

The treaty followed an extensive investigation and study of the subject by an international board created for that purpose in 1926 by the United States and Canada, and conforms closely with the Board's recommendations.

day, and lowest place was taken by poll 38, King George school, with 36 votes.

In the case of Mr. McNabb, poll 28, at Central school, dropped to third position, although it had 32 more votes than in his Board of Education campaign of 1928 when it was first! The leading poll, from Mr. McNabb's point of view this year, was 23, at Queen Mary school, with 100 votes. And poll 18, Prince of Wales school, which was third last year with 48 votes, doubled the number to take second place yesterday, while poll 14, City Buildings, which was second last year with 51 votes, was out of the picture yesterday, even with the extra vote which Mr. McNabb won there. In 1928 his lowest vote was 38, King George school, which gave him only 20; this year poll 7, South Central school, was low with 30 votes. This is two votes fewer than he received at poll 7 last year.

The only consistent poll in the voting for Mr. Lowe was 15, City Buildings, which gave him his lowest vote both years—22 to 1928, and 21 in 1929. His highest vote in 1928 was at poll 8, Prince of Wales school, 67; his highest yesterday was at poll 23, Queen Mary school, 79 votes. Second highest in 1928 was poll 20, St. Peter's school, with 62; yesterday poll 19, Prince of Wales took second place with 76 votes. Three polls, 12, 23 and 31, tied for third place in their vote for Mr. Lowe in 1928, each having 61, and this year poll 24, Queen Mary school shares the honor alone, with 74 votes.

KING GEORGE'S CONDITION IS ENCOURAGING

Bulletins Still Indicate That Road To Recovery Will Be Long, Hard One.

RESTLESS NIGHT.

Calcium Treatment Is Being Continued by the Attending Physicains.

LONDON, Jan. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—With King George entering the seventh week of his serious illness word came from the Royal bedside to-day which was encouraging in its general tone although it continued to indicate his road to recovery was likely to be a long, hard one.

The morning medical bulletin reported no change in the Kings condition this night was a restless one and to this fact his failure to continue the improvement reported last night presumably might be attributed.

The public had been warned, however, that the King's progress must be expected to be very slow. There was no apparent disposition to view the situation in any way differently from yesterday when cheering predictions of the monarch's sure if slow emergency from his prolonged ordeal came from authoritative quarters.

It was indicated in palace circles that to-day's bulletin was not regarded as unsatisfactory, although the King for the second time in succession spent a restless night, there has been no definite check in the progress he has been making.

This, it was noted, would appear to indicate that His Majesty has a slightly better reserve of strength upon which to draw.

Public Anxiety Is Lessened.

There was an undoubted lessening of public anxiety over King George's condition to-day and a disposition to accept the Home Secretary's confident belief that the worst was over.

It could not yet be said, however, that the King's margin of safety had greatly widened. It was felt that progress must continue slow and such improvements as noticeable must be slight for some time to come owing to the extreme weakness which completely prostrated the King.

There was also always a possibility of another check such as has followed previous favorable reports. As far as could be learned to-day, however, there was no sign at present of another check.

It was understood that the calcium treatment was to be continued.

With the calcium treatment being administered, the ultra-violet ray treatment was again omitted yesterday.

New Method.

"It is a new method of treatment not yet recorded in the medical text books," an official on the medical side of a big manufacturing chemists' establishment of London, remarked concerning the cacium treatment being adminstered to His Majesty. The patient takes it in the form of a soluble salt of calcium," this official explained. "The simplest way is by the mouth, but this is a slow method of getting it into the blood stream. Alternatively it can be injected in diluted form by an ordinary hypoderic syringe, into the veins, the purpose being to raise the lowered blood calcium to normal. The operation is quite simple and repeated at short intervals."

This chemist stressed the calcium treatmnt must not be mistaken for anything in the nature of a "last resort."

With medical announcement last night that King George had passed another good day and that the improvement noticed Tuesday had continued, the atmosphere around Buckingham Palace was one of assurance that the danger line had at last been left behind and that although complete recovery might take a long time, it was practically assured.

Split Stock Four For One

International Nickel Shareholders Discuss Proposal To Increase Stock Issue.

3,750,000 SHRES.

This Will Supply Stock To Offer To Mond Shareholders, The Examiner is Told.

TORONTO, Jan. 3.—(Special to The Examiner)—International Nickel shareholders did the expected at the meeting here this afternoon and endorsed the issue of 3,750,000 shares of preferred stock at $5 par value to enable the carrying out of the merger with Mond Nickel. The meeting was otherwise routine in character and was adjourned as a matter of form for a week. It was caculated after the meeting by one shareholder that the few men present at the meeing o-day represened $205,600,000 worth of Nickel stocks.

Practical assurance of the International-Mond merger is seen in the main order of business at a meeting of the Internation Nickel of Canada directors in the Dominion Bank building to-day to vote on the proposal to increase the stock of International Nickel in preparation for the merger arrangements.

The proposal provides for the issuance of 3,750,000 shares of preferred stock at $5 par value.

"This will supply stock to offer to the Mond shareholders," it was explained to The Examiner.

The actual International Nickel-merger arrangements are not to be a subject of discussion, but there is no doubt about their consummation.

Under the talked of terms of the merger, International Nickel is to split its stock four one and make an exchange for one of the new split shares for each share of Mond. In this case, the British position would be eminently satisfactory and would give them nearly 25 percent of the outstanding capital of the mergered sompany. Another factor entering into the situation is talk that preferred shares of Mond are to be permitted an exchange into the new common, thus further increasing the percentage.

TWENTY CASES FOUND IN CITY

Out break of Measles Has Been Encouraged By Holidays, States Dr. T. W. H. Young.

NINE REPORTED TO-DAY.

Increasing in number from two cases in November to 16 in December and 20 cases by to-day, the outbreak of measles which is sweeping the city has occasioned no end of extra work for City Officer of Health Dr. T. W. H. Young and City Sanitary Inspector Charles Stapleton. It has brought about a situation which, according to the former, can only be remedied by a faithful adherence to placard regulations by families in which the measles have entered.

Chief Whetung Claims "Flue" Epidemic Has Hit Curve Lake Indian Reserve

A letter received in the city to-day, written by Chief Daniel Whetung, intimates that the "flu" epidemic has broken out among the Indians on the Curve Lake Reserve, and is now spreading rapidly, with two deaths being already reported as the result of its ravages.

The Chief's letter states: "The 'flu' is just starting to do its work here. Two deaths this week since Sunday—William Knott and Mrs. Susan Smoke."

Dr. W. T. H. Young, City M.O.H. and medical officer to the Indians, when asked if the "flu" was bad among the Indians, said: "No. I have not heard of it, and I have not been called out to the Reserve to attend any epidemic. William Knott did not die of 'flu,' as he had been ill for a long time, and Mrs. Smoke had a severe cold."

Chief Whetung's letter was received by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.

SCHOOL BOARD HEARS REPORTS FOR YEAR 1928

Appreciative References Are Made to the Three Departing Old Members.

TOTAL RECEIPTS 53,518.56.

C. E. Jamieson Makes Application For Position of Vice-Principal of Collegiate.

With the closing of a year that presented many problems and witnessed triumphs, among which the completion of the new Vocational School was conspicuous, the Peterborough Board of Education for 1928 held its last meeting, a special one, in the secretary's office, George Street, last evening. The business slate, heavy with annual reports and statements, among which was the general statement of the Board, was not all that marked the meeting, for there were considered, in brief but appreciative references, the departure from the Board of three of its members, J. F. Strickland, W. R. Turner, Jr., and E. R. Wilson. Preliminary consideration of the appointment of a vice-principal at the Collegiate and Vocational School was also given and the matter passed on, with several others, to the pleasure of the incoming board. Last night's meeting also brought to a close the chairmanship of E. Bruce Fowler, who, during the evening, expressed his appreciation of the splendid spirit of co-operation and good-will accorded him by the other members of the Board, individually and collectively. With due respect to the incoming members whom he considered valuable men, he regretted the departure from the Board of the three members because of the work which they had done during their tenure of office.

Reference to a Vice-Principal.

During the reading of communications, there came to the notice of the meeting, an application from C. E. Jamieson, of the Collegiate staff, who had understood that the Board would be considering the appointment of a vice-principal to assist Principal H. R. H. Kenner.

Mr. Strickland was the first to speak to the communication, referring to the qualifications of Mr. Jamieson and pointing to the necessity for the vocational departments having some representation in the control of the school.

Mrs. W. R. Morris felt that it was a rather big issue to bring before the Board at the last meeting of the year, while Chairman Fowler believed that there should be some one upon whom the responsibility might fall in case of Mr. Kenner's enforced absence, and also to enable him to have more time in which to carry on relations with other schools. W. R. Turner, while in favor of appointing an assistant to Mr. Kenner, considered that a resolution passed on to the incoming Board would be in order.

On motion of Dr. Yelland, seconded by E. R. Wilson, the communication was received and referred to the 1929 Board.

Another subject of discussion was the complaint or complaints received regarding the regulation whereby a certified cheque for $100 must accompany an application for use of the Collegiate auditorium. However, it was pointed out at the meeting that some such provision is made by governing bodies of nearly all properties of this kind.

Financial Statement.

A wealth of information was contained in the six-page general statement of receipts and expenditures of the Board of Education during the year ending December 31. There was revealed the fact that the total receipts had been $563,518.56, to which the municipal assessment on the Collegiate Institute contributed $68,800.00, the proceeds of debentures sold re the extension to the Collegiate Institute contributed $308,556.68, and the municipal assessment, public school contributed $158,700.00. The next largest contribution, $7,685.50, was from the County of Peterborough for county pupils attending the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, while School Section Number 3, Smith, paid in an additional $1,516.60 for tuition of pupils attending Queen Alexandra or other public schools in the city.

Under the heading "Expenditures" was found detailed information which showed that the salaries of teachers, officers and janitors of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School had amounted to $70,225.30 during the year, while those of the public schools had totalled $144,969.53. An expenditure of $5,750.00 had been made in purchasing the Grace Church property, while the largest single ex-

Hip Flask Rum Runners Pay $22,647 In Fines To United States Customs Officers During 1928

NIAGARA, FALLS, N.Y., Jan. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Hip flask rum runners paid $22,647 in fines to United States customs officers on the International Bridges here during 1928 when they were intercepted trying to smuggle a bottle or two of ale or liquor into this country from Canada. T. M. Hennessy, deputy collector of customs in charge of the Falls port, said to-day. Fines of $5 for each bottle of liquor and $2 for each bottle of ale were imposed. No arrests were made in these cases, the customs inspectors merely confiscated the contraband and collected the fines.

During the year 80 automobiles were seized on the bridges in this city and Lewiston and $30,000 worth of Canadian ale and liquor contained in the cars was confiscated. Six freight cars with their cargoes of $150,000 worth of Canadian ale and whiskey were seized in the railroad yards here. The liquor and ale in most cases were destroyed by being thrown from the lower arch bridge into the river.

NATIVE CONFERENCES DISCUSS FUTURE CONSTITUTION OF INDIA

Many Reforms For Greater Indian Empire Meet Approval of Four Bodies.

DIFFERENCES REMAIN.

National Liberal Federation Favors Immediate Dominion Status—Boycott Commission.

NEW DELHI, India, January 3. — (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters.)—The future constitution of the great Indian Empire has been the subject of four important native conferences in India over Christmas. Eliquence and ingenuity were displayed at all the gatherings, but serious communal differences remained uncomposed and there was no attempt to direct the energies of the conferences to co-operation with the Simon Statutory Reform Commission, which is continuing to collect data for the colossal task of devising practical reforms. This commission has just arrived at Shillong in Assam.

The Moslem conference was chiefly concerned with stressing safeguards for the Moslems in any reforms while the conference and later National Congress of the all-parties body favored conferring of dominion status within a year. The National liberal federation favored "immediate Dominion status" and a boycott of the Simon Commission.

The All-India Moslem Conference opened here last Monday bringing together Moslems from all classes and sections in all parts of India. They supported the main resolution demanding that whatever constitution may be evolved, Moslem culture must be safeguarded. They significantly disregarded the report of Notilal Nehru, issued some months ago, which set down lines of self government.

Dominion Status.

The All-Parties Conference opening at Calcutta on December 22 was in the nature of a preliminary debate before the National Congress, which opened a week later. The first of these conferences voted in favor of Dominion status, and Mahatma Ghandi's resolution affirming this demand was carried against the pressing claims of the Bengal bloc for independence and severance of the British connection. Ghandi thus scored a great personal triumph but his stipulation in the resolution that Dominion status must be granted India within a year recalls the reiterated promises of self government within definite but constantly retreating dates, made by Ghandi before his imprisonment by the authorities and eclipse half-a-dozen years ago.

The Ghandi resolution lays down a comprehensive program which he had long vainly sought to see his countrymen observe, including removal of the ban on untouchables or outcasts; enforcement of the prohibition of alcohol; boycott on foreign cloth, and concentration on the simple hand spinning wheel.

An interesting development of this Congress is the decision for the first time to interfere in internal affairs of the Indian States. A resolution was passed demanding the native princes introduce responsible government in their realms.

The Fourth Conference, the National Liberal Federation, met at Allahabad, and voted, as stated above, in favor of immediate Dominion status and boycott of the Simon Commission.

Seymour Was Not In 1928 A Marrying Township

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 3 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Statistics for the township of Seymour for 1928 show a decrease in the death rate and an increase in births. The marraiges within the township limits were only three in number. During 1928 there were forty-five births and thirty-seven deaths, both figures being the largest for the past eight years. Three marriages is considered an exceptionally low number.

DIES SUDDENLY.

William Craig Chisholm, General Counsel of the Canadian National Railways, and formerly City Solicitor of Toronto, died suddenly from a heart attack at his home here early to-day. He was sixty-five years of age.

313 PLUMBING PERMITS GIVEN

1928 Was a Year of Progress According To Inspector's Reports.

FEWER RELIEF ORDERS.

Indicative of an unusually busy year in plumbing, resulting in improved sanitary conditions within the city, records kept by Arthur G. Metheral, plumbing inspector, provide interesting comparisons with 1927. In discussing the year just closed, Mr. Metheral expressed the opinion that a greater progress had been made than in other years, and to prove his contention, his books indicate that 313 permits for plumbing had been issued for the installation of 217 water closets, 137 baths, 202 basins, 82 sinks, 42 laundry tubs, 7 combination trays and 6 urinals. In addition, 163 buildings were fitted with sanitary conveniences of which number, 97 were old houses. There are now left in the city 252 old houses in which the conveniences have yet to be installed. In addition, there were 986 inspections made, including those of water and smoke tests, layouts and miscellaneous.

In comparison, he quoted figures of 1927 when there were only 244 permits issued for the installation of 202 water closets, 91 baths, 153 basins, 157 sinks, 37 laundry tubs, 6 combination trays and 14 urinals. The total number of buildings plumbed was 131, of which 61 were old buildings, while the total of inspections was 814.

Relief Work Report

Mr. Metheral, in addition to his duties of plumbing inspector, has charge of relief work in the city, and his summing up of this phase of his duties showed that in 1928, orders for provisions issued, numbered 1,026 as compared with 1,149 in 1927, an improvement, while the orders for fuel were also cut down from 304 in 1927 to 269 in 1928. In the year just closed there were 80 orders issued for indigent patients, 55 patients were refused; there were 6 orders for the ambulance and 2 for funerals, while a total of 489 inspections or investigations were made.

In 1927, orders for indigent patients totalled 73, a smaller number than in 1928, while 47 patients were refused as compared with 55 in the past year. Orders issued for the ambulance were up to 10, there were no orders for funerals, and the total of inspections or investigations was up to 580.

FORTY CASES OF INFLUENZA IN ONE HAMLET

Deputy Minister Says There Is Little Change in Outbreak in Province.

MORE DEATHS IN TORONTO.

Undertakers at Beaverton and Fenelon Falls Have Both Died of Dread Disease.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 3 (Canadian Press).—With the exception of forty cases reported from the little village of Elphin in Lanark County, the Ontario Department of Health issued a report to-day stating that there was no change in the influenza epidemic in the province.

"The outbreak at Elphin is not unique," Dr. W. J. Bell, Deputy Provincial Minister of Health, stated. "There are other villages in the same condition all over Ontario. There are villages with the entire population down with the disease in its various stages. There is nothing to be added to what has already been said. We are hoping that the colder weather will have some effect in clearing up the spread of the disease. In the meantime all we can say is, keep out of crowds and if you feel ill get into bed."

Owing to the fact that most of the authority is vested in the municipalities under local boards of health, the provincial department can act only in a more or less advisory capacity. Close touch is being kept on the situation, but there is no manner of estimating either the number of deaths or cases in the province at the present time.

Twenty-One Deaths

Twenty-one deaths since noon yesterday were reported at the city clerk's office to-day. Eleven of them were influenza with complications of pneumonia and bronchial pneumonia and eight to pneumonia alone, while only two were reported due to influenza without complications.

An adequate supply of teachers to carry on when the city schools reopen next week is reported by Chief Inspector Moshier, who stated the situation would be readily met with the regular occasional staff and reserves.

Florists throughout the city are doing a record business in flowers for sick rooms and in some cases the supply has become exhausted. Roses in particular are very scarce. A local dealer reported having to send to Chicago for a fresh supply.

LINDSAY, Ont., Jan. 3 (Canadian Press).—Three deaths have taken place at Beaverton during the past four days from 'flu and pneumonia, including that of the undertaker, Neill Black. Louis Deyman, undertaker at Fenelon Falls, also passed away. A Lindsay collegiate student, Howard Nesbitt, passed away at his home in Glenarm, north of here.

ROSENEATH, Jan. 3 (Examiner Correspondence). — Influenza and heavy colds still hold sway in the village and surrounding community. The epidemic shows little change either in regard to the number of cases or the seriousness of the disease. There is no alarming increase reported. The medical officer of health, Dr. H. Hershey, is not considering taking any emergency measures in regard to the epidemic, as there have been no deaths recorded from this cause.

DR. J. D. McLEAN TO HEAD BOARD

Appointment Will Probably Be Made By Cabinet To-day.

FORMER B.C. PREMIER.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Dr. J. D. MacLean former Premier of British Columbia will be appointed chairman of the Farm Loan Board, it is understood here. The appointment will probably be made at the meeting of the cabinet this afternoon. Official announcement must, of course, await action by the government. The Farm Loan Board will administer rural credits legislation approved by parliament. Dr. MacLean is now on his way east and will probably arrive in the capital next week.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 3.—The theft of fifty cents, his second criminal offense, drew John Brown a ten-year sentence in the Ohio State Penitentiary.

Two Small Sons Are Shot

Charles H. Twells Is In Picton Jail Facing Charge of Murder.

OUTCOME OF QUARREL.

Arthur Corfield Is In Hospital With a Bullet Wound in His Head.

PICTON, Ont., Jan. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Confined in Prince Edward County Jail, Charles H. Twells, Consecon farmer faces a double charge of murder following the death of his two sons in a shooting affray in which Arthur Corfield, his brother-in-law, was also shot and lies in a grave condition in Belleville General hospital. Twells is expected to appear before Magistrate R. H. Norman to-day and a week's remand is probable.

The condition of Corfield was stated by physicians to-day to be still critical although he was resting more comfortably. A bullet was extracted from his head last night.

A jury was empannelled last night at Consecon by Coroner Thompson of Wellington and the bodies of the two children viewed after which the inquest was adjourned until Friday afternoon.

Is Remanded

Dr. Charles Twells, a haggard figure, looking more than sixty years of age, appeared before Magistrate R. A. Norman here to-day for a preliminary hearing of two charges of murder, following the fatal shooting of his two sons in their home at Consecon last night. He was remanded for eight days.

BELLEVILLE, January 3. Canadian Press. — Kenneth and Colin Twells, aged 9 and 11 respectively, are dead, and Arthur Corfield, 31, is lying in the Belleville general hospital, with mortal wounds, following a shooting affray at Consecon, Prince Edward County, last night, at 6 o'clock. Chas. Twells, father of the two dead boys, and brother-in-law of Corfield, is in Prince Edward County jail, and will probably face two charges of murder.

The affair is one of the worst in the history of the district and the tiny village of Consecon has been rocked to its very depths by the shooting, which was to all intents premeditated. At midnight last night, Corfield was still alive.

At 6 o'clock, Corfield who had been working a farm with Twells, went to the latter's home to settle up the share of the crop which had been harvested, taking with him David Mattis at a witness. As he entered Twells' home, the latter pulled a .32-calibre revolver from his pocket, and fired point blank, the charge entering Corfield's head just behind the ear. Corfield fell to the floor and managed to crawl to the door. Mattis, who had been standing outside, disappeared according to the story, and the wounded man made his way on his hands and knees down the road.

Found by Neighbors.

Corfield was found by neighbors and rushed to the office of Dr. Vanluven. The Belleville police were notified and Sergeant Booth and Constable Jackson answered the call with the ambulance. When they reached the scene, Corfield was bleeding profusely, and small hopes were held out for him at that time.

Chief Constable Biddle of Picton, and Provincial Constable Morris, had arrived by this time, and the four officers proceeded to Twells' house, 50 yards up the road. They found the alleged murderer in a corner of a front room cowering in the corner, with his wife in another room practically prostrate. The two lads were lying on the floor, apparently having been killed instantly. Twells, to all purposes, had planned to do away with his wife and himself, but had lost his nerve. He was taken into

AVIATOR IS AWAY ON TRIP INTO NORTH

Captain 'Wop' May Commences Daring Flight With 500,000 Units of Anti-toxin.

DIPHTHERIA RAGING.

Plane Was Forced Down at McLennan, Alberta, But Renewed Trip.

McLENNAN JUNCTION, Alta., Jan. 3.—(Canadian Press)—Making a short run down the ice, the tiny 'plane with which Captain "Wop" May and Vic Horner are rushing aid to the diphtheria stricken population of the lower Peace River country, left here at 9:40 a.m. The flyers expect to make Peace River town in little more than half an hour, where they will refuel and then head north into the unknown with their precious cargo of diptheria anti-toxin, sent by the provincial department of health.

Confidence was expressed by the two men before they left they would be able to make the Sheridan Lawrence Ranch at Fort Vermilion before dark on Thursday. After the ease with which the plane landed on the ice here on Wednesday evening, no fears are felt for the landing to be made at Fort Vermilion. Messages have been sent out by radio to Fort Vermilion to have a landing prepared at the fort.

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 3 (Canadian Press).—The airplane carrying anti-toxin to Fort Vermilion and Little Red River arrived at Peace River safely at 10.32 this morning, according to word reaching here. The flyers expected to take off almost at once and hope to reach Fort Vermilion this afternoon.

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 3 (Canadian Press).—On an errand of mercy, carrying 500,000 units of anti-toxin to two diphtheria stricken northern posts—Fort Vermilion and Little Red River—an airplane piloted by Captain "Wop" May, Canadian war flyer, and carrying Vic Horner, a war veteran, as a passenger, left here shortly after noon yesterday. It was forced down at Maclennan, Alberta, but it will continue on its way to the two northern posts early to-day and despite the unexpected delay probably will reach Fort Vermilion, which is 600 miles from Edmonton, late this afternoon.

No 'plane has ever gone before into that bleak and little-known section of the northland. The journey of Captain May and his passenger follows an appeal sent out by Dr. H. A. Hamman, Provincial Health Officer in the north. The appeal reached here New eYar's Day. It was dated December 18, and told of the death of A. Logan, Factor in charge of the Hudson Bay Company at Fort Vermilion, and of the diphtheria epidemic which was threatening the 200 inhabitants of the two posts. It had been taken, a distance of 167 miles from Little Red River to Peace River by dog team and relayed by wire to Edmonton. At the time the message was sent by Dr. Hamman other deaths were feared.

May and Horner have taken chances aplenty with their lives before this —May when he rode the skies of France, with Baron Richthofen riding his tail and Horner as an infantryman in the gallant Princess P... But this is the apogee of their ca... to sail into the unknown in a machine to save lives and not destroy.

No one knows if there is sufficient gasoline at the trading posts to supply the plane for its return. No one knows here whether a... at the posts has made prepara... for the plane to land. The plane is equipped with wheels only and if a landing field has not been made for the daring aviators, a mishap in bringing their plane to earth may occur.

Architect Plans "Two-Decker" Avenue To Solve Traffic Problems Of Paris

PARIS, January 3. — Among several new projects for the reconstruction of Paris, the plan of Andre Ventre, chief architect of the French Government, has attracted the most attention.

Ventre is an exponent of air and light, and he vigorously condemns the projects which would utilize a system of underground streets for the improvement of traffic conditions. "Why go to the expense of digging down in the earth, into sewers and wells and dampness when we have the surface to work on at infinitely less expense. Underground streets mean added sources of bacteria, sunless, unventilated centres for tuberculosis germs to thrive in," is the way the Government architect describes the subterranean system.

Ventre has a plan which is now being exhibited at the annual salon in the Grand Palais, showing a series of congested areas of Paris with elevated streets for pedestrians. For example, at the corner of the Grand Boulevards and the Faubourg Montmartre, which is the gateway for a constant stream of traffic coming across Paris from one side to the other, he would leave the present street level as it is. Over it Ventre would build another thoroughfare even with the height of the first storey. This upper street would be for pedestrians only.

Campbellford Will No. Election of Civic Off. For 1929.

CHAS. H. DAVIDSON MAYOR.

Major J. M. Bygott Is Returned To Reeveship For Third Successive Year.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 3.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence). — This year the town will not be called upon to meet the expense of an election. Contrary to expectations the municipal offices were filled by acclamation in every case. When the time for qualification expired, it was evident that only enough candidates had qualified their nominations to filled the offices set forth in the election by-law. The inaugural meeting will be held in the council chamber at eleven o'clock on the morning of January fourteenth.

Elected for 1929

Charles H. Davidson—Mayor.
Major J. M. Bygott—Reeve.
J. N. Stone—Deputy Reeve.
Councillors: R. H. Cole, John J. O'Sullivan, W. J. Abernethey, J. R. Wilkinson, W. S. Wiggins and Alex. M. MacDonald.
S. J. Abernethy—Water and Light Commissioner.
Dr. H. O. Richardson; Dr. H. B. Longmore and Dr. O. C. Watson; for school trustees.

The Nominations

J. M. Bygott, Reeve for 1927 and 1928, was returned to office by acclamation. There were no others nominated. Much applause greeted the announcement. The three retiring members of the school board were nominated for another term and were returned by acclamation. There were three nominations for the two water and light commissioners to be elected. But if G. A. Kingston does not allow his name to stand, there will be acclamation in this case as well. For the six councillors to be appointed, there were seventeen nominated but some have already signified their intention to withdraw and others are aspiring to other offices.

Charles H. Davidson, ex-warden of the united counties, former reeve and deputy reeve, and also holder of several other municipal offices at various times, will be mayor of Campbellford for 1929. When Nominations closed, there was another name, that of G. A. Kingston, the retiring mayor, on the list, but it was not to be allowed to stand since he has declared himself as not being a candidate for the office for another year. He was nominated by W. S. Wiggins and R. H. Cole. Davidson's nominators were R. J. Allen and Dr. O. Watson.

For the second time, J. M. Bygott becomes reeve of the town by acclamation. When the announcement was made there was loud applause which only increased when the major rose to thank his nominators and address the meeting of the ratepayers. He was nominated by Dr. H. O. Richardson and W. S. Wiggins.

There were four hats in the ring with R. J. Allen holding two nominations. R. J. Allen was nominated by Dr. O. C. Watson and G. A. Kingston; also by L. A. Denike and John Gay. W. J. Abernethy was nominated by W. I. Stillman and H. M. Donald; R. H. Cole by J. L. Irwin and W. O. Dorie; J. N. Stone by Dr. H. O. Richardson and T. H. Rowe.

There was a long list for council. A. T. Linton was nominated by J. M. Bygott and J. A. Jeffs. W. S. Wiggins will not be in the field. He was nominated by G. A. Kingston and T. H. Rowe. J. R. Wilkinson was nominated by J. A. Jeffs and R. H. Cole. W. J. Abernethy, nominated by W. S. Wiggins and Dr. H. O. Richardson, will not stand for council but declared himself a candidate for deputy reeve.

FRENCH-CANADIANS WERE EN ROUTE TO NEW HOMES IN PETERBOROUGH.

While Alexandre Dupuis, former resident of Cornwall, was driving with his wife, four children and Edgar Rivet, a fellow-employee, and the latter's wife, to Peterborough, Dec. 31, his car was struck at the Cataraqui level crossing by C.N.R. train No. 14 en route from Toronto to Montreal. Every occupant of the car died almost instantaneously, and wreckage was thrown 3,000 feet by the mile-a-minute flyer.

Dupuis, 46, had been employed by a Vermont marble company and was removing his own and Rivet's family to their new homes in Peterborough, where they were to work. The layout shows: (1) Dupuis and his 28-year-old wife; (2) Celeste Dupuis, aged 4; (3) Modeste, 6, the eldest child; (4) shows a view of Cataraqui crossing taken opposite the warning cross-arm, showing the Black house on west side of the highway, telephone and Hydro poles and trees; (5) Edgar Rivet and his young wife, Rose; (6) is the home of Saul Geray, where Dupuis and his family resided in Cornwall, and (7) is the home of Thomas Rivet where Edgar and his wife lived. In (8) the picture shows the wreckage of the car which was carried on the front of the locomotive, part of it still remaining there when the train arrived at Kingston. (9) shows Mrs. Dupuis and the youngest child, Jeannette, aged 2. In (10) is shown the spot where the body of the car was thrown by the locomotive.

BOYS TELL STORY OF TRAGEDY AT THE CATARAQUI CROSSING

Thirteen Year Old Youth Warned Motorists of Coming Train.

TRIED TO MAKE IT.

Bodies of Eight Victims Were Horribly Mangled, Coroner Tells Jury.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 3 (Canadian Press).—After half an hour's deliberation last evening, the coroner's jury investigating the Cataraqui Crossing fatality, returned the following verdict:

"We agree that Alexander Dupuis, Mary Dupuis, Modeste Dupuis, Celina Dupuis, Juliette Dupuis, Gerard Dupuis, Edgar Rivet and Mary Rivet came to their death on December 31, while riding in a motor car which was struck by C.N.R. train No. 14 at Cataraqui Crossing, and we further agree that the accident was caused by the negligence of the driver of the motor car in question. We further recommend that the Canadian National Railway place gates at this particular crossing."

The folly of motorists trying to beat the train to level crossings was dramatically told last evening by two small boys at the inquest into the deaths of Alexander Dupuis, his wife and four small children, and Edgar Rivet and his wife of Cornwall, who were instantly killed on the afternoon of New Year's Eve at Cataraqui, when they lost out in their mad dash to cross ahead of the Canadian National Chicago-to-Montreal fast train.

The stories of the two small boys, Freddie and Arthur Sparks, aged 13 and 9 years, was that they saw an automobile approaching the crossing and at the same time heard the whistle of the approaching train, and saw it speeding toward the scene of the fatality. Freddie held out his hand to stop the car and, as it drew up beside him, shouted to the driver, "Hey, mister, here comes the train; if you don't stop you'll get killed." The answer was an exclamation, followed by the remark, "I can make it!"

Then, according to Freddie, "the car kept on down the road. I knew the train was going to hit it, and I turned and watched. When it came to a stone house, close to the track, it seemed to slacken speed, but it kept on and the train struck it. I then ran home and told mother."

E. Sleeman and Thomas Burtch, who live close to the crossing, both gave evidence of the locomotive whistling for the crossing and of the speed of the approaching automobile, which they placed at about 30 to 35 miles an hour.

Engineer Whalen and Fireman Jewey stated that the locomotive was travelling at a speed of about 55 miles an hour, and that all crossing signals had been given, the engine bell ringing even until the car was struck and two long and two short blasts of the whistle sounded, the last blast being given not more than 100 feet from the crossing where the car was struck.

Coroner M. J. Morrison stated that the bodies of the eight people were horribly mangled; with three of them having their heads completely cut off. The oldest Dupuis boy had the back of his cut off, and only the face remained, while the bodies of the women were also horribly lacerated, particularly the heads. The body of Dupuis was also unrecognizable.

GIVEN ACCLAMATION.

Campbellford Fire Chief Elected Mayor While Fighting Last Fire Of Year 1928

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 3.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence). As if playing a prank to celebrate the coming of the New Year, the fire fiend paid a visit to the fire chief's garage at ten minutes to nine on the evening of December 31st. Fortunately there was little or no damage done.

Charles Davidson, chief of the fire department, had been nominated for mayor for 1928 and was attending the nomination meeting in the Regent theatre when the alarm sounded. To his surprise he found the truck waiting in front of his own place of business about one hundred yards from the fire hall. The work shop of the garage was filled with black smoke so dense that the electric lights which were burning brightly, could not be seen when standing directly under them. Even the powerful search light of the fire truck was useless. The dense black smoke was pouring out of that section of the building and it was with difficulty that the firemen groped their way to the oil-burning stove which was the source of the trouble. In a few minutes it was all over and the fire chief returned to the nomination meeting to learn that he had automatically been elected mayor by acclamation when G. A. Kingston, also nominated, said he would not be a candidate or 1929.

COMMANDER EVANGELINE BOOTH SECURES CONFERENCE WITH NIECE

Supporters of American Backer Hopeful of Success in Re-organization.

CAREFUL CANVASS MADE.

Councillors of Army at Present Are General Booth's Personal Representatives.

LONDON, Jan. 3 (Canadian Press) —Commander Evangeline Booth was in conference to-day with her niece, Commissioner Catharine Booth at international headquarters of the Salvation Army.

This was the first time that the American commander had met any member of General Bramwell Booth's family since her arrival several days ago.

Supporters of Evangeline Booth, American commander of the Salvation Army, believed to-day that she was assured the necessary three-quarters majority of the general council to effect the removal of General William Bramwell Booth as commander-in-chief. These votes would also enable her to carry our her program for the reorganization of the Army.

It was understood that if Miss Booth be elected to head the Army, she would probably effect its reorganization and then would retire.

Careful Canvass.

An official of the Evangeline Booth group said that the estimate of the necessary majority was based on a careful canvass. At International headquarters, however, those who support General Booth refused to concede a probable victory to the other camp. They said they believed the council would vote confidence in the General and continue his leadership.

It was acknowledged, however that certain of those supporting the General would favor a change in the method of choosing a successor and other administrative reforms. A high official said that should the elective method be adopted for the future choice of the Army's leader, he thought the rank and fyle throughout the Army might demand a similar method of choosing the minor officials of various departments, corps and other units.

The councillors at present are the General's personal representatives and appointees and carry their authority directly from him to the various countries in which they serve. The officials said that their views therefore were not necessarily representative of the army and the countries in which they served. He thought this would be an issue at the forthcoming conference.

Should the elective method be extended throughout the Army, one official said, "there will be no more Army."

Another Sees Signs Of An Open Winter

With the sudden cold snap over the holiday, it is believed that Ol' Man Winter has come to stay. Several residents in the district are reported to have seen signs of an open winter during the mild weather of last week. Walter Brown of Springville is accounted as being one of these. While in the woods one day Mr. Brown cut down a small maple tree, and, much to his amazement, found the sap to be running. Later on in the same day while up in the hayloft Mr. Brown chanced to find a hen with a fresh brood of chickens laid away.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The export demand for grain here yesterday was of a very limited character and the volume of business transacted was small, but there was an increased inquiry from local buyers for oats and sales of some fair sized lots of No. 1 and No. 3 feed were made on a C.I.F. basis. The car lot trade with the country was quiet but the tone of the market was steady.

The trade in spring and winter wheat flour was quiet but values for all grades were unchanged.

A moderate amount of business was done in all lines of millfeed and the undertone to the market was firm. Standard grades of rolled oats were unchanged.

Jobbing prices for eggs were well maintained but wholesale storage prices were reduced three cents per dozen and extras sold at 32c, firsts at 29c, and seconds at 25c per dozen. The receipts were 2,579 cases.

Little business was done in butter but values remained unchanged. Receipts were 42 packages.

An easier feeling prevailed in the market for western No. 1 white fodder cheese owing to the fact that there was practically no demand for this grade and prices were reduced to 17½c to 17¾c per lb. The trade in summer made western No. 1 white and colored was quiet and prices were steady. Receipts were 97 boxes.

The potato trade was dull and featureless. Prince Edward Island whites sold at 84c, and Green Mountains at 88c per 90 lbs. in bags. New Brunswick potatoes were offered at 62½c to 65c per 90 lbs. in bulk.

Canadian beans continued to sell at $5.25 to $5.40 per bushel, wholesale.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. Canadian Press. Price upturns in the wheat market yesterday resulted largely from trading manoeuvres based on wintry weather. Wheat future deliveries were bought as a result of possible damage to domestic winter wheat now in the ground, whereas corn was sold owing to better conditions for movement of the corn crop.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at the same as Monday's finish to 1-4c higher. Corn finished 3-8c to 3-4c down. Oats varied from a shade decline to 1-8c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 30c.

Spread transactions between wheat and corn were an outstanding feature of yesterday's grain trade, a favorite procedure being to make purchases of wheat simultaneous with sales of corresponding quantities of corn. This character of trading developed after an opening dip that wheat values here underwent responsive to unlooked-for setbacks of wheat quotations at Liverpool. Chicago wheat speculators, however, soon gave increasing attention to advices that winter wheat fields throughout west and northwest Kansas and also in Nebraska had very little snow protection by which to withstand any severe low temperature.

Forecasts that colder weather would prevail to-day in parts of the west where wheat is minus a snow blanket, gave subsequent additional impetus to the buying side of the wheat market; on the other hand, traders opposed to an advance in wheat values were active in pointing out that despite winter killing last season having been the heaviest ever known 1928 ended with wheat in the year's lowest prices.

Furthermore, talk was current that over-production of domestic wheat had taken place in 1928 notwithstanding the unusual amount of winter killing, and that the effect of this over-production would be witnessed in 1929. Under such circumstances wheat failed to hold the best prices of the day.

Although corn was easier on account of cold weather and because of spread trading between corn and wheat, the corn market nevertheless showed at times stubborn resistance to price declines. A bullish influence was the fact that rural offerings of corn was small, and were mainly above buyers' views. Moreover cables indicated that European continental demand for United States corn would be in evidence again before long. Sales of corn here to-day included 20,000 bushels exporters. Oats trading was light but as a rule the market was firm.

Provisions tended upward owing to scattered buying in the face of the fact that in some cases hogs were 20c lower.

TORONTO, Jan. 3.—Post-holiday business on the local butter market yesterday was featured with the announcement by the Toronto branch of the Canadian Produce Association that local storage creamery butter holdings on January 1 this year stood at 32,698 boxes. This is a decrease of 29,117 boxes from Dec. 1, 1928, at 51,815 boxes, and a drop of 26,037 boxes with the same day in January a year ago, at 58,735 boxes. These figures refer to Toronto stocks in store only.

There were no further developments in the market yesterday, but the undertone was easier in contrast to the recent firm trend on spot. Demand was light, and in a general way was moving out in small lots at a range of from 41c to 41¼c per lb. with a maximum price of 41¾c per lb. paid for extra fancy creamery butter.

Cheese in stock at Toronto on Jan. 1, 1929, totalled 26,549 boxes, against 33,927 boxes held in store on December, 1928, and 23,121 boxes reported held here on Jan. 1 last year.

At a glance it will be seen that withdrawals of cheese in the final month of last year were very light, this due to the fact that demand from any source was strictly limited to a hand-to-mouth business.

There is a continued absence of demand again this week, and trade was practically at a standstill yesterday, with dealers quoting a nominal range of from 21¼c to 21¾c per lb. for No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and Government graded, delivered basis.

With the trade anticipating no revision in prices in either direction until to-day or to-morrow, the market for fresh eggs and storage grades was moving quietly at steady prices. A fair amount of business was passing, mostly for immediate requirements. If mild weather again makes an appearance and liberal receipts keep coming, further depression may set in.

The annual Christmas treat was held on Friday afternoon in St. John's Parish Hall of St. John's Sunday school beginning at four o'clock. The attendance was very good in spite of the prevalence of colds and the children had a jolly time. The teachers of the school ably seconded by Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Creighton and a number of the mothers, entertained them with games which children love and to the onlooker it was like a very large family party. The tree was covered with gifts for the various children and each child received a present and a box of candy.

In addition to the presents, prizes were given in each class for the year's work.

In Miss Winnie Payne's class, Elsie Chappell and Joe Kendall were the prize winners.

LAKEFIELD BAPTIST CHURCH.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 3.—The annual Sunday School entertainment and Christmas Tree of the Lakefield Baptist Church was held on Friday evening with the pastor, Rev. J. B. McCormack in charge. Recitations were given by Evelyn Tedford, Cameron Johnston, Lorne Foster, Norman David, Gerald Tedford and Freddy Darling. The recitation of welcome was given by Edith and Alex Nicholls. Other numbers on the program included a chorus by the school; exercise, "Three Wise Men"; instrumental selection, Alex Nicholls; song, "Merry Christmas Day" by five girls; mouth organ solo; "Christmas, Christmas" by three boys and a reading by Ruby Tedford. The Christmas Tree and Santa Claus were probably the most heartily and generally appreciated by all, although the program was interesting and well given. Santa received the welcome that amiable old gentleman is accustomed to when he appears in public and he distributed gifts among the children.

Immediately following Mrs. Sidney Hunter read an address to Rev. J. B. and Mrs. McCormack, expressing in fitting terms the appreciation of the congregation for their work. Rev. Mr. McCormack has been energetic and worked faithfully for the church, contributing generously to the music and in every way aided by his worthy helpmate, Mrs. McCormack, who has been organist and choir leader and also acted as counsellor in the Young Women's Club, (T.O.G.), always cheerful, wise and efficient. Miss Edith Nicholls presented Rev. Mr. and Mrs. McCormack with a gift of gold.

The secret had been well kept and the surprise of the recipients was genuine. Rev. Mr. McCormack expressed the hearty thanks and the entertainment was brought to a close.

Obituary

W. B. ANDERSON.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Anderson were quite grieved over the sudden death of Mr. Anderson, who entered the Nicholls Hospital on Thursday, December 27, for what he thought would be a slight operation.

But complications developed which resulted in his death on Saturday, the twenty-ninth.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson had closed their home and had taken rooms in the city for convenience during his convalescence and they were still unsettled and it seemed best to use Comstock's convenient and homelike parlors where the service on Monday at 2 p.m. was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Wren of Trinity United church and was largely attended by many friends.

There are left to mourn his loss besides his sorrowing wife, one sister, Mrs. J. H. George of Millbrook, and two brothers, George W. of Ridgebrew, Sask. and James M. of North Monaghan.

A GOOD RESPONSE.

Considering the fact that there was no election for the mayoralty or for the Utilities Commission, the prevalence of influenza and the somewhat disagreeable weather on New Year's Day, Peterborough citizens made a very respectable response to the appeal to them to use their franchise.

The total vote polled compared favorably with that of other years, in view of the conditions, and the men and women who thought enough of their privilege as voters and their responsibility as citizens to turn out and use their ballots deserve thanks.

One of the first duties of citizenship is the exercise of one's franchise in the selection of civic rulers and the determining of civic policies, and it is always a matter for wondermcnt that so many people treat this duty so indifferently and place such a low value upon their privilege as citizens.

The problem of enlisting the interest of such careless electors is by no means a local one; every community has it to grapple with, and no solution has been found.

Certainly it is not a condition that is desirable in the interest of good civic government.

MANY CASUALTIES.

When Premier Ferguson addressed a local audience recently on the occasion of the formal opening of the new vocational wing of the Collegiate Institute, he dwelt at some length on his proposal that Collegiate Institute training should be extended to provide the first two years of university education.

The Premier stressed the fact that most of the university casualties occur during the first two years, and claimed for his plan that it would save money both for parents and the Province.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has issued some figures in regard to education in Canada that provide considerable confirmation of Mr. Ferguson's contention.

These statistics show that many students fall by the wayside; then start out into university life with bright hopes, only to find the completion of their course impossible.

The fact that while some 56,000 students are registered in Canadian universities fewer than 6,000 degrees were given last year, indicates that the providing of two years' college work in the secondary schools might, as the Premier argued here, result in considerable saving.

Certainly it would weed out many of those who now enter university at considerable expense and fail to go through.

GOOD BUSINESS.

The modern practice adopted by Government departments of keeping the public in touch with Canadian growth and expansion by means of special advertising, has much to commend it.

Such statements as that issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce serve a most valuable purpose in calling attention to the great stride Canada is making and in arousing pride among the people of Canada in her national achievements.

The New Year message thus given by Hon James Malcolm is full of encouragement.

It shows that although Canada stands 28th in population among the nations of the world, she to-day ranks fifth in total exports, third in absolute trade balance, second in per capita exports and first in per capita trade balance.

This country is exporting some 6,500 groups of articles, either wholly or partly manufactured here, and no fewer than 1,600 Canadian firms or corporations are active exporters.

Mr. Malcolm's statement points out what this growth in exports means to the prosperity of Canada by stabilizing employment, lowering production costs and keeping the Canadian dollar at par, and also includes some useful suggestions as to what is required of a successful exporter.

Finally, it is an invitation to Canadian producers to avail themselves of the services of Canadian Trade Commissioners and of the Commercial Intelligence Service.

Such advertisements are both good reading and good business.

TOWN PLANNING.

The Examiner in a recent article in these columns referred to a resolution passed by the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion advocating the passing of a town planning commission.

The legion is not the only local body to point out the need of action in this respect.

At its general meeting in December the Chamber of Commerce passed the following resolution:

"Whereas it has been noticed that the City Council and many citizens have been especially interested recently in the beautification of certain parts of the city of Peterborough, and

"Whereas we believe that the unified interests of the public should be paramount where matters which might come under the heading of 'Town Planning' are under consideration.

"Therefore, be it resolved that the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce recommend that the City Council assume leadership in the appointment of a suitable committee to make a thorough study of matters pertaining to town planning and modern building with a view to bringing forth a definite and concrete proposal for the approval of the Council and the citizens generally."

What the Chamber of Commerce had in mind undoubtedly in the passing of this resolution was the appointment by the City Council of a proper committee to study this whole question, a committee in whose membership would be included prominent citizens appointed by the Council, and who would be more or less permanent members, ensuring a continuity of policy that would be impossible if the committee consisted entirely of aldermen.

This whole matter of town planning is of the greatest importance, and there is an opportunity for some real constructive work along this line that would be of great value to Peterborough.

HELPING CANADIAN TRADE.

How invaluable the vessels of Canadian National Steamships, Limited, (formerly the Canadian Government Merchant Marine) are in promoting Canada's foreign trade is proved by the record of ships belonging to that fleet which are operating in and out of Maritime Provinces ports.

The Canadian Victor is at present in Halifax loading cargo for Australian ports, including automobiles, paper, automobile parts, tractors and other general merchandise.

The Canadian Conqueror has arrived at the same port from the Antipodes and is loading for New Zealand ports.

The Canadian Commander is also loading at Halifax and will sail shortly for Australian ports.

The Canadian Squatter sailed from Halifax a few days ago for the West Indies, carrying a full cargo.

The Canadian Forester has also sailed from Halifax for Bermuda, Nassau, Kingston and Belize with passengers, mails and cargo.

The Canadian Pathfinder left Halifax on Saturday, opening a new service to Rio de Janeiro, Santas, Montevideo and Buenos Aires.

At St. John and at Halifax the Canadian Inventor has been loading cargo for London and Antwerp.

The Lady Hawkins sailed to-day from Halifax with passengers, mails and cargo for Bermuda, the West Indies and Demerara.

And, finally, the Canadian Otter is due from the West Indies with sugar and a general cargo and will sail on January 3 for Porto Rico, St. Kitts, Antigua, Guadeloupe, Martinique, Barbadoes, Trinidad and Demerara.

For much of the progress which has been made in the extension of Canada's foreign business, the fleet of Canadian National Steamships must be held responsible. These vessels frequently engage in services which would not be undertaken by private shipping lines and they enable Canadian goods to reach markets which could otherwise only be tapped by indirect routes, involving heavier charges to shippers.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

"BIG BROTHER" MOVEMENT.

With so much attention paid during the year, now closing, to the encouragement and expansion of the flow of migration from the British Isles to Canada, the Lethbridge Herald recently called attention, editorially, to what the Commonwealth of Australia is doing in that regard. Its remarks had particular reference to a scheme, known in the Antipodes as the Big Brother Movement, explained by Mr. E. T. Thornton, its travelling representative, while passing through Canada on his return journey from the great Southern Dominion. Since this movement appears to have attained an appreciable measure of success in Australia the Herald opines that it might be profitable were Canada to consider a similar policy inspired with the splendid idea of a "Big Brother" to undertake fraternal care of the incomer who desires to settle in and grow up with the country.

The Big Brother Movement in Australia, the Herald says, is a voluntary one to deal with unassisted immigration. It is conducted from Australia House, London, working in co-operation with offices in Melbourne, Sydney and Adelaide. The Big Brothers are men in Australia who have voluntarily come forward to take the responsibility for boy immigrants. They, in turn, are under supervision of a central committee in Australia. Each of them takes charge of the particular boy assigned to him from the moment he arrives in Australia, and acts as his friend and adviser until he is 21 years of age. The boy is under an undertaking to follow the advice of his "Big Brother," and not to leave the employer under whom he is placed without his permission, not to drink or gamble until he is 21, and to open a savings bank account. Occupation on the land, with a pay of 15 shillings a week, is found for the boy, and his employers are carefully selected by the central committee, acting in co-operation with the Big Brothers.

The Big Brother plan of immigration has been operated in Australia since 1925, and in the three years 1,500 boys have come out to Australia from Great Britain under it. Of these, it is stated, 96 per cent are making a success on the farms. Certain qualifications are insisted on for boys who are desirous to go to Australia under the Big Brother plan. Their applications are received at Australia House. They must be between the ages of 15 and 19 and able to produce school leaving certificates, showing that they reached at least the sixth standard in the elementary schools, which approximates to the eighth grade in our public schools. In addition to this, they have to be provided with certificates from their schools and credentials from one or two citizens in the locality they live. An official medical examination by the medical representative of the Australian immigration service in Great Britain has to be passed. No applications from charitable institutions are entertained.

The boys are selected for their intelligence and capacity of making good on the farm. It can be seen that the scheme has much merit in getting the desirable juvenile immigrant from Great Britain, and that the responsibility taken by citizens in the capacity of Big Brothers is bound to be very helpful.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The arrival of real winter weather is hailed as a valuable ally in the battle against the "flu."

Curlers and hockey players have cancelled their Hudson Bay tickets.

Old man winter has been a bit late getting here, but he is welcomed by most people nevertheless.

And now the Federal Parliament and the Ontario Legislature will soon be demanding their place on the front page.

New Year's resolutions already begin to look a little ragged round the edges.

The appointment of Sir Lomer Gouin as Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec is being generally applauded. Sir Lomer has earned the distinction by splendid public service.

Toronto has declined to change the municipal election date, the majority of electors preferring New Year's Day to a date early in December.

A St. Catharines theatre held a rolling-pin throwing contest for women Monday night. It's a safe bet the man who thought of that competition is a bachelor.

A Thought

"THE NEWSPAPER AS AN EDUCATOR."

Velma Runnells, Campbellford

The amazing development of newspaper work for the last number of years has placed its marks throughout the world. Trade and industry are keeping up their ceaseless, steady, progressive work. Civilization is broadening out and covering the wasteland with finer, nobler literature. Education is linked with civilization. Education is making this Canada of ours a strong, independent, far-seeing nation.

The noises of the paper presses are sweet to the ears of the younger generation of to-day. They know that greater knowledge lies within their reach. Foreign news is what we want to study. We want to enlarge our knowledge to such an extent that foreigners will not be called foreigners but brothers. The newspapers are helping to melt the ice between the countries.r Every day they are reflecting on thei presses the news of other lands.

Some might say that advertisements in the newspapers are not educating to a person. Well, I know this much that if it were not for some of the splendid advertisements in our daily papers that I would never know that some things ever existed. Is that not education? We must read to find out more. We are never too old to learn more about any subject.

The newspapers of to-day have adopted the idea of printing some of the finest short and continued stories. They are food for our brain. To read some of these fine stories written by some of the noblest authors is added education. The different characters and arguments mingled with their outstanding passions and desires have made many a reader resolve to fight for the best that is in him.

A person who is not fond of reading has missed one of the brightest things in life. When I go in a home and see two or three in the family making a mad rush for the daily paper, I then know that some have a broad vision and are not dreaming only of themse ves.

To read the daily news is shaking hands with our neighbors. Education comes out in black and white to make us bigger and nobler.

GOD'S MINUTE.

And He said unto them all, if any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow Me.

For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever will lose his life for My sake, the same shall save it.

For what is a man advantaged, if he gain the whole world, and lose himself, or be cast away—Luke 9: 23-25.

O Lord, Thou Whose eye seest everything, even into the secrets of our hearts, and with Whom is all wisdom and power, be not silent to our petition. In our suffering let us observe Thy presence, and, out of pain, teach us submission.

We cannot always understand what Thou art doing with us, but O Thou Watcher of men, make our souls to know that Thou are always just and good, ever long-suffering in Thy mercy. Give us strength to bear the burden.

Teach us that if we would be most serviceable to Thee, we must be marred and hurt and made to bleed. Then we shall come forth as gold tried in the furnace, and Thy righteousness shall be our robe, and Thy glory our diadem. Amen.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Friday, January 4, 1929.

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Good luck should attend most business enterprises to-day, according to astrology, which reads in the stars many fair promises for dwellers on the Earth.

It is a sway especially favorable to the activities of women, whether in the home or outside of it.

The seers prophesy for women in public life great success in 1929, and there is a forecast of great honor for those who become legislators or office-holders.

While there will be strong sex-antagonisms in the higher places in business and the professions, they will be overcome rapidly, it is predicted.

This is a favorable date for entertaining and for buying new clothing. Christmas gifts of money may be spent advantageously while this rule prevails.

Theatres and places of amusement should profit to-day, which will bring to many a craving for recreation.

Speculation is supposed to be fortunate under this direction of the stars, but the stock market may be exceedingly tricky.

There is a good sign for those who start a sea voyage to-day, even though it is Friday, but another frightful ocean disaster is foretold.

Merchants and manufacturers again are supposed to be subject to the best planetary influences, making for enlarged markets and big profits.

Commerce is to benefit through enlarged waterways, and great engineering feats are foretold for various parts of the country.

Congress is subject to planetary conditions that seem to promise important pages for American history.

Legislators will indulge in bitter contentions only to harmonize later in important issues, the seers prophesy.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a red letter year in which they make money and find new friends. Many success are indicated.

Children born on this day may have extraordinary financial talent. Both boys and girls are likely to attain exalted places in the world in which money rules. These subjects of Capricorn usually have ability to make friends that endure.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

BY RUBY M. AYRES

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XXIII—THE MOCKING VOICE

Marna was utterly reckless in her misery. It seemed impossible to do or say anything that would not torture either herself or him. Before he could answer she rose to her feet with a quick little movement. There was a feverish color in her cheeks, and her eyes were too bright.

"Let's eat and be merry, anyway," she said, with sudden change of voice. "As you say, tomorrow we die, or at least, to be quite correct, on Wednesday we die, or at least, I do."

She turned to walk back to the hotel, and Hubbard followed.

Useless to say anything, he knew; they went into the hotel and ordered lunch. The long dining-room was full of happy, laughing people.

"I wonder what they're all so happy about," Marna said.

A girl and a man lunching together at a table close by attracted her attention. They seemed so utterly content and satisfied with one another.

"Do you think they are married?" she asked, pointing them out to Hugh.

"I don't know."

"She hasn't got a wedding-ring on," Marna said pathetically, and then again: "She's rather like what I used to be before I was married. Her hair, I mean. I once had a brown frock like hers, too."

They made a poor pretence of lunching.

"I don't want anything more—food chokes me," Marna said. "Let's go out again, Hugh. I can't breathe here."

He paid the bill, and they walked back through the garden.

"The geraniums are wonderfully fine, aren't they?" he said vaguely.

"I used to love them," Marna answered. "But I shall always hate them now. Horrible, glaring, unsympathetic things."

They went out to the car.

A man was bending interestedly over the bonnet; when he heard Hubbard's voice he turned, and it was Renny Martin.

A little spark flashed through his eyes as he came forward.

"Thought I recognized the car," he said lightly. "How are you, Marna?"

"Very well, thank you."

"And you, Hubbard?"

"All right, thanks."

"Have you lunched?"

"Yes; we're just off."

"Paget not here?"

"No."

Questions and replies were all curt and constrained, but Martin was smiling with apparent unconcern.

"Let me see, you're off on Wednesday?" he asked.

"Yes."

Marna had moved a pace or two away from them and was looking up at the sky. It had clouded over, and a few large drops of rain were falling.

She turned to Hubbard.

"Oughtn't we to start? It's going to rain."

"I'm coming now."

Hugh nodded goodbye to Martin.

"I'm going back to town," Martin said. "May look in at Regent's Park. If I do I'll tell Paget we met."

"Yes, do tell him," Hubbard said.

"Do you think that fellow followed us here?" he asked, as he and Marna drove away.

"Oh, no; why should he?"

"I don't trust him. He's got shifty eyes."

"He can't do us any harm, Hugh."

"I know. But I think he would like to, Marna, will you tell me something?"

"Yes."

"Is that fellow in love with you"'

"He pretends that he is."

"Pretends!"

'You know how many women he has loved in his life."

Hubbard pressed the accelerator with his foot, sending the car forward at a great pace.

'And I've got to go away and leave you to men like that."

She laughed faintly.

"You're not going to pretend to be jealous of him, Hugh?"

"I'm jealous of every man who comes near you."

"You need not be," she said sadly.

The rain was falling heavily now, splashing on the window of the little car, and running down the glass in tiny streaks.

A few miles further on Hubbard drew into the side of the road, where the hedge was high and thick, and tall old trees formed a shelter.

"We'll wait a little while and see if it clears," he said.

The sunshine had quite gone, and the afternoon looked grey and dreary. They sat in silence for some moments, then Hubbard turned in his seat, leaning his arm on the wheel, and looked at Marna.

"This is the last time you and I will be alone," he said with an effort. "And there are so many things I want to say to you."

"Yes."

He put his hand over hers as they were clasped in her lap and held them.

"First of all, you are to take care of yourself, to take great care of yourself. Oh, yes, I know what you're going to say," he said quickly, as she would have spoken. "But it's for my sake I am asking this, not only for your own. Your life belongs to me more than it does to anyone, because we love each other, and so as your life is my property you must take care of it for me, Marna."

"Yes."

"Will you promise me?"

"I——"

"Promise me?"

"Very well."

She spoke indifferently, looking away from him.

Hubbard went on.

"Then about what you said just now—I mean, about my getting married."

He felt the quick movement of her hands, and his grasp of them tightened.

"Don't believe it, Marna, no matter who tells you. If such a thing should ever happen I will tell you myself, and before anyone else knows. Never mind what you hear, don't believe it unless I write and tell you myself."

She looked at him with a flicker of hope in her eyes.

"Are you going to write to me, Hugh"'

"No."

"Never at all?"

"No. Marna, how can I? What could I say?"

"You might say, 'Dear Mrs. Paget, I hope you are quite well,'" she told him with weary mirth. "Nobody could object to that."

He made no reply, and the silence was unbroken save for the patter of the rain on the closed windows.

"Is there anything else you want me to promise?" she asked bitterly, after a moment.

"Yes. You've got to promise me to be brave. Will you, Marna? To try and be happy, to——" He broke off, looking at her with passionate eyes; then suddenly he leaned forward and took her in his arms.

"Oh, my dear, my dear, my dear!" he said brokenly.

She hid her face against his shoulder.

"It's no use making me promise anything," she whispered hopelessly. "You know that. I shan't care what happens to me when you've gone."

"You won't always feel like that! Oh, my dear, do you think I want to know that you'll be suffering as much as I shall?"

She made no answer; she just lay very still in the circle of his arm.

She did not know how the time passed, she was not conscious of returning his kisses, she was not conscious of anything except a mocking voice that whispered: "This is the end—this is the very end!"

When, after a long time, Hubbard said:

"We must go back, Marna." She raised herself at once, and picked up her hat which had fallen off.

"I suppose I'm very untidy," she said, and when he made no reply, she said again: "Am I very untidy, Hugh?"

It was like talking in one's sleep; she had all the vague, semi-detached feeling of a dreamer. Then with an effort she struggled up to sane self-control once more, to find that they were driving back to London, and that the rain had ceased, and a watery sun was shining apologetically from behind the clouds.

"It's not raining any more?" she said.

He made no comment, and she said again stupidly:

"It's not raining now, Hugh?"

"No, my dear."

She looked at him with apathetic eyes.

There was something almost ugly in the hard lines of his face and the set fold of his lips. They hardly spoke again till they reached London, and then just as they were turning into Regent's Park someone shouted to them from the pathway, and it was George Peget and the Little Flapper. Marna caught at Hugh Hubbard's arm.

"Hugh!" she said pitifully.

The car had run on a few paces, and before he stopped it to wait for the two on the path Hubbard took Marna's hand in a hard grip.

"God bless you for ever and ever, my best beloved!" he said hoarsely.

And then it was all over, and the Little Flapper was at the door of the car all flushed and breathless, rattling on about the new monkey which she had fed with nuts, and how it had snatched at George Paget's eyeglass.

"By Jove, it was a near squeak!" Paget said boyishly. "Hanged if I know what I should have done if the little beggar had really got it, eh, Marna?"

Then they went back home, and George asked Hugh to come in and stay to dinner and Hugh refused, and then presently he went away, and that was all.

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

Little Lessons in Legion Principles.

2. The Legion shall stand for loyalty to the reigning Sovereign, Canada and the Empire, for maintenance of the foundation principles of the British Constitution, for the development of a national and united spirit and for ordered government in Canada.

The President's Message:

Comrades:

Membership in this Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League is a subject for congratulation, because it is indeed an honor to have the qualifications necessary for admission to Legion ranks. You are to be congratulated, too, because of the opportunity for service that membership opens up.

It is an old story, but it cannot be too often repeated, that many comrades suffering from disabilities sustained in the Great War are not yet fully re-established in civil life. To care for their problems is our duty, an obligation of honor laid at the door of the only organization that has the welfare of the returned soldier solely in mind.

There are other obligations, too. One is the maintenance of a spirit of loyalty in the Dominion and the development of that united spirit which was so marked in the Empire during the Great War. Another, a most sacred duty, is the perpetual commemoration of those our comrades whom we left in France and Flanders, that their sacrifice may never be forgotten, or the lesson taught in their death ignored.

This British Empire Service League is one of the most potent forces to retain in solidarity and friendliness the units of the far-flung Empire, and to maintain the peace which we who know the cruel meaning of war as others do not, desire.

The duty of the organization devolves upon every individual in it, and upon those who are entitled by the pains of war to become members.

In passing on to you the New Year greetings of the Canadian Legion in Peterborough, I wish to invite the participation in our great work of every ex-service man in Peterborough city and in this district.

Yours sincerely,
JOHN R. HERON,
President, 1929.

BROKEN

Father frowns at Sonny's toys:
Music-box won't make a noise,
Something wrong with Sonny's trolley
Fills him full of melancholy,
Strap is broke on one skate,
Engine just won't operate,
And it seems to Dad a splendid
Time some counsel were extended.

"Christmas only gone one week,"
Father says, "And here's a leak
In your football. Really, Sonny,
It would all be rather funny
If it weren't rather sad.
Think of all the things you had,
Toys, and balls, and bats to bat 'em,
Books and games—and now look at 'em."

But I'm thinking all the while,
And I'm thinking with a smile,
For it's now the New Year season,
So I smile, and there's a reason.
Just about a week from now
I would like to ask Dad how
About those other institutions,
Father's New Year's resolutions?

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY BOYS CLIMB TREES.

(By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.)

Boys climb trees because they are playful. It is part of their playful activity. But why do they play?

This is an interesting question and has several answers. There are those who say that play represents an oversupply of energy which needs to be worked off. By playful activity is usually meant activity which is an end in itself as contrasted with work, which is an activity for a purpose — that something may be accomplished. Whether or not you enjoy you work is beside the point. You work to accomplish something, you play for the sheer joy of the play.

Another theory of play states that play is practice for the serious business of life. The young of all animals play at those activities which develop the cunning and skill necessary in avoiding enemies and securing food. Thus the play activity of the kitten centers around those movements which are essential in catching mice. He takes a spool, a rag, a piece of string and tosses it about just as the grown-up cat treats a mouse which has fallen into his clutches.

The recapitulation theory of play states that in the development of the boy you can see the life-history of the race. According to this theory there comes a time in every boy's life when he can no more resist the urge to climb trees than he can ignore the desire to eat when he is hungry. The tree-climbing stunt is supposed to prove that our ancestors once lived in trees: according to this theory the boy who is in the tree-climbing period of his life is only as far advanced as the savage ancestor who had an arboreal habitat.

Perhaps it takes all three of these theories — the surplus energy theory, the practice theory and the recapitulation theory — and several others besides to explain so imple a fact as why boys climb trees.

The common-sense reason why boys climb trees is that the tree is climbable by a healthy boy physically large enough to do so. The tree is a challenge to the boy's skill and endurance. He accepts the challenge as he accepts a dare calculated to test his metal.

Not infrequently there are additional motives for climbing trees. Some trees are known to grow apples and pears, and other things that most boys like. We venture to suggest that possibly this is one of the factors which induce a boy to climb trees even though it may not be as strong as the uncontrollable impulse to demonstrate the habits of his remote hairy grandpa.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SQUEAKY CHAIR.

(Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Uncle Wiggily hopped over the fields and through the woods. Now and then the old rabbit gentleman stopped near a fence corner to look beneath a thin covering of snow where the wind had blown it.

"What are you looking for, Uncle Wiggily?" barked Jackie Bow Wow who was giving Sister Sallie, the little chipmunk girl, a ride on his sled. "Did you lose your rheumatism crutch?"

"Oh, no, I haven't lost anything," answered the bunny uncle with a smile that made his pink nose twinkle. "I was just looking to see if the clover was beginning to get green. I am rather tired of eating dried clover."

For you see Uncle Wiggily lived in a cold part of the country where in winter the clover and grass turn brown and yellow. Some rabbits live in warm lands where the grass and clover is always green. But they are no happier than Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh," barked Jackie as he ran on with the sled, dragging Sister Sallie, "I think there will be no green clover for you until Spring, Uncle Wiggily, and that is a long way off."

"True enough, my boy, true enough," said Mr. Longears and then he hopped on to his hollow stump bungalow for he was tired from having roamed over the fields and through the woods all morning looking for an adventure.

"But not an adventure did I find!" sighed Uncle Wiggily to Nurse Jane as he sat down to rest in his big chair. "Not one!"

"Never mind!" said the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I'll give you a piece of dried carrot pie and you'll feel better. Sit back and rest yourself."

So Uncle Wiggily leaned back in his chair and after he had eaten the piece of dried carrot pie that Nurse Jane gave him, he was going to sleep when, all of a sudden, he heard a voice saying:

"Let me out! I want a bite!"

"Hello! What's that?" cried the rabbit gentleman suddenly jumping out of his chair. "Who are you that is going to bite?"

But no one answered him. Looking around the room the rabbit saw no one. Looking out of the window he saw no one.

"I must have fallen asleep and dreamed that some one spoke," said Mr. Longears to himself. So he sat down in the chair again, twisting about until he was comfortable and he was just dozing off when again he heard the voice say:

"Let me out! I want a bite!"

"My goodness!" cried Uncle Wiggily and he jumped out of the chair so quickly and so high that he bumped his pink nose against the wall. "There must be one of the Bad Chaps hiding under my chair. Oh, this is most surprising!"

But when he looked beneath the chair, which had a flounce of bright red calico all around the legs, no Bad Chap was hiding there.

"Some one is playing a trick on me!" thought the rabbit. "Maybe it was Jackie Bow Wow, hiding beneath my window."

So Uncle Wiggily raised the window and looked outside, but the little puppy dog wasn't there.

So he sat down in the chair again, but no sooner did he turn around to make himself a comfortable seat than again the voice said:

"Let me out! I want a bite!"

"This must be a magic chair!" cried the rabbit gentleman running toward the door. "I had better send for the Police Dog!" Just then Mrs. Longears came into the room and saw her husband running out.

"What's the matter?" asked the rabbit lady.

"Why," answered her husband, "either a Bad Chap is hiding in my chair or else it's magical. Listen!" He sat down once more and at once he heard

"Let me out! I want a bite!"

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed Mrs. Longears. "That's the squeaky old chair I was going to put up in the attic. It creaks and squeaks whenever any one sits in it. The legs are loose and every time you move in it the wood chatters and grumbles and seems to say 'Let me out! I want a bite!' But it really doesn't say that—it only sounds so."

"And do you mean to tell me it is only a squeaky chair?" asked Mr. Longears. His wife said she did and told him to sit in it again. And when he did, and jiggled about, the chair squeaked loudly and seemed to say: "Ho! Ho! Ho! What a joke! Let me out or I'll give you a poke!"

Then the bunny uncle laughed and put the chair up in the attic where its squeaky, creaking, make believe talk would not be heard. And so that's all there was to it.

HEAVY TRADING ON STANDARD

Mine Values Swing Upward With Opening of New Year Business.

BARRY-HOLLINGER LEADS.

TORONTO, Ont., January 3 (Canadian Press). — Exceptionally heavy trading and an upward movement in prices which started with the re-opening of the market after the New Year's festivities, continued to feature the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Many issues at noon had equaled the total number of transactions made yesterday.

Barry-Hollinger was the outstanding issue during the morning when it almost doubled yesterday's total sales reaching 94,300 at noon to-day and gaining 5½ points at 43. Noranda gained a dollar during the morning, but at noon had receded to 65.75 for a net loss of 75 cents. Big Missouri was active and gained 11 points at 95, going as high as 97 during the early session. Pend Oreille advanced 75 cents to 11.25 and Falconbridge 50 cents to 6.50.

Amulet dropped 33 cents to 3.41, Sherritt-Gordon 10 to 7.00, Thompson-Cadillac 4 to 45, Abana 10 to 3.75, Hudson Bay 25 to 21.70, Bedford ½ to 53½, and Bathurst 1½ to 35.

CHICAGO WHEAT VALUES LOWER

Prices Receive Setback Due To Liverpool and Argentina Reports.

PROVISIONS LOWER.

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Influenced by Liverpool quotations lower than due and by reports of Argentine wheat being increased for sale abroad, wheat prices here averaged lower early to-day. Absence of snow covering for domestic winter wheat in parts of the west acted, however, as something of an offset. Opening unchanged to 3-8c. lower, Chicago wheat afterward showed a slight general sag. Corn and oats were relatively firm, with corn starting 1-4c off to 1-4c. up. Provisions inclined downward.

Business Review For Year Published in Special Edition of Globe.

COUNTRY PROSPEROUS.

TORONTO, Ont., January 3. Canadian Press. — C. E. Abbs, president of the Toronto stock exchange, in a review of the year, appearing in the special New Year's edition of the Toronto Globe, to-day, reports that trading outdistanced all former periods, total sales of listed stocks being 5,916,923 shares as compared with 4,663,042 shares in 1927.

The record was attributed to general prosperity throughout the country and the seeking of an outlet for surplus funds..

Issues accepted for full listing during the year consisted of 34,327,632 shares and $52,321,120 of bonds, having a market value of well in excess of $1,500,000,000, Mr. Abbs states. He notes that there was an increase during the year in the value of seats on the exchange and that steps have been taken to enlarge the trading facilities.

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

Noranda.
The new No. 4 shaft on Noranda has already been sunk to a depth of 270 feet and fairly heavy pyrite mineralisation is being encountered.

• • •

Capital Rouyn.
It is understood an extensive examination of the Sterling claims in the Sudbury district, is being made by J. B. Stitt, the consulting engineer of Capital Rouyn

Amulet
We understand that some slight changes have been made in the development of Amulet. The crosscut, which was being driven to the "E" orebody from the 250 foot horizon, has been stopped and diamond drilling alone from the surface will be used for proving this body. A raise is now being put up to intersect the "C" orebody from the southeast crosscut.

• • •

International Nickel.
We understand that considerable new machinery has been ordered for the new nickel concentrator at Copper Cliff, included in which are eight rod mills and extensive pumping machinery ordered from a Canadian company. Delivery is to be effected in June of this year.

Moffatt Hall.
It is proposed, we understand, to start a diamond drill campaign on the Moffatt Hall property in Eastern Kirkland lake for the purpose of exploring the several veins and fracture zones exposed on surface through preliminary exploration work.

Siscoe.
The Siscoe plant is reported as operating smoothly and is being maintained on a conservative production basis for the time being. Increases will be made later accordingly as the management desires. In the meantime diamond drilling is proceeding from the 500 foot horizon and results obtained to date are most satisfactory.

Wright-Hargreaves.
At the close of 1928 Wright-Hargreaves is officially reported as looking better than it has for the last couple of years. The most important factor in the present situation is found in both shafts having been conditioned to the 2000 foot horizon, where they are connected by crosscut. Instead of a large part of the operation being centred on sinking, as was the case last year, the above factor has provided scope for extensive development during this year.

Cattle Market Strong, Hog Prices Steady

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 3.—(Canadian Press.)— Cattle receipts on the Toronto Livestock Exchange were cleaned up at strong prices. Good to choice handy weight steers and heifers sold at $10.00 to $11.00. Fat cows brought $8.00 to $9.00. Baby beef sold up to $13.00 per cent.

Calf receipts 52. Calf trade closed strong at $15.00 to $16.00 for choice. Hog receipts, 1,097. Hogs were steady at $10.00 f.o.b. for selects of $11.00 off car. Sheep receipts, 283. Good lambs were stronger at $14.50 to $14.75 per cent. Sheep sold up to $8.00 per cwt.

LORD HAILSHAM WED TO-DAY

Great Britain's Lord High Chancellor Married Prominent Lawyer.

PERFORMED IN ABBEY.

LONDON, Jan. 3 (By Thomas T. Champion, London Manager of The Canadian Press).—Most people who desire to get married under the quietest possible circumstances think the best way to achieve their object is to select a church in some remote quarter and have the ceremony take place at eight in the morning.

Great Britain's Lord High Chancellor, Lord Hailsham, to-day obtained the absence of fuss which his bride—Hon. Mrs. Mildred Margaret Lawrence—and himself desired, by choosing Westminster Abbey, the most celebrated church in England.

But then the Lord High Chancellor has both a will of his own and the means of enforcing it. The ceremony took place in one of the most historical and beautiful portions of the Abbey, Henry the Seventh's Chapel, rich in its own architectural adornment and further beautified by the banners of the Knight of Order of the Bath.

Lord Hailsham, a widower, is 57; his bride, widow of Hon. Clive Lawrence, who died in 1926, two years after the marriage, is 35 years old. Her previous husband's father is Lord Trevethin, for a short time Lord Chief Justice, and her former brother-in-law is Geoffrey Lawrence, who has figured largely in Canadian appeals to the Privy Council. Mrs. Lawrence herself is noted as a brilliant lawyer, and Lord Hailsham, not only by virtue of his high position, is outstanding as a legal light. His first wife was the daughter of Judge Tremble Brown of Nashville, Tenn., and she died suddenly in 1925.

Even the chauffeurs driving the guests to-day were unaware of their distination at the time the start was made. Before this morning not even persons connected with the respective households were acquainted with the proceedings.

Heavy Profit Taking Brings About Sharp Reactions On Market

TICKER BEHIND TIME.

Bon Ami Declares Extra Dividend On Class "B" Common Stock.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 3 (Canadian Press). — Heavy profit-taking, which brought about sharp re-actions of 5 to 15 points in some of the high-priced specialties, unsettled to-day's stock market after an opening outburst of strength had carried more than a score of issues into new high ground. While most observers regarded the set-back as a natural correction of a temporarily top-heavy speculative position, some selling also is believed to have been influenced by fears of a large increase in loans and a possible advance in the Federal reserve re-discount rate.

A delay of 44 minutes in the stock ticker tape just before one p.m., also inspired profit-taking because of the virtual impossibility of keeping promptly informed of developments on the floor.

Credit Situation Easier.
The credit situation was distinctly easier. Call money renewed at 10 per cent., as against 12 yesterday, and dropped to 8 by early afternoon.

Outside the money situation, there was little in the day's business news to influence the price movement. Directors of the Bon Ami Company declared an extra dividend of 50c on the Class "B" common stock, and several favorable 1928 earnings reports and estimates made their appearance.

General Electric, which soared nearly 24 points yesterday, was the first stock to break to-day, dropping 15¼ points to 230. Radio, which ran up 12¼ points to 407 during the morning, fell back to 395. International Telephone forfeited half its early gain of 10 points and Montgomery-Ward, A. M. Byers and Burroughs Adding Machine sold 5 to 7½ points below yesterday's final quotations.

National Biscuit was an outstanding strong spot, stepping up nearly 9 points to a new high at 206¼. Warner Bros. Pictures, Union Carbide, Warren Bros. and Abraham and Straus sold 5 to 7 points higher. Railroad equipments were in good demand on reports of large orders for cars and locomotives.

TWENTY CASES FOUND IN CITY

holidays," said Dr. Young, "for in many cases, children have suffered school."

That the spread of the disease is now in progress was indicated by reports at the City Sanitary Inspector's office this morning, for up until noon, nine more cases had been reported wihin a few hours. The officers reported difficulty in persuading the people afflicted to adhere to the placard regulations which call for a case being placarded for ten days, while in a house where there have been contacts, the limit is 16 days.

Asked if German measles were included in the number of cases reported, Dr. Young stated that there had only been one such case and it had been overcome some time ago. "It is just the common measles which starts something like a cold and if people will keep their children in and away from other children who have not got the disease, it will soon subside" said the M.O.H.

Other Diseases in City
Stating that the public have every right to know how the health of the city stands, Dr. Young went on to report that there is one case of diphtheria in the city and it is under placard, while there are two cases of scarlet fever, one from Warsaw and the other from Cobourg, both confined to Queen Mary Isolation Hospital. There is also one case of chicken-pox and two cases of mumps.

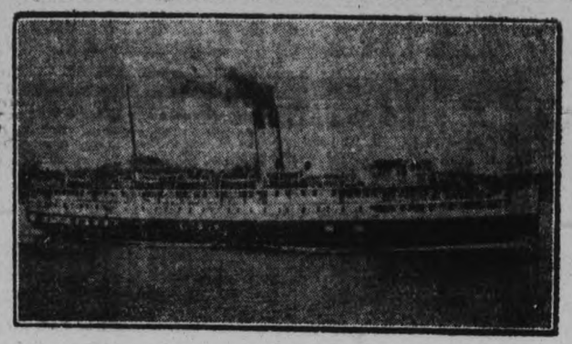
FOUR PERSONS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE



Four persons narrowly escaped death recently when the Canadian Pacific steamer Princess Adelaide, shown above, was in collision with the freighter Hampholm off Vancouver on its run between Vancouver and Victoria, B.C. The four men were of the ship's crew and were amidship at the time of the collision, the side of the boat being stove in by the bow of the freighter. The watertight compartments of the Princess Adelaide saved it from sinking although when it was towed into port at Vancouver it was found that the vessel was two feet below its normal waterline. Damage is estimated as high as $30,000.

CANADIAN STOCK EXCHANGES FLOODED BY BUYING ORDER

Markets Affected By Optimistic Reports On Business Conditions in Canada.

NORANDA FEATURE ISSUE.

Demand For Oils and Metals Increases On Toronto Exchange.

TORONTO, Ont., January 3. Canadian Press. — Optimistic reports of business conditions in Canada, extending to practically every commercial undertaking, has led to feverish trading on Canadian stock exchanges, and the activity yesterday was surpassed to-day through the flood of buying orders which sent numerous issues to new high levels.

Speculative interest locally was more pronounced on the Standard Mining Exchange, where practically all issues showed wide gains to-day, while on the Toronto Stock Exchange the demand for oils and metals was greater than ever. International Nickel was the market leader, and reached a high mark of 49 3-4 before profit taking brought about a slight recession. Eighteen thousand shares changed hands during the morning. International Petroleum sold up to 57 1-2, dropping at noon to 55 1-2. Transactions totalled 10,000 shares. Other oil stocks reached new levels for the current movement. Less active issues shared in the bullish trend and gains ranged from fractions to 8 points.

Noranda was the feature stock on the Standard Exchange on sales of 18,000 shares reaching a high mark of 67 before a reaction set in. Barry-Holinger after remarkable activity yesterday again led in the volume of trading, selling up to 43 for a 5 1-2 point gain on transactions totalling 90,000 shares while the demand for Crown Reserve which reached 17, was almost as insistent.

It has been estimated that the water-power vailable to develop electric energy in Canada totals 32,07 ,998 horsepower, of which only 4,556,219 horsepower are under turbine installation.

The bank clearings for the w amounted to $975,447.

National Obligations

Bonds issued or guaranteed by the Government of Canada become a charge against our national revenues and an obligation of our whole people. The national credit is pledged and the entire wealth of the nation stands behind the payment of principal and interest.

Similar protection stands behind the selected bonds of other nations which we recommend. Moreover, to guard against possible changes in currency values they are payable in gold dollars of the present standard.

Bonds of this grade merit the consideration of every conservative investor. They rank among the best investments, and the income return is decidedly attractive.

AT MILLBROOK.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, January 3. — St. Thomas' Church observed Holy Communion at eight o'clock on Christmas morning, and again at 11 o'clock, the rector, Rev. Canon Allen, assisting with the latter service, the assistant clergyman, Rev. Mr. Roberts, preaching the sermon.

Evening service only was held on Sunday, December 30, the church being appropriately decorated with evergreens and red blossoms. Rev. Mr. Roberts preaching from the words, "Son of Mary," and referring particularly to the honor and responsibilities of motherhood.

That mothers to-day, in many instances, take their duties to home and family all too lightly, the speaker felt to be an unfortunate fact, since this does not tend to the development of the religious life of the nation, nor to the raising up of a Christian citizenship. "If the world is to be reformed of its vices, if our nation is to rise to its highest privileges, if we are to grow in His likeness, and build up a lasting country and people, the mothers must be enlisted fully on the side of righteousness."

"The sacrifice of ease, and selfish indulgence of pleasure and unnecessary luxuries, will have to be abandoned by the mothers, else the children will wander, and souls will inevitably be lost." A proper reverence for the mother of our Lord, and a thoughtful study of her character and why she, of all the women of her day, should be chosen for this high honor, were suggested as fruitful means of bringing about right impressions on the mind in connection with the great privileges of motherhood.

The usual carol service was held at the close, and the hymns of the service were all of a Christmas character, Mrs. (Canon) Allen presiding at the organ.

Watchnight Service.

For the first time in some years, a watchnight service was held in St. Thomas' Church on Monday, December 31, at 11 p.m., Rev. Mr. Roberts having charge, and speaking on the subject of "Walking With God."

The Lord's Prayer, the Twenty-Third Psalm, and the Apostles' Creed, were repeated in unison at the opening of the service, and prayers were repeated both before and after the brief sermon. Just as the bells tolled the old year out the hymn, "The Year Is Gone Beyond Recall," was sung, and afterward an impressive silence, followed by prayer, fittingly ushered in the New Year, the pronouncing of the benediction bringing an impressive service to a close.

Anniversary Services.

The anniversary services of the United Church Sunday School were held on Sunday, December 30, both morning and evening, Rev. G. Williams, returned missionary from Formosa, being the special preacher for the day.

Owing to a severe cold, the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, was unable to be present at morning worship, the superintendent, W. Fred Fallis, being associated with Rev. Mr. Williams on the pulpit platform for the service. The decorations of the church were left in place from Christmas Sunday, poinsettias, evergreens with tiny red bells almost hidden among the branches, and larger ones suspended under the gallery, were in keeping with the season. The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. H. W. Johnston, repeated the Christmas music which had delighted the large congregations the previous Sunday, the selections in the morning including two anthems, "The Birthday of a King," with solos by W. H. Coombe and M. McDowell, and "Hark, What Mean Those Holy Voices," Mrs. H. W. Johnston taking the solo part. In the evening the anthems were, "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks," with solo by Mr. Coombe, and "We Have Seen His Star in the East,' also a quintette. "The Message of Christmas Is Love," Mrs. Johnston taking the obligato, with the male quartette, Messrs. Johnston, Coombe, McDowell, and Lambert coming in on the chorus.

The sermon, on anniversary Sunday morning, is always particularly for the younger folk, and Rev. Mr. Williams had this fact in mind when addressing the congregation, his text being from Galatians 6, 7: "Be not deceived, God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap."

Referring briefly to the Bibles and books which he saw within the altar ready for distribution to scholars who had won them by regular attendance, or for memorizing Scripture verses during the year, the speaker said that evidently Gospel seed was being planted in the hearts, and something very fine was being developed in the lives, so that boys and girls were climbing yet another round in the ladder of life which reached heavenward.

"So God has given us Gospel seed to sow, and He wants us to plant the whole world, that He may garner a big harvest.' One day's sowing of the Gospel seed in Formosa took up the major part of the minister's talk, holding closely the interest of young and old alike, as he told of the superstitious practices of the natives, the little girl sold as a slave for fifty dollars that she might make a wife for her new owner's son in the years ahead; the strange meals and manner of eating; the trip to a preaching appointment by narrow gauge railway, or by "push car," which is shoved along by two natives until it gains enough momentum to run awhile without "power"; the old women grinding at the mill as in Bible times; the water buffalo, and the planting of the rice fields; finally the Sunday School to which some children have walked five, ten, or fifteen miles, leaving home long before daylight and staying all day for the services.

"There is no memory like the Chinese; I have had even old folk recite two hundred or more verses for me at one time, without a single error.

"We have been preaching the Gospel in Formosa for fifty years, and now we have thousands of Christians, many fine churches, Sunday Schools well attended, and the work still going on. Some of you may be called to be missionaries, and I pray you may hear God's voice and go where He will scatter faithfully the Gospel seed."

Reports Given.

The secretary's report showed 174 present, and an offering of $7.31; the quarterly report intimated a total attendance of 2.006 ;average per Sunday, 154; verses recited 953, average 79; offerings of $82.87, average per Sunday $6.37. The yearly report always an item of interest, listed a total attendance of 9,280, with an average of 188 per Sunday; total verses 7,968, average 153; total offerings of $669.17, average each Sunday $7.02.

The treasurer, W. G. Hetherington, presented his annual report, showing a total raised amounting to more than $800, with a balance on hand of $75.86.

The awards for the year were then distributed, the school having for years given a Bible, costing $1.50, to each scholar who was present every Sunday; a book of similar value to the one learning all the verses in all the lessons of the year; and prizes for those who memorized 150 verses and over during the twelve months. There were seven who had not missed a Sunday: Mr. Robinson, in Mr. Rae's Bible Class; Miss Ethel Forsyth in the Boneka Class (Mrs. W. W. Jones, teacher); Aubrey Todd and Oliver Brock in the Tuxis Square Class; Orval Bonner and Arnold Fallis in Mrs. I. M. Nattress' Class; Harry Freelove from the Trail Rangers.

For reciting verses those receiving suitable books were: Bryer Edmunds and May Ferren, in Mrs. Offa Williamson's Class; Esther Might and Myrtle Nattress in Miss Jean Burnham's Class; Jack Stenson in Mrs. Nattress' Class; Stanford Brown and Elwood Fallis in Mrs. J. McKnight's Class; Reg. Edmunds and Lawrence Hawken in Mrs. T. H. Aiken's Class; and Gordon Might in the Primary Department, the latter, an eight-year-old boy, having said 296 verses.

The ushers for the service were from the Tuxis Square: Aubrey Todd, Kenneth Fallis, E. L. Burnham, R. Larmer, and Oliver Brock.

AT MADOC.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MADOC, Jan. 3.—Sunday, December 30, was observed in Trinity United Church as Old Year Sunday, with suitable hymns and the theme for the morning worship being "Redeeming the Time." A beautiful violin solo was given by William Scrutton in the morning while the evening he gave Ave Maria by Gounod.

Evening Service.

The evening message by Rev G. W. Rivers was taken from "What I Have Written. I Have Written" stressing that Pilate might have changed his inscription but life's inscription as we have written it during the year can never be changed.

(Examiner Correspondence)

ROSENEATH, Jan. 3.—The service on Sunday morning in the United church was not as large as usual owing to the prevalence of sickness throughout the district.

Anglican Church.

Service at St. James Anglican church was fairly well attended, it being the first service since the interior of the church was newly decorated. The change has made a vast improvement and later it is expected the congregation will gather on Sunday afternoon to its old standard and to hear the excellent and elevating sermons by Rev. Mr. Battersby.

CAVAN UNITED CHURCH

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAVAN, Jan. 3.—On Sunday evening in Cavan United Church the Rev. F. Carpenter preached a very beautiful sermon appropriate to the closing of the old year, and reminding his congregation that another year had gone with its joys, its sorrows, its good deeds and its mistakes, but a New Year was coming when we should all try to leave ourselves in God's hands that He might mould us as He wishes.

Next Sunday will be Convenant Sunday.

Meetings to be Held.

There will be a meeting of the Quarterly Board of Cavan Circuit at Mount Pleasant on Friday afternoon.

On Monday evening the annual congregational meeting of Cavan United Church will be held.

To Discontinue School.

After the usual Sunday session of Cavan Centre Sunday School on Sunday, a business meeting was held when it was decided to discontinue the school.

PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM PENITENTIARY

Fugitives Cut Hole Through Wall of Columbia Prison Hospital.

COLUMBIA, S.C., January 3 (Canadian Press). — Six prisoners, two of them life termers, escaped from the penitentiary here early to-day by cutting a hole through the wall of the prison hospital.

The prisoners, all influenza patients, used a hearth poker, and a steel chisel to dig a hole under a window. They passed over the prison wall by the use of a ladder. Six other prisoners in the ward told officials they knew nothing of the escape.

A. F. Parker, who was guarding the hospital, was dismissed.

BELL TELEPHONE CHANGES RATES

Reverse Charges On Station-to-Station Calls—Becomes Effective February 1.

It is announced by the Bell Telephone Company that reductions in long distance telephone rates for distances over 224 miles have been filed with the Board of Railway Commissioners to become effective February 1st next. With the new schedule of rates some important changes in long distance practice will also become operative.

A reversal privilege will be introduced on station-to-station messages where the rate is 25 cents or more. Heretofore, there has been no reversal privilege on station-to-station calls.

Appointment and messenger rates, which have hitherto been 50 percent additional over the day station-to-station rates, will be eliminated. This type of message will be on the same basis as person-to-person rates, or 25 percent over the station-to-station rates—a substantial reduction.

The maximum report charge will be reduced from $2.00 to $1.00.

On messages to United States cities, effect will be given to the new schedule of rates embodying important reductions just announced by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Evening rates on station-to-station messages, which hitherto have become effective at 8.30 p.m., will apply from 7.00 p.m. to 8.30 p.m. with a minimum rate of 35 cents. Night rates, at a reduction of 50 per cent from day rates will prevail on station-to-station messages from 8.30 p.m. to 4.30 a.m. with a 25c minimum rate.

Commenting on the new long distance schedule of telephone rates, W. C. Beamer, District Manager, said to-day:

$80,000 Saved.

"We are making continuous extension and improvement in our long line facilities. It is the policy of the Company whenever possible to pass along to telephone users in the form of reductions in charges, the benefits of these changes. While on the individual message the reductions are not large, we estimate that they will mean in the aggregate a saving to telephone users of Ontario and Quebec of $80,000 annually.

"Many features of the new schedule will, we believe, be welcomed by our patrons. For example, on station-to-station calls it will be possible to reverse the charges. Appointment and messenger calls become simply person-to-person messages at lower rates, and the report charge maximum is cut in half!

"The change by which the reduced rate period for station-to-station calls begins at 7.00 p.m. instead of 8.30 p.m. as formerly, is made in recognition of the popularity of long distance service at a lowered rate during the evening and night hours. The new regulations are designed to take care of this business more satisfactorily than before, first by spreading the reduced rate calls over a greater number of hours and, second, by eliminating the midnight congestion of calls.

DAILY READING

A FEW MINUTES A DAY WITH THE BEST OF THE WORLD'S AUTHORS CONDUCTED BY THE NEIGHBORS AND MARION

January 3, 1929.

"Mrs. S. F." wrote me a request for "The Bells of Shandon," and this is the first opportunity I have had to reproduce the poem. It was written by Francis Mahony (Father Prout), born in Cork, Ireland, 1804.

With deep affection
And recollection,
I often think of
Those Shandon bells,
Whose sounds so wild would,
In the days of childhood,
Fling round my cradle
Their magic spells.

On this I ponder
Where'er I wander,
And thus grow fonder,
Sweet Cork, of thee,
With thy bells of Shandon
That sound so grand on
The pleasant waters
Of the river Lee.

I've heard bells chiming
Full many a clime in,
Tolling sublime in
Cathedral shrine,
While at a glib rate
Brass tongues would vibrate;
But all their music
Spoke naught like thine.

For memory dwelling
On each proud swelling
Of thy belfry knelling
Its bold notes free,
Made the bells of Shandon
Sound far more grand on
The pleasant waters
Of the river Lee.

I've heard bells tolling
Old Adrian's mole in,
Their thunder rolling
From the Vatican;
And cymbals glorious
Swinging uproarious
In the gorgeous turrets
Of Notre Dame.

But thy sounds were sweeter
Than the dome of Peter
Flings o'er the Tiber,
Pealing solemnly;
Oh, the bells of Shandon
Sound far more grand on
The pleasant waters
Of the river Lee.

There's a bell in Moscow,
While on tower and kiosk, oh,
In Saint Sophia
The Turkman gets,
And loud in air
Calls men to prayer,
From the tapering summits
Of tall minarets.

Such empty phantom
I freely grant them;
But there's an anthem
More dear to me:
'Tis the bells of Shandon
That sound so grand on
The pleasant waters
Of the river Lee.

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

THE WORK OF THE HEART

Whether you lie down, sit, stand, walk, or run, the heart will keep the blood pumping in proportion to the amount that is needed.

Dr. H. W. Haggard tells us that during exercise the volume of blood pumped may be three or more times as great as in the resting state, and the blood pressure may rise 50 per cent or more.

The work of the heart may thus be increased five fold.

The method of testing the heart's ability to do a certain amount of work and then return to its normal number of beats within two minutes, varies with the different physicians.

One will have patient touch the floor with fingers five or ten times, with knees straight, doing the exercise as a certain speed.

Another will have the patient do a "stationary" run of 60 steps in thirty seconds, raising feet a certain distance from the floor. Others will have him jump upon a chair four or five times.

You can readily see that some of these exercises are much more severe than others and that some standard should really be adopted.

Drs. Benedict and Parmenter have suggested that stair climbing be used as a standard test. They take the average man weighing 150 pounds, and climbing stairs the steps of which are 8 inches in height.

According to their tests it may be considered, for practical purposes, that the average person expends the same amount of energy in walking up one average flight of steps (fifteen steps 8 inches high) as he does in walking one evel fifteen times the distance represented by the height of such a staircase, or as he does in coming down three such flights of steps.

You can readily see then that walking up stairs, or walking up hills or mountains means very much more work than walking on the level. So don't worry if when you hurry upstairs, sometimes a couple of steps at a time, you find you are slightly short of breath and heart beating strongly.

You have really done a lot of work in a short time.

THE GIRL JIM TOOK

Jim Crawford fingered the oblong bits of cardboard reflectively. His tickets had safely arrived and, thank Heaven and the ticket office, his seats were as good as any ever allotted to newly fledged graduates under the strain of unprecedented demands.

Only—whom to take? With Jim the choice was not a narrow one. Yet gradually it simmered down to two, Caroline Hemingway or Peggy Curtiss, both lively girls—and fair. For Jim could not visualize himself as escorting to that colorful spectacle any but a pretty girl. To choose, then, either Caroline's dusky attractiveness or Peggy's winsome blondness!

"I've got it!" said Jim. "I'll toss up their telephone numbers and abide by fate. Come seven!"

A moment later he snapped the receiver back on its hook. It was ever so nice of him, thank you, but Caroline had already planned to go with somebody else!

Now for Peggy.

If Peggy's soft voice over the telephone carried with a bit more of thrill than had Caroline's, Jim was scarcely aware of the fact as her words struck gradual dismay to his soul.

"The game? Oh, Jim, I'd love to, but Blaine Ashley asked me ages ago. But, Jim, I've got a simply tremendous favor to ask you. Had you any one else in mind? No. How splendid! You see, my cousin is here from Milldale, and just dying to see the game. But you know how it is about tickets. And—oh, Jim, if you would take her! She's awfully bright and—did you say, 'Is she pretty?' Why—oh, Central, you've cut us off."

An ultimate reconnection and Jim, wondering why on earth he had done it, presently found himself pledged to take Peggy's cousin to the season's greatest contest.

Early in the afternoon on the day of the game, Jim drove his modest little roadster up to the curb in front of Peggy's home. Yes, there stood the girls on the veranda. Beside them towered young Ashley, tall and superior.

Never had Jim seen Peggy look more beautiful. Beside her the little Milldale cousin paled to insignificance. And she wore huge tortoise shell glasses!

Driving out the crowded boulevard flanked by laughing, chattering streams of people all flowing in one direction Jim tried to do his duty as an escort and a gentleman. But his most valiant conversational methods produced the most meager of responses, subdued little "yeses" and "noes" totally lifeless.

Disgusted, Jim lapsed into a silence which lasted unbroken until he had parked his car and the two of them had entered the portal and found their place in the huge structure gradually filling with a vast, animated throng.

Then once more he roused himself. "Ground in good condition," he commented. "I take it you're up on football like all girls, Miss Crumley?"

Miss Crumley nodded timidly. "The side that kicks the ball oftenest over those posts wins, does it not?" she wanted to know.

Jim all but groaned. Imagine! Then he forgot his companion, even forgot that Peggy was sitting somewhere with that arrogant Blaine Ashley, forgot everything but that the team was coming on the field, shedding their blankets as they ran.

For the greater part of the game Jim forgot his silent guest.

Then, just at the end, with the score tied and five minutes to play, the star of the team, taking one of those desperate forward passes so often futilely tried near the finish, started down the field. The crowd went wild.

"Touchdown! Touchdown!"

Jim became suddenly aware that the girl at his side had grabbed his arm with one hand and with the other was frantically waving her score book. "He made it! He made it! Oh, boy!"

That night Peggy had a party to celebrate the victory. Jim had been invited when he deposited Miss Crumley on the Curtiss steps and had reluctantly consented.

It was when the girls came back that Jim got the shock of his life. In a soft, shimmery gown, her face alight, her awful glasses gone, the little Milldale cousin was a peach!

But not until much later in the evening when Blaine Ashley left early to take her down to her train, did Jim receive explanations from the contrite Peggy.

And then she only explained because Jim, tantalized beyond endurance by a certain sweet provocativeness, had seized her suddenly in his arms and all in one breath told her he loved her and begged her to marry him. It was after that little matter was satisfactorily settled that Peggy confessed as follows:

"I—I've really been crazy about you for a long time, Jim, and—and I rather thought you were about me! I wanted to go to the game with your, but you didn't ask me and finally I accepted Blaine's invitation. But when you called up—well, I couldn't bear to think of you taking some one else. My cousin seemed providentially sent. Only—well, she really is terribly popular with the boys and I made her promise not to try her wiles on you. And then she went to the other extreme—as you know! She says that just one moment she forgot she was playing a part—at that touchdown, you know. You see, her brother is captain of his college team. What she doesn't know about football! But she certainly did her best—"

"Not to capture me!" grinned Jim. "As if I ever thought for a moment of any one but you, dear!"

And Peggy sighed contentedly, quite as if she really believed him!

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, methol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

MUSTEROLE
WILL NOT BLISTER

Better than a mustard plaster.

CLEANLINESS VIA VINEGAR.

(Contributed by Blanche.)

The enamel work table which always looks streaked no matter how often it is wiped will lose every streak and finger print and become bright and shiny if rubbed with salt and vinegar solution.

Brass, copper and zinc can be made to fairly glitter by a rub down of this same solution, after which I varnish them over with Flo-glaze and thus preserve the lustre indefinitely, even on water taps.

One part of vinegar to two parts linseed oil (or sweet oil) makes a good furniture polish.

Glue dissolved in hot vinegar will keep soft if the bottle is tightly corked and a little vinegar poured into the mucilage bottle will keep it from drying out or souring.

A teaspoonful added to each can of strawberries when cooking helps to retain their lovely color.

A tablespoonful added to cabbage while cooking will preserve its color and prevent the cabbage odor from escaping.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

There is a very definite difference in linen and cotton that every housewife should understand. If you examine linen fiber under a microscope side by side with cotton fiber you will see that the former is much more open, less fuzzy. It is for this reason that linen may be washed more easily than cotton and for this reason that linen is almost always chosen for handkerchiefs, dish towels and hand towels. On the other hand, linen sheets are not often used nowadays. They have a way of holding the dampness and feeling cold and unfriendly on cool nights. Most persons prefer sleeping on cotton.

Bath towels are usually of cotton—which is satisfactory because bath towels do not become really grimy. Hand towels do, and for this reason they should always be of linen.

Most housewives cotton washcloths—a perfectly satisfactory arrangement because they are inexpensive and may be discarded entirely when they become stained and no longer come from the laundry looking fresh and white. However, some persons do prefer linen washcloths, and for very fastidious individuals there are silk washcloths which have no special advantage save that they dry very quickly and feel soft against the skin.

Linen is an excellent material for aprons, and for the smock or overall apron that you use for every day there is nothing better than linen. It does seem a little expensive, but if you have to wash it and iron it yourself you will appreciate the difference.

YOUTH ANXIOUS TO FIND WORK

Walks Forty-nine Miles To Peterborough To Seek Employment.

HELPED BY SAMARITAN.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 3.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence)—Willing and anxious to work, strong, young and apparently capable, a youth in his teens walked forty-nine miles to Peterborough, failed to find employment and then walked thirty-four miles back. The remainder of the forty-nine mies was accomplished when a passing friend afforded such transportation, as was within his power.

The young man did not wish his name divulged but was sincere in his statement that he had gone to the city on foot to look for work. But here was none to be found. Clad in high boots, khaki shirt and a woollen windbreaker, with a felt hat and no gloves, he journeyed to Peterborough and asked at all the likely places for something to do. But there seemed to be plenty of men and a scarcity of work. With his finances dwindling to a few cents after a few days away from home, he set out on foot on his return journey. Foot-sore and weary he sopped at a restaurant in a small town to spend his last few cents on a meal. A chance customer dropped in for a cup of warm coffee and, being alone in the eating place, there was a conversation started.

"I had to stop here and eat or starve," the boy said in the course of his narrative, "My hands were stiff with the cold and the first part of the night was so dark that I got off the road twice. It was better when the moon came up."

Anxious to be of service, the man in slightly better circumstances asked the boy to eat more. The invitation was politely refused, saying that he had had plenty for the time. After some inquiries were made transportation was arranged for the boy as far as Bonarlaw, a few miles from his destination and the best that could be done under the circumstances. An expression of weary gratitude rewarded the efforts of the friend and a feeling of having done something worth while as he watched the boy walk on aching, tired feet to the transportation that awaited him.

Also On Neck and Body. Healed by Cuticura.

"Eczema broke out in pimples and affected my face, neck and body. It itched and burned so that I was all the time scratching. My face was disfigured, and my clothing used to rub against the breaking out on my body and aggravate it. I could not get any sleep on account of it. The trouble lasted a couple of months.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they afforded relief in about a week. I continued using them and in three weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Rosie Whitman, Beaver Harbor, N. S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, January 2. — The Anglican Sunday School of Asphodel Township held an oyster supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Preston on Thursday evening, December with about sixty persons present. Owing to so much illness, many were unable to be present. The event was not for the purpose of raising money as no admission fee was asked for, but rather that the members might have a social evening, in rounding off a very successful year's work. Those who had partaken of the generous supply of oysters and other good things, a happy company engaged in games and music until about nine o'clock, when Henry Thistlewaite, superintendent of the Sunday School, called the meeting to order and announced that a short program would be enjoyed, then led in some community singing after which Rev. R. F. Stillman Norwood, gave an interesting address Miss Burgess gave a reading, "Pat's Questions," which was much appreciated, after which Rev. A. C. Hastings, gave a short address and sang a solo, "Life Is Like a Mountain Railroad."

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Preston for opening their home for the occasion and for their many efforts to make it one comfortable and happy.

Mr. James Campbell proposed the toast to the bride and bridegroom, which was responded to by the bridegroom of twenty-five years. Several other speeches were given, after which all joined hands and sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." The guests then repaired to the living room, where Mrs. H. Bothwell rendered some beautiful music, the younger folk joining by singing Christmas carols. THE MIRROR OF THE MODE
By Mary Marshall.

This skiing costume is of waterproof gabardine in the new warm beige tone. It is worn with green felt, and cap, gloves, scarf and sock tops of beige striped with green and red.

Your skiing costume must be warm without being heavy. It must be wind-resistent without being stiff or clumsy. Above all it must be snow proof and moisture proo. There must be no crevices or cracks where snow can seep through whether you stand in the normal, upright position or unceremoniously take a tumble, and land in a snowdrift head first.

One does not, of course, have to ski to feel justified in wearing one of the new skiing costumes. Snowshoeing, tobogganing, country skating all furnish a good excuse.

Among the most interesting of the skiing jackets worn at the present time are those made like the Eskimo's parka, which slips on over the head and is secure'y fastened at the neck.

The girl who wants to be prepared for any sort o winter sports and who does not wish to invest in one of the expensive sort of skiing outfits, may buy a pair of skiing trousers either of the fitted sort or the straight Norwegian sort that tie at the ankles, and wear these with a leather jacket or thick woolen sweater. Special skiing jackets are usually made of gabardine or some close sort of twill, as this resists moisture better than the more loosely woven materials. The twill type of jacket is lined with flannel for needed warmth and is usually worn over a thinner pull-on woollen sweater.

Short cuffed socks are worn over long stockings for all sorts of winter sports where special skiing trousers are not necessary, so that there is no excuse nowadays for going with feet or ankles cold.

These short cuffed socks are sold in lisle for sportswear when the warmer woolen sort are not necessary, and quite the latest fashion is to have a pair or so of these lisle sport socks in white or flesh with colorful cuffs to wear, sans stockings for negligee and boudoir wear

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

THIS IS A WHATNOT FOR MEN!

It is unusual, I know, but I hope they will read it, and that wives will draw it to the attention of their husbands.

It is not going to "knock" men, though I have been accussed of a leaning that way. It will, however, attempt to point out ways in which they can make their wives' lives happier in this New Year.

Which is an end devoutly to be hoped for—and don't you think men, that it would make your own lives happier? I believe so, and therefore, I am making no apologies.

There are in Peterborough (yes, I know them) wives who are not allowed to go out to card parties, or teas, or shows, at nights. They have been in the house all day, grubbing around at routine work, and however much they like it or excel in it, they are just bound to get tired of it—a little.

When a man works all day in his workshop or office, he returns in the evening to his home, and that is, at least, a change. But a woman has not even that much variety.

Don't you think, men, it is a little selfish of you to forbid your wives the only relaxation they are likely to get, or have offered to them?

What is the reason you do not wish them to go to a friend's home for an evening's chat, or an evening's whist or bridge? Why not go along?

It is trite to remind you, I know, but it's the only way to get across what I am trying to tell you—do you remember when you were courting? Did you ever refuse to go anywhere she wished to go? Didn't you take her to the picture show and to friends' homes when she merely requested it?

And din't you enjoy yourself, too?

And now, wouldn't you really enjoy getting back to those old days again? Think of the walk there and back, the nice conversation you had as you strolled along the street. The farther it was to that place of visit, the better you liked it!

And at the card table, or when admiring the pictures in the hostess' family album, what a delight you had in those stolen glances!

Say, Mister, all that fun and pleasure are there yet, just waiting for you to go get them! Your wife is really the girl you courted, and you are really, way down, the same light-hearted, joyous young fellow who found life then so interesting.

Talk about the joy of returning to an old home town; of parading down the street before admiring townsfolk, of visiting old friends—say, it's not a patch on the thrill and fun you will get out of this trip back to your courtship days.

You will be walking again down long-forgotten paths of pleasure; you will have the admiration of the woman you love, the girl who adored you; you will find new pleasure in the company of friends, when SHE is along.

It will be worth while trying out, this New Year. Don't let it get too old, either—start right in. Call up someone and arrange a party—if you can't go out, then have someone in.

You have neighbors who would be delighted to spend the evening with you around a card table, or at Mah Jongg, or what you have handy?

You needn't go far away. How about a trip in next door? Aren't there good folk there with whom you are acquainted?

You can't play any games? Then learn. There's lots of fun in getting a pack of cards and sitting down with kindred spirits to work out a game. Start on simple games until you learn the cards—fan tan (sevens-up); rummy, whist, euchre, and then bridge.

If you are interested enough I'll arrange to run a series of articles on bridge or whist—just the elementary principles.

And if you don't care, because of religious scruples, to play cards, try ludo, or dominoes—anything at all, but get together on something and give your wife a chance for a little variety.

If you don't see an improvement in her spirits and her health after the first two or three trips, then I'm a very badly mistaken woman indeed

If I thought this would work any hardship on you, believe me, I wouldn't propose it; but I know you would enjoy it as much as she.

It is nice to see a man sit reading our paper every night, but it's not so good when that is ALL he does. It's not good for you, yourself.

You need just the same social intercourse that your wife needs, and it occurs to me that it would benefit you in your business, too. It never hurts a man to have friends, however unlikely they are to benefit him in any other way than socially.

Just try it. Won't you?

And then, if you feel like it, write me a little private note, telling me how it worked out.

I'll be really interested, and I'll be looking forward to hearing from you.

There! My typewriter ran away with me, and I wrote a lot more than I intended to write, but no more than the subject is worth. I was so terribly sorry about one woman I heard of in this regard, and I have since been told of others.

For your own sakes, men, and your happiness' sakes, give this a chance.

RHODES TRUSTEES TO AID COLLEGES

Seek Power to Advance Education in Any University of Empire or United States.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 3 (by the Canadian Press).—The Rhodes Trustees are shortly bringing a Bill before the British Parliament for the amendment of their constitution. The most important change which the Trustees are proposing to make in the original conditions imposed upon them by Cecil Rhodes' will is that they shall have the power to send their scholars to Universities other than Oxford.

As an Oxford man Mr. Rhodes selected his own University for his experiment and the Rhodes scholars have taken an important place in the life of the University. The Trustees, as the income at their disposal has increased, have made contributions to Oxford needs in order to balance the strain upon academic resources involved in the reception of the new students, and they have just built and equipped in Oxford a library specially devoted to the history of the British Empire. They have, therefore, no intention of departing, as a general rule, from the provision of the will that the beneficiaries should reside and study at Oxford. But the needs of the individual have to be taken into account, and there will be Rhodes scholars who wish to study subjects for the teaching of which Oxford is not specially equipped.

A still wider aim may be traced in the desire of the Trustees to take powers to expend money "in advancing education in any University of the British Empire or of the United States." This power will, of course, be exercised within the limits of the general purposes of the Trust, and it is provided in the Bill that such expenditure shall not reduce the number of scholarships originally allotted to the British Dominions and the United States.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 3.—There was quite a flurry in the postoffice here when a letter addressed to "William Shakespeare, Stratford-on-Avon, England, Europe" was returned to the dead letter office marked, "Deceased, 23 April, 1616." 'Tis said three postmen actually tried to deliver it.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS

ST. JOHN'S SUNDAY SCHOOL

The annual Christmas treat for the main department of St. John's Sunday School was held on Friday evening, Dec. 28. About two hundred sat down to a supper at 6:30, served under the convenorship of Mrs. Deyman assisted by Mrs. R. Ross, Miss Deniston, Miss M. Bacon, Miss Waddingham, and Mrs. Stanger. After refreshments, Mr. H. Chate and Mr. A. Bacon, assisted by Jack Marshall's orchestra, provided entertainment until the beginning of the program. The orchestra also furnished music during supper time. The Vicar, Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, started the program with a short address, in which he outlined the policy of the school and showed the steady progress of each year over the last, referring also to the great assistance given by the superintendent, Mr. G. Sorby, the other officers and members of the staff. He then called Mr. W. J. Kent, people's warden, to the platform who, after a short address, took charge of the program as chairman, which consisted of the following:

"We Three Kings of Orient Are," by the choir boys, under the direction of Mr. F. G. Mann. A violin solo by Alex. Carlisle. Dance, by Sophia Yeotes, accompanied by Miss Lily Bacon. Rickard Limits Heavyweight Elimination to Five

WINNER IN FINAL WILL GET MATCH WITH JACK DEMPSEY

Sharkey, Stribling, Paulino and Heeney Members of the Elect.

FIRST MATCH IN FEBRUARY.

Old Champion Will Not Make Comeback if Loughran in the Ring.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—With the formal announcement by Tex Rickard that Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling have been matched for the first of the 1929 Heavyweight Eliminations at Miami on February 27, it now becomes possible to tell the remainder of the story.

In spite of all Rickard's magnificent promises, the tournament through which he intends to determine a successor to Gene Tunney will be confined to five men.

Rickard has declared that every heavyweight in the world would be eligible to compete, but the American has learned that the only contenders being considered are Sharkey, Stribling, Paulino, Uzcudun, Tom Heeney and Jack Dempsey.

Present plans of the promoter call for two elimination matches, a semi-final round, and the matching of the survivor with Jack Dempsey, the former champion. Rickard's program is as follows:

February 27 — Jack Sharkey vs. Young Stribling at Miami.

April— Paulino Uzcudun vs. Tom Heeney at New York.

June— The Sharkey - Stribling winner vs. Heeny-Paulino winner at the Yankee Stadium.

August or September— The semi-final winner vs. Jack Dempsey in a match that will be billed for the world's championship at the Yankee Stadium.

By confining the contenders to the four men named, Rickard has made sure of Dempsey. Those who are close to the promoter realize that Dempsey will not make a comeback if he finds his opponent will be a boxer like Tommy Loughran or a younger man than himself.

Dempsey Not Afraid.

While all four of the men Rickard has chosen are younger than Dempsey the old champion does not believe any of them would give him any trouble. He has knocked out Sharkey, and the Boston man is considered the best of the lot. He saw Paulino make a poor showing against Otto on Porat, and what he saw that night convinced him he would have no difficulty in stopping the Spaniard.

Dempsey believes he can stiffen anything he can hit, and no one ever had trouble hitting Paulino. As for Heeney, Dempsey never considered him seriously. The Man Mauler thinks he would out-game Stribling.

So the plot fits in perfectly with Dempsey's ideas. It is the only way Rickard can be assured of Dempsey's services, and he must have Dempsey.

Colorado Fighter Drops Dead In Ring

CRAIG, Colo., January 3 (Canadian Press). — Dick Williams, of Meeker, Colo., a lightweight boxer, died in the ring here last night during his fight with "Wild Bill" Marks, of Craig, Colo. The cause of his death, which came during the third round in the feature event of an American Legion card which had packed the house, was not determined.

Williams dropped following a blow delivered by Marks, and was dead when the count was finished. He did not move after striking the canvas.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR VARSITY CREW

Defeats Strong University Club of Boston By 3-1 Score.

BOSTON, Jan. 3.—University of Toronto defeated the University Club hockey team here last night, 3 to 1. The Canadians, who have defeated Harvard and tied Dartmouth during their invasion, ran up a two-goal lead in the first two periods against the Boston club sextet, made up chiefly of Harvard and Dartmouth graduates.

Stewart, Toronto centre, netted the puck shortly after the start of the game, and McMullen, wing, increased the Canadians' lead in the second period. Half-way through the third period the University Club rallied, and Perry scored. Paul, Toronto defence man, scored the Canadians' third goal.

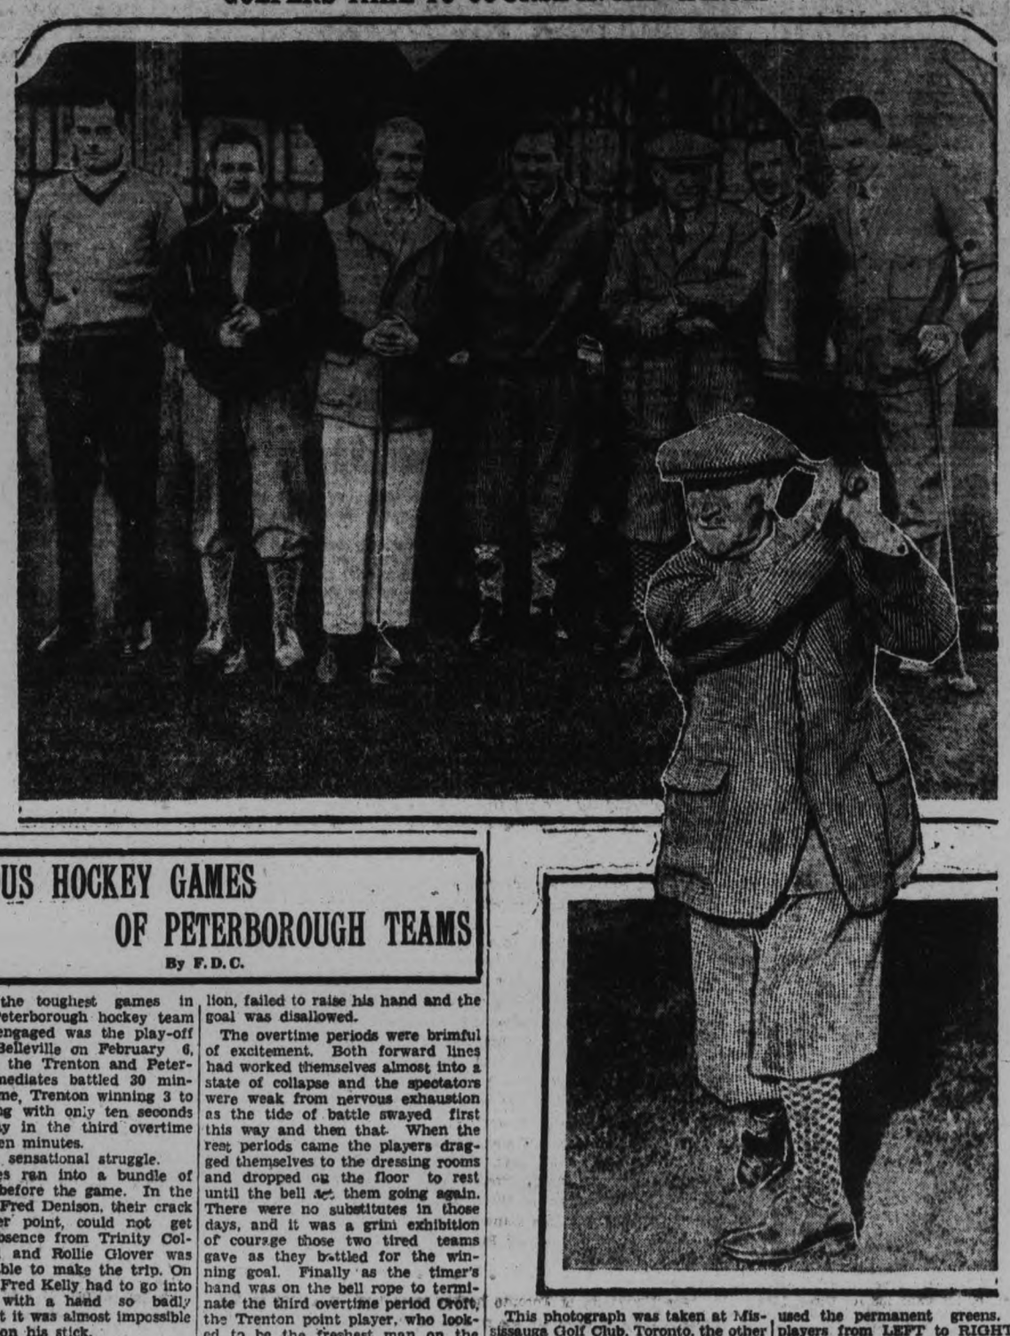
GOLFERS TAKE TO COURSE IN MID-WINTER



This photograph was taken at Mississauga Golf Club, Toronto, the other day, as the golfers were starting out for a mid-winter game under summer like conditions. They found the fairways in excellent shape and the greens fast and true. An almost unprecedented condition for Ontario courses at this season. They played 15 holes while the light was good and used the permanent greens. The players from LEFT to RIGHT are Donald Ross, W. J. Thompson, Col. J. E. Mills, Stanley Thompson, George S. Lyon, Archie Perkins, and T. G. Mueller. Inset is the Grand Old Man of Canadian golf, who was for eight years Canadian amateur champion, a present Canadian senior champion.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F. D. C.

One of the toughest games in which a Peterborough hockey team was ever engaged was the play-off battle in Belleville on February 6, 1911, when the Trenton and Peterboro intermediates battled 30 minutes overtime, Trenton winning 3 to 2 by scoring with only ten seconds left to play in the third overtime period of ten minutes.

It was a sensational struggle.

The Petes ran into a bundle of hard luck before the game. In the first place Fred Denison, their crack young cover point, could not get leave of absence from Trinity College school and Rollie Glover was ill and unable to make the trip. On top of this Fred Kelly had to go into the battle with a hand so badly swollen that it was almost impossible to close it on his stick.

200 Peterborough fans journeyed to Belleville for the play-off and had a slow journey, owing to a heavy snow storm. As a result the Petes did not reach the rink until 9 o'clock and it was 9.20 before the game got under way.

Early in the game the Peterborough team was further handicapped when Charlie Ray was body-checked into the boards and finished under difficulties. Trenton were the first to score, finding the nets five minutes after the start. The Petes evened it up in eight minutes. Trenton came back with another in two minutes and three minutes after the Peterborough team sewed up the game again leaving the score tied at half time 2-2.

There was no score during the thirty minutes of the second half—that is officially—Kelly apparently registered what would have been the winning goal for the Petes when he shot from the side and the rubber dropped into the net off McGiffin. The Trenton goal umpire Harry Felion, failed to raise his hand and the goal was disallowed.

The overtime periods were brimful of excitement. Both forward lines had worked themselves almost into a state of collapse and the spectators were weak from nervous exhaustion as the tide of battle swayed first this way and then that. When the rest periods came the players dragged themselves to the dressing rooms and dropped on the floor to rest until the bell set them going again. There were no substitutes in those days, and it was a grim exhibition of courage those two tired teams gave as they battled for the winning goal. Finally as the timer's hand was on the bell rope to terminate the third overtime period Croft, the Trenton point player, who looked to be the freshest man on the ice at this stage, dashed down the side of the rink. Apparently the Peterborough defence had him skated into the corner but he wheeled suddenly and circled out in front to lift the winning goal past Derocher. It was the first score in sixty-two minutes of hard fought hockey.

It was a tough night all round for Peterborough. The special train carrying the fans did not reach home until 5 o'clock the next morning while the Peterborough players, tired as they were could not get hotel accommodation in Belleville and slept on the floor of the Quinte Hotel parlor.

To-morrow — The Peterborough Grillers-Kingston Frontenac game of 1911.

HERB PENNOCK FIT FOR SOUTHPAWING

Lazzeri Also Sends Word of Hopeful Sort to Barrow.

NEW YORK, January 3. — Check-up of the Yankee cripples is bringing encouraging reports to the Rupert headquarters. Two of the most celebrated patients of the 1928 campaign —Herb. Pennock and Tony Lazzeri— already have turned in highly pleasing information and the third member of Mr. Huggins' none-too-strong-arm squad received a telegram yesterday to give an account of his ailments or lack of them.

What the Yankees will do in the oncoming flag chase will depend, no doubt, on what Pennock, Lazzeri, and Wilcy Moore may do in the year that lies just around the corner. Pennock and Moore were entirely out of competition before the Yanks engaged in the fall crush against the St. Louis Cardinals, and Lazzeri was hanging on with a bad arm.

It was good news to Tony when the Hugmen polished off the National eLaguers in four straight, as each additional start meant torture for the Pooch 'Em Up infielder.

Pennock Present.

Pennock made a call at the Yank headquarters yesterday, delivering his message of good cheer on the hoof. The lean left-hander has discovered a medico over near Kennett Square who has put the ancient soup bone in such shape that there is not a trace of neuritis to be felt. He has expressed the belief that a few sun baths will be sufficient to put the arm in perfect trim again, and that arm can be several degrees short of perfection and still be good enough.

Accepting the sun bath suggestion, Herbie will depart from Kennett Square for Florida about February 1. He will go direct to St. Peteraburg, where the sunshine is the best to be had anywhere in this broad land, take it from the circulars of the Chamber of Commerce.

When the remainder of the Yankee forces arrives late in the month, Pennock expects to be ready to throw a few baseballs. Not until then will it be possible to tell if the arm will ever again be fit for pitching, but the "feel" of it now indicates that the trouble is over.

The report on Lazzeri's ailing shoulder came from Bill Essick, one of the army of Yankee scouts. During the minor league meeting in Toronto early this month, Huggins commissioned Essick to make a call at the Lazzeri homestead in San Francisco and get the low-down on Tony's shoulder.

Arm Taking Rest.

Tony reported that he has finished the course of massages which had been ordered, and is now giving the arm nothing but rest treatment. He feels no soreness in the shoulder, but he has not attempted to throw a ball since the world series ended, so there is no positive assurance that the ailment has disappeared.

Ed. Barrow wired Wilcy Moore to send on some word of his arm, which went bad before the season closed and forced Huggins to send the pitcher home before the world series.

Moore has been placed on the voluntarily retired list and his name will be kept there until he shows that he is able to pitch. Moore was not a juvenile when he came to the Yankees, and he may have more difficulty shaking the ailment than a younger player would have.

HOCKEY TEAMS HOLD WORKOUT

Three Local O. H. A. Teams Limber Up For Week-end Games.

DISPLAY GOOD FORM.

Brock Street Rink re-echoed to the sounds of hockey—the crack of sticks and the swish of skates—for the first time this season when the three local O.H.A. teams held their primary workouts last evening.

About forty players chased the puck and mixed things up generally during the hour and a half that the practises were underway, and even under the crowded conditions that prevailed most of the time on the ice and uncertainty of the first practise some of the players disclosed good form and speed.

The Peterborough Hockey Club dumped their Juniors over the boards for the beginning and this group of youngsters shone out showing real hockey talent while the scramble lasted. Stan Jones and Jim Gillespie held down the nets. Out in front there was a mixture of former O.H.A. players and new comers, but the general impression of their work was favorable. The following took part in the workout: Calladine, Hatton, Ebbs, Merrett, Bill Cripps, Jim Ellis, Vern Dallin and Bernie Jones.

The Intermediates followed right after the Juniors and here too the class of hockey that showed itself in flashes kept the rail birds on their toes. "Sailor" Maudsley, Fred Cripps and Ted Lebarr teamed up well on one firing line and the "Sailor" especially went like a house-a-fire. The goals were filled by Jack Lebarr and Joe Mayette and the players were: Maudsley, Thornton, Foley, Williams, Cripps, Lackey, Swanger, Mahood, T. Lebarr, Lightheart, C. Mayette, and Kennealy.

The St. John's Juniors had the biggest crowd on the ice of the whole evening and under the coaching of Bernard Park, two teams of six men were kept on the ice and the puck was chased from end to end. Several of the St. John's former players missed the practise on account of illness. The players were: Craighton, Wood, Reynolds, C. Dorrington, Kearns, Dyer, Worshencroft, Dunkerly Hartley, Weir, Whitnell, White, Sutherland and Meagher.

All the teams will practise again to-morrow night. The Peterborough Hockey Clubs Junior at 7 o'clock the Intermediates at 8 and the St. John's team at 9.

FIRST PRACTICE AT CAMBELLFORD

Trent Valley Hockey League Entry Rounding Out Good Team.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, January 3. — For the first time this season the hockey players who will represent Campbellford in the Trent Valley Hockey League took the ice last night. The first game for the season here was scheduled to be played, but the ice was not in proper condition, and the players were still without practice. The next game in which the local sextette is represented will be in Stirling on Monday night.

The team does not appear to have been selected definitely as yet. There were twelve players on the ice, and the exhibition was far short of the polish that was part and parcel of the team of last season. All the old players will not be included in the line-up this season, but the newcomers to the ranks are expected to show up well. Ingram and McArthur will be the same defence as last year, but they will not have Fox in the nets behind them. Just now, it looks as though the job would fall to either Saunders or Irwin. Horkins was back in harness on the forward line last night. Doug. Runions, and several others were getting their hands in at the game for another season.

The practice last night was a real one, and although the ice was rough in spots and a little thin in others, the players set a fast pace, although ragged in spots as compared with the hockey that was seen here last season. With the material at hand, there is every reason to believe that the team for this year will make an excellent showing.

After the practice another flood was put on, and this morning the markings are being put in. Regular practice will be indulged in as the schedule will permit.

The curling rink is also practically ready to handle its brooms and stones. The usual one night of skating was allowed last night, and this morning the markings are being put in. By to-night the pebble ice should be on and the lovers of the Roarin' Game allowed to start the season's play.

AUSSIES LEAD BY 98 RUNS

Australians Counted Upon As Having Good Chance To Win Third Match.

EIGHT MEN TO BAT.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 3 (Canadian Press Cable). — A grim sporting struggle is being enacted on the famous cricket enclosure here, where England and Australia are battling in the third test match. England has won two of the matches and a victory here will give them the rubber and custody for another three years of the "Ashes," mythical championship emblem. A loss means that the contest will be kept alive until the fourth test at Adelaide and possibly to the fifth and last international match which will be played here in March.

The situation in the third test when Australia resumed their second innings to-day was as follows: England, first innings, secore, 417; Australia, first innings, score, 397 and 118 for two wickets in their second innings. The Antipodeans were thus 98 runs ahead with eight more men to bat. England will bat last in their second innings.

The two wickets Australia has lost were those of V. Richardson and R. L. Hendry. The overnight not outs were W. M. Woodfull, the safest batsman in Australia, with 64 runs to his name, and A. Kippax, who scored a much-needed century in Australia's first innings. He has made 34. The loss of Richardson and Hendry in the closing minutes of play yesterday was a serious blow to the Australians. However, the luck of the toss, which enabled the Antipodeans to bat first, will work for them. This was the fourth day of the game and the pitch probably will be worn and favor the bowlers for England's reply.

AUSTRALIANS SCORE 347 FOR EIGHT WICKETS

Woodful Only English Batter Able To Withstand English Bowling.

WICKET WAS FAST.

Australians 327 Runs in Lead With Two More Wickets To Fall.

MELBOURNE, Australia, January 3. (Canadian Press Cable.) — Australia kept England in the field all to-day in their second innings of the third cricket test match, and at the close of play were 327 runs ahead with two more wickets to fall. Scores were:—England 417; Australia 397 and 347 for eight wickets. After a poor start Australia through W. M. Woodfull and Don Bradman collared the English bowling. Woodfull scored 107 and Bradman 112.

Bradman, who is only in his 21st year, made his first test match century to-day, and received an ovation from the 30,000 people present, which lasted for three minutes.

England were without the services of their fast bowler, Harold Larwood, for most of the day's play. He sprained an ankle muscle after bowling six overs.

The tourists will be faced with the task of making well over three hundred runs in the fourth innings of a pitch that will be worn. England have been asked to beat such a score on twenty-six previous occasions, but only once accomplished it, and that was at Adelaide in 1902.

The day was very hot, the heat coming off the field being terrific. The English team pegged away at their job with great courage, but the bowlers were obviously not at their best after the opening hour, during which the wickets of Kippax and Ryder were captured.

TOOL ROOM TEAM HAS STRONG ROSTER

C.G.E. Entry Expected To Put Up Good Hockey in City League.

Retaining the name under which it won the City and C. G. E. League Championships, the C. G. E. Tool Room hockey machine is again ready to start the drive in defence of its City League trophy.

With the exception of two cogs which must be replaced it is practically the team that swept through all C. G. E. opposition in the Shop League and trounced the Maple Leafs to win the City League.

Nine of the eleven players who figured in the victorious campaign will be wearing the red, white and blue uniforms again—Ray Epps, O. Corkery, Mark Swanger, Micky Williams, G. Williams, E. Foley, Ed. Williams, Doug. Hatton and Stan Jones. Only two of the old guard will be missing: Vince Rishea, who is now in Ottawa, and Bill Clark, now an aviator at Camp Borden. Sid Gibbs, again at the helm, has a wealth of talent to fill out his roster.

Ted Griffin, Ken Carroll, George Milliken and Don Ellis of the Brass Dept., who played a great deal of hockey around Havelock, have been turning out regularly, and will be fighting for positions.

Voice of the People

To the Editor of The Examiner,

SIR—Your correspondent, Mr. Howard Young, finds serious fault with my statements regarding the Salvation Army.

I notice he does not refer to the civil war now raging at the Army headquarters in England. His remarks about the Empress of Ireland are incorrect. It is on record as the third worst disaster in history on the water, the Titanic being, not the Lusitania, second; and the S. A. ship, where 1058 one thousand fifty-eight lives were lost, the third.

The huge boat turned upside down after being, as the inquest showed, most unaccountablely rammed by a Norwegian barque. Nor does Mr. Young deny that the Army takes a rake-off for its own maintenance and upkeep out of the funds it collects for religious and charitable purposes. Of course, if the public wants to pay for the barracks, concerts, uniforms, conferences, fuel, food, travelling expenses, banquets and general upkeep of people to do the work our kindly, charitable and humble church-women do or did for nothing and for the love of the good cause I have no objection. Everybody knows or ought to know that there has been a determined effort by the public to get an accounting. Has one ever been given out in Peterborough? Not that I ever heard of. The Army showed 441 in Peterborough the last census and 441 the census before. Why? Neither Mr. Young nor anybody else can get away from the fact that from every dollar—yes, every little 5-cent piece given the Army for the poor and for the Lord's work, a good fat slice has to be first cut off for the upkeep of the Army. Not much martyrdom about that. Even Tammany never did that. Why did the two Booths fight like cat and dog for the control of the S.A. in America a few years ago? Did the Lord promote that fight? The investigators of the Permanent Fund showed it to be two million pounds in Britain alone. No wonder they want to keep control.

—J. H. BURNHAM.

VIEWS ON SPORT

With a good sheet of ice at the Brock, a practise last night, another to-night, and with a game scheduled for Friday night, the hockey season may be said to have at last begun.

The St. John's team will play the first O.H.A. game of the season here on Friday night with Bobcaygeon. This gives Manager Bernard Park only to-night, helped by the fleeting glimpses he got of the players as they performed in the mob last night, to pick his players and form a team. However, there was no dearth of material and with three or four players left from last year's team as a nucleus, he should be able to ice a team that will supply the Northerners with a stiff contest.

* * * * * * *

The Peterborough Hockey Club's Juniors journey to Whitby to play the Oshawa team. Thus the Petes clash in their first game with the team that will perhaps give them the stiffest opposition during the playing of the whole schedule.

* * * * * * *

Walter Perks is trying to arrange for an exhibition game between the Lakefield Intermediates and the Petes for Friday night, to take place in Lakefield. Such a game would certainly benefit both teams and it is most needed by the locals, since they will likely play Bowmanville here Monday night. This game was scheduled for last night, but it was postponed at the request of both teams.

The grand old man of curling in the West is, without a doubt, Andrew Murdock, honorary member of the Granite Club, Winnipeg. "Andy" stepped out on the ice one evening last week and skipped his rink to victory, thus marking his 62nd year as a curler. He began curling at the age of fifteen, and he had the distinction of being on the rink from the Caledonian Club of Hamilton which won the Ontario Tankard for the first time, away back in the 70's. The veteran does not now go regularly on the ice, but he is still able to throw a mean rock.

* * * * * * *

Cliff Bricker retained his reputation of being the best long distance runner in Canada by winning the annual ten-mile race in Hamilton on New Year's Day. Reynolds, also of Galt, was only a minute behind the leader and he ran the best race of his career.

* * * * * * *

Albert Smoke was entered in this race under the colors of the Lindsay Monarch A. C., but he did not compete. Mike Izaacs, the young Indian from the reserve near Brantford, ran eighth, and his style and sturdy build mark him as a runner who will be heard of later. His age on the entry form was given as fifteen.

* * * * * * *

With over a third of the schedule completed in the N. H. L., the race still remains close, and there are four teams battling for first honors. The defeat of the Leafs by the New York Rangers on Tuesday night sent them down from a tie for second place to a tie for third with the Flying Frenchmen. The Rangers are out in front by a slim margin of three points; next come the Maroons; then neck and neck, the Canadiens and Leafs, with the trailing Boston Bruins and Pittsburg Pirates battling hard to keep out of the cellar position.

* * * * * * *

The University of Toronto hockey team now on a tour in the United States is retrieving the reputation of the standard of hockey played in Canadian universities after it had been lowered recently by the sad showing of the McGill team. The Varsity players have not lost a game so far in playing the same teams that met McGill. They split a 2-2 tie with Dartmouth; defeated Harvard 3 to 2; and their crowning achievement was a 3-1 victory over the University Club of Boston, who had beaten McGill 13 to 3. In winning over the University Club, Varsity also settled an old score that has stood since the defeat of the "Grads" by the Boston team and over which the Americans did such loud "crowing".

* * * * * * *

Who has any desire to be a referee? Nothing but trials and tribulations seem to fall on their heads along with the jibes and jeers of the fans and the black looks of the players. The other night in Hamilton, Lou Marsh, while using the bell, had to leap to the safety of the boards to get out of the way of a wild rush. His skate split the boards and he was held there until released by the players and after the game the rink manager presented a bill to Lou for $2. And the other night in New York during the Americans and Canadiens' settoo, Smeaton, the ref., was knocked unconscious for several minutes. "Woe, is the lot of the bell ringer."

Detroit Featherweight Beats Booth of Toronto in Ten-Round Bout.

DETROIT, Michigan, Jan. 3.— Canadian Press. — Soldier Dombrowski, a Detroit featherweight, won the referee's decision over Bobby Booth of Toronto, in a 10 round bout here last night. The Detroit southpaw was held even by Booth in the early rounds but piled up a clean-cut lead when the latter tired in the closing rounds.

AT THE GRAND.

Lilian Christine

To the average theatre-goer, the name of Gordon McLeod is associated with that of Sir John Martin-Harvey, partly because of his fiction-like rise to stardom, both in London and in Canada, when he took the celebrated actor-knight's place and partly because he has been seen here on a number of occasions, as Sir John's leading man.

Obviously, therefore, he is somewhat associated with the type of play in which Sir John is usually seen and there is a particular interest for this reason, in his return engagement at the Grand in the internationally-famous success, "A Bill of Divorcement" in which he comes for a one-night stay, on Saturday, January 5th.

Previously, Mr. McLeod has scored in plays which are picturesque and colorful, with a strong romantic flavor. Now he appears in one which is intense and ultra-modern—one of the most powerful of all present-day dramatic hits.

That he has won unusual laurels in both types is abundant proof of his exceptional acting ability. As the star of "A Bill of Divorcement" he played the leading role for nearly 500 performances during its English runs, which lasted well over a solid year.

But the highly enthusiastic receptions which have marked the play's Canadian engagements since it opened on the coast some weeks ago are not due solely to the work of the star and the drawing power of a famous play. Mr. McLeod has seen to it that the production is a superb one and brought it, intact, from London. The supporting cast, headed by the brilliant young actress, Lilian Christine, has been carefully selected from the ranks of leading English players and includes Heather McIntyre, Aubrey Mallalieu, Olive Walter, Philip Kynaston Reeves, W. Hartnell and others.

BRANSBY WILLIAMS IN OLIVER TWIST

When the distinguished English character-actor, Bransby Williams, comes to the Grand Theatre here on Wednesday, January 9th, one of the outstanding features of his repertoire of four plays will be an entirely new acting version of "Oliver Twist." As the greatest living expert on Dickensian drama, Mr. Bransby Williams is well qualified to prepare a dramatic version of any of the novels of Dickens that lend themselves to such treatment. In his new version of "Oliver Twist," he has introduced a novel feature.

By the elimination of all superfluous dialogue, Mr. Williams unfolds the story and preserves the continuity of its action with the introduction of a series of clever and artistic "cameos" which are interspersed with the big dramatic scenes of the play.

In this manner, long waits for changes of scenery are avoided. The audience witnesses the finding of Oliver by the Artful Dodger, his introduction to Fagin the Jew, his ultimate escape from the thieves' den, and his recapture and later developments, exactly in accordance with the novel.

Mr. Bransby Williams will undertake in the presentation of "Oliver Twist", to play two roles as widely dissimilar as could well be imagined, Fagin and Mr. Grimwig. He sets himself a severe test as a protean artist here, for the two types are as far apart as the poles. But so resourceful is his technique that he can sink his personality completely in his portrayal of each role, and effect a complete change both of make-up and mentality, to a degree that makes people wonder whether the same man could possibly play both parts.

GOLD RUSH FEVER A GAMBLER'S ITCH

Same Lure Impels Both Says Conrad Nagel of "The Michigan Kid"—Also Starting Our New Serial, "Tarzan the Mighty."

Men who follow the gold rushes are always addicted to the gambling fever, according to Conrad Nagle, who co-stars with Rene Adoree in Universal's special from Rex Beach's novel, "The Michigan Kid," which will open at the Regent Theatre today.

Nagel has seen several gold rushes in California and Nevada, and can explain from deduction, the sweeping gambling fever which always accompanies a gold rush.

"I have talked to many gold prospectors," he said. "Desert rats they are called because they spend their entire vagabond lives picking at the sides of the mountain in the desert areas of the Southwest, hoping to strike gold. There is no greater gamble in all the world than that."

"The discovery in Weepah Nevada, less than two years ago was a typical case. Two boys, this time, found a pocket of gold When word went out concerning the discovery thousands of desert rats and other adventurers arrived on the scene. Gambling halls were opened and flourished for a few months. But the original pocket containing $100,000 worth of gold was all that was discovered. The town was abandoned, adding another to the depopulated towns of the desert country."

"For several reasons gambling flourishes. The men who have discovered gold expect their luck to continue at cards. Those who fail to find gold stake their last cent in an effort to beat the house."

"I have studied the methods and demeanor of the professional gambler and I think this has helped me to give a faithful performance in "The Michigan Kid" in which I play the role of a professional gambler in Alaska during the gold rush of 1898."

The supporting cast in this Universal special includes Lloyd Whitlock, Fred Esmelton, Adolph Milar, Maurice Murphy, Virginia Grey and Dick Palm. Irvin Willat directed the picture

AT THE CAPITOL.

BUSTER KEATON AND ERNEST TORRENCE IN "STEAMBOAT BILL JR." AT THE CAPITOL TO-NIGHT, AND EDDIE JACKSON.

"Steamboat Bill Jr" the Buster Keaton comedy for United Artists, which will have its local premier at the Capitol Theatre to-day is probably the most lavishly produced laugh feature ever made.

From the first glimpse of the frozen-faced star, when he ambles onto the screen as a sappy youth whose own father doesn't even give him credit for being able to do anything but play a ukulele, till the uproarious climax, when Buster turns into the most extraordinary character that ever trod the deck of a stern-wheeler, "Steamboat Bill Jr." is said to keep audiences in hysterics.

Advance notices call "Steamboat Bill Jr." Keaton at his funniest.

He is the awkward son of a river ship owner, whose position is being threatened by a rival shipper.

The part of Buster's father brings Ernest Torrence as the stumbling, shambling, laughable, but not unlovable old shipowner, out of step with modern business, but stoutly refusing to give up the ship.

Buster's plight throughout the picture is such stuff as laughs are made of When, for instance, he smuggles into the crude jail where his father is, a huge loaf of bread containing an entire jailbreaking kit, the situation pits the Keaton comedy against the Torrence comedy, contrast making comedy more comical.

Marion Byron, a slender girlish little newcomer into the United Artists forces, plays the girl opposite Buster's awkward youth. Tom McGuire and Tom Lewis are other prominent members of the cast who share laugh honors

"Steamboat Bill Jr" was directed by Charles "Chuck" Reisner, former associate of Charles Chaplin and later the megaphone chief for Syd Chaplin during the filming of "The Better Ole", "The Missing Link" and other comedies.

Both Keaton and Reisner regard "Steamboat Bill Jr." as the outstanding picture of their careers

The Women's Canadian Club deems itself very fortunate in having secured Major Charles G. D. Roberts, M.A., L.L.D., F.R.S.C., to lecture on Monday evening, 14th January in the Hall of the Conservatory of Music. Dr. Roberts is without question the greatest literary figure Canada has produced. "Saturday Night" says:—"As poet, as scholar, as prose stylist, as nature student, short story writer, as novelist and historian, he is in the very front rank in each capacity." The "Vancouver Daily Province" says:—"A feast of literary excellence supplied by a man who has made the name of Canada famous by his poetry and other writings in all parts of the world. Roberts is a man, every inch of him, and he has the faculty of placing himself at once on genial terms with his audience." Tickets for non members 50 cents from members of the Club and W. J. THREE INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Car Crashes Into Sleigh Carrying New Year's Tally-ho Party.

NEAR OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Three members of a New Year's Day Tally-ho party were injured, while fourteen others were hurled into a snow filled ditch flanking the highway, when a speeding motor car crashed into the sleigh on the Gatineau Point road, near here, last night. Several of the party were bruised and cut. Following the collision, the driver of the automobile jumped from the machine and ran away. Police are seeking the owner of the car.

Miss Lucienne Labell, of Hull, Que., was seriously hurt, both her legs being fractured. Her sister Pauline also is believed to have sustained internal injuries. P. Pichette, also a resident of Hull, was running in the rear of the sleigh when the car bowled him over. One of the wheels of the auto passed over his body.

A passing automobile rushed the injured back to Ottawa where medical treatment was administered, while the police immediately started a search of the district for the fugitive driver.

JUDGMENT GIVEN FOR DEFENDANT

His Honor Judge Huycke Delivers Judgment in Grain Case.

His Honor Judge Huycke gave the following judgment in the Williams vs. Douglas case. In the first Division Court of the County of Peterborough. S. T. Medd, K. C., acted for the plaintiff, and J. A. O'Brien for the defendant.

"This is a case that has given me more than a little thought and anxiety to determine what should be done with it. The plaintiff alleges he sold certain wheat to the defendant. The defendant contending on the other hand that the wheat was simply stored in his elevator at Fraserville, and to be sold whenever the plaintiff would so indicate. In other words it was for storage, not sale. A bailment not otherwise.

"After considering the matter very carefully, and weighing the evidence, I concluded that the facts are as the defendant says. At the time of delivering early in February, 1925, the price of wheat was advancing very rapidly, and I have no doubt that the price of $2.00 was discussed between the parties at the time, and immediately after drawing his wheat into the elevator, prices began to go down, and went down for a time very quickly. There is no evidence that the defendant was ever told or asked to sell at any price or at any time. The defendant kept taking in and shipping out grain of all kinds, including wheat from time to time, from his elevator until December, 1925, it was burned.

"During the whole of this time, and at the time of the fire, there was stored in the elevator more wheat than had been taken in by the plaintiff.

"In argument, the plaintiff cited the case of Benedict vs. Kerr, 29, U.C.C.P, 410, which was a case very similar in its facts to the one at bar. Barley was stored and mixed by the Bailee with grain of his own, and the premises burned, and this case would appear to be conclusively in favor of the plaintiff. If it is not shown that the case has been overruled or the law amended.

"No effort was made by counsel for defendant to deal with this phase of the question or to help himself and the court out of the real difficulty.

"In the year 1919 an amendment to the Canadian Grain Act was passed, which amendment has been incorporated in the Canada Grain Act of R.S. C. ch. 86, s. 213, which provides that in case of such delivery of grain to a warehouseman, although it be mingled with other grain, shall be deemed a bailment and not a sale.

"Although I have found no author interpreting this clause it would appear to be conclusive in favor of defendant, with the facts as I find them the wheat was not sold but delivered to the warehouseman at the elevator to await the directions of the defendant, and although this very identical wheat was certainly mixed with other wheat and was probably shipped out on the various shipments from the place.

"Notwithstanding in the absence of any specific direction it remained a bailment and not a sale.

"The bailee is bound to exercise reasonable care only and not be negligent; it is not suggested that the fire was owing in any degree to negligence of the defendant, and therefore as I view the case and the situation the wheat came in as a bailment and remained a bailment until finally destroyed.

"The action must be dismissed, but it is not a case for costs order accordingly."

An appeal is being taken from this judgment.

SCHOOL BOARD HEARS REPORTS FOR YEAR 1928

penditure, $167,859.00, had been necessitated by the Collegiate extension. There were other expenditures, such as for printing and stationery, text books and supplies, fuel, repairs and furniture and insurance.

School Attendance Reports.

Whether the prevalence of colds and influenza did or did not affect the attendance of pupils at the Public Schools, Collegiate Institute, and Vocational School, the attendance reports, as submitted by the inspector of the former, and the principal of the latter, showed high percentages.

Summed up, the academic enrolment at the Collegiate was 414, of which there was an average daily attendance of 410, while the average daily attendance in the Commercial Department was 212 out of a total enrolment of 217. The Industrial and Household Arts Department, with a total enrolment of 93, had an average daily attendance of 90, and the entire average attendance was 98 per cent. of the entire enrolment for the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School.

There was a 93 per cent. attendance at Prince of Wales School, a similar percentage at Central School, 96 per cent. at King Edward School, 94 per cent. at Queen Mary School and 95 per cent. at Queen Alexandra, King George, and South Central Schools.

Appointment Made.

At last night's meeting, the 1928 Board passed the motion of Mr. Strickland and Mr. Reid, that L. D. W. Magie be reappointed on the Public Library Board for the term of three years from February 1, 1929; it received a statement of moneys received, and confirmed the payment of a number of routine business accounts. In connection with the moneys received, there was detailed, among other things, the fact that $4,490 was received from the county treasurer for county pupils attending the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School to June 30, 1928. Miss J. V. Jory was granted the sum of $125.00 toward the expenses of her automobile in connection with her duties as school nurse, while the Finance Committee recommended the payment of a list of current accounts.

To Be Photographed.

At the close of the meeting, E. F. Reid took occasion to refer to the departure from the Board of the three members, expressing the thought, in the form of a motion, that they having been chairmen of committees largely responsible for the new wing at the Collegiate, their picture be hung in the library at the Collegiate. The motion carried, while all three spoke briefly, referring in turn to past associations with the members of the Board, to the work completed, and the work yet to be completed.

BOLIVIAN ENVOY WILL SIGN PROTOCOL

Settlement of Paraguay-Bolivian Border Dispute Believed Nearer.

WASHINGTON, D.C., January 3.—Canadian Press. — Despite trials and tribulations, the settlement of the Paraguay-Bolivian dispute seemed a little nearer to-day, with the report from Buenos Aires that the Bolivian minister here had been authorized to sign the protocol for conciliation.

This report was made to Buenos Aires papers from La Paz and awaits confirmation. Paraguay has approved the protocol and a special committee of the Pan-American conference named to mediate the differences had practically suspended work while Bolivia's reply was pending.

Around the City

The Fire Department had a busy session yesterday with a total of five calls to small fires.

At 10.51 there was a call to 494 Patterson street to a chimney fire. The wood around the chimney had also begun to blaze from the heat of the chimney.

At 11.43 a call was received to a chimney fire at 194 Hunter street East, which was extinguished with chemicals.

At 1.35 p.m. smoke was noticed pouring out of house at 223 George St., North, but on inspection by the firemen no fire was found.

At 1.45 p.m. the third chmney fire of the day was attended at 249 Aylmer St. and this also required a good sprinkling with chemicals.

At 4.13 a car on the corner of Sherbrooke St. and Monaghan Rd. back fired and began to blaze, but the quick work of the Fire Department soon extinguished it with small damage.

In discussing the numerous small fires yesterday Chief Glimblett said, "It should be well understood now by everyone that under the new Fire Prevention Law, anyone having a chimney fire may be called into Court and fined. It is not only necessary in cleaning the chimney to clean the bottom part, but also the top and all the way down; and in this way only can chimney fire be prevented.

custody and surrendered without any sign of a struggle.
Twells, who is an educated man, was formerly a doctor in England, but came to Canada some years ago, purchasing a farm at Picton. Corfield was working on shares with him, and the latter was given two days in which to vacate his home and get off the farm to-day at noon.
There had been some trouble between the two since the harvest was gathered.
Twells married Corfield's sister, but there had been ill-feeling.
He was arrested by High County Constable James Lovelace of Prince Edward County, and Police Sergeant Arthur Booth of Belleville. Constable Morris and C. F. Biddle entered the home as the shackles were placed on the accused.
The police found two or three other guns in the yard, these having been thrown out of Twell's reach by Dr. Vanluven. The man was of a very nervous temperament, but neighbors are unable to account for his strange act last night. The two boys, Colin and Kenneth, who were the only children, attended the Consecon school, and were considered exceptionally bright pupils.
The shooting is the second murder which has occurred in the Consecon district within recent years, Randolph Clarke, a farmer, having been killed while driving in a buggy along a country road. His death remains a mystery, as his assailant was never arrested.

KING'S ILLNESS IS REVIEWED BY MEDICAL PAPER

His Majesty Passed a Fair Night States 11.30 a.m. Bulletin.

STATEMENT ENCOURAGING.

Progress While Slow Is Definite Enough To Justify Hope.

LONDON, Jan. 4.— (Canadian Press.)—Two favorable factors have appeared in the latest developments in King George's prolonged struggle.

The restlessness which prevented him from getting adequate repose on two previous nights seemed to have left him in a large degree and he passed the night more quietly. This, it was ssumed, would prove helpful, adding to the powers of recuperation he needs to lift him out of this sadly debilitated state.

Concurrently this morning's bulletin reported improvement in the locally infected area.

The King's general condition was reported as being stationary. This indicated that at least there had been no setback. The inference was that the King had maintained the slight improvement noted recently and which physicians were using new treatments to accelerate all possible.

Case Reviewed.

An official review of the King in his fight against pleurisy, the most informative statement yet given out by medical men who have attended His Majesty, is published this morning in two of the leading medical journals of Great Britain, the Lancet and the British Medical Journal. The statement is considered extremely encouraging, showing as it does that the King's progress, while slow, is definite enough to justify hope for his restoration to health.

The statement says:

"For true understanding of the position it must be emphasized that neither in its inception nor in its subsequent course has this illness conformed to what is called 'pleuro-pneumonia.' Rather, it was streptococcal septimaemia, which by a fortunate happening was localized at the right base of the lung, first imperfectly and later as an empyema (fixation abscess) forming between the base of the lung and the diaphragm.

"In the second phase of the illness (vide report December 22nd), the clinical picture (dusky appearance, dry, cracked tongue, delirium, subsultus exhaustion), was that of severe toxaemia, resembling that of a severe case of typhoid fever, in the third or fourth week.

Aftermath of Infection.

"So now the picture is that of the aftermath of a severe general infection. The empyema wound is now clean and steadily diminishing in size.

"On the other hand, disinclination for food, dryness of the tongue, low blood pressure, weakness and wasting and notable exhaustion, though slowly improving, will for a long time be an anxious problem. It will be readily understood that while this exhaustion state is pronounced, the margin of reserve power must be narrow and small setbacks, inevitable at this stage, have a correspondingly more severe effect. It is important that the public should not interpret such setbacks or reports of 'no change' as relapses.

"During each week there will be ups and downs as progress will consist of the slow and increasing predominance of the ups over the downs.

"The exhaustion is as much weariness of the mind as of the body. Though there is an increasing sense of the burden of his illness, the will of the King to live is there.

1929 Board of Education Holds Inaugural Meeting—Committees Formed.

"FLU" DISCUSSED.

Primer Departments in City Public School Will Open January 21.

"There is certainly a large number of people ill with influenza but the present form of the "flu" so prevalent in the city is not the serious type. I do not believe that there would be anything gained by delaying the schools re-opening past the date set for Monday, January 7," said Dr. H. M. Yelland on being asked his opinion, when the discussion, concerning the advisability of keeping the schools closed for some time longer, arose at the inaugral meeting of the 1929 Board of Education held in the Board rooms of The Toronto Savings and Loan Company, last evening.

The question of keeping the schools closed was raised by F. H. Dawson, and after considerable discussion and expert advice given by Dr. H. M. Yelland and Dr. A. Moir, it was decided that the Collegiate and Public Schools should re-open on January 7 but that the primer departments remain closed for two weeks longer.

Dr. J. J. Craig, who has considerable experience on the board, being chairman of the Supervision Committee last year, was elected chairman of the board for the year 1929. He succeeds E. Bruce who held the office for the past two years.

In accepting the chair Dr. Craig said that it was a great honor to be elected to the chairmanship of such a body. "I accept the office with a great deal of hesitancy, since there are several members, who have as long experience on the board as I have and several, who are my seniors in point of service and they could have filled it better than I," said Dr. Craig. He recounted the years of faithful service and good works accomplished by Mrs. W. R. Morris as a member of the board, and continuing said, "Dr. Moir, Dr. McNabb and Mr. Dutton are well qualified to act on the board and I feel sure that its work will roll along in an expedient manner."

Committees were struck by a standing committee consisting of:—E. B. Fowler, chairman, Mrs. Morris, Dr. Yelland, James Dutton and F. H. Dawson. When the report was adopted the committees elected their chairman and are now consisted as follows:—

Finance Committee.—E. F. Reid, (chairman), E. B. Fowler, Dr. Moir and the Separate School representative.

Property Committee.—F. H. Dawson (chairman), Mrs. W. R. Morris, I. P. McNabb, and James Dutton.

Supervision Committee.—Mrs. W. R. Morris (chairman), E. F. Reid, F. H. Dawson, and Dr. A. M. Yelland.

Committee of Appointments.—The whole board with Dr. A. M. Yelland as chairman.

Building Committee for the Collegiate Extension.—E. B. Fowler (chairman), E. F. Reid and Dr. J. J. Craig.

Advisory Vocational Committee.—G. A. Gillespie, W. R. Turner Jr., P. P. Westbye, E. Maybee, Chas. Westbrook and Trustees Mrs. W. R. Morris, James Dutton, Dr. A. Moir, F. H. Dawson, Dr. J. J. Craig and

JAMES TURNBULL APPOINTED SECRETARY CANADIAN LEGION

Executive Holds Organization Meeting To Lay Plans For Year's Work.

COMMITTEES NAMED.

R. E. Layfield and Frank Smith Added To Executive Committee.

James Turnbull was appointed honorary secretary of Branch 52, the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, at an organization meeting of the executive committee last night, and R. E. Layfield and Frank Smith were appointed members of the executive to complete establishment.

The meeting was partly social in nature, dinner being served in Hooper's parlor where President John R. Heron was host to Vice-President Arnold E. Everitt, Past-President James Abraham, Treasurer W. J. Swanger, and John A. Dewart and Sidney Whatley of the executive. Objectives for 1929, brought in by the president, were adopted and committee apointments were made. It was decided to hold executive meetings this year on the second Monday of each month, and general meetings of the branch as usual on the third Monday of the month.

Following discussion of the year's objectives, and with the object in mind of selecting men who would give effect to them, the following committee chairmen were appointed, these to choose their own committees of three to five: Entertainment, Thomas Chapman; Visiting, H. Colt; House and Relief, J. Abraham; Euchre, Charles Wiggins. A committee consisting of the president, vice-president, secretary, and S Whatley was appointed to consider local by-laws.

Objectives For Year.

Seven major objectives were adopted to guide the executive in its year's work. An endeavour will be made to attract more returned soldiers to the Legion, through social events and comradeship, and by indicating the existing and growing need for their participation in the work of the organization. New pains will be taken to preserve the memories of the fallen by introducing symbolism and by having outstanding speakers at every opportunity, such as memorial parades and Armistice. Greater publicity for the Legion and its work was decided upon, so that the public may be informed of the activities which mean so much to returned soldiers, especially those who are suffering from war disabilities.

An increase of attention will be given too, to informing members of what their organization is doing. This will be done partly through the "Legion Column" in The Examiner, and by correspondence.

It was remarked that more use might be made of the Canadian Legion hall for community purposes, since it is centrally located and has all the facilities for dances and parties. Another consideration mentioned is that all proceeds of rentals go toward relief in the city, and for properly caring for the pension claims of returned soldiers who were disabled or partially disabled through war service.

The work of the women's auxiliary was mentioned by the president with gratification, and the executive determined upon close co-operation with this organization during the year. The annual meeting of the auxiliary will be held on Monday next.

LADY OF LIGHT

(The following poem, written by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, and set to music of her own composition also, is dedicated to Peterborough as the Electric City, and entitled "Lady of Light." It is written especially for the celebration of Peterborough's Old Home Week):

"The birds across the hill are gaily singing,
And music murmurs gently down the stream.
The bells above a welcome warm are ringing:
Come back once more to rest awhile and dream."

"Star-crowned she stands mid plains of richest splendor,
Lighting the path along the coming years.
And once again our love to her we render
In rapture, joy, and softly falling tears.

Chorus:

"Lady of Light, she greets you,
Welcomes you home again.
Once you were only children,
Now you have grown to be men.
Yesterday 'wakens in splendor,
Lingers o'er friendships formed then;
Lady of Light shining out through the night
Welcomes her children again."

LITTLE GIRL DIES IN FIRE

Thirteen Year Old Sister Proves the Heroine, Rescuing Six Tots.

CHILDREN SLEEPING.

THE PAS, Man., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—Ann Kirkness, a girl of three years of age, was burned to death and six tots were rescued when the house in which they were living at Split Lake, Mile 137 Hudson Bay Railway, was burned to the ground on New Year's Eve.

News of the tragedy reached The Pas in a letter from A. M. Dewdney, a missionary. He says that Mary Kirkness, 13, a sister of the child who was burned to death, was the heroine of the tragedy. She was in charge of the infants and managed to save six of the sleeping children, carrying them out and wrapping them in blankets, for the night was bitterly cold.

BODY EXHUMED AT CORNWALL IDENTIFIED AS MRS. SCHNABEL

Montreal Neighbor of Dead Woman Recognizes Features and Dress.

MAKE AUTOPSY TO-DAY.

Dental Chart Is Expected To Play Important Part in Unravelling Mystery.

MONTREAL, January 4. Canadian Press. — The body exhumed by the police in Cornwall, and brought to Montreal last night, was to-day positively identified as that of Mrs. Florence Schnabel, by a neighbor, whose name is withheld by the police. This neighbor not only recognized the features of the dead woman, but also identified dress, a fawn-colored one of flowered design adorned with frills, which he had seen Mrs. Schnabel wearing on various occasions.

Questioned as to the cause of death, Dr. Wilfred Derome, medico-legal expert of the Province of Quebec, said that he could express no opinion yet, as the autopsy had not been started, but now that the body had been identified, he let it be understood the autopsy would be held late this afternoon or to-morrow.

CORNWALL, Jan. 4. — Canadian Press. — A dental chart is expected to play an important part in unravelling the mystery surrounding the identity of a woman whose body was disinterred here yesterday at the request of the Montreal police.

The body of the woman was recovered last September from the Cornwall Canal, near Moulinette, but efforts to fix her identity proved unavailing, and she was buried in a pauper's grave.

The disappearance of Mrs. Florence Schnabel, of Montreal, led to an investigation by the Montreal authorities, and permission was given for the exhumation of the woman's body buried here.

Superficial examination by Dr. Derome last night disclosed the fact that in many particulars the description of the woman corresponded to that of Mrs. Schnabel, particularly as to age, height and weight.

MONTREAL, January 4. Canadian Press. — A month ago the detectives at police headquarters here received a post card mailed in Toronto, purporting to be signed by George Schnabel, and bearing the words: "I know you want me, but you will never get me." At first they doubted the genuineness of the signature, but the discovery of Mrs. Schnabel's body in Cornwall, has led them to scrutinise the handwriting all over again. They are firmly of the opinion that Schnabel, who has been missing since Dec. 2, is still alive.

Young Heiress To Large English Estate Is Being Held On Theft Charges In Seattle

SEATTLE, Washington, Jan. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Gertrude Douglas, 20, who says she is the grand-daughter of Sir Edmund Douglas, one time governor of British Columbia, and heiress to a British estate, was held in jail to-day while authorties prepared to file automobile theft charges against her.

Officers said she took a machine from a motor car company here and drove to Bellingham where she contracted a hotel bill before borrowing gasoline from a service station operator to return to Seattle for New Year's Eve celebrations. She was arrested at a party at the Broadmoor Golf Club here and held in lieu of $1,500 bail. "My feet got tired," she explained, "so I decided to ride a while."

She said she had no idea of the value of the estate to which she was heiress when she became 21.

Word from Lummi Island to-night indicated that the girl is the daughter of Lady Douglas Grant and that her claims were true. The girl was indifferent as to whether officers believed her story or not.

GEORGE O'NEIL HANGED TO-DAY

Man Was Convicted of Killing Tecumseh Farmer and His Daughter.

TRIED AT BARRIE.

BARRIE, Ont., January 4 (Canadian Press). — George O'Neil, farm hand, convicted of the murder of his employer, Azor Robertson, and Robertson's daughter, on February 4 last, was hanged at seven minutes after midnight in the yard of the jail here.

Permission to witness the hanging was refused newspapermen and others, and the only witnesses were jail officials, the man's spiritual advisor, and a doctor.

O'Neil was pronounced dead twenty minutes after the trap was sprung, and the witnesses said afterward that he went to his death calmly.

Fifteen minutes after the trap had been sprung, Hangman Arthur Ellis cut down the body, which was his five hundred and sixty ninth execution. Dr. William Little pronounced life extinct.

Shortly after midnight Sheriff D. H. Maclaren, Jailer J. W. B. Banting and the executioner, entered O'Neill's cell on the first floor of the jail building. Here the condemned man was reading the Bible with his spiritual adviser, Rev. A. E. Baker, United Church Minister. O'Neil rose from the couch-bed on which he was sitting. He made no protest although his body shook violently as he held his arms behind his back to be bound together.

In the corridor two turnkeys took their places, one on either side of the prisoner, as he descended a winding stair which led to the ground floor. With slow but unfaltering steps O'Neil walked the fifteen feet to the door of the building attached to the jail proper, where the scaffold had been erected. He was wearing a colored shirt, dark trousers, and heavy work boots studded with nails.

While the black cap was being adjusted the Minister read prayers, which O'Neil repeated. "God have mercy on my soul," he mumbled through the heavy cloth just as the trap was sprung.

At 12.22 a.m., his body was carried back to the cell where he had waited his execution, and after examination by the doctor, placed in a coffin where he remained until the coroner's inquest at nine o'clock this morning.

The bodies of Robertson and his daughter were found in the ashes of the Robertson barn, which was razed by fire early on the morning of February 4 last. The accused said that he left the old man ill in the barn and went to secure help from Mrs Martin. When he returned, he averred, the building was in flames and Robertson had disappeared from the spot where he formerly was.

COMMANDER IN CHIEF SHOCKED WHEN TOLD THAT HIGH COUNCIL HAS BEEN SUMMONED TO LONDON

News of Calling High Body Is Broken To Sick Leader of Army.

NOT SEEN HIS SISTER.

Bramwell Booth Declares Love For Organization Founded By Father.

LONDON, Jan. 4. — Canadian Press —Shocked by the first information that the High Council of the Salvation Army had been summoned and was likely to depose him as Commander-in-Chief, General Bramwell Booth yesterday received the news with this exclamation:

"I have loved the Army and have done my best for my people. Whatever other people may think about the government or its affairs, they must feel that this is rather rough on me."

The General's sister, Commander Evangeline Booth, conversed with her niece, Catherine, yesterday for the first time since her arrival in England. The conference took place at the international headquarters of the Army, and lasted for several hours. It was intimated, however, that Commander Booth was given no indication that her brother knew she was here, nor was she told when she might see him.

Commander Evangeline remained at headquarters until a late hour engaged in further conferences with Army leaders, to whom she explained her program for reform within the organization.

General Receives News.

The headquarters staff revealed the dramatic manner in which Mrs. Bramwell Booth and her daughter, broke the news of the rift in the organization to the aged and sick Commander-in-Chief. They announced that the doctors permitted this because of progress in the health of the General.

Despite the care with which the wife and daughter passed the word to him, the aged man, lying helpless in his lonely cottage on the Suffolk coast, immediately realized the import of the information.

He suddenly found himself faced with the probability of removal by Councillors, many of whom he had himself raised to positions of authority.

He could also vision the fact that the fortunes of his wife and children might pass from his own power to the control of other hands.

Life's Work Threatened.

It was said that the 73-year-old leader would naturally consider that the whole work of his life was threatened. He had been an active Salvationist since the age of 16. He began his organization work under the tutelage of his father, the General William Booth, who founded the movement. He became Chief of Staff at the age of 24, organizing the growing the outposts of the Salvation Army until he succeeded his father as Commander-in-Chief.

He also administered the work of the vast organization and retained for himself a large part of these duties when he became leader of the Army.

This latter fact is the foundation of one of the chief complaints of the reform element who say that the burden has become too great for any one man to carry.

Mother of Composer Dies at Long Island

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Nannie Ball, the original "Mother Machree" of her son's famous song by that name, died last night at her home in Beechurst, Long Island. She was 71 years old.

The son, Ernest R. Ball, died in May, 1927. He was the composer of many popular ballads of which "Mother Machree" was the most famous. The body of Mrs. Ball will be taken to Cleveland for burial alongside that of her son.

PARLIAMENT WILL OPEN ON FEBRUARY 7TH

Announcement Is Made By Premier After Session of Cabinet Council.

NO APPOINTMENTS MADE.

Hon. R. B. Bennett, Leader of Conservative Party, Is In Europe.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—Parliament will open on Thursday, February 7, official announcement to this effect was made last night by Premier W. L. Mackenzie King at the conclusion of a meeting of the Cabinet Council. The Prime Minister stated that no appointments to governmental vacancies were made at yesterday's sitting of the Cabinet.

Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, who is now in Europe, will return to the Capital about the middle of this month. Mr. Bennett sailed for England two weeks before Christmas on a brief holiday prior to the opening of parliament. The Conservative leader may fill one or two speaking engagements immediately on his return; but the major portion of his time will be occupied in preparation for the coming season.

Political prognosticators forecast that the session opening next month will be much livelier than the previous one. With occasional rumors in the air of a possible general election next fall, the likelihood is that debates in both the Commons and the Senate will be herewith more spirited. No intimation has been made in official circles, though, on the possibility of an election this year. Two general elections have been held in the Dominion during the past few years, one in 1925 and the last one in 1926, and there are many political observers who lean towards the opinion that no further appeal will be made to the people before 1930.

BETTER COWS ARE NEEDED

Dairymens' Association Holds 52nd Annual Convention in Belleville.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Jan. 4. Canadian Press. — Cheesemakers and others interested in the industry form many parts of the province gathered at the 52nd anual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario here yesterday.

President Alex. McGruer, Brinston, in his address, said that the past year had been a prosperous one in the cheese making industry. Prices were good and crops were fair, he said. He also reported a "remarkable increase in the percentage of high grade cheese in the last season," which he attributed to the efforts of the organization.

A number of directors reported upon the meetings held at various times in their districts, and the results achieved. All lauded the associations efforts and the good it was accomplishing. Discussing possible shortages of cheese, it was stated that more cows were not necessary, but better cows were needed.

HOTEL IS BURNED

CHRYSLER, Ont., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—Fire of undetermined origin wiped out the Commercial Hotel and three adjacent properties here last night. A passer-by first noticed the blaze in the rear of a billiard parlor adjoining the hotel and turned in the alarm to the town telephone operator, who in turn summoned the volunteer fire brigades of Finch, Berwick and Moose Creek. The loss is placed at $30,000.

Who has not felt how sadly sweet
The dream of home, the dream of home,
Steals o'er the heart, too soon to fleet,
When far o'er sea or land we roam?

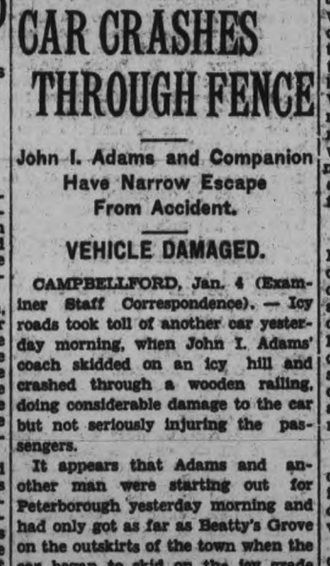
CAR CRASHES THROUGH FENCE

John I. Adams and Companion Have Narrow Escape From Accident.

VEHICLE DAMAGED.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 4 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Icy roads took toll of another car yesterday morning, when John I. Adams' coach skidded on an icy hill and crashed through a wooden railing, doing considerable damage to the car but not seriously injuring the passengers.

It appears that Adams and another man were starting out for Peterborough yesterday morning and had only got as far as Beatty's Grove on the outskirts of the town when the car began to skid on the icy grade and got beyond control. It crashed through the left hand railing of a culvert at the foot of the grade and came to a halt. The windshield was damaged and fenders badly bent. The radiator and lights also suffered. Neither Adams nor his pasesnger were hurt with the exception of some cuts on one of Adams' hands. They continued on to Peterborough in the bus after having phoned to a service station in town to look after the wrecked car.



LEGION HAS GOOD YEAR

Auditors of the Campbellford Branch Announce a Balance of Over $400.

RECEIPTS $1,151.75.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 4 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Illness and bad weather lowered the attendance record of the local branch of the Canadian Legion to a mere handful at the meeting held in the Legion room last night. But those who were present had the pleasure of seeing the alterations to the interior of their rooms well under way. The new officers should have been installed, but there were only two present, James Watters, 1st vice-president, and J. D. MacEachern, secretary treasurer. The auditors' report for the past year showed a cash balance in the bank of more than four hundred dollars with other assets which will increase the wealth of the branch to approximately $600. Two applications for memberships were accepted. In one case, the applicant was overseas with the United States Artillery, and his application called for the rank of a first class private. This aroused the curiosity of a number of the comrades who were more used to British army regulations where there is only one class of private.

After dealing with the applications, it was decided to form a committee to wait on the council in an effort to co-operate with relief work. The committee will be of three members, the president and the two vice-presidents. The auditors report took the place of the financial statement. It showed the gross receipts for 1928 as $1,151.75; the expenditures, $685.16, leaving a gross balance of $466.59. Three cheques amounting in all to forty dollars which have been issued have not yet been cashed. The total assets of the branch at the end of the year were placed at $667.88.

Later in the evening, Major Bygott produced a letter from Alderville, from the Memorial Committee of that village. It expressed appreciation for the honor the local branch had conferred upon A. H. McKeel in making him an honorary member here. The letter was signed by W. R. Coyle, chairman of the memorial committee, and former Indian agent on the reserve, and by Norman Marsden, Indian chief.

Under the head of social activities, it was decided to visit Havelock with the intention of getting new members. There has been some exchange of friendships between the two towns among the veterans, and it has been suggested that some such move be made. The date for the visit was left in the hands of the president and the two vice-presidents, with the request that it be as soon as possible. A similar visit to Warkworth was also mentioned and will be considered next.

SEYMOUR COUPLE CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. George Wallace Honored By Children and Grandchildren.

PRESENTATIONS MADE.

Bridegroom and Bride of Fifty Years Ago Have Spent Fruitful Life.

Examiner Staff Correspondence.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 4. — New Year's Day, fifty years ago, 1879, was the wedding day of Mr. and Mrs. George Wallace, now living in retirement on the sixth concession of Seymour, on the edge of the corporation. Until ten years ago the aged couple occupied a farm in the township and were successful in their endeavors. On the first day of the New Year the sons and daughters, and their children, as well as a number of friends, visited the esteemed couple at their home, and took dinner there. In memory of the occasion Mr. and Mrs. Wallace were presented with suitable tokens.

George Wallace was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, coming to Canada when he was a boy of ten years old. He is now in his eighty-third year, and has enjoyed a successful life including a half century of happy marriage. During his life time he has followed farming consistently and only ten years ago left his farm in Seymour to live a quiet life nearer the town. The homestead is still in the family name, and is being operated by Clayton Wallace, a son.

Mrs. Wallace before her marriage was Rosana Gardner. She was born in the State of New York 73 years ago. She became the bride of George Wallace in the village of Stirling, 50 years ago. To them were born seven children, three sons and four daughters, all of whom were present at the Golden anniversary. Of the twenty-eight grand children, twenty six were present.

For the occasion the house was beautifully decorated with white being the predominant color. Dinner was served at one o'clock and was a gay event for all who were so fortunate as to be members of the family or invited guests. Among the guests were the Rev. D. A. McKenzie and Mrs. McKenzie of Burnbrae, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey of Stirling, Mrs. Varcoe, and Mr. and Mrs. William Stephens.

All seven of the children were present and all but two of the grandchildren. Mrs. Whitton of town, Mrs. Charles Dunham of Wellman's Corners, Mrs. Neil Third and Mrs. David Melklejohn are the daughters. The sons are George of Seymour Township, Clayton, who resides on the homestead, and William of Toronto.

ENDED COLD BEFORE PNEUMONIA SET I

Relief Began Instantly When Doctor Advised Home Use of Pleasant Hospital Method

By taking the timely advice of his doctor, E. H. Harding, like numbers of people here, has found that it is not necessary to go thru the needless misery of a cold. Nor is there any necessity for needless fear if the right steps are taken to end a cold quickly before danger sets in.

Mr. Harding contracted a severe cold which nothing seemed to relieve. Examination showed that his nose tubes were badly congested; his throat was inflamed and the cold was rapidly spreading. Fearing pneumonia then he called a doctor who gave him double strength doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. FACTORIES HAVE GOOD SEASON

Required Milking of 7,800 Cows Twice Daily to Produce Weight Needed.

AVERAGES GOOD.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

STIRLING, Jan. 4. — C. F. Linn, dairy instructor for this district, has completed his work for another season and the following figures show that he has been a busy man during the past year; also that the products of the 24 factories over which he has charge are the principal source of revenue to this part of Hastings County.

The following is his report:

No. of pounds of cheese made, 3,-508,959.
Total cash received for cheese, $747,-416.

It required the milking of 8,700 cows twice daily to produce the weight of milk for the foregoing statement. The average per cow was 4,706 pounds. When the cheese industry first started in this section nearly sixty years ago, a cow that produced 3,000 pounds of milk was considered a standard cow, so it looks as though when speaking of so many standards it should be reckoned at a higher figure, as it would not be worth while to feed and care for an old-time standard cow.

SOCIETY MEETS AT ROSENEATH

Pleasing Program Presented at Final Meeting of Women's Missionary Society.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

(Examiner Correspondence)

ROSENEATH, Jan. 4. — The last meeting of the Women's Missionary Society for the year 1928 was held at the parsonage, with a fairly good attendance, Mrs. Lily Turner presiding.

A beautiful duet was given by Mrs. C. W. Varcoe and Mrs. (Rev.) Brown. Mrs. L. Harvey read an excellent report from Centenery branch, and Mrs. Fred. Talling read a favorable and successful report from the Fenella auxiliary. Mrs. Turner read the treasurer's report of Roseneath in the absence of Mrs. G. Mouncey. Mrs. Delbert Brisbin reported for the King's Workers' Mission Band of Roseneath.

It was decided that the next union meeting be held at Fenella in May, instead of April. Mrs. Talling suggested that this being the first union meeting since the departure of the president, Mrs. George Ingham, that a letter of thanks and appreciation be sent to her.

Rev. M. R. Brown took charge of the election of officers for the coming year, as follows: President, Mrs. (Rev.) Brown; Mrs. W. J. Jibb was elected vice-president for Fenella branch and Mrs. Arthur for Centenery branch; recording secretary, Mrs. M. Davey; corresponding secretary, Miss Hildred Taylor; treasurer, Mrs. John A. Nichol. It was decided to leave the election of each branch officers to be elected at their first meetings. The Mission Band leaders remain as they were in the past year.

After considerable discussion on the amount of allocation from the society, it was decided to ask and have the allocation reduced.

Mrs. Talling suggested that the society commence early in the year to raise funds. This met with the approval of the members.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., January 4 (Canadian Press). — There was no change in the condition of the local grain market yesterday, the demand for supplies from all sources being limited and prices ruled steady.

Prices for all grades of spring and winter wheat flour were firmly maintained, but the volume of business transacted was small.

A moderate trade was done in all lines of millfeed and prices held firm. Standard grades of rolled oats were in good demand and the values were steady.

The demand for all grades of eggs showed a decided improvement and values were unchanegd. Receipts were 1,754 cases.

The potato market was moderately active and firm. New Brunswick potatoes were offered at 62½c to 65c per 90 pounds, in bulk, delivered Montreal. Prince Edward Island Whites sold at 84c and Green Mountains at 88c per 90 pounds, in bags.

A fair trade was done in Canadian beans at $5.25 to $.40 per bushel, wholesale.

An active business was done in butter, and the undertone to the market was steady. Receipts were 75 packages.

There were no further developments in the cheese trade owing to the continued limited demand, but prices were unchanged. Receipts were 351 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, January 4 (Canadian Press). — Word that Argentina is underselling North American wheat in Europe by as much as 9 cents a bushel went far yesterday to send wheat values here downgrade. In decided contrast, the corn market tended upward, owing largely to evidence of active trans-Atlantic demand for corn from the United States. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled ¾c to 1c net lower, corn finished at ¼c to ½c advance, oats unchanged to ¼c up, and provisions varying from 20c decline to a rise of 5c.

Reports that Argentine wheat as being pressed for sale abroad at cheaper prices went hand in hand yesterday with a setback in wheat quotations at Liverpool, whereas an advance there had been looked for. Moreover, wheat shipments from Argentina last week were shown to bulk larger than was the case either the week previous or a year ago.

Definite advices were also received that price disparity between Argentine wheat offerings and those from North America are on wheat of equal quality and in particular number 4 Northern grade from Canada.

Announcement was likewise made that world stocks of wheat show a further increase of nearly 10,000,000 bushels.

Faced by such conditions, export business yesterday in wheat from North America was estimated as amounting to only 400,000 bushels. Meanwhile, buying of wheat future deliveries in Chicago to wind up spread trades with Winnipeg had but little effect here in stimulating price rallies. Reiterated complaints, too, of dearth of snow covering for some sections of domestic winter wheat territory were almost ignored, and the market here closed at within a fraction of the day's bottom figures.

Corn was relatively strong all day in the face of wheat weakness. Messages from the seaboard indicated that a good-sized volume of corn export business had been put through, and that inquiries were being made for liberal quantities in addition. Oats reflected the upward trend of corn, but kept within narrow limits.

Provisions acted easier, chiefly as a result of bearish aspects of the monthly exhibit of warehouse stocks in Chicago.

TORONTO, January 4. — Trading on the local butter market yesterday was again quietly conducted and the prices showed no material change from the early part of the week. Only small broken lots of butter were passing from hand to hand on spot in a wholesale jobbing way, with dealers generally quoting a range of from 41c to 41 1-2c per lb for No. 1 pasteurized creamery. When most urgently required extra fancy creamery stocks were turned over at fractionally higher levels. In the absence of any great demand this week dealers are not anxious to take on commitments in advance in anything like quantity. It was reported that outside creameries are coming into the local market for small supplies.

The tone of the egg market continues easy under ample supplies in dealers' hands. Supplies have been reduced from British Columbia, and there is very little buying at principal markets either f.o.b. or in transit, the majority of dealers preferring to take on their supplies after cars have reached here. This is due to the unsettled conditions of the market, which also has its eye on local receipts, which have been coming faster, owing to mild weather conditions and the storage situation. Prices were generally unchanged yesterday, and the trade was meeting a fair demand for all grades.

Surplus poultry stocks are being steadily removed to storage following the settlement of holiday demands.

CHILDREN ENTERTAINED.

(Examiner Correspondence)

APSLEY, Jan. 3.—At half-past eight on Christmas Eve the choir of St. George's Church, assisted by the choir of the United Church, sang Christmas hymns and carols at different points in the village, finishing at Mrs. Dean's, where they were entertained with coffee and refreshments. Mrs. Dean was assisted by Mrs. J. Downing and Mrs. C. S. Windsor in the dispensing of the refreshments. At midnight Rev. W. H. Taylor and some of his choir again paraded the village, singing "Christians Awake" and "While Shepherds Watched," after which Mrs. G. Kilborn supplied them with refreshments.

Pupils Entertained.

On Christmas Eve the pupils of St. George's Sunday School had a very happy time in the Parish Hall, spending the afternoon in games, followed by a program of recitations and vocal numbers. A well-laden Christmas tree was afterwards despoiled of its burden, the children receiving gifts for attendance at Sunday School. These were presented by the Junior W. A. of St. Aidan's and St. Olave's Churches, Toronto, and by Mrs. Dean, Apsley. A handsome prayer book was on the tree for Mrs. Spence, the teacher, the gift of the children. Mrs. Spence has been away for some time undergoing medical treatment and is greatly missed by the little ones. Her place is being filled by Miss Cicely Spence.

Watch Night Service.

A very impressive watch night service was held in St. George's Church on New Year's Eve, which was well attended.

Wedding Reception.

A very pleasant evening was spent in dancing. Charles Tucker, of Peterborough, provided the music. The young couple received a great many presents, among them being a cheque for $100 from the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Brown. A dainty supper was served about 11.30, after which dancing was resumed until 1.30.

THEY DESERVE THANKS.

The appreciative references made at Wednesday's meeting of the Board of Education to the services rendered by the three departing members, J. F. Strickland, W. R. Turner, Jr., and E. R. Wilson, are seconded by The Examiner.

We feel that the public, whose interests have been served so well by these men, should realize that they have been faithful public servants who devoted much of their time to educational matters in Peterborough.

The work they have done is better known, of course, to their colleagues than to the citizens generally.

The fact that much of the board's business is done in committee and that committee meetings are not open to the press and the labor and opinions of the various members cannot be indicated for the benefit of the electors, is responsible perhaps for ignorance as to the services rendered by the individual trustees.

Mr. Wilson, who declined to become a candidate for re-election, and Messrs. Strickland and Turner, who were defeated on Tuesday, have, The Examiner is sure, earned the good things said about them by those who served with them on the Board and the thanks of the public.

DR. MacLEAN'S APPOINTMENT.

While partisans may argue that the appointment is his reward for having carried the Government banner in the recent by-election in Victoria, the naming of Dr. J. D. MacLean, former Premier of British Columbia, as chairman of the Farm Loan Board will appeal to most people as a wise selection.

Dr. MacLean has given many proofs of his ability as an administrator during his public service in the Legislature of British Columbia, and he brings to his new position admirable qualities that should enable him to achieve much success as head of this important body, which is entrusted with the task of administering the farm loan legislation approved by Parliament during the last session.

His experience as Premier, as Provincial Secretary and as Minister of Education in British Columbia has given the former Premier admirable training, and the post to which he has been appointed should provide him with an opportunity to do a very useful public service.

The Farm Loan Board is expected to prove of much value in solving some of the financial problems that interfere with agricultural success; its operations under the guidance of Dr. MacLean will be watched with interest.

BEATING THE TRAIN.

Evidence presented at the coroner's inquest into the death of the eight victims of last Monday's level crossing accident near Kingston seems to indicate that the whole party, coming to Peterborough to live, were wiped out because the driver believed that he could beat the train over the crossing.

There was the testimony of two boys that they had warned him of the approach of the train, and that he had replied that he thought he could make it.

Hundreds of lives have been taken in similar accident because motorists made the same mistake.

This particular crossing is considered one of the safest grade crossings in this part of Ontario with a view of the tracks for a mile in one direction and for three-quarters of a mile in the other.

With approaching trains visible at such distances from the crossing there should be no accidents if drivers take the precaution to look both ways along the tracks in approaching the intersection, or if on seeing a train coming they wait until the crossing has been cleared.

To attempt to gain a minute or two by racing a train over a crossing is simply to invite death—and Monday's terrible accident, one of the worst yet recorded, should serve to remind drivers everywhere that every such intersection should be regarded as dangerous.

Until grade crossings are protected, to stop, look and listen should be the general policy.

CARELESSNESS IN HEALTH MATTERS.

The greatest handicap that health authorities have to overcome in their fight against the invasion of contagious diseases is the general carelessness and indifference of the majority of people in regard to protecting themselves or others.

Despite the prevalence of influenza in Peterborough, the holiday season has been marked by the usual number of largely attended dances and other social functions, all of which have done much to spread infection and to increase the number of "flu" victims.

In the pursuit of pleasure most people are willing to risk endangering their health, and as a result of this tendency during the past few days influenza has gained fresh ground here.

At the same time the local health authorities find themselves engaged in a battle with an invasion of measles that is fast assuming epidemic form.

Here again carelessness on somebody's part has been responsible.

Undoubtedly the present outbreak has been aggravated by children suffering from the disease being allowed to attend the numerous Christmas entertainments held here recently, with the result that large numbers of children have been infected.

The parents who do not call upon the services of a doctor when measles is in their homes because they do not wish to be quarantined have a lot to answer for—and if there are any physicians who have failed to report measles cases their culpability is much greater even than that of the parents.

Neither the "flu" epidemic nor the fast spreading invasion of measles would have assumed their present seriousness had the public realized the need of exercising common sense and precaution in its attitude toward these diseases.

Because of general carelessness school work will be interfered with and much suffering caused in Peterborough that might easily have been avoided.

The average girl seems to keep almost everything in her vanity case except a broom and a duster.—Kitchener Record.

MIGHT IS RIGHT.

A radio conference is to be held in Ottawa early in January, and although it is a condescension on the part of the U. S. authorities to come to Canada at all, it is not likely they intend to concede much—notwithstanding the backing of Canada given by the Village Council of Norwich.

The U. S. Federal Radio Commission allots the wave-lengths. It took several hundreds for the United States and gave Canada a mere handful.

By what right did the U. S. Federal Radio Commission take upon itself the boosing of the wave-lengths for the United States and Canada? It had no right at all.

Program radio was begun in the States before there were any stations in Canada. The United States, therefore, got in on the ground floor, and assumed control of affairs before anyone in Canada became alive to the future of this kind of radio. The result was that the United States broadcasting stations increased in number and in power, a Federal commission was formed at Washington, and administered radio for the entire American Continent—and the benefit of the United States in particular.

Might became right, and any representations from Canada received about as much notice as an elephant would give a fly on its hide.

There is little doubt that Canada would never have been granted any wave-lengths at all but for the sake of appearances.

Canada can bring the U. S. Federation to its knees simply by doing what the Federal Commission had to step in some time ago to terminate among its own stations. Canadian stations could with one accord "jump" their wave-lengths.

It would create a terrible stew, brewing a Hell's broth in the air which would be intolerable to both countries while it lasted, but the Federal Commission would be compelled to "do something about it."—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

New Year's Eve brings us to a stocktaking of the year that is gone. It is not a melancholy task. For whatever 1928 may have held for some in trial or in tragedy, no year in at least a decade brought so much of good and promise for most peoples of the earth. Here in Canada, certainly, Providence was kindly. Each individual, we suppose, tests the question of prosperity by his own setting and naturally applies his own test to his views upon the position of the nation. But if we use the more exact term of "economic progress" we find that we have per capita as the result of 1928 more of everything that goes to make for comfort and decent living than ever before in our history. Another rich harvest has placed millions in circulation; forests, fields, fisheries and mines have yielded vast wealth; industrial production has been on an increasing scale; unemployment has been at a minimum; we remained free from social and industrial strife; and there have been other things.

The consequences are everywhere visible. To-day Canadians have more and better homes, more electric lights and power, more and better transportation, more roads, more radios and automobiles, more life insurance and money in the banks, and more of many other things. They are better fed, better clothed, better housed than perhaps any people in the world.

Yet progress has been everywhere. In some parts of the earth there are still rumors of wars, but, taking mankind as a whole, there is a greater will for peace, and more machinery for the execution of that will than ever before. In Europe, notably, reconstruction on a peaceful basis has marched steadily on. Budgets have been balanced; floating debts have been reduced; currencies have become more stabilized; there has been more striving for peace.

Morally and spiritually, too, 1928 brought gain. Often, in these times, men arise to declare that the age is "morally bankrupt." But if some method existed of appointing an official receiver and winding up the estate, the Jeremiahs would discover more assets than they have taken into account. Make all allowances for froth, frivolity, and outbursts of reaction, and this post-war world can still, in the matter of decent conduct, pay one hundred cents on the dollar in comparison with ages that have gone. There is, we believe, a livelier sense of social responsibility, a keener sense of justice, a wider abhorrence of cruelty in forms that were once accepted as inevitable. There is more of charity among men; more of compassion and pity; more thought for the under-dog; more help for the sick and the underprivileged and the aged. If these things be the meaning of "moral bankruptcy," then past ages were indeed destitute.

In one other respect 1928 was notable for Canada. It saw us continue steadily upon the path of national unity. We shall always be vexed by fools and plagued by demagogues, but more and more there comes evidence of an underlying unity among us. Six or seven years ago, let it be confessed, there was little sign of such harmony. The old ashes of racial and sectarian bitterness between Ontario and Quebec seemed to have been fanned into new heat; the West was sullen and resentful; the Maritimes spoke words of secession. To-day these voices are stilled. Not for a quarter of a century have such good relations existed between Ontario and Quebec; the West is prosperous and contented; the Maritimes have had their grievances removed.

And so Canada can look back along the vista of 1928 with thankfulness and satisfaction. If it did not realize all our fond hopes of a year ago, it at least brought us much good and certainly little of discredit.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

January seems to have the proper idea of what is expected in Canada of a winter month.

The first duty of the new Council will be to appoint a member to the Council in place of ex-Alderman Ackerman.

With the hockey season scheduled to open to-night, sporting enthusiasts will at last admit that the winter has arrived.

Major Bert Wemp, city editor of the Toronto Telegram, headed the Board of Control race the other day. Here is a newspaper man who is headed for the mayor's chair.

With road conditions as they are at present unusual care on the part of motorists is called for. Even the careful driver is taking chances.

The old advice, "Stop, look and listen at railway crossings," is still the best preventive of accidents at such points.

What the poets refer to as the touches of spring aren't a marker to the touches of the Christmas season.—Chicago Post.

GOD'S MINUTE.

The Lord is good to all: and His tender mercies are over all His works.—Ps. 145:9.

O God, our Father, we are about to enter upon a new day. To meet well all duties and responsibilities that come to us; to resist firmly every distraction and temptation that seeks to draw us from our path; to be utterly prepared for any danger or any crisis that may this day befall us; to be found, when the evening is come, pure and holy — this is our desire.

And we would be friendly with all men; strength to the weak, hope to the despondent, joy to the sorrowing, power to the tempted.

We wait, therefore, our Father, for the coming of Thy Spirit upon us ere we venture into all that this day holds for us. In the quiet of this early morning hour bowed before Thee, our souls wait. Touch us with that hand which has been a lid in blessing upon others before us; speak to us with that still, small voice of power; fill us with Thine own righteousness.

Give us of Thyself, that we may this day so live for ourselves and before men that through us Thy Kingdom may in part come, and Thy will more fully be done among men. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

The old Cathedral faced me, its windows ablaze with light.
Saint, apostle, and martyr, and holy women of old,
Our own dear Lord in the centre, ascending, in azure and gold.
While from the open doorway came the music of a psalm,
Hushing the storm about me, filling my soul with calm,
And I thought 'twas a lovely symbol, as
I gazed at the painted gleam
Of the windows in the darkness, of how the soul doth seem
When filled with His holy Spirit, till the body is full of light,
And with music and with beauty doth
it radiate the night.
For to some it is given to teach men, and warn from ways of sin.
While others illume the road to Godby thh
the shining of Love within.

Why We Do What We Do.

THAT BODY OF YOURS POTATOES AND WHEAT

With a tremendous wheat crop the past year there is no worry about food throughout the world, but someone asks what would happen if the wheat crop failed.

In North America we eat more wheat than perhaps any other one article of food, but in Europe one other article of food stands first, and that is the potato.

There has been much discussion about the merits of the potato as a food.

What about it?

In a former article I spoke about the valuable mineral salts found in potatoes, which neutralize the acids in the blood, formed when too much meat or protein foods are eaten.

The Journal of the American Medical Association in an editorial on the potato says that "an analysis shows that the potato is close to wheat in actual food value, but it contains so much water that four times as much potato as wheat must be eaten in order to obtain the same amount of nourishment."

Now our overweight friends have been avoiding the potatoes because they contain so much starch. However it has been learned that the protein (nitrogen) in potatoes, though small in amount, is of good quality.

In Denmark, Great Britain, and Poland, research men have been investigating the food value of the potato, because it may mean much to the people of any country in time of other crop failures.

Dr. Hindhede of Denmark reports a case of a man living for nearly a year on 9 pounds of potatoes daily, with some vegetable margarine. Drs. Kon and Klein, Warsaw, describe an experiment in which two adults, a man and a woman, lived for a period of 167 days in good health on potatoes supplemented with fats and a few fruits. And strange to relate, they did not grow tired of it.

"It is said that deficiency or wasting diseases are not common where the potato enters liberally into the diet."

The thought then is that the lowly potato should loom larger in our minds as a food, and that while bread will likely be more generally eaten, should there be any crop failure in future days, we can rely on the potato to help us out.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE WORST DISEASE.

I've had 'em all, in spring and fall,
And measles was the first,
And I don't care what books declare,
This homesick is the worst.
It's mighty queer, but somewhere here,
Here just below the belt,
You feel again the sickest pain
A fellow ever felt.

It's really not, but what you've got
Is really hard to say.
You're just all gone, you can't go on
It seems another day.
Don't want to eat, don't want to meet
The strangers passing by,
Don't want to sleep, just want to weep,
And can't, and wonder why.

Oh, I've been through a time or two
That I remember yet,
Had fevers, chills, and hurts and ills,
And other things you get.
But homesick, though, is worse, I know,
I know, and here is how:
I know it is because—gee whiz,
Why, that's what I am now!

THE LUCKIEST LADY

BY RUBY M. AYRES

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XXIV—BIDDY EAVESDROPS

Monday dragged by, and on Tuesday Marna and her husband went to lunch with Hugh Hubbard.

There was another man there whom Marna did not know, and the conversation was chiefly of Shanghai and of business.

Marna sat next to the third man, whose name was Saunders.

"Do you know Shanghai?" she asked him, and he told her that he had lived out there for some time.

"Came home when I got married," he said.

"Oh!"

"My sister's going out on the same boat as Hubbard," he volunteered.

"Oh!" Marna felt as if someone had touched her heart with rough fingers. "Is your sister married, too?" she asked.

"No, she's only a youngster—"twenty-six."

"Oh!"

"Hugh's going to look after her for me." Saunders said with a laugh. "Ought to have a good time on the boat, don't you think, Mrs. Paget?"

Six weeks together! The thought was a knife turning slowly in Marna's heart. For the first time she knew what jealousy—cruel, biting jealousy—really meant.

Across the table she met Hubbard's eyes. He read her thoughts, she knew, and she hated him to know that she was jealous. It made her feel ashamed. When lunch was over he came over to her, but she deliberately walked away from him.

It was more than she could bear, that he should be sorry for her. She avoided shaking hands with him when she and George went away; she got into the waiting car and leaned back in a corner.

That night at dinner she asked as indifferently as she could:

"What time shall we have to leave tomorrow, George?"

Paget looked at her across the table. "Where are we going?" he asked.

Marna winced.

"Why, I thought—— Aren't we going to see Hugh off?"

There was a little silence. Paget's eyes fell.

"He's gone," he said awkwardly. "Gone!"

Her husband fidgeted with his monocle.

"He's gone down tonight. Had some business to settle, or something; forget exactly what he said."

"I didn't say goodbye to him."

Marna wondered if it was really she who spoke in that quiet, emotionless voice.

The Little Flapper dared not raise her eyes, and Marna said again:

"I think you might have told me, or he might have told me. What made him decide to go tonight?"

"He spoke about it some days ago, but it wasn't settled. Only knew myself after lunch today."

Marna's eyes burned.

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"Never occurred to me. Suppose I ought to have told you. Sorry, my dear!"

He did not like to say that Hugh had asked him not to tell her.

"I abominate goodbyes," so Hubbard had said. "I'll just slip off without telling anyone. Back me up, there's a good chap. Marna will understand. Tell her I said I knew she would understand."

Marna took a cigarette from the box at her elbow and lit it carefully.

"It makes no difference," she said very quietly. "I suppose he disliked the idea of goodbyes and a crowd seeing him off."

"Rotten business, saying goodbye!" Paget agreed.

He was relieved to have got out of it so easily; in his own mind he had not felt quite comfortable about it. Marna might easily have cut up rough. After all, she and Hubbard had been good friends: they had always liked each other, he knew, and was glad of it.

He looked across at his wife with adoring eyes. She was a woman in a thousand, the sweetest, the most desirable.

And in her heart Marna was saying despairingly: "And I never said good bye to him; I wouldn't even let him speak to me!"

"What time does the boat sail, George?" she asked.

Paget shook his head.

"Not sure; depends on the tides. About five, I should think. Why do you want to know?"

"I only thought we might send him a wire to the boat."

"Good idea!" Paget agreed heartily. "I'll send one tonight, so it's sure to be in time."

He went off to the library, and Marna and the Little Flapper were left alone. Biddy tried to think of something to say, but she felt tongue-tied and stupid. She looked at Marna, and was amazed at her composure.

"These are horrid cigarettes!" Marna said, with a little grimace. She laid hers down on the ash-tray. "Run up to my room and fetch mine, will you, Biddy?"

The Little Flapper hurried away, glad to escape, and Marna rose quickly and rang the bell.

"Gone! And I never said goodbye to him!" She kept saying the words over and over again to herself.

When the maid came into the room Marna was standing with her hand resting on a chair-back, her face as white as the gown she wore.

"Oh, aren't you well, ma'am?" the girl asked anxiously.

Marna laughed.

"Oh, yes, quite well, thank you! I only wanted— Is Harnigan anywhere in the house, do you know?"

"I think he's still in the garage madam. Shall I see?"

"No, thank you. I'll go myself."

"I think it's raining, madam," the girl said, but Marna walked out of the room without answering.

The Little Flapper was coming slowly downstairs with the cigarettes when Marna crossed the hall and took down one of her husband's coats from the rack.

"It's raining hard, darling," were the words which rose to Biddy's lips, but something restrained her from uttering them. There was something so strange about Marna's manner, something almost secretive when, after a moment, she turned to a side door, seldom used, which led out into the garden.

The bolts were stiff, but Marna struggled with them till they slid resistingly back; then she opened the door, letting in a swirl of wind and petulant rain. For a moment she stood irresolute, then slipped out, dragging the door to again behind her with difficulty.

The Little Flapper came down the remaining stairs with a rush. She put the cigarettes down on the table and turned impulsively towards the library. George Paget was there, she knew, and even as her fingers touched the door-handle she heard his deep, unmusical voice burst into a snatch of song from some popular comedy:

"I'm a little bit fonder of you than
of myself, I am!
Just a little bit fonder of you than
of myself, I AM!"

There was a loud roar of insistence on the last word, and as she listened Biddy's fingers slipped from the door-handle

How could she rush in and tell him the thing which was shaking her heart to its very foundations, and trembling on her lips? He was so utterly happy and unsuspecting. It would be like striking a child across its smiling face to say: "Marna's gone out. You must stop her I know where she's gone—she means to follow Mr. Hubbard."

Biddy believed it was what Marna intended. She was shaking from head to foot as she stood there, not knowing what to do for the best. Then suddenly she made up her mind. She would follow Marna herself and stop her.

In her excitement and dread she forgot to take a coat, and her thin frock was drenched before she had gone more than a few steps down the wet garden-path.

There was an archway with a lamp over it, which led to the garage, and by its light Biddy caught a fleeting glimpse of Marna's figure.

She was going to the garage!

"One good thing, she can't drive a car herself, poor darling!" Biddy told herself with a sob, as she crept after her.

Harnigan was in the yard, washing down the small car, and the Little Flapper saw his start of surprise when his mistress appeared. Biddy drew back behind the open door and waited She heard Marna's voice, but she could not distinguish what she said. She heard Harnigan's voice replying, respectful and stolid as usual, and she thought she saw a flicker of surprise cross the passivity of his face, but she could not distinguish his words, either, for the wind was howling all round them, and the rain was pattering heavily down on to the cobblestones.

Then, after a moment, Marna turned and went back to the house, passing quite close to where Biddy stood, and Harnigan looked after her with a strange expression on his wooden face; pity, Biddy thought it was, only she could not remember ever hearing Harnigan say he was sorry for anyone.

Then he shrugged his shirted shoulders, and picked up the end of the hose-pipe again.

Little Lessons in Legion Principles.

2. The Legion, while striving for peace, goodwill and friendship among all nations, will advocate the maintenance by Canada of adequate and efficient forces on land, sea and in the air, for the defence of our country and for the discharge of those obligations which rest upon us by virtue of our partnership in the British Empire.

The Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League is in no way a military organization. It is composed of men who have been through the trying times of war in service for their country and now most ardently desire peace.

But its members are men who know the danger of unpreparedness. They know the demoralization that follows upon the cry: "Ammunition out". They know what happens when reinforcements are not ready at the crucial moment.

When, therefore, these men subscribe to the constitution which includes the third lesson given to-day, they are not doing it hastily or thoughtlessly.

Their principles are founded on hard experience.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Saturday, January 6, 1929.

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syn.)

Astrologers read in to-day's horoscope good and bad aspects in which the malefic forces seem to dominate.

Women may be variable, exacting, and difficult under this sway which makes for domestic unhappiness. They should watch their steps.

Deceit and double-dealing are supposed to be encouraged under this planetary government, and it is well for girls to cultivate truth.

Astrologers predict that radical changes in women's dress will assure profit to modistes, manufacturers, and merchants. They declare that extreme modes will decree for girls a form of the divided skirt or trousers.

Occultists prognosticate reactionary influences that will be preceded by styles accenting many modern vagaries. All that is distinctly feminine will again be popular.

Under this direction of the stars weddings should be especially fortunate today, which presages prosperity as well as long devotion.

There is a sign read as promising success to women who seek wealthy, or at least prosperous husbands. The sway is one that should make eligible bachelors particularly wary.

It is a lucky day for bestowing gifts and belated Christmas presents should be extraordinarily welcome on that account.

Those who seek positions under this planetary government should be successful in finding what is best for them.

Again warning is given that epidemics will mark the winter which will continue severe in many parts of the country.

Pulmonary diseases will multiply under this positing of the stars, it is foretold.

The aged should be careful, for under the new order of things, this year is to be noted for mortality that removes the last of the old leaders in the arts, politics, and business.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a fairly fortunate year in financial affairs. They have the menace of fire, and should avoid dissensions of every sort.

Children born on this day may be impulsive and difficult to handle. These subjects of Capricorn may be quick to contract dislikes, and should be taught not to antagonize any one. They probably will have more than average intelligence and varied talents.

RETAIL MERCHANTS AT TOP OF THE LIST

Lead Businesses in Number of Children at Toronto University.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 4 (by the Canadian Press).—The retail merchants of Ontario send the largest number of students to the University of Toronto, according to the President's Report just issued. Of 1,413 students entering the University in the First Year, 148 were the sons of retail merchants. Farmers come next in order; they sent 139. Artisans sent 138 and clerks and salesmen, 131. It would seem, therefore, that higher education in this province is very democratic.

Manufacturers are not far behind. Their sons and daughters, to the number of 81, entered the first year. The clergymen of Ontario are represented by 76 entrants; physicians and surgeons, 60; teachers, 53; business managers, 51; transportation men, 48; lawyers, 44; insurance and real estate men, 40; wholesale merchants 30; financial men, 29; engineers, 28; journalists, 21; dentists 16, and so on.

Commenting on these figures, Sir Robert Falconer, says, "It is obvious that far more students proportionately come to the University from professional homes than from those whose heads are in business or the industries, including agriculture. The University reflects the changing social conditions of the Province."

An eclipse of the moon during the night of the 26th is a notable feature of the skies this month.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PICTURE.

(Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Once upon a time a little boy said to his father:

"Daddy, I wish you would catch Uncle Wiggily for me!"

"Catch Uncle Wiggily!" exclaimed Daddy. "What for?"

"Well," answered the little boy, "I have read so much about him that I wish I could have him here, in my house, to look at and play with. Please, Daddy, won't you catch Uncle Wiggily for me?"

"Oh, no, I couldn't do that," said Daddy with a smile. "Uncle Wiggily doesn't want to be caught. He likes to live in the woods or in his hollow stump bungalow on the edge of the forest. He would not be happy in our house."

"Wouldn't he?" asked the little boy.

"Oh, no. Besides, if we took Uncle Wiggily away from all his little rabbits and away from Jackie and Peetie Bo Wow and Squeakie Eekie the cousin mouse, what would they do?"

"Well, then," said the little boy, "I guess maybe we hadn't better catch Uncle Wiggily. But I would like him very much to come and see me."

Daddy thought for a moment and then he said:

"How would you like it, little Boy if I got Uncle Wiggily's picture for you You could have that to look at while the old rabbit gentleman himself stayed in the woods."

"Oh, I'd love a picture of Uncle Wiggily!" laughed the little boy. "But how can I get it?"

"I will take a picture of Mr. Longear with my camera," said Daddy. "You and I will go to the woods and hide in the bushes. I know the paths that Uncle Wiggily hops along when he goes adventuring. Near one of those paths I will hide my camera and we'll get a picture."

"But," said the little boy, "why don't you stand up and point your camera at Uncle Wiggily as you point it at me when you want to take my picture? Why don't you do that?"

"Because," answered Daddy, "if I stood up and aimed my camera at Uncle Wiggily he might think I was trying to shoot him with a gun, for perhaps he doesn't know the kind of camera I have. But if I hid my picture machine in the bushes and tie a string to the shutter then, when Uncle Wiggily runs along the path he will trip over the string, pull the shutter or eye of the camera open, and Uncle Wiggily will take his own picture."

"Oh, what fun!" cried Little Boy. "May I watch Uncle Wiggily take his picture, Daddy?"

"Yes, we will hide in the bushes near where I hide the camera and we shall see what happens."

That afternoon Daddy and Little Boy went to the woods with a camera or picture machine. Daddy hid it under a bush and across a path he knew Uncle Wiggily often ran along there we stretched a string. Then Daddy and Little Boy hid themselves behind a bush.

Pretty soon along came Uncle Wiggily. The old rabbit gentleman was looking for an adventure. He hoped he might, perhaps, see a snow bird in trouble so he could help her out. Uncle Wiggily loved adventures, such as these. So he looked all around, but saw no snow bird.

Then, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily heard a noise in the bushes.

"My goodness! Maybe that's the Fox coming!" thought the rabbit.

But it was only Little Boy sneezing. He couldn't help it. But Uncle Wiggily ran along the path very fast. Then all of a sudden, he felt something like a long strand of honeysuckle vine tickle his pink nose. This was the camera string and, bumping into it, Uncle Wiggily pulled open the shutter of the picture machine. There was a click sound.

"Oh, the Fox is shooting at me!" cried the bunny. But it was only the click of the camera eye, or shutter.

"Hurray!" cried Daddy jumping out of the bushes as Uncle Wiggily ran on and hid in the tall, dried weeds. "We have it!"

"Did we get his picture, Daddy?" asked Little Boy.

"Yes," was the answer. "I will take the camera home and print your photograph picture of Mr. Longear. Then you will have it to look at always," and Little Boy was very glad.

"My goodness!" thought Uncle Wiggily, hiding under a stone as he heard this talk, for sometimes he could understand man and boy talk. "My goodness! It wasn't the Fox after all! I somebody taking my picture! Well, I glad they didn't take my pink nose away from me. Ha! Just a pict Well, it was an adventure, anyhow.

Water Wheel Has Turned For Over Hundred Ye

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 4 (by the Canadian Press).—For 115 years a wooden water-wheel has been continuously turning in Crooks Hollow, Greensville, to furnish power for industrial operations, but the other day the faithful servant stopped. The axle collapsed, and it was with difficulty that a gang of men made repairs. The wheel weighs over a ton and the supports are slung 35 feet below the factory level. Despite the service of well over a century the wheel is not worn and is announcing that business is being continued again, the management stated that the old mill is expected to function for many more years.

News From th Mines

Through Selloway, Mills & Company

CADILLAC-O'BRIEN

As an example of what may be expected from other properties in the Cadillac-Malartic area, a despatch from Amos Wednesday stated that Cadillac-O'Brien made a shipment of 74 bags of high grade ore taken from their 125 level, which was reported to run more than $40,000 a ton. High grade ore similar to this has been taken from this property for several years, and it is just possible similar results may be had from the Thompson-Cadillac immediately to the west, when work has proceeded to that point.

WEST DOME

It is reported from Timmins that the mill at West Dome will be started up again within a few days. The lower levels of this mine have been put in splendid shape for production during the past year, and good profits from operations should not be derived.

ANKERITE

Ankerite are now engaged in cleaning up their last three stopes, and have also cut their north vein at the 600, which, as indicated by diamond drilling, is low grade ore. If they are not successful in developing some high grade farther west, this would appear to be their last chance.

McINTYRE

Large scale development work continues at the lower horizon of McIntyre. These levels are being opened up to permit easy development of much new ore. The mill continues to be operated at approximately 1,450 tons daily. It is understood the management endeavored to step the tonnage up a short time ago, but could not hoist the ore fast enough.

FALCONBRIDGE

Splendid progress is reported as being made at the Falconbridge Nickel property. Only about 100 feet of crosscutting is required before the orebody will be reached on the 225 foot level. In the meantime, sinking operations are being continued. Only one drill hole has been put down to the 1000 foot level, and since they are satisfied that the ore goes to this horizon and is richer than that down to the 500, it is not expected any further drilling will be done until such time as the shaft may be completed to the 1,000 foot level.

ARNO.

According to Mr. Beaton, superintendent of Arno's Coxheath property in Cape Breton the main shaft has been dewatered to a depth of 115 feet and retimbered to a depth of 100 feet. It is anticipated the first stoping level at 130 feet will be reached this week. A considerable amount of good grade ore is broken in the stope at this level and no doubt the stope will be cleaned out to permit extensive sampling of workings here.

GRANADA.

It is understood a 15 foot vein has been intersected at the 375 foot horizon of Granada. While no assays have been taken yet, the vein is reported to be well mineralized. Granada has an extensive exploration campaign under way and it is understood a third rock drill is being added so that work may be further speeded up. Interesting results should soon be had from both the 500 and 625 foot horizons.

GRAHAM-BOUSQUET.

According to information received from Rouyn yesterday morning, the shaft of Graham Bousquet will have reached the objective of 500 feet by the middle of this month. It is understood that lateral work will commence from this horizon without delay. It will be remembered that a 70 foot vein with an average value of approximately $7.50 was intersected at the 125 and it was for the purpose of opening this up at lower levels that the shaft was put down to the 500.

CAPITAL ROUYN.

Rouyn despatch states that from a 12 foot test pit samples taken ran as high as $19 a ton. Work is proceeding apace on the recently discovered vein and it is understood their consulting engineer has arrived at the property with much new equipment to prepare for intensive development of the copper-gold showing.

NORANDA.

Our field man in Rouyn reports that the second reverbatory furnace is now being warmed up preparatory to change over from the first reverbatory. When the change over has been fully completed, the first one will be completely repaired and cleaned out, which work will take probably from two to four weeks, at which time it will be again ready for operation.

INTERNATIONAL NICKEL.

We are informed from Sudbury that approximately 3,000 tons are now being treated daily at the Copper Cliff smelter of International Nickel. From this it is estimated approximately $2,900,000 gross is being produced monthly, entirely from Creighton ore. The ore, we estimate, is made up of 3⅛ per cetn. copper, 2½ per cent. nickle and $3.50 in precious metals. At present work on the new concentrator and smelter addition at Copper Cliff is confined chiefly to putting in concrete foundations of both structures.

A special shareholders' meeting was held yesterday, but was purly routine in character. The bylaws which permit taking over the Mond and increasing the capital were ratified. It was also intimated that they were reasonably sure of the Mond coming in on the proposed deal.

PRICES IRREGULAR ON MINE MARKET

Issues Take Setback After Strong Run in Morning Session.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Though the market continued quite strong today, it did not have the volume which has featured the Standard Mining Exchange during the past two days. Prices were irregular and showed a tendancy to slip back to prebullish days. Large gains chalked up in some issues at the opening were marked down at noon.

Noranda, after opening with a gain of 20, slipped back to $64.75 for a net loss of 80 cents. Hudson Bay went down, closing at $21.00 a loss of 50 cents. Pend Oreille was strong and gained 25 to close at $11.50, after it had reached $12.00 during the early session. Treadwell jumped $2.00 to $13.00.

Barry-Hollinger continued its activity and went as high as 44 but at noon had re-acted to 40, a loss of one. Lake Shore dropped 40 cents to $20.10 and Teck-Hughes 35 to $9.10. Arno gained 2 to 28; Bidgood 2 to 53; Howey Gold 5 to $1.24; Macassa 1 to 30; Mc. Dougall 2 to 57½; St. Anthony 4 to 52; Falconbridge 15 to $6.80 and Coniaurum 14 to $1.65.

Amulet dropped 14 to $3.36; Crown Reserve 1 to 16; Graham 1 to 34; Malartic 1 to 93; Sudbury Basin 15 to 8.95; Abana 4 to $3.73; Central Manitoba 4 to 74; Jackson Manion 2½ to 32 and Mandy Mines 3 to $1.37.

International Nickel Undergoes Heavy Buying

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 4.— (Canadian Press.)—Although activity centred around International Nickel during the greater part of the morning other issues, which became prominent in the recent bullish market on the Toronto exchange had a fair distribution of trading. To-day's prices were irregular.

International Nickel was unchanged at 54½ after one of the strongest sessions of buying in its history when it went up to 55¾. Canada Car and Foundry continued to move upward. The common gained 3½ points to 112 and the preferred 7 to 119. Shredded Wheat was up 1 at 100. Cockshutt Plow moved up 3 1-8 to 41.

Brazilian was down 1-4 at 76¾ Walkers 1½ at 82 and Canada Bread 5 at 135. Hayes Wheels gained ¾ to 49¼; Steel of Canada 1 to 221; B. C. Packers 1½ to 31; and Standard Paving ⅛ to 3⅞.

Imperial Oil was down 2 at 98½; International Pete 1 at 54; and North-

Wheat Deliveries Drop To New Low Price Record

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 4. — (Canadian Press.)—All deliveries of wheat dropped to-day to a new low price record for the season. Increasing pressure of Argentine wheat abroad, lower quotations at Liverpool and bearish crop estimates from Canada were leading factors. Opening 3-8 cents to 5-8 cents off, wheat values here underwent soon additional downturns. Corn and oats were relatively steady, with corn starting at 1-8 cent decline to a shade advance, and subsequently holding near to the initial figures. Provisions tended to sag.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press). — Foreign exchange steady; demand rates (in cents): Great Britain, 4.84 11-16; Canadian dollars, ⅛ of one per cent. discount.

STOCK VALUES FORCED DOWN

Bullish Forces On New York Exchange Receive Temporary Setback.

ISSUES REGAIN STRENGTH.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Bullish forces in the stock market received a temporary setback to-day when a deluge of selling inspired by the record-breaking total of brockers' loans, forced prices down 2 to 9 points. Fresh buying support was quickly forthcoming and an irregular recovery ensued in which early losses were cut down and a number of public utilities, copper, chemical and food shares were marked up 1 to 8 points above yesterday's final quotations.

The rally was influenced by a further easing in the credit situation. Call money renewed at 8 per cent., dropped to 7 and thence to 6.

Except for an increase of 25 cents a barrel in Pennsylvania crude oil prices and reports of a brisk demand for copper metal, there was little in the day's trade news to influence the price movement.

Wide fluctuations took place in several of the high prices issuess. Radio broke 9 points to 388, rallied to 398, and then eased again to around 390 General Electric fell 5 points to 230¾, and rebound above 236. Abraham and Straus slumped 7½ points to 147½ and snapped back to 153¾. Union Carbide dropped 5½ but quickly recovered its loss.

Thestrong support provided for many of these issues on the breaks indicated that powerful speculative forces working for higher prices were not yet ready to give up control of the price movement.

New leaders were quickly brought forward in the afternoon recovery. American radiator ran up 8 points to 201, National Lead 4¾ to 140¾ and Mohawk Carpet 4½ to 77, all new high records. Other issues to move into new high ground included, Anaconda and Kennecott Coppers, International Nickel (new), Penick and Ford, Postum, Gillette Safety Razor, American Metals and Kansas City Southern.

There was a fairly well sustained demand for the rails, presumably in anticipation of a favorable decision in the St. Louis and O'Fallow case, now before the United States Supreme Court, on which hinges more than a billion dollars in railroad valuations.

1928 Second Wettest Year In Past 39 Years

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—The year 1928 was the second wettest year in the past 39 years, according to a statement issued by F. W. Baker, official weather observer at the Central Experimental Farm here. Total precipitation was 42.83 inches, which was only exceeded in 1893, when 42.96 inches was recorded. The yearly average for Ottawa is 34.60.

During the past six years, this average has always been exceeded. June last year was exceptionally wet and similar characteristics were observed in July, August, September and October. The total rainfall for these months was 25.42 inches, as compared with the average for these months of 15.79 inches.

EXCELLENT HUNTING IN ESSEX COUNTY

Great Credit is Given to Jack Miner and His Sanctuary.

Hunters who at one time were Jack Miner's enemies in Essex County because he wouldn't allow them to shoot on his property are now his best friends, because this fall very few hunters haven't killed a wild goose in Essex County outside of the Sanctuary—and have proven out Jack Miner's argument that sanctuaries for game birds throughout the continent only increase the hunters' chances, because they attract the birds to that locality and allow the hunters good shooting around the outside. Whereas, if it weren't for the Jack Miner Sanctuary in Essex County there wouldn't be any geese to be seen there, let alone shoot.

Also the Sanctuary keeps birds from becoming exterminated because no game hogs can kill them all as they fly to Jack Miner's home for safety when shot at too much outside of the Sanctuary.

Thus enemies and friends of Jack Miner's who have tasted wild geese in Essex County this year owe their thanks to Jack Miner because there wouldn't be any geese there if it weren't for him.

The United States Government, seeing the success of the Miner Sanctuary and many of their representatives having visited there, that Congress has passed what is known as the "Norbeck Bill," which lays aside one million dollars to establish sanctuaries in each state of the United States, run on the same principle and copying the well-known Kingsville Sanctuary.

The Kingsville Board of Trade and merchants of the little town give Jack Miner full support as the birds have made Kingsville known all over the world and attract thousands of people to the town, which never would come there were it not that Jcak Miner's home and sanctuary are located in its suburbs.

Goes Through Oshawa

OSHAWA, Ont., Jan. 4.—(By the Canadian Press).—J. Williams who escaped from Peterborough jail last night and stole a motor car with license number 858-896, passed through here to-day.

When W. P. McKay, City editor of The Oshawa Times, went for his car this morning he discovered his license plates, 296-314 torn from his sedan and replaced by the markers of the stolen car. Oshawa and Western Ontario police were notified.

It was stated here that Williams was heavily armed. He escaped from the Peterborough jail about midnight last night.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Information secured at the Portsmouth penitentiary this afternoon elicited the facts that there were several prisoners named "J. Williams" having served terms there and it is almost impossible to trace any man by that name.

It was stated however that John Parks had a record at the institution, having first been sentenced at Woodstock to four years in the penitentiary on the charge of escaping and his last term was also for four years. This was handed out to him at Owen Sound on charges of theft, shop breaking, car stealing and several other charges.

A MESSAGE FOR 1929

It seems to me from the individual standpoint, man alone is responsible for his success or failure. It occurs to one there are seven reasons for some men's individual failure, fear being predominant. Men need to shake off fear and while growing old in years to remain "Young in Spirit," and face life with courage. "Doubt" is a malcontent because through it a great many men lost changes and opportunities. Inertia or put-it-off-itis was all wrong. The time for action should never be lost sight of. Men grew on what they accomplished. Life meant action. Jealousy is a bad weed in self developments. It is a mental arsenic, poisoning one's disposition. Worry and envy are also mental cancers. Worry moves in a vicious circle and when envy entered a man or woman's life, peace and happiness goes out. Procrastination is the last of the mental subjectives.

Therefore to counterbalance the seven demons of negative action there are seven paths of opportunity. Faith in oneself was foremost. Self study will reveal greater things in one's character than had hitherto been known. Faith had to be lived. Enthusiasm was the next incentive. Let one smile too, not frown through life. There are some in authority who state a smile involves thirteen muscles; a frown sixty-four, too much overtime for nothing. Courage, optimism, loyalty, ambition, and an ideal of service are the keynotes of individual success. Man, therefore, should strive to make use of his full personality, for in every man there was a sleeping genius.

Now let one dwell on the 41st verse, 5th Chapter of St. Matthew, which reads:

"And whosoever compel thee to go a mile, go with him in twain." These words embody a whole charter of principles, a whole program of service and a system of ethics. There was nothing more beautiful in the whole literature than the sermon on the Mount. Now the first mile we would term the conscripted mile, and the second mile was the opportunity for all.

Too many people treasured principles, but forget to put them into practice. Some of our greatest men had not always been clear about ideals. There seem yet to be required some machinery for studying problems from a purely Christian standpoint, so that when differences did arrive the passion that was usually associated with them could be held in check.

The Second Mile.

Whatever one's employment where all had obligations to achieve success in the business, was to have responded in some measure to the dictates of his conscience; and promotion came especially to those through doing things, not because they had because they wanted to.

Doing the second mile in ship meant using a vote inte and taking an interest in ev that tended to uplift our ci second mile in the home me preciating the wife, and enco the children in their studi principles. There will alway need of service and the ma of service was sympathy. T the efficiency of the brain n be coupled with the human p of the heart.

Obituary

(Examiner Correspondence).

DENNIS McFADDEN.

HASTINGS, Jan. 4.—Fortified by the rites of the Holy Mother Church, and surrounded by a loving family, there passed to his eternal reward on Sunday, December 30, 1928, Dennis McFadden, of Hastings. The deceased had been in ill-health for the past year, but was confined to bed for only a few days, and his death came as a great shock to the community in which he had lived for half a century. His fine personality and sterling qualities won him the esteem of all with whom he associated. Mr. McFadden was born near Cobourg, in August, 1849, and there spent his childhood. During the years of early manhood he moved to the farm where he died. In 1884 he married Mary Ellen Barry, who died nine years ago.

There is left to mourn the loss of an affectionate father, six daughters: Mrs. James Hoey of Campbellford, Katie of Saginaw, Mich., Sister M. Audrey of St. Joseph's Academy, Lindsay, Rose, Agnes and Veronica, R.N., and two sons, John and William at home. The funeral took place from the family residence on Wednesday, Jan. 2, to the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Ferguson of Warkworth, assisted by Rev. Fathers Maloney of Sacred Heart Parish, Peterborough, and J. McGuire of Hastings. There was also present in the sanctuary Rev. Fathers McAuley of Ennismore and P. Butler of Cobourg. Burial took place in the Hastings R.C. Cemetery. The high esteem in which the deceased was held was evidenced by the many spiritual offerings and kind sympathy extended to the family.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

THOMAS LYNCH.

HASTINGS, Jan. 4. — On Sunday, Dec. 30th the death occurred of one of the oldest and most highly respecter citizens of Hastings, in the person of Thomas Lynch, aged 90 years and 6 months. Mr. Lynch was born June 10th, 1838 in Rochester, N. Y., and when seven years of age came with his parents to Canada. They settled on a farm at Peterborough and later moved to Asphodel township. After his marriage, he conducted the Queen's Hotel in Hastings for a number of year, after which he returned to the farm where he remained until the death of Mrs. Lynch, December 1904. He has since resided in Hastings with his daughter Mary on Front street. The funeral was held Wednesday morning, Jan. 2nd, to the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, where Requiem Mass was held. Burial took place in Hastings R. C. Cemetery.

Mr. Lynch leaves to mourn his death two daughters, Mary at home and Mrs. Brasier, Richmond Hill. He is also survived by two brothers, Edward, Rapid City and William of Hastings.

MRS. MARY GARVEY.

After an illness of a few weeks, Mrs. Mary Garvey died at her late residence, lot 3, Concession 3, Douro, in her 70th year. The deceased was of a kind and generous nature, and a wide circle of friends will regret her passing.

Left to mourn her loss are four sons, Rev. J. J. Garvey, of Lakefield, David, of Otonabee, Joseph and William, of Douro, and three daughters, Sister M. Barbara, of Peterborough, Sister M. Carmella, of Mount St. Patrick, and Miss Catherine, R. N. There are also four brothers, Charles Fitzgerald of Victoria, B. C., Michael, James and William, of Baring, Washington, and two sisters, Mrs. Patrick Hurley, of Otonabee, and Mrs. Briget O'Leary of this city. Her husband, Timothy Garvey, predeceased her 13 months ago, and a daughter, Mrs. Thomas Sheehan, died less than a month ago.

The funeral will be held on Saturday, January 5, at 10 a.m., from the family residence, to St. Joseph's church, Douro, and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery.

MRS. P. KENNEDY

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—The funeral of Mrs. P. Kennedy took place on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Paul's Church. Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. J. J. Garvey and the service was attended by many friends who wished to pay a tribute to the memory of a good woman, a Christian mother and a respected citizen. Father Garvey delivered an address, taking as a text, "Watch and pray lest ye enter into temptation." Our divine Lord on the very eve of His death, gave this command to the chosen three of His apostles in the Garden of Gethsemane, and in many places we are told that He urged prayer and gave to us that most beautiful of all prayers, the Pater Noster "(Our Father"), which prayer combines everything that a prayer should have. Prayer is our conversation, our personal communion with God and as we go about our daily tasks we can say our prayers as often as possible, taking the motto of the saints for our "Labor and play." Our good friend, whose mortal remains we are laying away to-day, was one who fully lived up to this motto. She was always busy, even when she was of a great age she busied herself with household duties, and she was faithful in her prayers, reciting them regularly and when her dear old fingers became too weary to work any longer, she lay repeating her prayers; even in her sleep her prayers were on her lips. A devout and faithful Christian, she was not afraid to meet her Lord, for she had lived according to His teaching, earning the regard of the entire community.

Interment was made in St. Peter's Cemetery, the pall bearers were Dr. M. P. Kennedy and Mr. Thomas Kennedy, Messrs. Fred Walsh and M. L. Quigley, Charles H. Hunter and John Sabatino.

Mrs. Kennedy, before her marriage, was Anne McDonnell, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McDonnell. She was born in Dummer eighty-three years ago and spent her life in Peterborough country. Following her marriage to the late Patrick Kennedy she resided for some years in Burleigh township, in Peterborough and in Douro; with her husband and family she removed to Lakefield twenty-three years ago. Her husband predeceased her fifteen years ago.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Hobbins of International Falls, Minn., Mrs. Fred Walsh, Douro, Mrs. M. L. Quigley of Toronto, and Miss Emma Kennedy of the teaching staff of the Lakefield public school. One daughter, Mrs. Bissonette died some years ago. There are also two sons, Dr. M. P. Kennedy of Lakefield and Thomas Kennedy of Sudbury.

Mrs. Kennedy was held in high regard in the community and was one of the oldest members of St. Paul's parish, if not quite the oldest. She took a keen interest in village affairs, enjoyed reading and until within a short time before her death was able to go about her home. She retained her faculties to the last, a truly remarkable woman of the real pioneer type, intelligent and useful, a faithful wife and a Christian mother. To the very last she was the central figure in her home, beloved and tenderly cared for by her devoted family.

WILLIAM HENRY SMITH

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 4 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — The funeral of the late William Henry Smith was held from his residence, Rannie street, at two o'clock yesterday afternoon to Christ Church, where services were held. Interment was in Christ Church Cemetery. The Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, rector of Campbellford, officiated at the last rites. The pallbearers were Charles Davidson, W. J. Armstrong, Neil Thompson, George Third, James Johnston and James Allan.

The late Mr. Smith was in his ninetieth year, and had been in failing health for some months. He was born in Seymour West and lived his entire lifetime in this community. For years he was a successful farmer and twenty years ago retired to live in Campbellford. His wife (nee Mary MacDonald) predeceased him in 1926. LITTLE DISORDER IS FOUND IN CITY

Peterborough Had a Good Record During Holiday Season.

"Despite the prophesies of many that Christmas and New Year's would see the police station cells heavily taxed as a result of the sale of liquor under the Government control, we did not have occasion to lock up a man on either of these days," said Chief of Police S. Newhall, this morning.

"Peterborough had a good record and while there was plenty of hilarity, there was no troublesome disorder," continued the Chief. "It speaks well for the city and for the Liquor Control Act."

LOCAL HUNTERS FAVOR RAISING BOUNTY FOR WOLVES IN PROVINCE

Deer Are Fast Becoming Extinct in Peterborough and Surrounding Counties.

MEN GO FURTHER BACK

Algonquin Park is Great Help in Protecting Deer in the North.

The depletion in the supply of deer in the northern parts of Peterborough and adjoining counties is working a serious financial loss to Peterborough city and district in two ways. First the number of hunting parties from the States, many of whom have been in the habit of buying their supplies in Peterborough, is rapidly decreasing, while local parties, who for years have hunted this territory, are now moving into other districts. In order to save expense they buy a considerable portion of their supplies at points near their new camps.

In an effort to find the cause of this condition and to obtain suggestions as to what measures could best be adopted to increase the popularity of this section, The Examiner recently interviewed a number of prominent local deer hunters, such as Fred Jopling, Dr. E. H. Wood, Fred Doughty, H. B. Cowan, C. Consolus and C. G. Edwards.

In brief the opinion of these men was that wolves have been possibly the most serious cause of the depletion of the deer of this district. In addition the use of motor cars has helped to bring more hunters into the district from outside points, and the hunting season has been lengthened, but the impression was general that were it not for the wolves there would still be a sufficient number of deer to maintain the popularity of our northern districts as a hunting preserve. Fred Jopling, who is the captain of a well-known hunting club which for years hunted in this district, but which this year hunted in the Parry Sound section, stated that the deer in this section are becoming more scarce every year and that there are only one or two deer now to seven or eight some ten years ago. Were it not for the Algonquin Park, where deer are protected, there would be still less deer than there are. Mr. Jopling, as well as the others spoken to, believes that the bounty on wolves should be raised. He pointed out that the local news published in The Examiner from the Apsley and other northern sections of the county show that for some years wolves have been increasing in number. Hunters who have stayed at Coone's Hotel, at Apsley, during recent years have heard the wolves howl in close proximity to the village. This is a condition which did not exist a few years ago. Members of Fred Doughty's camp, which generally hunts along Long Lake and in the Jack Lake district, have heard a pack of wolves howling during the day time and report that it was not a musical sound to hear. Last year hunters in the camp between McCauley's and Hatton's cottage had two hounds destroyed by wolves while chasing deer. Other camps have reported similar instances.

Brought Pelts from Quebec

One of the difficulties in dealing with the situation is that when Ontario offered a large bounty for wolves than it is offering at present, hunters in Quebec Province used to bring their pelts across into Ontario in order to get the higher Ontario bounty. This is one reason why the Ontario bounty was reduced and for that reason Dr. Wood and others believe that an effort should be made to have both provinces, and possibly Manitoba as well, increase their bounties. Wolves are difficult to catch, and unless liberal bounties are offered trappers cannot make enough to justify them in making a business of destroying wolves, which is necessary if their number is to be seriously depleted.

Something that was hard to understand is why wolves should be more plentiful in the northern part of this county and adjoining districts than in such sections as the Georgian Bay district. Yet this seems to be the case. Two local hunters from Peterborough, who for years have hunted in this county, but last fall went to the Georgian Bay district, were H. B. Cowan and J. E. Smith. They hunted east of Killarney on the northern shore of Georgian Bay, in a very remote district which can be reached by boat only along the shore of the bay. They made numerous inquiries and were repeatedly informed that there were not wolves in that section. Wolves were reported to be plentiful, however, on Manitoulin Island, some forty or fifty miles further west. Both report that deer were much more plentiful in that section than in Peterborough County.

On the boat on which they went north from Owen Sound were several parties of hunters from the United States, a number of them from the Cleveland district. These hunters had to pay a license fee of about $45 a-piece, and seemed to have plenty of money and to be ready spenders. One party occupied a cabin on an island, had their own chef, engaged special guides and had a very complete equipment. These parties must have spent a good many hundred dollars in the province before going out with their deer.

"During my fifty-one years of hunting," said C. Consolus, captain of the Eagle Lake Hunt Club, "the wolves were never so prevalent as they have been the last few years. Several parties I know of killed wolves, and I know of one man in particular who killed three."

C. G. Edwards, of the Empire Milking Machine Company, who has hunted the Apsley district for a number of years, said that this year there were hardly any deer north of Apsley, but there were a large number of wolves. Around McGee's and Long Lakes there seemed to be plenty of deer, but there weren't any wolves in that district.

"Five years ago," said Mr. Edwards, "we hunted the vicinity of Eels Lake, and we got ten deer in the first five days. This year we saw only nine deer during the two weeks we hunted, and we heard plenty of wolves.

Fred Doughty, who for many years, has led a hunting club in that district, said that the deer have been becoming scarcer the last few years, although this year there were more than usual, probably due to the snow not having been so deep last winter, thus giving the deer a chance to escape. "I didn't see any wolves," said Mr. Doughty, "this year, although I know several men who killed some. The wolves are becoming quite a menace and the sooner the bounty is raised, the better.

WINGING ITS WAY TO NEW ENDURANCE RECORD

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, Los Angeles, Jan. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Five determined men who have driven the Army's monoplane Question Mark through all existing records for sustained flight by heavier than air machines, continued their epochal adventure to-day, showing no inclination to come back to earth.

The Question Mark began its fourth day in the air at 7:26 o'clock this morning.

When taking on 150 gallons of gasoline at 6:30 a.m. the plane showed no ill effects from its long grind. It was still flying over the Imperial Valley, where it was forced yesterday because of fog along the coast. There was no indication to ground observers that any of its three Wright J-5 motors was wearing out.

While the great black plane passed the seventy second consecutive hour of flight, a pursuit plane hovered above it and dropped breakfast to its crew. Through a contact hose 25 gallons of oil was supplied.

REBELS SIGN PEACE TREATY

Advices From Afghanistan State Jalalabad Mutineers Have Laid Down Arms.

EXPECT ANOTHER OUTBREAK

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 4.—(Canadian Press.)— Advices from Kabul Afghanistan, to-day said that peace had been patched up in Jalalabad with the rebellious Shinwaris. The negotiations were carried on by Ali Ahmed Jan, former Governor of Kabul. The terms of the treaty were not divulged.

There were indications that another collision might be expected shortly between rebels under Bachai Sakao and Afghan troops.

The telegraph line between Quetta and Kandahar has been cut. Communications between India and Kabul were being handled to-day by wireless.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 4. Canadian Press.—Three firemen were injured one of them seriously, when fighting a fire that broke out in the premises of Stuart Brothers, in the business district, distillers and manufacturers of essential oils, last night. The damage was estimated at $100,000.

Fireman Chevalier fell from a roof and suffered cuts and contusions about the head and face, and probably several fractured ribs, and a fracture of the jay.

FAST DRIVING IS FORBIDDEN

Chief Newhall Declares 10 Miles An Hour Fast Enough On Icy Pavements.

SEVERAL ACCIDENTS.

"The condition of the streets in the city are such that anyone driving any kind of a vehicle at a greater rate of speed than ten or twelve miles an hour is guilty of reckless driving and liable to be reported for such offence," declared Chief of Police S. Newhall this morning in discussing the prevalance of motor accidents endangering life or limb during the past couple of days. "The law provides that all conditions must be considered in governing the speed of a vehicle and we intend to see that dangerous driving is stopped."

Chief Newhall went on to tell of at least four accidents all of which, he claimed, could have been avoided by more careful driving and greater respect for the slippery roads. From each of the four accidents at least one driver will face a reckless driving charge in police court. On December 31 a man driving north on George street had his car badly damaged by that of another young man whose car took a skid when he applied the brakes. The accident occurred near the C.P.R. tracks and the second party was not overtaken until he had turned and travelled to the west end of the city. He will appear in police court.

At midnight of New Year's Eve a man driving south on Rubidge street at a moderate rate of speed had his car struck by another car, the driver of which had disregarded the stop sign as he came onto the intersection travelling west on King street. He, too, kept on going and has not reported to the police as yet, but will, in the words of the chief, "be landed in" if he does not do so.

Then, on January 2 at 3.30 p.m. the corner of Rink and George street was the scene of an accident due to the recklessness of a motorist whose car skidded across the street and piled into another car, the driver of which turned his vehicle up on the sidewalk in a vain effort to avoid the smash. The fourth accident which the chief recounted, occurred at the corner of Charlotte and Water streets on Wednesday at noon when a car travelling east on Charlotte street was struck by a car which skidded when its youthful driver applied his brakes after travelling down Water street at a rate of speed considered dangerous in view of the icy condition of the roadway.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

I surely must apologize for not writing to you before, but Christmas with all its hustle I have neglected. Well, I hope Marion you have had a nice Christmas. It was such nice weather.

Say, I rather pity poor Bobbie, I think she takes things too seriously. Now I have raised a bunch of boys and have had some experience. Of course, I'm only onemother but I think one should be careful and not always be nagging or slapping little hands. My baby is nine years old. He always had full swing. He was such a dear I just had to let him enjoy himself as far as I could. I never punished the children; they never seemed to get into much mischief. I think it is much better to be a playmate. It is easily done and one need not neglect her work to do so. Say Marion I could write a book I believe, on this subject. I have sisters with children who seem everlastingly whipping them and they are the dearest kiddies too, but they seem bound to do things they are told not to do

Well, Marion, those Thinkers think a lot now don't they? Of course, one never gets anywhere talking to a man. The women often want the last word, but do they ever get it? Besides a man says such terrible things. Yet they are always falling in love with the fair sex. I say they are queer creatures.

Did you get my last letter in reference to the Big Sister Column? I'd just love to help you with that. I hope I shall get caught up a little with my correspondence. Who ever thought you were a man? I'll say you are not, for instance could a man handle a women's page as well as you do? I guess not. If the Hon. Editor reads this tell him I apologize to him as he is an exception. I hope to see you soon as I expect to be in Peterborough shortly.

Hope you can read this,

Lovingly yours,

J. M."

P.S.—My, but the Women's Page is getting better every day, lots of interesting things to read always. I hope it still continues to help the world's greatest Daily paper—The Peterborough Examiner."

* * *

I'm sorry, "J. M.", that the pen name you sign is already in use. Please choose another.

You are quite overwhelming in your praise; spare my blushes! Thanks for your reply to Bobbie, and the interesting information about your own plan for your children.

"Dear Marion:

Kindly accept the compliments of the season from me and also every prosperity for your column in The Examiner. It has certainly proved a help to many and has caused unity to exist amongst neighbors. I am contributing my frail resolutions for your contest. Hoping they will meet with your approval, I am,

Yours sincerely,

City. Mrs. H."

* * *

I'm sorry, "Mrs. H.", but the pen name you signed is already booked. Will you choose another? Your resolutions have been entered in the competition—first entry received!

Thank you for your good wishes.

"Dear Marion:

I wish to thank you for past favors, I have received so many from you and also to say I enjoy so much your page each evening. I always look forward to it as leisure time spent well.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a bright and Happy New Year, I remain,

Your friend,

City. Mrs. L. J. M."

* * *

It is nice to know you enjoy our pages, "Mrs. L. J. N.", and I hope that you return as a correspondent often.

"Dear Marion:

This is my first letter, but I enjoy reading the letters from the neighbors very much. I am sending in a couple of tried recipes. I have tried several lately and find them better than what I have been using. Our page is so interesting I trust it will never cease, or come to an end.

Campbellford. Nanette."

* * *

Thanks for the recipes, "Nanette," and for your kind wishes. I'm glad you enjoy the letters, as I do very much.

"Dear Marion:

If the neighbors could send you in a little of the good things they come across from day to day, I wonder would the hints be useful for a Whatnot?

For Monday perhaps a quotation from our own ministers as "It is more blessed to give than to receive," blessed meaning life-giving. Then a quotation from Herbert Spencer, "Life is correspondence with environment."

Tuesday, something on Friendship as "Friendship the sweetest word that ever blossomed on the tongue of man." "The guardian angel that fans into life the hope that had almost gone."

Wednesday, perhaps a practical thought as "If the floor seems cold to your feet early in the morning, fold in a piece of newspaper in your shoe and wait and see the result.' Or, 'one of my neighbors has painted her wall a beautiful golden buff. It is lovely.'

I mean, Marion for each one to write a little for as many days as one is prepared for, then you could collect at your discretion.

Thanking you for my pay envelope, very much. I am,

Yours sincerely,

Busy Bee."

* * *

Yours is a very good idea, "Busy Bee," and I commend it to the neighbors. Will you do it?

"Dear Marion:

Received your beautiful letter with many many thanks and also your household helps. The helps certainly came in handy. I used the instructions for Christmas decorating and for Christmas gifts, and found them very pretty when finished.

I think your page is wonderful and is a great help to The Examiner and especially to the women readers. I really don't know how we got along without your help for so long.

You'll excuse me Marion for not writing sooner, it was impossible for I was busy with Christmas work. I think Christmas is the busiest time of the year for a willing hand can always find something to do towards helping other neighbors.

The neighbors who thought you a man certainly had their nerve. Well, I'll say bye before this letter gets too long.

Yours sincerely,

Babe of the Woods."

* * *

I'm really glad, "Babe of the Woods," that the helps were useful. Try as we will to get useful things, one always wonders. Thank you, too, for the nice things you write.

"Dear Marion:

No doubt you must be tired from the Christmas rush. The Christmas Number was just splendid.

Here is a help for the neighbors. When your turkish towels wear out in the center, cut off the ends and shape them around for neck and bind with tape. These make very good bibs for the baby. I am also enclosing a recipe.

Wishing you the best of luck during the coming year.

City. "Mim."

* * *

Thank you very much, "Mim," for your hint and for the recipe. The Christmas season is always a bit of a rush, isn't it? But one enjoys it.

EXAMINER FASHIONS

IT'S ONE PIECE!

You'd never suspect that this swagger sports dress is a one-piece affair from looking at the finished garment. The small diagrams tell the secret. Just a few seams to join and it's finished, and made with 2 3-4 yards of 40-inch material with ½ yard of 32-inch contrasting, which in sketch is of faille silk crepe in harmonizing tone. The diagonal closing bodice chooses a straight button closing with plaited inset below, to add flare to hemline. The separate vestee with center button closing is rolled in revers with attached collar, which gives a very soft line to face. Style No. 2660 is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. It makes up very attractively in patterned and plain wool jersey, silk crepe with georgette vestee, velveteen with silk crepe, wool rep with silk crepe, and sheer tweed with faille crepe. Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). Our patterns are made by the leading Fashion Designers of New York City and are guaranteed to fit perfectly. Address Marion.

ECZEMA ENDED

Madame A. Lariviere of Fall River, Mass., suffered with eczema for three years, and had treatment from several doctors, all of whom gave up the case. "Finally," she says, "I went to a specialist, which cost me another $60, but I was no better.

"A friend advised me to try Zam-Buk, which I did, and for which I have ever since been thankful. I very soon felt some relief, and perseverance with Zam-Buk completely rid me of the disease."

SEVERE CUT HEALED

Mr. G. Oakley of Saskatoon, who sustained a terrible cut on his leg, says: "Had I known of Zam-Buk when the accident occurred, I could have saved myself a $40 doctor's bill! A doctor sewed up the cut and attended me for five weeks, but the wound did not heal, and he advised me to go into a hospital.

"I objected, however, and used Zam-Buk instead, and in two weeks' time was back at work."

SAVED OPERATION

"Father developed a painful sore on his face," writes Miss N. Lewis of Silver Lake, Oregon. "Numerous remedies and treatment from several doctors failed to heal it, and the doctor advised an operation. Someone advised him to first try Zam-Buk. A few applications brought relief, and continued use of Zam-Buk entirely healed the sore, saving father from an operation."

Zam-Buk is best for eczema, ringworm, salt rheum, boils, abscesses, ulcers, abscesses, blood poisoning, piles, cuts, bruises, burns and scalds. All dealers use Zam-Buk.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Here is a lesson on diet you can take from the ordinary cat. All cats are the same—tigers, lions, leopards, jaguars, panthers and cheets in this important respect. Their teeth consist almost entirely of canines and incisors—that is, teeth that tear and bite. They have only two molar teeth on each jaw and two of these are very small. Moreover their jaws are so controlled that they are capable of only a hinge-like motion. Human jaws are capable of a sidewise motion as well—the ability to grind food in the same way that horses and cows grind theirs.

These cat animals do not need to grind their food because it is normally entirely flesh, and flesh food does not need the same sort of thorough mastication that fruits, grains and vegetables do.

Many people have an idea that meats must be especially well chewed—but that soft foods like mashed potatoes, cereals, breads, etc., can be swallowed without this preliminary process. As a matter of fact, it is the starch foods that really need most thorough mastication because in order to further their digestion they should be thoroughly mixed with salivia, which is in truth one of the digestive juices.

It is for this reason that crisp dried bread, crusty rolls and crackers are more easily digested than soft, soggy, very fresh bread, hot muffins and soggy griddle cakes that melt in your mouth, as it were, and can be swallowed by lazy folk without being actually masticated at all. And one reason that some people find raw fruits more wholesome than stewed ones is because they have to chew them thoroughly in order to swallow them at all.

One experienced child's nurse I know always gets her little patients into the habit of eating a piece of crisp, oven-dried bread with their soft porridge. She gives them a slice of raw apple to eat with their puddings and includes when possible a little diced celery or raw lettuce or cabbage with the dinner. These crisp raw vegetables encourage the use of the molar teeth and the grinding process.

DAILY READING

A FEW MINUTES A DAY WITH THE BEST OF THE WORLD'S AUTHORS CONDUCTED BY THE NEIGHBORS AND MARION

JANUARY 4, 1929.

This extract from "Waverley Novels," by Sir Walter Scott, gives an insight into eighteenth century life. Neighbors of Scottish extraction will enjoy the dialect.

DANDIE DINMONT.

Without noticing the occupations of an intervening day or two, which, as they consisted of the ordinary sylvan amusements of shooting and coursing, have nothing sufficiently interesting to detain the reader, we pass to one in some degree peculiar to Scotland, which may be called a sort of salmon hunting. This chase, in which the fish is pursued and struck with barbed spears, or a sort of long-shafted trident, called a waster, is much practised at the mouth of the Esk, and in the other salmon rivers of Scotland. The sport is followed by day and night, but most commonly in the latter, when the fish are discovered by means of torches, or fire grates, filled with blazing fragments of tar barrels, which shed a strong though partial light upon the water. On the present occasion, the principal party were embarked in a crazy boat upon a part of the river which was enlarged and deepened by the restraint of a mill weir, while others, like the ancient Bacchanals in their gambols, ran along the banks, brandishing their torches and spears, and pursuing the salmon, some of which endeavored to escape up the stream, while others, shrouding themselves under roots of trees, fragments of stones, and large rocks, attempted to conceal themselves from the researches of the fishermen. These the party in the boat detected by the slightest indications; the twinkling of a fin, the raising of an air bell, was sufficient to point out to these adroit sportsmen in what direction to use their weapon.

The scene was inexpressibly animating to those accustomed to it; but as Brown was not practised to use the spear, he soon tired of making efforts which were attended with no other consequences than jarring his arms against the rocks at the bottom of the river, upon which, instead of the devoted salmon, he often bestowed his blow. Nor did he relish, though he concealed feelings which would not have been understood, being quite so near the agonies of the expiring salmon, as they lay flapping about in the boat, which they moistened with their blood. He therefore requested to be put ashore, and, from the top of a heugh, a broken bank, enjoyed the scene much more to his satisfaction. Often he thought of his friend Dudley, the artist, when he observed the effect produced by the strong red glare on the romantic banks under which the boat glided. Now the light diminished to a distant star that seemed to twinkle on the waters like those which, according to a legend of the country, the water kelpie sends for the purpose of indicating the watery grave of his victims. Then it advanced nearer, brightening and enlarging as it again approached, till the broad flickering flame rendered bank, and rock, and tree, visible as it passed, ringing them with its own red glare of dusky light, and resigning them gradually to darkness, or to pale moonlight, as it receded. By this light also were seen the figures in the boat, now holding high their weapons, now stooping to strike, now standing upright, bronzed by the same red glare, into a color which might have befitted the regions of Pandemonium.

Having amused himself for some time with these effects of light and shadow, Brown strolled homewards towards the farm-house, gazing in his way at the persons engaged in the sport, two or three of whom are generally kept together, one holding the torch, the others with their spears, ready to avail themselves of the light it affords to strike their prey. As he observed one man struggling with a very weighty salmon, which he had speared, but was unable completely to raise from the water, Brown advanced close to the bank to see the issue of his exertions. The man who held the torch in this instance was the huntsman, whose sulky demeanor Brown had already noticed with surprise.

"Come here, sir! come here, sir! look at this ane! He turns up a side like a sow." Such was the cry from the assistants when some of them observed Brown advancing.

"Ground the waster weel, man! ground the waster weel!—haud him down—ye haena the pith o' a cat!"—were the cries of advice, encouragement, and expostulation, from those who were on the bank, to the sportsman engaged with the salmon, who stood up to his middle in the water, jingling among broken ice, struggling against the force of the fish and the strength of the current, and dubious in what manner he should attempt to secure his booty. As Brown came to the edge of the bank, he called out—"Hold up your torch, friend huntsman!" for he had already distinguished his dusky features by the strong light cast upon them by the blaze. But the fellow no sooner heard his voice, and saw, or rather concluded, it was Brown who approached him, that, instead of advancing his fight, he let it drop, as if accidentally, into the water.

"The deil's in Gabriel!" said the spearman, as the fragments of glowing wood floated half-blazing, half-sparkling, but soon extinguished, down the stream—"the deil's in the man!—I'll never master him without the light—and a braver kipper, could I but land him, never reisted abune a pair o' clerks." Some dashed into the water to lend their assistance, and the fish, which was afterwards found to weigh nearly thirty pounds, was landed in safety.

The behavior of the huntsman struck Brown, although he had no recollection of his face, nor could conceive why he should as, it appeared he evidently did, shun his observation. Could it be one of the footpads he had encountered a few days before? The supposition was not altogether improbable, although unwarranted by any observation he was able to make upon the man's figure and face. To be sure, the villains wore their hats much slouched, and had loose coats, and their size was not in any way so peculiarly discriminated as to enable him to resort to that criterion. He resolved to speak to his host Dinmont on the subject, but for obvious reasons concluded it were best to defer the explanation until a cool hour in the morning.

The sportsmen returned loaded with fish, upwards of one hundred salmon having been killed within the range of their sport. The best were selected for the use of the principal farmers, the others divided among their shepherds, cotters, dependents, and others of inferior rank who attended. These fish, dried in the turf smoke of their cabins, or shealings, formed a savory addition to the mess of potatoes, mixed with onions, which was the principal part of their winter food. In the mean while, a liberal distribution of ale and whisky was made among them, besides what was called a kettle of fish,—two or three salmon, namely, plunged into a caldron, and boiled for their supper. Brown accompanied his jolly landlord and the rest of his friends into the large and smoky kitchen, where this savory mess reeked on an oaken table, massive enough to have dined Johnnie Armstrong and his merry men. All was hearty cheer and huzza, and jest and clamorous laughter and bragging alternately, and raillery between whiles. Our traveler looked earnestly around for the dark countenance of the fox hunter; but it was nowhere to be seen. At length he hazarded a question concerning him. "That was an awkward accident, my lads, of one of you, who dropped his torch in the water when his companion was struggling with the large fish."

"Awkward!" returned a shepherd, looking up (the same stout young fellow who had speared the salmon), "he hesserved his paiks for't—to put out the light when the fish was on ane's witters! —I'm weel convinced Gabriel drapped the roughies in the water on purpose—he doesna like to see onybody do a thing better than himself."

"Ay," said another, "he's sair shamed o' himsel', else he would have been up here the night—Gabriel like a little 'o the gude thing as weel as ony o' us."

"Is he of this country?" said Brown.

"No, na, he's been but shortly in office; but he's a fell hunter—he's frae down the country, some gate on the Dumfries side."

"And what's his name, pray?"

"Gabriel."

"But Gabriel what?"

"Oh, Lord kens that; we dinna mind folks after-names muckle here, they run nae muckle into clans."

"Ye see, sir," said an old shepherd, rising and speaking very slow, "the folks hereabout are a' Armstrongs and Elliots, and sic like—twa or three given names—and so, for distinction's sake, the lairds and farmers have the names of their places that they live at—as for example, Tam o' Todshaw, Will o' the Flat, Hobbie o' Sorbietrees, and our good master here, o' the Charlies-hope. —Aweel, sir, and then the inferior sort o' people, ye'll observe, are kend by sorts o' by-names some o' them, as Gleiket Christie, and the Deuke's Davie, or maybe, like this lad Gabriel, by his employment; as for example, Tod Gabriel, or Hunter Gabbie. He's no been lang here, sir, and I dinna think onybody kens him by ony other name. But it's no right to rin him doon ahint his back, for he's a fell fox hunter, though he's maybe no just sae clever as some o' the folk hereawa' wi' the waster."

After some further desultory conversation, the superior sportsmen retired to conclude the evening after their own manner, leaving the others to enjoy themselves, unawed by their presence. That evening like all those which Brown had passed at Charlies-hope, was spent in much innocent mirth and conviviality. The latter might have approached to the verge of riot, but for the good women; for several of the neighboring mistresses (a phrase of a signification how different from what it bears in more fashionable life!) had assembled at Charlies-hope to witness the event of this memorable evening. Finding the punch bowl was so often replenished that there was some danger of their gracious presence being forgotten, they rushed in valorously upon the recreant revelers, headed by our good mistress Ailie, so that Venus speedily routed Bacchus. The fiddler and piper next made their appearance, and the best part of the night was gallantly consumed in dancing to their music.

ABOUT LOOKS

(Reply by "Mary Ellen")

"Dear Marion:

I wish to say how much I enjoy your pages, especially the 'Whatnot.' I think it is very interesting and also very helpful. I am really writing, though, to ask you about a question I am puzzled on. When a person, I really mean a girl, looks at any one when they are talking or see them on the street, should they look in your eyes? Some people think it bold, and I know a girl who nearly always looks in your eyes. Please answer me because I would like to know as soon as possible.—Trixie."

If you are speaking to any one I think it is only courteous to look at them. Don't stare, of course. Usually distrust the person who looks everywhere but at the one she is speaking to. If you didn't look in the eyes of the person you were meeting, how would you know whether she saw you or not?—"Mary Ellen."

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

This crepe satin afternoon frock is of the new shade called Blue Dawn.

If there are any shades or nuances of blue left unexploited after this season it won't be the fault of the dressmakers or milliners. It will be because the dyers of fabrics haven't produced them. Blues are legion.

Navy blue is still as smart as ever—with every chance of becoming more popular as the season advances. One of the French dressmakers combines navy blue with Nattier blue effectively, though at the moment the smartest affinity for navy blue is yellow, which was launched simultaneously last autumn by Worth and Jenny. Grayed blues are still in good repute. Porcelain blue and china blue appear in the new collections of clothes for winter resort wear. Bright red is frequently used to give vividness to dark blue and quite the newest combination is navy blue and chartreuse.

Chartreuse in perhaps the most talked about of the new shades—not of course that there is anything really new in this greenish yellow tone suggested by the famous French liqueur. Brown and chartreuse are combined in costumes for resort wear, and decidedly smart is a new evening gown of chartreuse trimmed with purple.

No chance that tones of the red range will be soon out of favor. To be sure, the brighter reds were especially popular during the Christmas holidays, but they will doubtless continue in favor for some time to come. Rose is especially well liked and is used in combination with black and white in some of the new things. Jenny of Paris uses flame color and flesh with good effect for evening. Shrimp is still smart and so is geranium.

Among other shades spoken of nowadays wherever new clothes are discussed are "dusty" pink for evening, golf red, African brown, a new reddish orange—sometimes combined effectively with yellow, tomato red, bottle green, brass, banana yellow, oyster white and sulphur, which is likely to be important as the season advances.

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

COLDS FORERUNNERS OF OTHER AILMENTS

The United States Public Health Service reports that the average American is ill once a year.

This is the conclusion after a complete survey to determine the amount and the different types of illness.

And as you have already guessed, it is the simple cold, bronchitis, and influenza, that are responsible for more than half the cases of illness.

Now because these illnesses do not last long, and do not cause very severe suffering, they are naturally not given very serious thought even by the sufferers themselves.

Heads of industrial institutions however will tell you that the common cold is responsible for more "absences" than any other one thing.

The medical directors of industrial health services will tell you also that more colds and absences are reported Monday morning than any other one day. And the cases are genuine, and not as some folks think, simply an excuse for an employee not to return Monday because he wishes an extra holiday.

Now although the regular treatment of colds by using nose and throat washes has some merit, the important point in the treatment is the immediate cleansing of intestine, and omitting a meal or two. It is the careless eating, lack of exercise, and lack of proper ventilation over the week end, that is thought to be the underlying cause of colds and other ailments of nose, throat, and chest.

Now if a bone is broken and knits properly it is usually stronger at that point than at any other point because Nature supplies more bone matter than is actually necessary. If you have smallpox, scarlet fever, yellow fever, typhoid and various other ailments, you do not usually contract them again. You are said to be immune from them. But with colds, bronchitis, and influenza, these ailments actually render you more likely to have them again, and what is still worse, actually render you more liable to pneumonia and even tuberculosis. The thought then is that the prevention of colds rests for the most part in your own hands—sane health habits.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

THERE are already many entries in the "My New Year Resolution" competition, and prospects are for the best competition we have yet had.

• • • • • •

The New Year is always a time of heart-searching, and as I have written before, it does not do anyone any harm to make resolutions.

• • • • • •

One I spoke of a few days ago was an anti-anti-envy. That vice can probably do more to hurt people than anything else, and we will all be the better for having rid our systems of it.

• • • • • •

Now here is one resolution that is positive. We all detest being told we must not do things; let's try to avoid that by placing positive suggestions in the place of these "don'ts."

• • • • • •

HOPE! That's a New Year resolution in one word, and if we discard envy and enthrone HOPE the New Year cannot but be happy and joyous.

• • • • • •

"Hope, like the gleaming taper's light,
Adorns and cheers our way;
And still, as darker grows the night,
Emits a brighter light."
—Goldsmith.

• • • • • •

With the bright light of hope to lead us through this year, we shall not be satisfied with things as they are; we will try to make them better, for others and for ourselves.

• • • • • •

With hope as a guiding light we shall not stumble and fall, we shall not wander into byways and trouble; THERE is the guide, and we shall follow through a year of life to the high end we have in mind on this fourth day of the year.

• • • • • •

There is talk of a new broom sweeping clean, and it is said as if the clean sweeping were derogatory. As a matter of fact, it is not. Why should we buy a new broom if it did not sweep cleaner than the old?

• • • • • •

In this New Year the making of resolutions may be accepted by some as the same as a new broom's performance. But let's make this resolution to HOPE, and if it does work better at the beginning of the year than at the end, we shall at least have had a few weeks or months of happiness. . . .

• • • • • •

. . . And there is always NEXT YEAR to buy another new broom.

• • • • • •

Hope is not merely something for the soul to play with—it is not a thing merely for the imagination.

• • • • • •

"Know then, whatever cheerful and serene
Supports the mind, supports the body, too:
Hence the most vital movement mortals feel
Is hope, the balm and lifeblood of the soul."
—John Armstrong.

• • • • • •

If you HOPE throughout this year, you will benefit not only in mind, but in body. Your outlook on life will be brighter, and your actions as you meet life will be stronger. You cannot despair, so long as you have HOPE; you cannot lose any struggle, so long as you have HOPE.

• • • • • •

And, neighbors, you cannot have envy or any other vice in the same heart where HOPE dwells.

• • • • • •

Above the turmoil of life, above our weaknesses, above our struggles for livelihood, over everything that is mortal and demeaning,
"Hope springs exulting on triumphant wing."

• • • • • •

Only over one place is the sign hung:
"All hope abandon, ye who enter here."
And Dante tells us that is the sign that appears over the gateway to the inferno.

• • • • • •

Life should be vibrant with hope. It is not only for youth, or for the years of success, or for the period of young love, or for the time when friendships are most dear.
"Youth fades; love droops; the leaves of friendship fall;
A mother's secret hope outlives them all." —Holmes.

• • • • • •

So let us hope, neighbors; let us ignore all less worthy things this year, and set our hearts on HOPE, the bright beacon that will lead us to the haven we seek.

• • • • • •

And even though at times the beacon should be hid by the clouds, it is still there. Let us hang on until the clouds pass over, and there we shall see, shining as brightly as ever, HOPE. "It is to hope, though hope were lost."—Mrs. Barbauld.

• • • • • •

Disappointments may come—HOPE ON! Tragedies may darken the sky—HOPE ON! The way may be hard, this year—HOPE ON! Friends may forsake you—HOPE ON! Love may turn his fickle back upon you—HOPE ON!

• • • • • •

And then, with everything lost but HOPE, you will still be rich, and you will find, with HOPE, you have satisfaction, peace, friends and love, for HOPE is FAITH, and faith conquereth all things.

• • • • • •

That, neighbors, is my suggestion for the New Year—my positive suggestion.

• • • • • •

For hope is a mighty power, awaiting only our will to bring it into our lives, where it will brighten everything of life, and make us sparkle with the assurance of success and achievement.

SHORT STORY

LOVE'S SIGNAL

"What house is that?" demanded Job Filmer, when he returned home after a few days' absence.

"House?" Polly's cheeks were pink, and there was a quaver in her voice. "That little white bungalow on top of Sycamore Hill—to be exact, the new house on the lot that Bob Haskins owns."

"Oh! Why, that's Bob's new house."

"Hum!" Mr. Filmer leaned back in his chair and slanted a look at his pretty daughter. "Who's living in the house?"

"He is—he said he was tired of boarding at the hotel."

"Going to be married, I suppose?"

Polly grew rosy as she turned reproachful eyes on her parent. "You know Bob wanted to marry me, but you and mother thought I was too young—and he was almost a stranger in the town—and everything!"

"Don't be disrespectful to your pa, Polly Filmer!" warned her mother, appearing in the doorway.

"I don't mean to be disrespectful, and I am sorry," and she kissed them lovingly, "but while I know he's just starting in the hardware business here you know he is making money, and I want to help him succeed—and besides money isn't everything!"

"It helps a great deal," said Mrs. Filmer, uneasily.

"There's grandmother waving to you," said Polly suddenly.

Her parents went to the end of the porch, where a close view of Grandmother Filmer's gray old house could be seen. The house was just across a deep gully at the bottom of which flowed a silvery stream. Mr. Filmer had built a small covered footbridge across the gully so that they could go back and forth in all weather.

Grandmother was waving a red cloth that meant that she wanted one of them to come over. "I'll go over," said Mrs. Filmer; "I want to take some warm gingerbread. Coming, Polly?"

As Polly went down the front steps she stopped and gazed intently at the white house on the hill. She saw a tall, gray figure waving a hat in the air. Polly's handkerchief went up and down frantically.

"Polly!" admonished her mother, and Polly put away her handkerchief with a soft smile on her lips. Mother and daughter walked slowly down the grassy slope to the little covered bridge.

"Mother, I expect grandmother has enjoyed having father and you so near—I suppose you have wayed to each other for years—before I came, and I can remember it while I was growing up."

"Yes, dear. And mother says the greatest happiness she has known since her children have grown up and left the home nest was the thought that she could lift her eyes and look over here and see us in the garden or about the porches—a wave of the red cloth and we were over there."

"How lovely," sighed Polly. "And, mother, when Bob and I are married, some day, I suppose you and father will sit on the porch and signal to us, as grandmother does to you."

"Polly Filmer, what talk," chided Mrs. Filmer, weakly, as she led the way into grandmother's house, where the old lady greeted them with suppressed excitement.

"Sarah Lines has been here taking orders for some city store, and she told me a bit of news about my own family I didn't know," she said.

"What is that, mother?" asked Mr. Filmer, who had strolled after his wife and daughter. "What have we done now?"

"Sarah says—Mrs. Deerham says if George and Polly get married this fall they will sail for Cuby before Christmas to open his new hotel there. I didn't know he was courting our Polly."

"Never!" shouted Job, hoarsely.

"Cuba? Well, I never—and Bob Haskin building a white bungalow especially for Polly," cried Mrs. Filmer.

"Bobby Haskin—the young man who rents my store down to the village?" chirruped grandmother. "Why, he's the nicest boy. Many's the dish of baked apples and ginger cookies he's eaten with me here when he comes to pay the rent. Came up the other night and said he wanted to buy the store some day, and would I give him first chance. I certainly will. I admire pluck. I'm keeping that store for him."

"He wants to marry Polly," offered Mrs. Filmer.

"She's a lucky girl. Skidmore's Hill is a sight nearer your house than Cuby!"

Mr. Filmer rubbed his bald spot. "Polly, if you know how to call your young man to have supper with us—"

But Polly had vanished. They heard her singing as she sped through the covered bridge, and later they saw the flash of a waving lantern—love's signal that all was well.

TATTOO MARK TO IDENTIFY HUMANS

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 4.—A means of identification, advocated by William de Graaf, would eliminate "unknown soldier" graves in the future, would provide a ready means of information to police and "serve as a living passport."

De Graff believes that if the United States passed a law providing that all parents should have the name, age and place of birth tattooed on their infants' bodies, it would prevent the babies, in later life, from "going where they would be ashamed to be found."

"The tattoo mark," says De Graaf, "should be placed on a part of the body which would be invisible without careful scrutiny."

HOCKEY LEAGUE MOOTED AS RIVAL TO N.H.L.

LEAGUE HAS STRONG BACKING

Chicago Interests Taking It Seriously—Pick Patrick as President.

PLANS LAUNCHED.

MONTREAL, January 4. — The Montreal Star in a special from Chicago says yesterday although there has been much scoffing of late at the stories published to the effect that a new pro hockey league of senior calibre is to be formed as a rival to the National hockey league, things in this city have come to such a pass that nothing is more likely and the plan is being freely talked about among those who are on the inside of pro hockey affairs here. The scheme, it seems, is so far advanced that they are even talking of a man for president and have named Frank Patrick, who has only lately launched his second Pacific Coast league for the position of chief executive.

The main financial backer of the scheme is said to be a millionaire grain broker, who has been quietly arranging his plans without disclosing his name, for the last two months, the actual work all being done by Paddy Harmon of this city.

After two months of secrecy, the name has become public however, and the man is said to be no other than Jim Norris, the millionaire board of trade man, who makes his headquarters in this city, but has a half million summer estate at Long Island.

FOYSTON SCORES WINNING COUNTER

Olympics Beat Buffalo, But Percy LeSeuer Protests Game.

DETROIT, January 4. — Olympics added two more points to their margin over the second place Kitchener Millionaires here last night by nosing out a 3-2 win over the tail-end Buffalo Bisons. The game was played under protest, Percy Leseuer announced, as he still intends to force a ruling on the matter of whether or not Pete Bellefeuille is eligible to return to the Olympics after playing one game with the Detroit Cougars.

Frank Foyston won the game for his team by scoring the goal in the second period, that broke a 2-2 tie. His team was a man short at the time, but the veteran caught three Bisons on the attack and outskated the defence to shove the disc between Taugher's legs.

All the other scoring came in the first chapter. "Rocky" Rockburn started it when he caught Gillie's pass in the mouth of the Buffalo net and literally carried it past the goal tender. Rolly Huard equalized two minutes later on a pass from Hughes. Gordon Fraser made the count 2-1 on a lovely solo effort, beating both defence to drive home a wicked shot just as he was tripped from behind. The Bisons drew even the second time through a freak goal engineered by Lederman. His first shot hit Stuart's arm and bounced high in the air. Lederman charged in for the rebound and it went either off his stick or the goalie's skate.

Personal Feuds.

The third period was slow and the hockey ragged, with Buffalo unable to get inside the Olympic defence. In fact, the game was only enlivened for some 5,000 fans by a few personal feuds in which Rockburn was clipped over the head by Murray; Murray was cut by McCabe, and Roth was accidentally given a nasty gash across the nose.

The teams:

Olympics—Goal, Stuart; right defence, Fraser; left defence, Rockburn; centre, Goodfellow; right wing, Bellefeuille; left wing, McCabe; subs., Foyston, McInely, Filmore, Gillie, Hinsperger.

Buffalo — Goal, Taugher; right defence, Lederman; left defence, Hughes; centre, Roth; right wing, Brydson; left wing, Bogardis; subs., Huard, Frew, Murray, Lott, Smith, Desey.

Referee—Bob Hewitson.

The Summary.

First Period—

1—Detroit, Rockburn (Gillie), 10.25.

2—Buffalo, Huard (Hughes), 12.25.

3—Detroit, Fraser, 13.45.

4—Buffalo, Lederman, 15.06.

Second Period—

5—Detroit, Foyston, 11.40.

Star Plays 7 Minutes; It Costs Him Full Year

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 4.—(Associated Press).—Because Otto Pemmerening, Michigan's tactiturn All-American tackle, played seven minutes in the first game of his sophomore year—and no more—he will not be eligible for the team this year.

After appearing less than a quarter in 1926, Pommerening went to the bench for the remainder of the season. Five other players substituted at tackle when the regulars were out that year. None of them ever became a regular.

MAY GO TO SENATORS.

OTTAWA, Jan. 4.—Ottawa Senators have been casting covetous eyes in the direction of "Ace" Bailey, speeding winger of the Toronto Leafs who worked so effectively against Detroit in Toronto last Saturday when his singlehanded goals closed the victory for his team, and it was learned yesterday from Frank T. Ahearn, treasurer of the Ottawa club, that the Ottawa management is contemplating bartering Speedy Hec Kilrea or Frankie Finnegan for the Toronto sniper, in an effort to readjust the team for the evacuation of the cellar position. The Ottawa management is decidedly in favor of acquiring the Toronto player, but it is undecided which would be used in the trade, Finnegan or Kilrea. However, officials frankly admitted that they were angling for Bailey.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

The most successful holiday bowling tournament in the history of the Y.M.C.A. alleys terminated when the finals were rolled off on New Year's morning. For the fourth successive tournament V. R. Henry, a popular member of the Collegiate teaching staff, and one of the teachers' team, captured the turkey. A wag has offered the remark that having won the bird so often Mr. Henry is now entitled to keep it. In any case his score of 804 in this year's tourney, does not leave any question as to his ability as a bowler.

In this and all the other events keen competition was the order of the day and in many instances few pins separated the contestants. By his score of 311 H. H. Graham, also of the teachers, was awarded first place in the high single.

First and second prizes were awarded in all events. Winners are:

Turkey roll—1 V. R. Henry, 2 F. G. McNeely.

High three—1 F. G. McNeely, 2 H. H. Graham.

High single—1 H. H. Graham, 2 F. G. McNeely.

Marathon—1 H. H. Graham; 2 E. McGee.

119 blind—1 A. Milburn, 2 J. Wearing.

146 blind—1 G. Hancock, J. E. Smith and S. Cann tied.

169 blind—1 G. Hancock, 2 V. S. Milburn.

With the completion of the holiday tournament all regular schedules will be resumed on Monday, January 7.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F.D.C.

The Peterborough Grillers, as the Junior O.H.A. team of 1911 was known had a pretty snappy collection of hockey players several of whom made their mark afterwards in professional company. This was the team that brought Frank Hefferman and Jerry Coughlin into prominence and on which the late Arthur Reynolds, killed on the Peterborough highway last week was a member.

The Grillers won their group that winter handily but they encountered a different proposition in the second round when they clashed with Jim Sutherland's famous Kingston Frontenacs, then at the top of their form. The Frontenacs had been junior champions the year before but their 1911 team was even stronger including such stars as Ray Marchand, crack goaler, Scotty Davidson, afterwards a pro sensation and one of the many Canadian hockeyists killed in France, Milan, Hunt, Bouncer Brouse and others almost as good.

Frontenacs came to Peterborough on February 8 and showed too much speed, weight and cleverness for the homesters. The Grillers made their best stand during the first fifteen minutes during which they held the famous visitors scoreless and both teams rushed repeatedly. Then the Frontenacs got going and they ran in five goals in a row before the local youngsters got their first just after half time. During the second half the Frontenacs continued to increase their lead until the final bell found them 11 to 4 in front.

Jerry Coughlin played beautiful hockey for the Grillers, getting three of their four goals by great stickhandling. In each case he carried the rubber right into the mouth of the net for a counter and on one occasion he went round five Frontenacs in succession. Frank Hefferman also played a stellar game, both on the defence and offensively, showing hints of the form that made him famous in senior and professional hockey afterwards.

Later it was discovered that Ray Marchand, the Frontenac goaler, was over age and the series was ordered to be replayed.

The second chance did not benefit the Petes a great deal. They managed to outscore the Frontenacs 3 to 2 in the first half but the visitors got going in the second half and scored seven goals without a kick from the Grillers.

The line up in the first game was:

Referee—Harvey Sproule.

To-morrow—The first and last professional hockey game seen in Peterborough.

HOCKEY PLAYERS HOLD WORKOUT

Campbellford Fans Anxious To See Teams That Will Represent Town.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 4 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Local fans are getting anxious to see the hockey team that will represent the town this winter. With a blizzard howling outside, patrons of the national winter sport lined the benches of Davidson's arena last night to watch the boys work out. The ice was in pretty good condition and the play was faster and smoother than the night before, which was the first practice. With Fox, Ibey, and Blute removed from town and the line-up of last year, there is keen speculation in sporting circles as to how the local team will fare. The newcomers to the ranks are being watched closely for improvement. Carl Johnston, who has played a consistently good brand of hockey for several years, was on the ice last night, and seemed to be up to his usual form. McArthur and Ingram appeared as impregnable as ever. Bill Blue, who distinguished himself last season, was reported to have arrived back in town, and is expected to show up with his skates and stick at the next practice.

The ice was not in perfect condition last night, but was much better than the night of the first practice. It will be ready for skating on Saturday and should be perfect when the first game, January eleventh, is played. There were still a few bumps on the curling ice, so another night's skating was allowed last night before the curlers settle down in earnest to their season's play.

PROFESSIONAL CRICKET

In the item in The Examiner of Jan. 2 headed "Much Rivalry Between Teams", referring to England and Australia at cricket there are two striking inaccuracies.

The statement that "at present in Australia the whole English team is professional" is absurdly wrong.

There are in the test match being played to-day, as in the two previous tests, three amateurs, viz., A. P. F. Chapman, D. R. Jardine, J. C. White and eight professionals.

Further, Australia has never been beaten by England in England by Australian players imported into England, as such players are not qualified to play for England and never in the history of test cricket has an Australian played for England.

Moreover, the Australian teams either in Australia or in England, are far from being strictly amateur.

Rides Thirty Miles To Coach Basketball Squad

Baker University at Baldwin, Kan., has a commuting coach for basketball team.

He is Balfour Jeffrey, who guarded the baskets for the University of Kansas when it won the Missouri Valley championship in 1926 and 1927. Although his playing days are over, he still attends the Kansas law school at Lawrence.

It is 30 miles between the Baker and Kansas campuses, and Jeffrey travels that distance twice a day to train his Wildcats to throw the ball into the cage. He usually makes the trip by motor car.

Toronto Club Plays Superior Hockey To Beat Chicago Entry.

CANADIENS IN DEADLOCK.

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—A superior brand of passing and checking as exhibited by the Toronto Maple Leafs, sent the Chicago Black Hawks down to their third straight National Hockey League defeat last night. The score was 2 to 0.

Play To Deadlock.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—Montreal Canadiens and Ottawa Senators, hockey's oldest rivals, hooked up here last night in a National League encounter before 6,000 roaring fans, and after seventy minutes of fast and thrilling hockey, two tired teams trailed off the ice with the count deadlocked at 1-1.

Rally To Tie Score.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—A stirring rally in the third period gave the New York Rangers a 2 to 2 tie with Pittsburgh last night in one of the fastest and hardest National Hockey League games here this season.

Penalties Prove Costly.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—Penalties proved costly to the Montreal Maroons here last night in their National Hockey League game against the Boston Bruins, and the visitors skated off the ice after 60 minutes of thrilling hockey with a 1 to 0 victory. The only goal of the game was scored by Eddie Shore, Boston defence man, in the second period when the locals were short of Stewart and Hicks, both of whom were doing time in the penalty box.

SEGRAVE HOPES SET NEW RECORD

British Speed Ace To Make Tests On Daytona Beach.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 4.—(Canadian Press).—The perfect sands of Daytona Beach, which have served as a speed course for the world's fastest racing cars, will be the scene of the international speed trials of Major H. O. D. Segrave, who hopes to set a new record of 240 miles an hour in March.

William F. Sturm, American manager for Major Segrave, chose the Daytona Beach course as the site of the British speed ace's trials, after considering conditions at Ormond, Jacksonville, and the Island of Sapaloe off the coast of Georgia.

Barney Oldfield set the world on fire in 1910 by flashing down this beach at the rate of 131 miles an hour. Since that day, Burman, De Palma, Milton, Segrave, Campbell, and Ray Keech have broken that world mark in rapid succession.

Keech, young Philadelphia speed demon, gave the world its latest mark to shoot at when he made his dash down the beach at 207.552 miles an hour. It is this record which Major Segrave hopes to break, so that the world honors may be returned to Great Britain.

Major Segrave was the first man to exceed 200 miles an hour in a racing creation, setting a new world record in March of last year at 203 miles an hour. His new machine, the "Golden Arrow," is now under construction in Great Britain. It will be completed this month and brought to America early in February.

LEADERS HAVE TWO WICKETS

Australians 327 Runs Ahead of British in Second Innings.

THREE PLAYERS NOT OUT.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 4. — (Canadian Press Cable).—The sixth day of the third cricket test match opened this morning with Australia 327 runs ahead with two wickets in their second innings to fall, and England yet to play their second innings and fourth of the game. The overnight Australian not outs were R. Oxenham, 39, and Clarance Grimmett, O. J. Blackie was the last man on the Antipodean team. As all these men were bowlers and would be required to start Australia's effort to get England out and win the game it was not expected they would tire themselves by batting exploits, even if the English bowlers would give them a chance. The fact that England did not have to start their last innings first thing in the morning and was an advantage as the Melbourne wicket is at its worst before lunch.

England have a task ahead of them worthy of the greatest teams. If they can beat Australia in a fourth innings when they have been called on to get more than 300 runs they will do something that has been accomplished by an English eleven once in twenty-six times. Much will depend on the condition of the wicket, which up to now has held up wonderfully well seeing the amount of play that has taken place on it.

If England loses the starting in the test matches will be as follows: England, won two; Australia, won one; to play, two. If England can win they will have retained the "Ashes" the term used in connection with the international cricket championship.

Dempsey To Make Comeback Effort

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 4 (Associated Press).—The Tennessean to-day says that Jack Dempsey, in an interview yesterday, announced it was virtually certain that he would attempt to regain the world's heavyweight title which he held from July, 1919, when he defeated Jess Willard, until he lost it to Gene Tunney in Philadelphia, in 1926.

This matter of cigarettes, as far as an actor is concerned, is no trifling one. Constant use of a brand which lacked that "Throat-Easy" quality which distinguishes Buckinghams, could easily prove disastrous to him.

Consequently, to an English actor on a Canadian tour, the weight of Buckingham label is a welcome one. Here the old saw is very wide of the truth for, in this case, familiarity breeds satisfaction.

BULLDOGS BLANK TORONTO CANPRO

Windsor Passes Millionaires in Standings With 3 to 0 Win.

TORONTO, Jan. 4.—From out of a winning streak that lasted for six successive games the Millionaires returned to their former local form and tumbled in a 3 to 0 defeat before Windsor Bull Dogs in a Canpro fixture at the Arena Gardens last night. Windsor, with the win, passed the Doughboys in the league standings, taking undisputed possession of third position, while their vacated fourth place is now occupied by the Millionaires. Home ice seems to be the nemesis of the Millionaires for apparently they suffer severely from a form of nostalgia, or in other words home-sickness, playing much below their capabilities at the Mutual Street rink.

Windsor was much the better last night, skating faster, showing more finish to plays while they had a decided advantage in aggressiveness and experience. The veterans in Windsor uniforms, only needed to show the odd flash of their former form to keep the upper hand. The Millionaires could not get organized on their plays, overanxiousness losing them many scoring chances, when they had the rubber in the jaws of the Bull Dog's goal, with the net-minder at their mercy.

EIGHT TEAMS TAKE PART IN OPENING GAMES

League of Eleven Teams is Divided Into Three Groups.

STRONG ROSTERS.

Schedule Allows Each Team Six Games During Playing Season.

C.G.E. hockey teams will take to the ice for the first time this season on Saturday afternoon, January 5, at Brock Street Rink, when the schedule opens with a bill of four games, weather permitting.

This year there are eleven teams in the Shop League which have been divided into three groups, each group having two games a week which will afford each team a chance to perform six times during the season.

The first group will be made up of what is generally thought to be the strongest teams in the league, which are as follows: Drafting Room, Tool Room No. 1, Engineers' and Wire Department. The last-named team is a new entry, being made up of players from the Wire and Coil Winding departments. Ed. Williams, Archie Weir and Les. Calladine are three of the stickhandlers on this aggregation who will probably be the mainstays.

Tool Room Have Strong Tteams

The Tool Room will be clad in a new red, white and blue outfit and matched against their old enemies, the Draftsmen, whose colors are black and white, will likely provide the best hockey of the season. The Drawing Makers, with Walter and Bill Jackson, Jack Thornton, Howie Shields, Jack McCarney and Eric Howe are a gang that will undoubtedly be one of the foremost contenders of league honors, while the Engineers, who complete the quartette are out for a win with a vengeance and, judging from their showing of last year, are in a good position to carry off the championship. Their colors are maroon and white.

Three Teams in Second Group

Group No. 2 is made up of the Office, Machine Shop and Tool Room No. 2, three evenly-matched teams who can be relied on to trot out a snappy brand of puck-chasing.

Group 3, consisting of the Meter, Fractional H.P. Motors, Induction Motors and Brass Departments, boasts the teams of which the least is known.

Ted Griffin in goal for the Fractional Motor Crew, will take the kick out of most of goal shots and is a decided asset to his team. The Brass Department, who are entering for the first time, have chosen blue and gold for their colors, but with the exception of Heal, who proved his ability as a hockey player with the Production team last year, little is known. However, on Saturday afternoon this gang hits the Meter Makers and this tilt may uncover some smart players.

Teams Playing To-morrow

The following are the teams who will compete in the opening games. Office vs Machine Shop, 1 to 2 p.m. Tool No. 1. vs. Drafting, 2 to 3 p.m. Engineers vs. Wire Dept., 3 to 4 p.m. Meter Dept. vs. Brass, 4 to 5 p.m.

The games will start prompt on time, and an invitation is extended to all members of the social and athletic club to be present. There will be no admission fee.

BRITISH SCORE 171 RUNS FOR ONE WICKET

Visitors Need 332 Runs To Win Third Test Match.

AUSTRALIAN TOTAL 351.

New Records Set For Centuries Scored and Match Attendance.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 4.—(Canadian Press Cable.) — England made a bold bid for victory to-day in the third cricket test match against Australia. Set the difficult task of making 332 in a fourth innings the Englishmen at the end of to-day's play were 171 runs for one wicket.

On a wicket made difficult by the sun, C. White, the English bowler, disposed of R. Oxenham and J. Blackie this morning and the Australian second innings, left at 347 on Thursday, ended for 351. C. Grimmett scored the extra four runs.

England was called upon to start their last innings on a pitch that got more difficult every minute. Jack Hobbs and H. Sutcliffe opened for the tourists. The Australian bowlers made the ball do all kinds of acrobatics on the uncertain turf, but the Englishmen were masters of the situation. Runs came very slowly but before Hobbs fell into a leg-before-wicket trap, he and the Yorkshiremen had put on 105 runs, which made the eighth time this couple had scored a century partnership for the first wicket in Anglo-Australian test matches. D. R. Jardine joined Sutcliffe and the two kept their wickets intact until stumps were drawn.

The match has already achieved a worlds' record for aggregate attendance, 244,436 having attended so far. The attendance to-day started with 10,000 but rose to 25,393 before the day was over.

COLLEGE CREWS BATTLE TO TIE

Toronto Varsity and Harvard Unable To Score in Overtime Game.

PLAY FAST HOCKEY.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—Though the Toronto University hockey team outplayed Harvard all through an overtime game here last night, neither sextette was able to score. The Canadian collegians had several opportunities to score in each period, but their failures to follow the puck closely gave the Crimson defence players a chance to check them out of dangerous spots.

Holbrook, the Harvard centre, saved a sure score in the third period when he tripped McMullen, when the latter had a clear shot at the Crimson cage. During the overtime play, when Whitehead, the Toronto defenceman, was off for tripping, Putnam and Lakin advanced as far as the Toronto net, but Snyder came out to make a brilliant stop.

The Canadian players, who defeated Harvard 3 to 2 when these two teams clashed in the Madison Square Garden Rink in New York on New Year's Eve, apparently had an off night. Harvard played an erratic game, and felt the absence of Johnny Garrison, the Crimson's star centre, who received a broken wrist on Monday night.

It is now reported that Cooper Smeaton, referee-in-chief of the N.H.L. injured his leg in the mix-up that occurred while he was officiating at the Canadiens and American game at Madison Square Gardens last Tuesday night. The mix-up happened about half way through the game and it was noticed that Smeaton limped after it, but he gamely continued handling the bell and it was only discovered how serious his injury really was, after the game had been finished.

Varsity and Harvard played a scoreless tie last night in spite of an overtime period. Varsity although tired out by successive hockey games had the best of the play and only their failure to bore in kept them from scoring.

Roy Riegels, centre and captain-elect of the California football team, stands beside Fred Merkle, Heinie Zimmerman and the mighty Casey of Mudville to-day and for many days to come on the shelf for those who commit disastrous blunders. Merkle was the man who deprived John McGraw of a National League pennant by failing to touch second as he circled the paths in a crucial game; Zimmerman was the slow, heavy-footed third baseman who chased the fleet-footed Eddi Collins all the way to the home plate instead of putting him out by throwing to the catcher; Casey, well you all know, Casey, the mythical hero who struckout for Mudville with the bases loaded. Reigels is the broad shouldered young man who handed the greatest rugby game in the United States, the Tournament of Roses in which East meets West, to the Georgia Tech on a platter on New Year's Day by running 75 yards to his own goal line before a team-mate could halt him.

Wild Bull Marks, the boxer of a little town away down in Colorado, must pack a wicked wallop because he is under arrest pending an investigation into the death of a man, whom he knocked out in a boxing bout. Soon after the "Wild Bull" had scored his victory by means of a tremendous uppercut later his opponent died and it is reported that both men were in perfect condition at the start of the fight.

Tex Rickard had to undergo an operation for appendicitis on New Year's night in Miami whence he had traveled to complete final arrangements for ten-round boxing bout between Young Stribling and Jack Sharkey. This illness of the boxing promoter will likely put a crimp into his boxing plans.

KELLOGG TREATY IS BEFORE HOUSE

Second Resolution of Reservation is Proposed in United States Senate.

WASHINGTON, D.C., January 4 (Canadian Press). — A second resolution of reservation to the Kellogg Treaty was placed before the Senate yesterday by Senator Blaine, Republican, of Wisconsin, who proposed that Great Britain's correspondence in connection with the treaty negotiations be not considered as allowing that nation any "reserve" in its adherence.

The resolution, offered just prior to the time set for the treaty to be taken up, recited the language of Great Britain in its note accepting the invitation to join the treaty. This was:

"His Majesty's Government have been at pains to make it clear in the past that interference with these regions" (designated as of vital importance to England) "cannot be suffered. Their protection against attack is to the British Empire a measure of self-defence. It must be clearly understood that His Majesty's Government in Great Britain accept the new treaty upon the distinct understanding that it does not prejudice their freedom of action in this respect."

Senator Blaine would have the Senate declare that "in advising and consenting to the multilateral treaty it does so with the understanding that said paragraph ten of the British note shall not imply any admission of any reserve in connection therewith."

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

The trouble with the "play with a message" is that it too often turns out to be the message with a play. The chief anxiety of the dramatist is to convey certain of his or her ideas to the public in the form of drama. Every theatre-goer can remember at least one example of this.

Clemence Dane, in writing "A Bill of Divorcement," startled theatrical critics by doing the thing the other way round. She is dealing, as one might expect, with divorce. It was an immediate and impressive hit when it came on New York and London stages. Audiences, in particular, were unanimous about it and the box office witnessed a steady line-up.

As far as those who go to the theatre to get messages were concerned, there were differences of opinion. They broke loose in a multitude of discussions and there were those who announced that Miss Dane was trying to convey this impression or that one, only to have their announcements immediately contradicted by other equally certain individuals.

In the midst of which uproar, the average theatre-goer, filing past the box office in rows, replied, metaphorically: "Who cares? This is a great play."

Miss Dane, therefore, has achieved an unusual distinction. She has taken a great social problem, made it into one particularly interesting case and turned it into a great and powerful play.

Gordon McLeod was starred in England, in "A Bill of Divorcement" during its phenomenal 62-week run there. He comes to the Grand on Saturday, Jan. 5th, for an engagement of one night only, bringing with him an entire London production and his own English company, which is one of the strongest groups of players to be sent to the Dominion in many seasons.

BRANSBY WILLIAMS IN OLIVER TWIST

In the new version of "Oliver Twist", which Bransby Williams will present Wed. Jan. 9 at the Grand Opera House.

This great exponent of Dickens' character has endeavoured to cut out all superfluous dialogue, and the story is unfolded and given continuity by the introduction of a series of clever and artistic Cameos which are interspersed with the various big scenes of the play. By doing this, long waits for changing of scenery are avoided, we see the inding of Oliver by the Artful Dodger, his introduction of Fagin the Jew, his ultimate escape from the thieves den, his recapture and so on exactly in accordance with the book.

In this play Mr. Williams has given himself an arduous task by playing the two parts, those of Fagin finding of Oliver by the Artful Dodg-diversified characters, and it is nothing short of marvellous to realise that he is able to effect the complete changes of make-up and mentality in the short time at his disposal, but seeing is believing.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"STEAMBOAT BILL, JR."

This is a giggly picture that keeps the onlooker constantly amused and entertained by reason of the foolish actions of its characters. Buster Keaton as William Canfield, Junior, is especially nonsensical, and the picture gives him plenty of scope for demonstrating his abilities in this line.

"Seamboat Bill," Senior, is Ernest Torrence, the big, hulking actor who made such an impression in "The Covered Wagon" and who has gone in of late years for pictures of a ferocious comedy type. He owns the "Stonewall Jackson," an antiquated Missouri river boat, and his rival is the King company, owner of a fine type of modern river boat.

"Steamboat Bill" expects a visit from his son, fresh from college, a boy he has not seen since babyhood, and is extremely disappointed when the little youth arrives, with his striped college blazer, his inadequate college cap, and his "barnacle" moustache.

King, the rival owner, has a pretty daughter who becomes enamored of William Sanfield, Junior, and both parents object violently to the infatuation. Resulting episodes outline a stormy romance, and there is a great scene demonstrating the power of a Missouri "twister," when a cyclone messes up the landscape considerably and Junior has numerous adventures. It is in the little bits of humor and comedy in which the picture abounds that the laughs occur with great frequency. "Steamboat Bill, Junior" is extremely entertaining and good from a laugh-producing standpoint.

With it is a Charlie Chaplin comedy, "The Floor Walker," another resurrection, evidently, of an ancient picture. Charlie is as good as ever in his famous get-up which "age cannot wither nor custom stale," but the antediluvian costumes of his companions detract considerably from the interest of the production.

However, it is a laugh-making program from start to finish and laughs are always agreeable.

"Smiling" Eddie Jackson, with his pleasing tenor voice and agreeable personality, is proving a big hit at the theatre. One of his best songs yesterday was the pretty popular number, "There's a Rainbow 'Round My Shoulder."—Jeanette.

AT THE REGENT.

"THE MICHIGAN KID" AT THE REGENT.

A Gripping Gold Rush Picture.

Universal has brought Rex Beach's novel, "The Michigan Kid" to the screen of the Regent Theatre in a pretentious special which is at once gorgeous in scenic beaty and gripping in dramatic power.

The photoplay is a massive production with two of the screen's most popular stars enacting the tremendous emotional roles, Conrad Nagel and Renee Adoree.

Nagel has never appeared to better advantage than as the famous Michigan Kid, notorious, honest gambler in Alaska during the mighty gold rush of 1898. This characterization is one of sweeping verve—the Kid being the type that is a Hell-cat gone mad when he has just cause for his wrath but who other wise is gentle and loving towards his friends and much addicted to charity in the right place.

Miss Adoree gives a sincere portrayal of the girl from the States who comes to Alaska for the purpose of marrying a boyhood sweetheart who has become a rotter.

The story carries the audience through the exciting days of the gold rush—through dance halls, gambling dens, the boat from the States, over Chilkoot Pass to the mines in the interior, and back down a raging mountain stream by canoe through a forest-devouring holocaust.

The picture is sensational in every way and is easily the best ever filmed around the Alaskan locale. The entire forest fire sequence is done in natural colors which adds materially to the menace of the flames and incidentally shows a river flowing down it and a fire ravaging its natural splendor. This is easily one of the most impressive sequences in the season's photoplay offerings.

Lloyd Whitlock is splendid as the weakling who in the mad rush for wealth is driven to theft and cheating. By his naturalness he raises his role from the ranks of an ordinary "heavy."

Adolph Milar and Fred Esmelton are fine characters while the three children who play the leading charasters in their youth are delightful. They are Maurice Murphy, Virginia Grey and Dick Palm.

Credit for the smooth direction goes to Irvin Willat.

"TARZAN THE MIGHTY."

The most thrilling and adventurous novel written has been brought to the screen by Universal and the Regent Theatre is proud to announce that it has scheduled the film version for showing here. The story, which Universal has made into a chapterplay is from Edgar Rice Burrough's epochal book, "The Jungle Tales of Tarzan." The screen name is "Tarzan the Mighty."

Readers who have thrilled at the mere mention of the name Tarzan, will welcome this announcement. Tarzan — the ape man — raised from childhood by a jungle ape—falling in love with the only white woman he had ever seen—protecting her from the terrors of the jungle—fighting the animals whose ruler he had once been —these and a thousand other attributes that spell romance, courage, strength and adventure have been brought into the chapterplay to hold and delight audiences.

"Tarzan the Mighty" will be here every week. Starting now with the first episode, "The Terror of Tarzan," a new one will appear every Thursday, Friday and Saturady for fifteen weeks.

G. H. ROPER ON Y.M.C.A. COUNCIL

Also On Committee To Make Plans For This Year's Summer School.

ONE OF 12 MEMBERS.

G. H. Roper, secretary of the local Y.M.C.A., has been appointed a member of the counselling committee to help prepare plans for this year's Summer School and Study Conference to be held under the auspices of the General Council of the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Roper has also been appointed to work on the National Council of the Y.M.C.A., of which body the annual meeting will be held in London, Ont., in the month of February. This council consists of twelve Y.M.C.A. officials selected throughout the length and breadth of Canada.

NO CHANGE IN MAJOR PARTIES

Liberal and Liberal-Progressives Will Have 132 Seats in House of Commons.

CONSERVATIVES 90.

OTTAWA, Ont., January 4 (Canadian Press). — When Parliament reassembles next month there will be no alteration in the standing of the parties, the by-elections held since prorogation having left the situation as it was before. Four seats were rendered vacant during recess and of these three have been filled. Victoria, B.C., and West York remained in the Conservative fold, while Joliette continued as a Liberal seat.

The prospects are that the coming by-election in Lambton West, necessitated by the death of W. T. Goodison, will be uncontested by the Opposition, thus distributing the new members equally among the two major parties.

The House standing at present is:

Liberals (and Liberal-Progressives)	132
Conservatives	90
Progressives	17
Labor	4
Independent	2

Front Benchers Removed.

The resignation of Sir Henry Drayton and Hon. S. F. Tolmie, the former to become chairman of the Ontario Liquor Commission and the latter to assume Premiership of British Columbia, has removed two front-benchers from the Opposition ranks. Some interesting speculation is being heard as to who will be "promoted." Whether Hon. Mr. Bennett will award the seats in the same provincial ratio, giving one to British Columbia and the other to Ontario, remains to be seen. Inasmuch as the re-arrangement would in a measure be considered as a forecast of Bennett's Cabinet selections, should he at any time assume office, a certain piquancy is given to the choice. The names of Brig.-General A. D. McRae (Conservative, Vancouver North) and Col. G. E. Geary (Conservative, Toronto South) are prominently mentioned. General McRae is one of the doughty fighters of his party, and is recognized as a capable organizer and administrator, while Col. Geary has established for himself a reputation in the House. There are other claimants to be considered, however, and the Opposition leader's selection will probably not be made known until near the opening of the session.

INCREASE IN FIRES DURING NOVEMBER

Total Loss in Ontario for Month Amounted to $845,744.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Increase of 51 fires throughout the province over the corresponding month of last year is noted in the report of the Ontario Fire Marshal for the month of November. During the month there were 1,003 fires as against 952 for November, 1927. Total loss in November, 1928, was $845,744 as compared to $869,390 for November, 1927, a decrease in loss although there were more fires.

Figures for the year 1928, January to November inclusive, show 11,568 fires with a loss of $11,763,120 as compared to 10,436 fires with a loss of $11,330,406 for the same period of 1927.

During the period of 1928 reported upon, 787 barns were burned 7,899 dwellings, 1,073 stores and 398 factories.

DOWNEYVILLE, Jan. 4.—On Saturday, Rev. Father Galvin celebrated his 25th anniversary in the priesthood in a quiet manner. After the entertainment in the hall on Wednesday night the parish presented him with a substantial purse of money and the school children presented him with a beautiful silver tea service. E. Costello read the address and Reeve Martin Carroll made the presentation. Rev. Father Galvin was taken completely by surprise and thanked the people for their kind expressions and wishes saying he hoped to be many more years with the people in Downeyville. He has already spent 13 years in this community.

BIG DEMAND FOR FLOWERS

Peterborough Florists Have Had an Exceptionally Big Holiday Trade.

POT PLANTS LEAD

One class of Peterborough merchants who did an exceptionally good Christmas business this year, were the florists. The large increase in this year's Christmas trade goes to show that the people are "Saying it with Flowers" more than in the past. Peterborough florists, including Jordan Bros., C. Williamson and A. Blade & Son, are of the opinion that the florist trade is increasing greatly. Pot plants were in great demand this Christmas, the most popular being the Cyclamen.

D. Jordan, of Jordan Bros.' store on George street, said that the Christmas floral trade this year was much heavier than in other years. "Cut flowers this year," said Mr. Jordan, "were not in demand as much as pot plants. Cyclamens were the most popular pot plants. Ferns were also much sought after. Roses and Carnations were the cut flowers most in demand. The telegraph trade," said Mr. Jordan, "was very heavy compared to other years. This part of the floral trade, however, cannot be depended upon," Jordan Bros. are members of the Florists Telegraph Delivery, which makes it possible to have flowers delivered immediately anywhere in America.

Miss M. Jordan of the Charlotte St. Store, said that the reason that cut flowers were not in such great demand was because dark weather retards the bloom. "We have had an exceptionally good Christmas trade this year," said Miss Jordan, "pot plants being in great demand. The business was jammed into two days while other years it generally extended over four or five days."

"This has been the best Christmas we have ever had," said C. Williamson, of the Peterborough Floral Company. "There was a larger amount of flowers handled than we had anticipated, and we could hardly supply the demand. Plants were the flowers mostly sought after, the most popular being Poinsettias, Azalias and the better class of Cyclamens. We have had a very large telegraph trade." The Peterborough Floral Company is also a member of the Florists' Trade Delivery.

"The floral trade this year was exceptionally good," said Percy Blade, of the Blade Floral Company. Pot plants, especially Ferns and Cyclamens, were in great demand. Roses and Carnations were the most popular cut flowers.

CUNARD LINE LOSES MAIL

American Postal Authorities Withdraw All Shipments From Three Large Ships.

BRITISH BOATS.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—The Post office department, in an order issued yesterday, withdrew from three Cunard Line ships all mail except that which is specifically addressed to the ships for delivery in Europe, Africa and West Asia. As few persons specify the ship on which mail is to be carried, the great volume of mail usually transported by the Berengaria, Ausonia, and Andania, against which the ruling was made, will be lost to the Cunard Line.

From three to six days will be added to the time of delivery of mail which would have been carried by the Berengaria when she sail to-night at midnight. The order transferred the mail to the White Star liner Baltic, which sails to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

The post office department announced last night that it might reroute all its European mail to favor American ships, but denied that the controversy with the Cunard Line over the New York-Havana trade caused the action. Coming on the eve of the sailing to Havana of the President Roosevelt and the Cunard liner Caronia, and following the exchange of letters between Chairman T. V. O'Connor of the board and Sir T. Ashley Sparks, Resident Director of the Cunard Line, on the subject of the right of the latter to compete with American ships in the Havana trade, the action of the post office department is viewed as a move to force the Cunard Line to withdraw its ship. The Cunard Line refused yesterday through John Gammie, assistant to the director, to discuss the phase of the controversy.

"We have been unable to get an explanation," said Mr. Gammie. "Inquiry at the New York post office brought the reply that the order came from Washington and inquiry by our Washington department at the post office department brought orders as the only explanation."

MILD WEATHER AFFECTS SKINS

Fur Will Not Be as Prime This Year, Claims Local Dealer.

That the skins of the fur bearing animals will not likely be as glossy or as thick this season owing to the extreme mildness of the winter that prevailed so far was the information given to The Examiner in an interview with Tom Curvin, local fur buyer.

Asked if the skins of the animals would change in colour even though there was no snow, Mr. Curvin replied: "Yes, they will change their coats as usual and at the appointed time, but although the skins will become prime they will have the same quantity nor quality of fur. The water animals are not affected at all by an open winter. Their skins will be as fine as ever, but the foxes, minks and other ground animals will most certainly not have as good coats."

Around the City

The Fire Department did not lack for smoking materials during the past week and, perhaps, for some weeks yet to come. They received many cigars, cigarettes and tobacco as Christmas gifts.

The members of the Fire Department desire to thank the following for the presents:

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Mayor R. Denne, W. Butcher, manager of the Teco Store, R. M. Glover, J. J. Turner, A. W. Clydesdale, J. Vernor, A. Brown and Son, R. S. Cotton and Louis Yeates.

Members of the Fire Department wish to acknowledge with much gratitude the donations made to their annual dance, which took place last week, and were received from the following: Canadian Packing Company, Canadian General Electric Company, Raybestos Company, Canadian Nashua Paper Company, William Hamilton Company, Limited, Canadian Woollens, Quaker Oats Company, Peterborough Lock Works, Westclox Company, Barrie's, Limited, Kinnear Company, Brinton Carpet Company, Hill, Weddell and Hills, the Metropolitan Store, Woolworth Store, the Teco Store and Loblaw's Groceterias.

The Fire Department was called out to the corner of Stewart and Hunter streets at 2.01 yesterday afternoon to put out a fire that was consuming an automobile. The blaze was quickly extinguished with chemicals.

An overheated electric light switch at 228 Charlotte also had to receive the prompt attention of the Fire Department at 11.35 last night.

DR. J. J. CRAIG NEW CHAIRMAN

the Separate School representative.

Nothing to be Gained

Dealing with the question of keeping the schools closed Dr. Yelland said, "There is nothing to be gained by keeping the children away from school, as they are just as well off there in the large, well-ventilated rooms as on the streets and out around. However it would be well to keep the smaller children out some little time longer."

Dr. Moir reiterated Dr. Yelland's suggestion of keeping the small children away from school a little longer, saying that the older child's rend are less susceptible." In the spreading of the "flu" it does not seem that contact is very important, and I do not think it is spread through contact," continued Dr. Moir.

The four newly elected members, R. F. Reid, James Dutton, I. P. McNabb and Dr. A. Moir took the declaration of office which was administered by E. A. Peck, M.P.

The City Council will be asked for an interim grant of $20,000 to provide funds for the carrying on the work of the schools until the final estimates are compiled.

JOHN SLOAN CO. SELLS BUSINESS

National Grocers Purchase Warehouses in Central and Eastern Ontario.

SUPPLY DEPOT.

TORONTO, Jan. 4.—(Special to The Examiner).—National Grocers' Company has taken over the John Sloan and Company business and warehouses in Ontario. The deal is regarded as the most important since National Grocers was formed through a merger of jobbers in August of 1926. According to information the purchasing company is taking over all the Sloan warehouses and will in future be the supply depot of the Red and White stores in central and eastern Ontario, as it is now of the group with the same name in the Windsor district. John Sloan and Company's warehouses are located in Peterbough, Belleville, Kitchener, and Toronto, in which latter place the head office has always been. It is further stated that Frank Sloan, the President and General Manager will become an exclusive chain store operator using the eight Red and White stores in Toronto which he already owns as nucleus of which to expend. Negotiations in connection with this transfer have been going on for some time between the two companies. As a result of it, there is another jobbing house removed from the Ontario field, which has seen so many changes during the past few years. The Sloan business covered a wide territory on account of the number of warehouses operated. This company, too having patterned them after the Red and White stores originated by Flickinger of Buffalo, some years ago.

SHOOTING VICTIMS BURIED TO-DAY

Kenneth and Colin Twells Shot By Father At Picton

PICTON, Ont., Jan. 4. — Canadian Press. — The two little victims of the shooting tragedy at Consecon, Kenneth Twells, 11, and his brother Colin, 10, will be buried to-day. The funeral services will be held from the home of a friend of the family at Hillier, with whom Mrs. Twells is now staying.

Later, an inquest into the shooting will be opened. It was stated that the report of Dr. Vanluven, the autopist, will be the only evidence submitted. Proceedings will then be adjourned, awaiting the recovery of Arthur Corfield, who is lying in a Belleville hospital in a serious condition with a bullet wound in his head.

When Dr. Charles Twells appeared before Magistrate R. A. Norman on a charge of murdering his two sons, and wounding his brother-in-law, Corfield, he was remanded for eight days. Twells' legal representative arrived from Toronto yesterday.

NEW OFFICERS INSTALLED AT BIG LUNCHEON

Lieutenant-Governor I. P. McNabb Conducts Ceremony at Kiwanis Club Banquet.

SPECIAL SPEAKER.

Rev. William Johnson, of St. Lambert, Quebec, Delivers Brilliant Address.

A vivid and memorable word picture of the mountain of life and the little temples where pilgrims sojourn on their way up its eastern ascent and down its western slope, formed the basis of the address given to members of the Kiwanis Club, their ladies and guests, at the dinner held last evening in the Empress Hotel. The occasion was marked also by the installation of officers for the coming year, and the ceremoney which accompanied it, conducted by Isaac McNabb, recently elected Lieutenant Governor of this Kiwanis District, was characterized by the speaker of the evening, the Rev. (Kiwanian) William Johnston of St. Lambert, Quebec, as being one of the finest of its kind he had ever witnessed, and a model for other Kiwanis clubs to follow.

The Rev. Mr. Johnson, with the soft brougue of an avowed North of Ireland ancestry on his tongue, the eloquent flow of the born orator in his words and the light of a crusader in his eye, as he expounded an idealistic, yet extremely practical, doctrine for the guidance of the local club during the coming year, proved to be one of the most outstanding speakers in a long list of forceful and fluent orators, to whom the club has listened at various times. He held the rapt attention of his audience during the course of an address which was of exactly the right length, was kept to the point at all times and drew a graphic and beautiful picture for the mind's eye.

Illustrating his talk with brief stories, he characterized the different stages of life as little temples where the man or woman dwells for a certain period, and to these temples Kiwanis may contribute much in the way of assistance and encouragement. It was a prolonged and very sincere expression of enthusiastic appreciation that greeted the speaker's sparkling and brilliant discourse.

President John Presides

President Joseph John presided for the last time at the opening portion of the evening's program, carrying out his duties with the same degree of genial efficiency which has marked his tenure of office during the past twelvemonth. The new president, John J. Turner, took the chair for the concluding period, and Lieutenant Governor Isaac McNabb was in charge of an extremely impressive installation of officers. There is no set ritual in the Kiwanis Manual for such an occasion and the individual preferences of the clubs are expressed in the manner in which the ceremony is conducted.

With a few words from Past President John, voicing his appreciation of the "wonderful support" given him during the year by the officers and members of the club, also the press, the gavel was handed to Mr. McNabb.

Past President Jack Marshall presented the new vice president, Carl S. Browne; Past president Charles Cook introduced the immediate past president, Joseph John, who also fills the new office of district trustee; Past President Dr. J. J. Craig presented the secretary, John R. Heron, and the treasurer, J. B. Nelson, and Past President J. John brought forward the members of the board of directors, those present being H. J. McCannan, Charles Elliott and John A. Dewart. Other directors include J. R. Heron and a trio who were absent last evening, A. J. Reynolds, R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne and H. J. Boyle.

In conclusion, Lieutenant Governor McNabb spoke briefly of the aims of Kiwanis, in stressing the human and spiritual, rather than the material values of life, in striving to express in action the Golden Rule, in furthering higher principles of life and better citizenship, in fostering enduring friendships and furthering altruistic services to the community, and in the encouragement of the basic principles of justic, patriotism and good will.

Kiwanian Joseph Wearing spoke of the splendid service to the club given by Past President Joseph John, of

Seven-Eyed Potato Yields Half Bushel

Last spring a friend gave him a potato of the Ern variety, that had seven eyes. He cut it into seven pieces and planted seven hills of potatoes. He gave the growing plants careful attention all through the summer. The production is considered extraordinary.

KING SCORES ANOTHER GAIN, RESTS BETTER

His Majesty Is Passing the Days More Comfortably With Some Sleep.

HAD GOOD NIGHT.

Three Doctors Were in Consultation For Over One Hour in Palace To-day.

LONDON, Jan. 5. (Canadian Press.) — King George has scored another gain in his fight for recovery. After two days in which His Majesty's condition remained stationary, his doctors were able this morning to report a further slight improvement.

The medical bulletins meanwhile have showed that the King is passing his days more comfortably, and resting better at night. This gratifying state of affairs, it was taken for granted was notably helpful in bringing about the betterment announced to-day. The morning bulletin said:

"The King has had a good night and there is a slight improvement in His Majesty's condition."

Palace circles regarded this morning's bulletin with satisfaction and hope was expressed that the small improvement noted to-day might be followed by a further advance.

Sir Hugh Rigby, the surgeon, who did not call at the palace last night for the first time since his operation on the King during December, arrived with Lord Dawson of Penn shortly before ten this morning and the two doctors remained in consultation for more than an hour and a half. It was stated that no significance was to be attached to Dr. Rigby's visit to-day.

STAND MOVED TO NEW SITE

Jack Brownlee Finds New Quarters Near Corner of Charlotte and Stewart Streets.

IDEAL SITUATION.

The blind man's news-stand has again been moved to a new situation, near the corner of Charlotte and Stewart Streets. Owing to the purchase of its former site on Charlotte Street and the prospect of immediate building operations commencing, it was found necessary to move Jack Brownlee's stand for a third time. His comfortable little quarters can be very easily moved and the Kiwanians, who supervised the moving, found no difficulties in slipping rollers under the building and moving it further out Charlotte Street.

It was at Mr. Brownlee's own request that his stand was set up at its present quarters, because, as he said, most of his customers are in the west end and he would be able to serve them very well now.

AVIATOR SUCCEEDS IN MAKING PERILOUS JOURNEY INTO NORTH WITH BIG SUPPLY OF ANTI-TOXIN

Diphtheria Epidemic Is Found To Have Been Checked at Hudson Bay Forts.

ONE DEATH OCCURRED.

Suspects Are Being Treated With Supply Sent In By Alberta Authorities.

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 5.—(Canadian Press.)—An epidemic of diphtheria which threatened the lives of the 200 inhabitants of the far northern trading posts—Fort Vermilion and Little Red River—has been checked, according to a report reaching here from Captain "Wop" May and Victor Horner, who made a perilous winter air journey to the settlements with a supply of anti-toxin.

There are now no cases of diphtheria at Fort Vermilion, and no further deaths beyond that of A. Logan, Hudson's Bay Factor, at Little Red River. There are, however, several suspected infections at the latter post, and the anti-toxin has been administered by Dr. H. A. Hamman, provincial health officer in the northern districts.

The two northern settlements are 650 miles from Edmonton. Captain May and his companion left here Wednesady morning, and returned to the town of Peace River late Friday afternoon, from where they telegraphed a report to Provincial Health authorities here. The aviators are expected to return to Edmonton today.

No difficulty was encountered by the airmen in the long and dangerous flight to the posts, though sub-zero weather prevailed and at times poor visibility was experienced.

$250 STOLEN FROM TRUNK

Room of Henley Hum Entered On Same Night As Prisoner Escaped From Jail.

ON LOUIS STREET.

Who will be first to suggest a significance in the fact that on the night in which a notorious prisoner escaped from the Peterborough county jail, Thursday night, a room over Sherney's store, at the corner of Charlotte and Louis street, was entered and between $250.00 and $275.00 stolen from the trunk of its occupant, Henley Hum, proprietor of the Louis cafe on Charlotte street.

Rumor of the burglary became widespread about the city on Friday afternoon, and from information given The Examiner by one of Mr. Hum's employees, it was learned that: Some time between six o'clock on Thursday evening and 3 a.m. Friday morning (the hour at which Mr. Hum retires after closing his restaurant) someone had entered the room which can be reached by a back stairs, had broken a lock on a trunk and taken therefrom the above mentioned sum in the form of American bills, gold and silver coins. Afterward, the thief had carefully left everything as he had found it, except the money, so that the owner did not immediately note the disappearance of his money. It is undrstood that the police are working on the case.

38 PERSONS FEARED LOST

Search Is Being Made For Remaining Survivors of S. S. Malakoff.

SEVERAL WOMEN.

MAHON, Spain, Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Intensive search was being made to-day for 38 persons, including several women who have been missing since the sinking of the French steamer Malakoff. While some hope is still held that the missing persons may either be in life boats or still afloat in life belts, it was generally believed that they perished.

The vessel foundered seven minutes after striking the rocks between Cape Bartrium and Santa Galina Bay on the southwest coast of the Isle of Minorca Thursday in a fog. The Malakoff was bound from Dunkirk and Havre to Madagascar.

Forty-four survivors, including two women, have arrived in Cuidadela.

All Public Meetings Closed In St. Mary's

ST. MARY'S, Ont., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Citizens of St. Mary's will not have any place to go at nights from now until January 14.

In an effort to check an outbreak of influenza in the town, the local board of health advised and the local authorities have decreed, that all churches, schools, theatres, bowling alleys, pool rooms, and dance halls shall be closed and public gatherings prohibited until January 14.

LOVE'S DREAM TOLD IN COURT

Young English Lad Brings Girl To Canada and Quarrel Follows.

ENGAGED IN ENGLAND.

Love's young dream that crystallized beneath smiling English skies by Newcastle-on-the-Tyne quickly grew cold during the storms of a Canadian winter and pieces of the broken romance were recounted in Division Court before His Honor Judge Huycke yesterday. "Duffus' Bowling Academy was the scene of the mild break between the two young lovers one blustering night last February.

It appears from the evidence that this young English lad and lass grew to love each other very dearly during a four years courtship in England. Times were poor and the swain, out of work, decided to try his luck in Canada, asking the girl to promise that she would come out and marry him when he sent for her after he had succeeded in getting settled. She promised at the station just before the train carried him away on his long journey.

Time passed, and so did many letters back and forth across the Atlantic. The young man's were filled with the glow of the new opportunities in Canada and the girl's of hope and constant waiting.

Sends for Girl

She in her efforts to join her lover began corresponding with the Immigration officials. He growing weary of waiting decided to borrow the passage money; succeeded in obtaining the loan of $120; bought a passage; sent in post haste to England begging the girl to take the next boat to Canada and so be reunited.

The girl came on the first boat September 1927, and happiness reigned, for a while. Together they began paying off the debt of the borrowed passage money. Then jealousies crept in, with the final scene of estrangment being Duffus' Bowling Alleys, when the young man is said to have thrown a book at his sweetheart. Since that time the girl has had nothing to do with the young man, in spite of his desperate efforts to patch up the affair.

Finally when pleas and supplications had no effect in melting her cold heart he took steps to recover the money that he had spent in bringing her to Canada. Yesterday the case appeared in Division and after hearing all the evidence and the reading of voluminous letters His Honor Judge Huycke reserved judgment.

His Auto Kills "Dog," Gets Wildcat Bounty

WESTFIELD, Mass., Jan. 5. — "Well, I'll be doggoned," declared George Deschamps of Westfield, as he stood beside his automobile with a ten dollar bill in his hand scratching his head. "That's the first time I ever got paid for making a mistake."

Deschamps was riding home from Chester, when he hit what he thought was a dog. He brought the dead animal to Westfield, intending to bury it. When he arrived here state officers paid him a ten dollar bounty for killing a fifteen-pound bobcat.

AUTHORITIES WAIT FURTHER IDENTIFICATION

Autopsy Not Performed On Body of Woman Found At Cornwall.

BELIEVED MRS. SCHNABEL.

No Trace of Missing Husband Is As Yet Found By Police.

MONTREAL, Que., January 5 (Canadian Press). — The authorities today were awaiting the arrival of Geeorge Allan, of Hazelton, Pa., before performing an autopsy on the body of the woman exhumed from a Cornwall, Ont., cemetery, and identified, police say, as that of Mrs. George Schnabel, who disappeared from her home in a local suburb on

The police have refrained from conducting the autopsy on the body, which was removed from its grave on Thursday, because the operation would necessarily interfere with possible marks of identification, and although several persons have identified the corpse as that of the missing woman, the authorities are anxious to establish positive identification by the woman's relatives.

It is understood here that Allan, who is a brother of Mrs. Schnabel was on his way to Montreal, and that he would arrive some time today.

Mrs. Mort, an aunt of the deceased, has also been notified, and has indicated her willingness to be present at the autopsy. She is expected to arrive over the week-end.

The body has been examined by morgue doctors. It shows no visible marks of external violence. Decomposition has not set in to any great extent.

No trace of George Schnabel, the missing woman's husband has been uncovered by the police. He, too, disappeared from his home and a warrant, charging him with causing his wife's disappearance, has been issued.

Grand Opera House Well Heated To-night

There is still a large number of people in this city greatly interested in the legitimate theatre, as is evident when not a few called up The Examiner to-day, when it was known the Grand would be most comfortable for the appearance of Gordon McLeod, Lilian Christine with their entire London cast in "A Bill of Divorce" tonight.

From appearances there is going to be a fine house to hear this most powerful of ultra-modern dramatic successes.

Last of Peterborough Street Railway Cars Will Be Used On Hydro Lines In Kitchener

After more than two long years of resting in its quarters on King street, totally obscure to the way-faring public, it again came forth into an none-too-kind world this morning, perhaps for a last view of the old streets that it had known so well in better days.

Perhaps, from the lack of attention accorded it, the stranger was reminded of those last lean days in which it had sought to justify its existence only to fail miserably and crawl in late one night, to remain until this day.

It was one of the old Peterborough street railway cars of the one-man control type, no longer powered by flashing electric current and driven under a guiding hand. Instead, adding to the embarrassment and yes, even the ignonomy of the scene, a team of black horses drew the unwieldly vehicle to a point on King street where it was loaded onto a flat car of the "Peoples' Railway" and drawn away to Kitchener, to be used for, it knew not what.

Yet there was the echo of former days, for fate had decreed that one solitary coin should chance to be left in the fare box at one end of the car, to rattle in hollow mockery.

Official Seal Of Liquor Control Commission Is Forged "Pure Whiskey" Sold In Large Quantities In States

TORONTO, Jan. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Thousands of dollars worth of "pure Whiskey" was dispensed to New Year's Eve revellers in Detroit and Buffalo from bottles bearing the forged labels of well-known distilleries and sealed with Ontario Liquor Control Board stamps. This information was gained by liquor board investigators acting on instructions of Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Board.

The liquor board, through the issue of specially marked labels, have always taken precautionary measures against forgery but following receipt of this information, Sir Henry said that further measures would be adopted to make it more difficult to imitate the official seals.

Escaped Prisoner Steals Second Car In Aylmer Village

Squads of Police Arrive at Home of Park's Sweetheart Five Minutes After Fugitive Had Left—Car of Walter Jackson Is Found in Ditch.

ARRIVES IN A VERY EXHAUSTED CONDITION REMAINS HALF AN HOUR IN FARMER'S HOME

Fleeing Man Was Tracked Across Fields and Over Fences—Evidences Showed That Posse Had Passed Him As He Hid in the Ditch.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., January 5 (Canadian Press). — John Williams alias John Parks, who sawed his way through five bars at the Peterborough County Jail early on Friday morning, escaped from a large police posse east of Aylmer late last night. He took his departure in a car belonging to Fred Rogers, postmaster at Aylmer, leaving the stolen car in which he made his mad dash from Peterborough near a farm south of Aylmer.

Provincial, Elgin County, St. Thomas, and Michigan Central Railway Police joined in the search for Williams, but missed him by five minutes, arriving at the home of his sweetheart just after he had left. Occupants of the house admitted the fugitive had been there, but had left five minutes before the arrival of the Police.

Nearly perished when he arrived at his sweetheart's home, he sat for almost half an hour with his shoes and socks removed and his bared feet in the oven of the kitchen stove. Police tracked the fleeing man across field and over fences, and in the snow found evidence when the man had broken through the ice on a creek and had lain in a ditch at the side of the road.

Border police have been warned in the belief that Williams is making his way to the Windsor-Detroit border.

Another story reaching The Examiner says:

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 5 (Special to The Examiner).—His love for 17-year-old Pearl Bowerman, pretty Aylmer girl led John Parks, escaped prisoner from Peterborough jail, to near capture last night, when surrounded by six county, provincial and railway police officers.

Stealing another automobile belonging to Fred W. Rogers, postmaster at Aylmer, Jack Parks, alias Williams, eluded a posse of Elgin County, St. Thomas Provincial, and Michigan Central Railroad police, late last night. Parks' second escape is even more sensational than his jail getaway. He was traced across fields and fences, through underbrush and through a small creek and evidence was found where he had crouched in a deep ditch at the side of the roadway as the posse passed. The stolen car in which Parks escaped after leaving Peterborough was found off the roadway in a rather isolated district a mile and a half south and east of Aylmer.

At the home of a farmer named Bowerman, living near the scene, the police learned that Parks had been there, leaving only about five minutes before the police arrived. Occupants of the house stated, according to Provincial Officer N. D. Shervill, that Parks had arrived in an exhausted and wet condition and had sat for half an hour or more with his shoes and socks off and his bare feet in the oven of the kitchen range. The police doubled back to Aylmer, there to learn that Postmaster Rogers' automobile had been stolen. It had been left outside his home.

Attracted By Sweetheart.

His sweetheart evidently attracted Parks back to this district, where he is wanted on at least a half dozen charges of robbery, police stated today. He had been keeping company with a young lady in the Aylmer district.

Having this knowledge in advance, the police were expecting Parks, and Provincial Officer Shervill and Captain I. H. O. Taylor of the M.C.R. police department visited the Aylmer district early last evening. They learned that the young lady was in St. Thomas. They hurried back to St. Thomas, located the young lady and, according to Officer Shervill, were told by her that Parks had told her he was making for the border, where he would attempt to cross into the States.

In the meantime Dr. David Augustine, Chief of the Aylmer Police Force, and High Constable Hugh Ostrander had learned that a man answering Parks' description had been seen in the district south and east of Aylmer. They quickly organized a posse of police and farmers and proceeded to scour the district. Officer Shervill and Captain Taylor joined the posse when the Bowerman house was being searched. The district is particularly difficult to search, as much of it is wooded, with considerable valley and swamp land.

Tank Full of Gasoline.

The police stated that they believe that Parks reached the district early last evening, and, learning that his girl was in St. Thomas, motored to the city, then returned to the Aylmer district, taking to the fields after deserting the stolen car. The switch key was left in the car and the gasoline tank was found to be nearly full of gasoline, evidence that Parks had replenished his supply only a short time before he left the car. Parks is wanted by the M.C.R. Police on at least five different robbery charges, Captain Taylor of the Canadian Division Force to-day stated. He is suspected also of being the lone bandit who burglarized the general store at Otterville and the C.N.R. depot at Hawtry about three weeks ago. Station and section house robberies that occurred here within the last five or six weeks are blamed on Parks, Capt. Taylor stated. Search for Parks and Postmaster Rogers' automobile is being made in the districts east and west of the city. It is believed that he will desert that car also before attempting to cross the border as a description of the car was sent to the border police department late last night.

Jumped for His Hat.

When the police posse arrived last night at the home of Robert Bowerman in Aylmer, they found the house lighted up, but a knock on the door was unanswered. The officers tried the latch, found the door unfastened and walked in. Parks was sitting beside his girl friend, his coat and hat on the chair beside him. Shervill walked towards Parks and said:

"Listen, Guy, I thought you were in jail."

"Jail me? Why should I be in jail?"

At this Parks grabbed his hat, ducked towards the back door, and then made for the front door and liberty. The officers went after him and pursued a car towards St. Thomas. It did not contain Parks.

Here they joined forces with Sergt. O. C. Doyle, Constable T. Campbell, and High Constable Ostrander, and returned to Aylmer. Picking up Chief Constable S. A. Augustine they again proceeded to the Bowerman home but Parks was not there. The officers demanded explanations. They were told that after the two men had chased the car toward St. Thomas, Parks who had hidden in the hay mow, came back into the room, took off his shoes and socks and put his feet in the oven of the kitchen range. His girl joined him there and they sat there with their arms around each other, while the officers recruited more men in St. Thomas.

A picket was posted outside and when the constables returned Parks stepped outside and hid in the darkness until they had gone. An hour later he walked back into Aylmer and stole the postmaster's car.

Followed later, a chase, in which Parks was traced across fields and fences, through underbrush, and through a small creek, the fugitive is believed to have gained temporary surcease by hiding in a deep ditch at the side of the roadway as the posse passed.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5 (Special to The Examiner). — On receipt of word that Parks had been seen driv-

FOUR WEEKS' BRIDE HEADS ROBBER GANG

Leaves Her Husband On Honeymoon and Joins Three Gunmen.

TERRORIZES SMALL TOWNS.

Tells of Her First Hold-up in a Small Downtown Restaurant.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Jan. 5.—Rather than assume the irksome household duties of a bride of four weeks, Mrs. Agnes Kennedy Brown, 18, of Binghamton chose to become the "moll" of a swash-buckling leader of a mob of gunmen which roved southern New York State for more than a months, staging a series of spectacular holdups.

"Thrilling," she said when she came to the end of a bullet-spattered trail in Syracuse. But she wept when she said it, then. "But I wouldn't do it again. If I could only go back to my husband now."

Which she in all probability won't be able to do for some time to come. In default of $5,000 bail she is waiting a hearing in Broome County jail on four charges of robbery, first degree.

Mate Still Loves Her.

Strange to relate, her husband, Merrill Brown, an itinerant sign painter, has vowed that his love of her is a strong as ever and that he'll wait until Doomsday if necessary to rejoin his bride when she gets out of jail.

Less than six months ago Agnes was calling "Cash" in a 5 and 10 cent store. The change must have been rapid from the dulcet tones of a sales girl to the gruffer ones of a bandit.

Little more than a year ago, Agnes was dancing for her classmates as a sweet little girl graduate in the auditorium of the Binghamton High School.

Agnes names it all on Jesse Thomas, 21, dashing young Lothario, and a playmate of her school days, who came back to his home town, a big-time gunman just released from Eastern penitentiary in Pennsylvania.

She just couldn't resist the glamor about him, she says. A snappy dresser, lots of nerve and swank, she became immediately enamored when their acquaintanceship was renewed.

He bought her drinks, she said, and told her of the romantic life of a "mobster." But she didn't agree to join him until one day he pulled a gun on her and told her she was his "moll" and that she'd have to do as he said.

"After that I guess I went mad," she explains.

"I'd gone straight always until I met Jesse," she says, "Then something changed me over in a second."

Then followed a career of crime rivaling dime novel fiction. Robbery of a grocery store, a restaurant, a gas station, and in between, citizens of peaceful little hamlets in the Southern Tier.

Everything Thomas told her to do, she did. Agnes said. He was the chief; she was his "moll." He dominated her absolutely. When words failed he sometimes threatened her with a gun to compel her to obey his orders.

"Sometimes my knees shook and the hand in which I held the gun wavered," Agnes said, "but always I did what Jesse told me to."

"Our first job was a restaurant the Subway, in the heart of the downtown section of Binghamton.

"Jesse gave me a gun and told me to get out of the car and walk in. If the proprietor resisted I was to shoot him."

Came Near Fainting.

"I'll never forget that night. I thought sure I'd faint when I walked through the door. There was the proprietor, a huge man with black mustache and piercing eyes, leaning on the counter.

"For a moment I felt like turning and running. But I thought of Jesse out in the car, and I told this big man to stick 'em up. My voice was so weak I couldn't hear it myself. At first I thought he was going to laugh at me.

"Then slowly he raised his hands

Humane Society Inspector In Course Of His Duties Finds Animals Starving and Family Down With "Flu"

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Jan. 5—(Canadian Press)—Inspector W. E. Farrell, a veterinary surgeon of the Lincoln County Humane Society, in the course of his duties as inspector, proved a very capable physician when duty demanded it two days ago.

Investigating queer noises which arose from a neighboring stable, inspector Farrell found horses, cattle and poultry in a bad condition. He made his way to the house and when his knocks remained unanswered he went in. Here he found the five members of the household confined to their beds with influenza, three of them, according to Farrell, seriously. The inspector administered first-aid and as the result of his tender care, the invalids are now reported out of danger.

MURRAY INQUEST IS POSTPONED

Crown Attorney Is Unable to be Present

Friends and Relatives of Dead Man Crowd the Council Chamber in Stirling—Hearing Is Postponed Until Friday, January 11.

JURY WANTED TO HAVE INQUEST AT SPRINGBROOK, DECEASED'S AUCTION SALE CALLED FOR FRIDAY

STIRLING, January 5 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Friends and relatives crowded the Council Chamber of the village of Stirling last night to hear the story of the circumstances surrounding the death of Morley Murray and the burning of his barn, only to be told that there would be no hearing since the Crown Attorney was unable to be present, and that the evidence would not be taken till two o'clock on the afternoon of Friday, January 11, in the same place.

The Council Chamber took on a different aspect than is usually the case. Seated on the raised platform was Dr. H. H. Alger, coroner, with Provincial Officer Hammer of Belleville at his left. Around the Council table the members of the jury were seated. The only other persons who were so fortunate as to be afforded seats were a few women friends and relatives of the deceased. All others were forced to remain standing and were fortunate in being thus accommodated. There was not a square inch of floor space unoccupied. Even the stairway leading to the floor above was densely packed with eager spectators. Men crowded about the furnace in one corner of the room. Everywhere were people anxious to hear whatever there was to be said.

One week ago on the afternoon of December 28 the remains were located in the smouldering ruins of the barn. A jury of nine men was immediately empanelled to view them, and the burial permit issuer, upon identification by Melville Fitzgerald, of Springbrook, a brother-in-law of the deceased. The adjourned hearing was set for eight o'clock last night. Men fresh from their farm work still in their overalls and heavy boots, formed a large portion of the crowd of spectators. It is safe to say that they were in the majority, and that they were friends and acquaintances of the deceased. A dead silence fell over the densely crowded room as the coroner rose to speak following the formal opening by the Provincial Constable.

Unwise to Go On.

As briefly as possible, Dr. Alger informed the jury that Crown Attorney B. C. Donan, Belleville, was unable to be present, and that since the case was considered an important one, it would be unwise to take any evidence during his absence. The Crown had asked that the hearing be adjourned for one week, and suggested the hour of two o'clock next Friday afternoon. The hour was suitable to the jurors, but they requested that the hearing be in Springbrook, since it was a closer centre for them. After some discussion of the matter, it was decided that the next hearing would be in Stirling at the same place. Another objection was the fact that the advertising matter for the sale of the property of the deceased had been made for the same day. It was later learned that the bills had not yet left the hands of the printer, and the date of the sale will be changed to Thursday, January 10, at one o'clock in the afternoon.

Just what facts are liable to be brought to light by the evidence was impossible to learn. But it was stated officially that the department considers the case as one of importance, and is not satisfied with the information at hand. It is believed that a thorough investigation is being carried out by officials, and some interesting evidence is expected. At the present time there have been nine witnesses subpoened.

Wheat Grown In Fields During Month Of February

In that famous year, 1877, in which the weather was so mild that an excursion was taken down the river and which rivals in many ways the warm weather that has prevailed so far this winter, it is reported that the wheat was three inches high in the second week in February. But shortly later it froze solidly and a real winter set in killing all the tender shoots that had sprung into growth owing to the bright sunshine.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5.—(Canadian Press.)—Provincial health officials at Queen's Park here were able to report some abatement last night in the influenza situation throughout the province.

Dr. W. J. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health, stated, that from reports received during the day it was evident that there had been some "let-down" in the number of fresh cases, but warned the public against "undue optimism" as the severity of existing cases had, if anything, increased.

Seventeen Year Old High School Student Kills Caller At Door and Then Commits Suicide

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 5.—(Canadian Press).—A 17 year old high school boy, without apparent motive, shot and killed a man whom he called to the door of his home early today and then committed suicide. The boy, Orrin H. Hoover, son of Clayton Hoover, a farmer near here, went to the home of Joe. Skablankas, 38, just outside the city limits. To a query of "Who's there?" the boy thrust his fist through the glass of the door. Mrs. Skablankas opened the door and the boy stepped into the room.

"Why don't that man say something" Hoover asked and pointed at Skablankas, standing behind his wife.

Without further warning he pulled a gun from his pocket and fired killing Skablankas almost instantly. Then without a word he placed the gun against his own head and again fired.

HEALTH UNIT SUBSIDIES ARE BEING PLANNED

Federal Department of Health Considers Establishing Centres in Each Province

ADMINISTERED LOCALLY.

Financial Aid Will Be Forthcoming From Dominion Treasury.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 5.—(Canadian Press.) — Establishment of health units at various points in each province of the Dominion is under consideration, Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Pensions and National Health, stated last night. Discussions had taken place, Dr. King stated, between Dominion and several provincial health authorities in the matter. The proposal under contempaltion would involve payment of funds from the Dominion Exchequer towards the cost of these units, which woud operate under the health department of the governments of the several provinces. The amount of such subsidies, Dr. King said, had not been determined tentatively or otherwise, as yet.

Location of the suggested health unit throughout Canada, Dr. King declared, had nothing whatsoever to do in any manner, shape or form, with the prevailing influenza epidemic. Cases of influenza, Dr. King stated, were matters entirely to be dealt with by provincial and local authorities.

YOUTH FACES MURDER CHARGE

Winnipeg Prisoner is Charged With Shooting Druggist On December 27.

OTHER CHARGES.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Eddie Vanderlip, 22-year-old local youth, along with Carl McGee, slain gunman, last night was held responsible for the death of S. Digby Poyntz, local druggist, shot to death during an attempted hold-up on his store here on the night of Dec. 27. A verdict naming Vanderlip and McGee as the bandits who killed the pioneer druggist was delivered by a coroner's jury following an inquest held at central police headquarters.

Vanderlip was arrested Saturday night last and McGee was killed on Sunday night during a gun battle with detectives, in which he wounded Sergeant of Detectives Charles McIvor.

During the inquest it was testified that young Vanderlip, following the murder of Poyntz, had contemplated suicide, but a pal of his had taken a gun away from him.

Vanderlip already has been charged with the murder of Poyntz, and also with the robbery of several other drug stores in the city.

PROPER FERTILIZER INCREASES YIELDS

In One Experiment Alone There Was a Sixty Per Cent Gain, Declares Dr. Harcourt.

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Crop yields have been increased "amasingly" by the use of proper fertilizer, said Dr. Robert Harcourt, of the Chemistry Department of the Ontario Agricultural College, in discussing the use of chemical fertilizer, at the concluding session of the "better seed" conference, here yesterday.

Dr. Harcourt said that in one experiment alone, there had been a 60 per cent. gain in the fertilized crop over the unfertilized crop. This gain, he continued, was not only shown in the season in which the fertilizer had been applied, but for several seasons following. There have been "striking" results from the use of nitrogent, even in pastures, he declared.

UNITED STATES TOURISTS ATE 15,000,000 POUNDS OF BUTTER

Dominion Dairy Commission Addresses Annual Meeting of Eastern Ontario Dairymen.

QUALITY IS SUPERIOR.

Canadian Cheese During Past Year Commanded Higher Price On English Market.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Jan. 5.—(Canadian Press.)— That United States' tourists consumed dairy products to the equivalent of nearly 15,000,000 pounds of butter while in Canada during 1928 was the statement of Dr. J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner, addressing the convention of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario here yesterday.

The improvement of Canadian cheese through grading and the higher prices obtained on the world markets were emphasized by the speaker.

"We have the solid fact," he said, "that Canadan cheese received during the past year a substantial premium of over one cent per pound over all competitors. This gave the 60,000 patrons of cheese factories an average premium of something like $30 each for the season.

"But this $2,000, which the cheese producers received tells only a part of the story. The price of cheese affects the general price level of all milk and milk products sold in Canada. It is a conservative estimate that the milk producers of Canada received at least $10,000,000 last year because of the superior quality."

According to grading returns there was more improvement in 1928 than in any year since grading was inaugurated.

"In this connection," he continued, "I should like to point out that it is not true, as is sometimes said, that New Zealand cheese has supplanted Canadian cheese on the British market. No cheese can supplant the Canadian so long as the quality is superior"

Officers Elected.

J. F. Gibbons, Renfrew, was elected president of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association at the final session of their 52nd annual convention here yesterday.

George H. Barr, Director of Dairying for Ontario, addressed the members of the convention on the necessity of school courses for cheese makers in order to obtain a higher grade of cheese.

CABINET PLANS NEXT SESSION

Estimates Are Expected To Be Tabled Early By Heads of Departments.

APPOINTMENTS COMING.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 5.—(By the Canadian Press).—Another sitting of the cabinet took place yesterday afternoon and from now on there will be three meetings a week. As the opening day of the session approaches, this number may be increased until the ministers are meeting every day excepting Sunday. The government, it is understood is anxious to have plenty of work ready so that there will be no delay in getting down to business when once the debate on the address is concluded.

Estimates will be probably be tabled early in the session, and it seems probable that the Minister of Finance will bring down his budget reasonally soon after the members assemble. In view of the intimation from across the line that tariffs against certain Canadian products are to be increased, interest in the proposals of the Minister this year will be keen.

Thursday's meeting of the cabinet brought no announcement of further appointments. Dr. J. D. McLean, former Premier of British Columbia, will be appointed Commissioner in charge of the new scheme of farm loans. The constitution of the farm Loan Board provides that the Minister of Finance shall be chairman of the Board, with a permanent commissioner and two part-time commissioners making up the rest of the organization. Dr. MacLean will be the commissioner.

The appointment of a Minister to Tokyo is pending, and it seems probable that the selection will be made soon.

Whether or not the government will fill the vacancy on the tariff advisory board in the near future is problematical, but the selection will probably be made from Western Canada. There is also a vacancy on the Board of Railway Commissioners, and two in the Senate.

HEIRS WANT TO SEE RESULTS

Baker Investigator To Be Paid in Future On Commission Basis.

REVISION IN FEES.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press). — Notwithstanding the fact that their leader, William Baker, is serving one year in jail for the theft of $40,000, 500 so-called Baker heirs gathered at a meeting here last night to adjust an arrangement whereby Aaron Seligsohn of Pittsburgh, who was to receive $300,000 as special investigator of cases, will be paid 10 per cent. of whatever he recovers.

The Pittsburgh man was retained as a special investigator of estates from which members of the various heirs' associations, headed by Baker, were supposed to benefit. A revision in the present rate of fees was also made. Fees which were formerly a dollar a month are now three dollars a year.

The meeting was held behind closed doors.

CANADA FOR MINERS URGED BY LECTURES

Labor Minister Has Movies and Travelling Exhibits in Welsh Areas.

BISHOP AUCKLAND, Durham, January 5. — By lectures, movies, and travelling exhibitions throughout the distressed mining areas, the British Ministry of Labor is running a campaign of migration to Canada.

There is one such exhibition now in Bishop Auckland. It is a store in which the window is filled with sheaves of Canadian barley and oats, with pictures of a Canadian farm group and young emigrants westward bound. The poster tells that 14,000 farm laborers are wanted in Canada, some with experience and some without, of good physique and used to manual labor.

"Here's a fine chance," it says.

The aim, it is explained, is to stimulate migration in the coming spring. It is not expected to move men in the winter months.

Investigation at the employment exchanges which organize migration campaigns shows a steady but not heavy flow of inquiries. Utterly destitute as thousands are in the neighborhood, the miners are hard to move. The campaign is particularly directed at single young men.

The British Government's offer of free training in agricultural work and free passages to Canada for youths under 19 is widely advertised, but as the scheme has only been in operation a few weeks, its results are not yet apparent.

An exhibition of Canadian films, with lectures on the advantages of Canada, is now being organized for Witton Park, a few miles from here, where distress is more obvious than in any other mining village in Durham.

WAGE REDUCTION IN SOUTH WALES

Must Be a General Increase in Production, Declares Premier.

SYDNEY, Australia, January 4. — Canadian Press. — Wages must inevitably be reduced throughout New South Wales unless there is a general increase in production, according to a warning uttered by Premier Bavin in a recent address here.

"Unless we call a halt somewhere," he said, "there is going to be a very serious reduction in the standard of living in the country.

"Unless the people realize what is happening here, there must inevitably be a reduction in real wages. The only thing that can prevent that disaster is increased production. Surely the people must recognize what is going on. The standard of living cannot be maintained if the production per head is reduced.

"You may keep wages up nominally by various means—but wages are worth simply what they will buy. If the cost of commodities rises, wages are less. Nothing that the government can do can prevent this happening. It is up to the workers to realize the position and attack the problem. They must do so in co-operation with their employers—and they must do it soon.

"If they cannot recognize the position, and act accordingly, then the position of the worker is absolutely hopeless."

ABSENT; UPSETS COURT.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. — Court procedure was upset and a liquor trial was postponed here when one of the jurors failed to appear, and the resultant search failed to locate him. The last day he was at court was the day on which, his landlady says, he disappeared with his belongings.

WHAT'LL THEY DO NEXT?

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 5.—Another of that legion of fathers, who cannot understand their sons, lodged a complaint at police headquarters that his son, 20, had phoned from a nearby town that he was trading his auto for an airplane. But the youth beat the cops and then as proof flew over his home and waved at the glowering pater.

You will find many things in the Classified Ads. of The Examiner.

MY good friend, John Plain, came to see me a few days ago to talk over church matters. When we had dealt with the business which had brought him to the manse, I asked him how Bill Sykes LeClaire and Mike the dog were getting on. In reply to my question, he said: "Poor Bill! In some respects he is one of the most remarkable men I have ever met. Certainly I have never met one more interesting. At times I think he is just about as near being a perfect combination of contradictions as anything I have ever seen. I have heard as much sound philosophy at his lips during these last few days as you would have had reason to expect in a full term on some university bench. With all his faults, I love him.

MAN AND DOG AGAIN.

"The other night I overheard another conversation which he was carrying on with his dog. He did not seem to know that I was within hearing distance. I don't know that it would have made any difference if he had known. I'll give it to you as near the way that he gave it to the dog as ever it is possible to do:

"'But, Mike, since we heard that strident exhorter, on the streets of Denver, changing rags into garments of purple in the coming socialist commonwealth, I have been thinking a thing or two. That is a funny thing for a tramp to do—to think—but I sure have. Our condition is bad enough, God knows. But whose fault is it? Not yours, Mike; certainly not. You have always done everything any decent dog could do to better our condition, and you have succeeded a great many times. You've been faithful, you've been optimistic and patient, and you've tried, in your silent dog-talking way, to inspire and encourage, and make life companionable and bearable; no question about that. So, Mike, you are excused, your bill of health is clean, your grade 100 plus. Well, then, is it in my stars that we are homeless, and poor, and despised, and tossed about? Is it in the social and economic conditions in which we are submerged that we are mostly meatless, breadless, penniless, and on the bum? Was that agitator on the street correct, when he blamed everybody but the poor, for being poor? I am afraid not. I am afraid it is not in our stars, nor in existing unequal economic conditions, Mike, but in me that we are the underpups in the tangle.

A DIFFERENCE IN DOGS.

"'I hear these street yawpers prate of the inequalities of life, and I know every one of them is dead wrong. So do you. I watched you and the farmer's dog chase that hare the other day. You caught the hare because you were the faster dog. I saw you and the hunter's dog tracking a wolf. You did it best because you had the keener sense of smell. I saw that big Newfoundland jump on you in Omaha last spring; you whipped him to a frazzle, before the crowd could circle around to watch the contest, because you understood more fully the science of the game. No, no, Mike, it is not because of environment, nor in the twist of economic conditions, that one loses and the other wins. The secret lies in the spirit and quality of the dog.

ROBERT SQUEEZE.

"'Robert Squeeze and I were boys together, of the same age; we left school together; we learned our trade together; we received the same wages, and worked for the same house; he put his surplus in the Building and Loan, and I put mine in the booze joint and places of amusement. He went to night school, to improve his mind, and prepare for a better trade; I spent my evenings at the 'Poor Man's Clubs'—the saloon. He now has a home, a happy family—money in the bank—is honored and respected; I am a hobo, hungry and dead broke. Again, it is not economic conditions, Mike; it is individual initiative. It is the temper, the mettle, the quality, the moral stamina of the man.

"'Everyone has an equal chance in this glorious free country of ours, Mike, and if he does not win something besides poverty, and misery, and hunger, it is because he is a dreamer, a derelict, or blind to his opportunities. I have kicked on the inequalities of conditions till my toes were sore, but when sane, I always saw that the merchant who delivers the goods gets the trade. The pig that runs the swiftest gets the slop; and the man who watches where he hits, instead of watching the clock, gets the maximum check. That's as sure as justice—as sure as that three and three make six, and as right as right can be.

GETTING IT IN THE NECK.

"'There always have been inequalities of life. There always will be. Even in the 'coming brotherhood'—the beneficent 'social commonwealth'—Mike, there must be hewers of wood and drawers of water. Some men will have to clean cess-pools; others empty and scrub cuspidors. Reckon there will be then, as there are now, and always have been, plenty of men just of the right size and temper for the job; and pay checks, then, as now, will size up according to the capacity of the worker and the quality of the work. Give an ambitious chap a job and grade his pay according to the character, quality and volume of the work done, and the chances are he will naturally fill his position so full that he will run over into something better.

"'That method will naturally inspire greatness and put a premium on efficiency and progress. But introduce a system under which every man, regardless of capacity and efficiency, is to work the same number of hours, drop his tools on the exact tick of the clock, or be fined, and receive precisely the same wage, and that minute you can employ the poet laureate to write the requiem of a decaying civilization.

"'Place two men side by side at the bench. Give them the same class of work and the same tools. Place a premium on the quality and volume of the output. If the right mettle is in Jones he will out-strip Smith. The company wins and Jones goes higher. A three-minute horse stays in the three-minute class. 'A runt always sucks the hind teat,' and a drone makes no honey; his destiny is to get it in the neck.

WHY SOME GO DOWN.

"'I worked with a lackey in a railroad shop once. We (the union) fined him for working over hours without pay, showing the boss the correct method of manipulating an intricate machine. He paid the fine all right, and no complaint. He was dead game. But, Mike, he is now superintendent of the system, and—I am a hobo. It's tough on me, but it's a square deal. The lackey of ten years ago, who is a lackey still, has his vision warped. Did it by always keeping his eyes on the clock and on the boss at the same time. The fact that men, with no better trade than I have, are forging ahead all the time; the fact that there are poor men who won't stay down, and that conditions cannot keep down; and the further fact that ability and efficiency are recognized and decently treated, at all times, and everywhere, is an unanswerable argument why the master of as good a dog as you are, ought to be a better man than I am. I am not down because I could not stay up, but because I would not.

"'The man who can step three feet at a time and refuses to step more than two, has no call to blame the procession when he falls behind; and he is an imbecile to sit down and cry, or limp off and get drunk, because it won't wait.'"

John told me that there was much more Bill said to Mike that would have to be left for another visit when he would be glad to pass it on to me, seeing I had got so interested in this remarkable pair.

The Minister Remarks—

—You may embrace a lady when the orchestra is playing a fox trot, but try it when the music has ceased and you may be thrown out on the street! Wherein lies the difference?

—Some women are dressed with a minimum of material and a maximum of expense.

—There is something far wrong with a world where there is so much of everything for some people and so little for others.

—To some people conversation is nothing more than a convenient vehicle for making bargains.

—There is a smug complacency into which some people have settled down and dug themselves in which is one of the most deadly delusions of our day.

—A. F.

Psychologists And Sin

THERE are some modern psychologists who are writing about sin itself as being only the act of the soul in reaching out after God. Such talk is utterly insane. It is stupid foolishness. Sin is turning away from God, and not reaching after Him. It is violating one's own sense of right and duty. Every sin is an act of degeneration. The whole world is guilty before its own conscience and God, and knows it. Sin is sin, and cannot be ignored, excused, or explained away. It has to be treated redemptively or not at all. Christianity, of all religions, so deals with sin.—"The Gospel for An Age of Thought," by A. Z. Conrad, Ph.D., D.D.

Friendship

YOUR friend must never be a mere echo of yourself. It ought to be possible to tell the truth to a friend and to receive the truth from him. Flattery—always sickening and exasperating to decent people — is simply fatal to friendship.... The joy of true comradeship is being able to think aloud—to say even foolish and ill-considered things without being misunderstood. Apart from this, friendship is only a frail dream.

IF you wish to be miserable, think about yourself, about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay you; and then to you nothing will be pure. You will spoil everything you touch, you will make misery for yourself out of everything which God sends you: you will be as wretched as you choose.

A Thrifty New Year

NEW YEAR'S DAY has come and gone! And perhaps there are those who are already looking forward to, and planning for, the Easter parade of fine feathers—but, we are still near enough the period of good wishes to remember that one of the most popular was that we might have "A Prosperous New Year."

With such a sentiment practically everybody would be in sympathy. What I find myself wondering is—what's the use of wishing prosperity for some folks since they have already shown that they would not know what to do with it if it came their way?

The habit of thrift is supposed to be characteristic of the Scots, but I have known lots of that much-anecdoted race woefully destitute of that habit or anything resembling it.

What is true of them is true of a great many other people. They are well-intentioned, but that is about as far as they ever get. If they are ever going to acquire this good habit it will be in their second childhood.

Thrift is a virtue. It means better homes and better food, more comfort and enjoyment, less waste and less anxiety. Out of it grow quickened energies, lion-like courage, clearer thought and less hazy hope, a better citizenship, superior education and a better chance in life for the rising generation, and that sterling independence and self-respect that lift aimless, hopeless drudges up to higher levels of manhood and womanhood.

If thrift is to be wholesome and sweet it must be embraced while mind and body are healthy and vigorous. When it comes in second childhood it probably comes because, with appetites and passions burned out, old men find themselves free from temptations, and make the mistake of thinking their condition due to ripened virtue. But thrift, like any other "virtue" forced upon one by nature, is apt to find its environment unhealthy and to curdle into penurious meanness.

I have known men who let their grandmothers starve to death for the sake of a few extra dollars. That is as far removed from real thrift as the north pole is from the south. Thrift is a composite quality. It embraces within itself nearly all of the great virtues. It is only another way of spelling industry, prudence, forethought, self-denial. It has absolutely nothing in common with niggardliness or meanness.

ANSWERS TO LAST WEEK'S QUESTIONS.

1. The first recorded social function to which Jesus took his mother was the wedding in Cana (John 2:1).
2. As a result of the miracle at the wedding in Cana the disciples, and probably Nicodemus, believed in Jesus (John 2:11, 3:2).
3. It was essential that the disciples believe in Jesus, as the proclamation of the Gospel depended upon them (Matt. 28:19-20).
4. Jesus' first revelation of himself as the promised Messiah was to the woman at the well (John 4:25-26).
5. Jesus was a real baby; and must have prattled as other babies do; but His first recorded words are at the age of twelve, and read: "How is it that ye sought me? Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" (Luke 2:49).
6. The Scripture declare beyond any doubt whatever that Jesus is co-equal with God (John 5:18-23, Phil. 2:6).

What You Will Find

YOU will find as you look back upon your life that the moments that stand out, the moments when you have really lived, are the moments when you have done things in a spirit of love.

—Henry Drummond.

A fine stretch of rich pasture land bounded by a rapid river. There are mountains in the distance, and near us is a low range of hills, but for the most part the view is of fertile lowlands, well watered by streams all flowing westward whose banks are fringed by oleanders, willows, and other trees.

Through the clear air there comes the sound of very many voices as of a great multitude approaching.

Nor is it only men's voices that we hear, but also the shrill tones of women and of children. I can distinguish, too, the sounds of different kinds of animals, the bleating of sheep, the braying of asses, the deep lowing of cattle—but the neighing of horses is not heard, nor the rattle of chariot wheels.

It must be a mighty multitude indeed to produce such a volume of sound and such motley cries.

I observe now, as the host approaches, a sort of deputation of several persons stepping forth and leaving the rest behind, while at the same time—see—twelve or fourteen men appear from the opposite direction.

The former seem elated and as if they were the bearers of some very triumphant message. But look at the stern face of the man leading the smaller group. Listen to the tones of anger with which he chides them!

They seem to have made some grave mistake, and is it the recollection of some terrible experience in the past which makes them shudder as the old man speaks?

The interest in our Pen Pictures seems to be growing. The key to last week's is to be found in Luke 17:11, etc., and it was discovered by some of our readers before going to press.

The key to the above Pen Picture of Bible History will be found in Numbers. —A. F.

Children's Corner — TELL US A STORY

SOUTHEY tells us that immediately after the battle of Trafalgar, Nelson, having seen that all was as it should be, retired to his cabin and wrote the following prayer: "May the great God whom I worship grant to my country, and for the benefit of Europe in general, a great and glorious victory, and may no misconduct in any one tarnish it, and may humanity after victory be the predominant feature in the British fleet! For myself individually, I commit my life to Him that made me, and may His blessing alight on my endeavours for serving my country faithfully! To Him I resign myself and the just cause which is entrusted to me to defend. Amen, amen, amen."

A Summing Up

MAY we not find comfort in the thought that the suffering about which we cannot talk to any human being is not only known by Christ, but it is also felt by Christ? Is there not comfort also in the thought that, in Christ, we are joined to the great mystical body, and things are rough with us that they may be lighter for others? Every Christian sorrow, however dumb and obscure, wins something, or carries something away from another.

Make room for Christ. The true union is when He takes the place of us, when He is within us, as a second self, a second heart, a second conscience. That is the realisation of the union. But often we are not conscious that the union exists though it is there. Christ lives within us, waking or sleeping, living or dying. Let us make room for Christ, that we may be counted worthy to obtain resurrection from the dead.

—Sir Robertson Nicoll.

Have You Met Such

See How It Works

LET us beware of losing our enthusiasm. Let us ever glory in something, and strive to attain our admiration for all that would ennoble, and our interest in all that would enrich and beautify our life.

PRAYER

O THOU CHRIST, we bless Thee that Thou hast given to those who follow Thee the spirit, not of fear, but of love, of perfect love that casteth out fear. Thou art their lights and their salvation; whom shall they fear? Thou art the strength of their life; of whom shall they be afraid? Our own dread has given birth to misfortune, for we have feared fears and they have come upon us; in darkness we have created visions of horror; in daytime we have dotted the sky with birds of ill-omen; dread of the sorrow, suspicion of men, and a maligning fear of God have possessed the hearts that were made to rest in Thee. Deliver us, we beseech Thee, for to this end art Thou come. Walk by our side, and give us Thy peace for our panic. Be Thou our companion when we enter the valley of shadows, that even there we may fear no evil.

—Presbyterian Preacher.

The Disguises of Sin

THE ancient idolatory was, to a large extent, an effort to give the sanction of religion to animalism; or, perhaps, we might say, to exalt animalism into a religion. Rehoboam followed that line, He ordained priests for the high places, gave the status of respectability and sacredness to licence; for that was what his legislation really meant. "High places" for goats and calves! "Priests" for goats and calves! The glorification of the base and licentious. But in our own times the same experiment is being tried in various quarters, and we, too, need to be on our guard against the sensuality which threatens the higher life of the individual and the race.

We Swagger

ALL life is honeycombed with the silly hypocrisy of keeping up appearances. The world boasts of its mighty achievements, its increasing knowledge, its amazing discoveries, yet all the time it is beset by paralyzing fears—fear of famine, war, revolution, death. Man has developed the world, but he fails strangely to manage himself. We swagger—but we are scared. —F. A. A.

We Are Debtors

THE Christian owes nothing to his corruptions but their crucifixion. "Therefore, brethren, we are debtors; not to the flesh, to live after the flesh." Where God becomes a donor, man becomes a debtor. The debt of sin is mercifully discharged for him, that the debt of service might be willingly discharged by him.

—Anon.

We do dishonor to Christ when we profess to be His people, and yet show in our character, disposition and life things that are unlike Christ.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The election of Dr. J. J. Craig as chairman of the Board of Education for this year is a well-deserved tribute to his ability and recognized willingness to serve.

Dr. Craig's connection with the board has demonstrated his keen interest in all matters coming under the jurisdiction of that body, and the general feeling will be that his colleagues have made no mistake in choosing him for the responsible position of chairman.

In congratulating the new chairman, the services of his immediate predecessor should not be forgotten.

E. Bruce Fowler, chairman for the past two years, has presided over the meetings of the board during a most important period of educational development.

He has worked in season and out for better educational facilities for this city, and his term of office has been marked by a great advance.

Mr. Fowler has been a good executive and a hard working chairman, who deserves well of the public he has served.

GIVE THEM SUPPORT

Peterborough's City Council launches out on a new year of service with Monday's meeting.

There is general confidence that 1929 is to be a year of progress for this city, and Mayor Denne and his Council are animated with the desire to justify this confidence by a noteworthy record of achievement.

Much was done last year, quietly but effectively.

Many small pieces of work were completed, the streets were well maintained, the parks received special attention, and in general the Council succeeded in getting a good deal of value for the money expended.

A similar policy will be the program during 1929, along with a drive for more industries, while the Old Home Week will supply a spectacular and enjoyable feature of the year's activities.

On the eve of their first meeting of the year citizens should wish their representatives in Council every success, and at the same time resolve to co-operate with and assist the Council in every effort aimed at a better city.

Team-work counts in municipal endeavor as it does on the hockey cushion or the football field, and a community that pulls together is a community that grows and prospers.

A RECORD YEAR.

Another proof of Canadian progress and growth during the past year is furnished by the fact that Canada's mineral production in 1928 reached a new record.

The total output of all minerals during the year was $271,000,000, a gain of $23,000,000, or almost 10 per cent. over the production of the previous year.

The best feature about this increase was that it was widely distributed and included all fields usually classified as minerals, metals, non-metals and structural material.

In the case of fifteen different products the output broke all records.

The list reaching new high marks was made up of cadmium, cement, coal, copper, gold, gypsum, lead, lime, natural gas and petroleum, sand and gravel, salt, stone, talc and soapstone, and zinc.

Canada's mineral resources are among our most valuable and promising assets; with wise development there is every ground for optimism that the record pace set last year will be maintained with consequent benefit to our national wealth and prosperity.

AN UNREASONABLE REQUEST.

The coming conference between Canadian and United States officials in regard to the tightening of the present liquor smuggling treaty between the two countries is of much importance, both to Canadians and to their friends to the south.

There are features in connection with the export of Canadian liquor into the United States that are not appreciated by the majority of the people of this country, who are anxious to act as good neighbors.

But there is a limit beyond which Canadians are determined not to go in this matter, and it would seem to be reached in the suggestion that Canada should make United States prohibition law violation an extradictable offence.

The Examiner believes most people on this side of the line would welcome a decision on the part of their Government to refuse customs clearing papers to vessels carrying liquor to United States ports.

But they draw the line at consenting to having acts committed in Canada by Canadian citizens regarded as violation of American laws and extradictable offences.

The place to enforce the Volstead Act is south of the international boundary—not on Canadian soil.

And until there is much stronger evidence than at present is offered of a genuine desire on the part of the United States to enforce its liquor laws, Canadians will refuse to consider seriously such an unreasonable request.

We are in hearty accord with the Manitoba Free Press in its plain statement that "Canadians in Canada can only break Canadian laws, and they can only be answerable to Canadian courts."

NEW YEAR'S EVE.

Government control seems to have come through another exacting test with flying colors. A year ago, it was impossible to accurately gauge the effect that ease of securing alcoholic refreshment would have upon the celebration of the advent of the new year. Nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, it will be recalled, was ushered in on a Sunday and the laws of the land made it compulsory for all places of amusement and "whoopee" to close their doors at midnight. Such restraint was not necessary this year and it is a matter of satisfaction that Hamilton, as a whole, behaved itself. That there would be some intoxicated people seen on the streets was expected; that there were so few is a remarkable tribute to the common sense of the citizens and the efficacy of the liquor control regulation. It was always argued, during prohibition days, that the "thou shalt not" dictum gave intoxicating liquors and attractiveness they had not hitherto possessed. Mr. Ferguson reasoned that by designing a measure of control that would make it easier to secure alcoholic refreshment, he would eliminate much of its appeal and it does seem to be working out along the lines of his theory. Hamilton was remarkably free of drunken orgies on Hallowe'en, Christmas and New Year's, and similar reports are coming in from other cities of the Province. The city and provincial police were on the alert to put the damper on anything untoward on New Year's Eve, and it is significant that there was not one arrest for the offense of being intoxicated while in charge of a motor vehicle. The proprietors of amusement houses, dance halls and restaurants where the youngsters congregated are, too, to be congratulated upon the brand of co-operation they gave the authorities.—Hamilton Spectator.

NO FUEL PROBLEM.

Following an inspection of a coking plant at Ville De Salle, Quebec, a few days ago, Dr. Charles Camsell, chairman of the Dominion Fuel Board, summed up the fuel situation in the Dominion when he said: "We Canadians are to-day becoming independent of the United States in the matter of Pennsylvania anthracite coal." It was only a few years ago that Canada had a very real fuel problem. Recurring strikes in the anthracite fields created a condition in Canada that left the threat of a fuel famine suspended above our heads each winter. We all remember the winter when fuel was so scarce and prices so high that the City Council found it necessary to establish a fuel relief department and dealers had little but inefficient substitutes to offer the public. It was the late P. V. Byrnes, president of the United Gas and Fuel Company, who showed not only Hamilton, but the Dominion, the way out of its fuel troubles. The coking plant erected by Mr. Byrnes in this city, after years of negotiation with the Council, was one of the first of its kind in Canada. Not only did it guarantee an adequate supply of artificial gas of high b.t.u. content to Hamilton, but it made available at a price less than the quotations on anthracite coal a domestic fuel that was a splendid substitute for that imported product. Dr. Camsell has pointed out that in 1923 Canadians used about 200,000 tons of coke, whereas in 1928 the consumption would be 1,000,000 tons. In 1923, Canadians used 4,750,000 tons of United States anthracite, and in 1927 had cut the consumption down to 3,000,000 tons. A further reduction in the amount of anthracite imported is certain to be revealed this year. The difference has been made up by increased supplies of Welsh coal, approximately one-half million tons; the use of an additional quarter-million tons of the cheaper bituminous coal and the added consumption of Canadian-manufactured coke. "We have made a gradual displacement of a high-priced fuel by a fuel which is more in keeping with moderate pocket-books," said Dr. Camsell, "and in addition we are doing more to encourage our own industries, instead of sending our money from the country." It is a matter of satisfaction to Hamiltonians that their city was the cradle of the remarkable new industry, which has made possible the benefits enumerated by the chairman of the Fuel Board.—Hamilton Spectator.

WORKLESS COAL MINERS.

The people of Canada must have been deeply impressed at the Christmas season by the sorrowful story of the workless coal miners in Britain. Their condition was made the subject of charitable appeals to the British people, and on one occaion the Prince of Wales made a plea that must have touched the hearts of all. The truth regarding coal mining conditions in Britain is gradually coming to light as a result of this unemployment. George Hambleton, who was appointed by the Canadian Press recently as special staff correspondent in London, has made a personal investigation concerning the unemployment among the miners of South Wales. In his first dispatch to the newspapers of this country, he gives a most depressing picture of conditions as he found them.

There are more than 200,000 of these miners out of work, and 60 per cent. of the children in the homes of these Welsh villagers are without proper food or clothing. Thus it can be seen that with the approach of winter in these mountainous regions, severe suffering must result unless proper relief is provided. In Glamorgan, in South Wales, more than 38 per cent. of the population is unemployed. In Merthyr Tydfil, with a total population of 82,000, there are 10,000 without work. Vast sums of money, in some cases aggregating $2,500,000, have been advanced to the families of the miners, which they are unable to repay. In the County of Glamorgan just mentioned, it is estimated that 60,000 persons are receiving relief under the Poor Laws, which is totally apart from the unemployment insurance provided by the Government.

The worst feature of these distressing conditions is undoubtedly the sufferings of the women and children. Next to this is the fact that continued unemployment has broken the spirit of the miners and adversely affected their initiative. This, of course, accentuates the problem, as it makes them indifferent even to favorable schemes for migration. The Government has undertaken the difficult and precarious experiment of transferring large numbers of these miners to other centres, in order that they may obtain employment. With this end in view, the Baldwin Government has granted aid to many municipalities in works of construction, on the condition that these unemployed miners should be given work. In the last few years 360,000 of these men have been thus removed to other districts. During four months of the present year 15,000 were transferred to other centres. The problem of unemployment among these miners has become a permanent one, owing to the reduction in the market for coal. Ships are burning oil to a greater degree than ever, and electricity is taking the place of steam. On the whole, the problem of unemployment is the most difficult and inflammable with which the Baldwin Government has to deal.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterborough's jail population has decreased by one—but the jail officials do not seem to find much joy in that fact.

Apparently this Mr. Williams has solved the problem of obtaining automobiles without cost.

And probably that fellow left the county jail without even wishing the officials a happy New Year.

News of Our Own Village

Tues. was New Year's Day in the village and resolutions was broke by many and seals by some.

* * *

Charlie Stapleton, our painstaking sanitary inspector, has been so busy passing out measles placards that he aint hardly had time to send out his New Year's cards.

* * *

"The trouble is", sez the Hall of Wisdom philosopher, "that we'll hafta wait and see how the new councillors and school trustees performs before we'll know whether we only voted ourselfs 1 gas plant or mebbe 2 or 3."

* * *

Flu germs and favors was handed out at most of the New Year's parties here this week, your scribe learns.

* * *

Winter has took on a normal appearance here. The hockey players is busy and Fred Tuggey was a unsuccessful candidate at the village election.

* * *

Sandy MacTavish reports he voted against the Johnson by-law here Tues. on principles. One of them outboard motors used to wake his kids up early every morning last summer and Sandy sez they developed a terrible appetite for their breakfast.

* * *

Stan Lowe spent New Year's running for the village council but he didn't quite make it, owing to 5 others getting more votes. Stan is an old ball player and it aint the 1st time he's been thrown out at 1st base.

* * *

They was considerable whoopee raised in the village New Year's eve, according to one of our young friends. They didn't used to call it that in the old days, preferring a four-lettered word.

* * *

A show called "The Merchant of Venice" played the Opry House here Tues. It was a Italian story, but your scribe hears that the play was written by an Englishman. Anyway it wasn't bad, say we.

* * *

Some of the village talent took part in the entertainment at the main street picture house Mon. night and did pretty well considering they aint used to singing so late in the evening.

* * *

Doc Young, our vigilant health boss, sez two people here has been having a swell holiday. They got the mumps.

* * *

Rollie Denne, our well known Mayor is busy preparing his inaugural address for the town meeting Mon., it being part of his job to start things going with a piece about the year's activities, if any.

* * *

The village school board met this week and reported quite a chunk of money spent during last year. That may be why Doc Moir, 1 of our eminent surgeons, got such a big vote. The folks may be looking to him to cut off some of the expenditure.

* * *

Beg your pardon. This column last week intimated that Ike and Jack McNabb wasn't related. Now that they both got in the boys admit they're cousins. Well they don't seem anything we can do about it.

* * *

The demand for Christmas trees is very slight this week.

A Thought

KNOWLEDGE.

The desire of knowledge is not more natural than is the desire of communicating our knowledge. Even power would be less valued were there no opportunity of showing it to others; it desires half its value from that circumstance. And as to the desire of esteem, it can have no possible gratification but in society. These parts of our constitution, therefore, are evidently intended for social life; and it is not more evident that birds were made for flying, and fishes for swimming, than that man, endowed with a natural desire of power, of esteem, and of knowledge, is made not for the savage and solitary state, but for living in society.

GOD'S MINUTE.

Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father, in the name of our Lord, Jesus Christ.—Eph. 5:20.

But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord, Jesus Christ.—I Cor. 15:57.

Our Heavenly Father, for all Thou hast given and all Thou hast forgiven, we thank Thee. For every gift of nature, and Thy favoring providences, and Thy great salvation through Christ, we thank Thee.

For blessings within us and around us; for everything by which Thou hast brought good and drawn us to Thyself through all our lives and the lives of our kin; for our power of understanding, of loving, of homemaking, of sharing friendships; for the good hope concerning loved ones who have gone from the ways of earth, and for our own expectation of sharing heaven's joy with them through Christ's saving merit—we thank Thee.

Help us, O Father, to live and work with the cheer of a grateful spirit, overcoming all trouble by the patience of hope and the wisdom of love. So may we share the fellowship of all who follow Christ, both near about us and in all the world. Amen.

THE LUCKIEST LADY

— By —

Ruby M. Ayres

THE STORY THUS FAR:

BIDDY SAUNDERS — the Little Flapper—always called her young adopted mother, MARNA PAGET, the Luckiest Lady, for she thought Marna had everything heart could wish—youth, beauty, wealth, and the love of a devoted husband. But Marna was unhappy. She had married without loving GEORGE PAGET, and three months later had met HUGH HUBBARD and given him her heart. He had gone to China, but after years of separation they realize that they love each other as much as ever. As the Little Flapper grows older she realizes something of the situation and worries about it. On a visit home Hugh one night takes Marna into his arms. RENNY MARTIN, who is infatuated with Marna, tells her he has seen this incident. Because she fears him, Marna defends Renny when her husband says he dislikes him, and George becomes jealous of Renny. When time comes for Hugh to return to China Marna's courage gives out. The Little Flapper sees her talking to HARNIGAN, the chauffeur, the night before the boat sails.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

The Little Flapper waited a moment, then she went determinedly forward.

"Harnigan!"

The man started violently and swung round, then he gave an exclamation of dismay.

"You'll be catching your death of cold, miss! What ever was you out here for?"

He snatched up a rug lying close by and came towards her, but Biddy waved him away.

"I'm all right. I can change, and there's no time to lose. Harnigan, did Mrs. Paget order the car for tonight?"

"She did not, miss."

The Little Flapper gave a great sigh of relief.

"Oh, well, then, for tomorrow, perhaps?" she hazarded.

Harnigan had recovered his self-possession.

"The mistress uses the car on most days, as you know, miss," he said firmly.

Biddy frowned.

"I know, but what time did she order it for?" And then, as the man did not reply, she went nearer to him and stamped her foot. "Have you lost your tongue, that you don't answer?" she demanded. "Can't you see that I shouldn't ask you if it wasn't absolutely necessary for me to know? What time did she order the car? Harnigan, why don't you answer?"

Harnigan spoke then, with all the dignity at his command.

"'Twould be degradading, miss, to talk about things that don't concern me."

"But it does concern you—it does!" the Little Flapper insisted, almost in tears. "It concerns us all, Harnigan. I thought you were fond of her——"

Harnigan's wooden face flushed dully, and he ran an agitated hand across the back of his head.

"I beg your pardon, miss. I'm sure, but my duty——"

The Little Flapper went closer to him. She was white, and tears and raindrops were wet on her cheeks.

"If you won't tell me, I shall fetch Mr. Paget, and he'll make you tell!" she said, with a determination that amazed herself; and then, with a burst of passionate earnestness: "Oh, Harnigan, if you just adored someone, and you knew they were going to ruin their lives—she was, I mean—ruin her life, wouldn't you do everything you could to stop them—her, I mean?" Biddy was all muddled up and incoherent, but instinct told her that Harnigan guessed something of the tragedy in Marna's life, and that she had been right when she fancied she saw pity in his wooden face.

There was a moment of profound silence, then Harnigan said, looking away from Biddy's tearful eyes:

"The small car is ordered for half-past eight for the master, miss, and the big car for nine o'clock for the mistress. The master is driving hiself somewhere."

"Both cars ordered?"

Harnigan nodded. He could not trust himself to speak. He felt as if with this betrayal of his mistress' orders he had sunk to the lowest depths of degradation. The Little Flapper said again:

"Both cars! Where can they be going? Harnigan, do you know where they are going?"

"The master told me to put his golf-clubs in the small car, miss."

"Oh!" Biddy gasped. She knew that George Paget had not played golf for months. It was a favorite joke of his that he was getting too old and fat to play.

"And—and the big car?" she faltered.

Harnigan kept his honest eyes averted.

"To go to Southampton, miss," he jerked out.

Biddy choked down the feeling of suffocation in her throat.

"Any—anything else?" she gasped.

"I mentioned luggage, miss, but—but the mistress said she was only taking a suit-case, miss."

"Yes, Harnigan?"

"That's all, miss, except that—that I was not to mention it to—to anyone—not till afterwards, Miss Biddy."

"Oh, Harnigan!"

There was a heartbroken note in the Little Flapper's voice, and Harnigan turned his head, and for a moment they looked at one another in mutual shame and grief.

They both loved Marna, and they both felt that they had betrayed her.

It was Biddy who recovered first.

"You can't go, Harnigan," she whispered. "You know you can't!"

Harnigan flushed in deep distress.

"Not if you say so, miss," he ejaculated.

"I do say so. We must have a puncture—a very bad one."

The ghost of a smile crossed his face.

"There are a couple of new spares, miss. We can't puncture them both. 'Twouldn't be natural."

Biddy was shivering with cold and excitement, and her eyes were feverish.

"Then what can we do?" she demanded fiercely. "You must think of something. You know how to mend cars, Harnigan, so can't you find out how to break them?"

Harnigan's eyes were filled with mortification.

"I've been with Mr. Paget all these years, miss, and nothing's ever happened to the cars just when they was wanted. My record will be ruined for ever, miss."

Biddy found an eloquent reply.

"What does that matter, if nobody's life is ruined?"

Harnigan stared down at the hose-pipe which he was still clutching, and it seemed a long time to the Little Flapper before he spoke.

"Very well, miss; no doubt you know best, miss, but 'twill be degradading, all the same," he added under his breath.

The Little Flapper grabbed his hard hand and squeezed it.

"You're an angel, Harnigan!" she whispered, and fled back to the house before he had time to change his mind.

She was drenched to the skin, but she managed to reach her room unseen and take off her wet clothes; then she slipped on a dressing gown and went in search of Marna.

She was too excited to think coherently; she only felt as if someone had told her that an earthquake was at hand and that she alone could prevent it. Well, she had done what she could, and the rest lay in the hands of Fate.

If she could delay Marna's departure just for a little while, just for a few hours, Hugh Hubbard would have gone, and the danger would be over.

"How can I let her go?" How can I?" Biddy asked herself wildly as she stole across the wide landing to Marna's room.

"It means ruining everyone's life. Marna's and Hugh's and George's as well! Oh, poor darlings, all of them!"

And then the tears came, and would not be controlled, and she ran back to her room, and crept into bed and lay crying in the darkness. For she knew quite well that Marna had reached the end of her tether, and could bear no more. Her very passivity at dinner that night had been more eloquent than any passionate outburst.

* * *

"If they could only all be happy!" Biddy thought wildly, as she pressed her burning face into the cool pillow. "Why aren't things better arranged in life? It will break Marna's heart—and if she goes it will break George's, and they are both such darlings!"

She had almost sobbed herself to sleep when Marna came to the door.

"Biddy! Are you in bed, Biddy?" she asked uncertainly.

"Yes, darling."

Marna came into the room, but to the Little Flapper's infinite relief she did not turn on the light, but groped her way to the bed through the darkness.

"Aren't you well, Biddy? It's so early for you to go to bed."

"I'm rather tired." The Little Flapper found Marna's hand and kissed it. "Sit down and talk to me," she whispered.

"Why didn't you say good night to me, Biddy?"

"Because I knew you'd come and find me, anyway."

There was a little silence, then Marna asked:

"Would you miss me very much if I wasn't here?"

The Little Flapper felt as if someone had squeezed her heart. She knelt up in bed and flung both arms round Marna's neck.

"You know I should!" she answered passionately. "You know you're everything in the world to me. I should just die if you were not here!"

Marna laughed rather sadly.

"We don't die so easily, Biddy."

"But you're not going away, so why talk about it?" the Little Flapper urged She felt that this moment had been given to her so that she might add yet another stone to her poor little wall of defence.

"What would Uncle George do without you? He would break his heart. What would any of us do without you? You're one of those people other people always look up to, and cling to," Biddy said, with breathless eloquence. "Perhaps it's selfish of us. Perhaps we don't consider your happiness as much as we ought to, but——"

Marna unclasped the girl's arms from about her neck; she felt as if they were choking her.

"I've never known what happiness—real happiness really is," she said harshly. "All my life I've never known. It may be my own fault—I dare say it is—but, all the same, it's not fair!"

In the municipal elections held yesterday, seven out of the candidates for council were last year's men and were re-elected, while Messrs. HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SUNDAY, JANUARY 6, 1929.

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Malefic aspects appear to be strong in today's horoscope, according to astrology, which finds in the stars certain menacing influences.

In the morning good luck should attend letter-writing, even though requests for money are interpolated into friendly missives. College students should benefit under this planetary government.

It is a fairly fortunate day for facing one's financial status and for balancing one's accounts. Deficits are supposed to seem less depressing than usual, while this configuration prevails.

The clergy may find congregations inattentive or even critical under this sway of the stars. Women may be less responsive to religious admonition than they were before the new year began.

A London astrologer declares that "the age-old warfare of the churches will assume serious proportions in certain parts of the world and even menace its peace."

Peace moves will be numerous, it is forecast, and Great Britain will be especially intent upon co-operation with the United States.

This is not a propitious time for courtship, and it is well for the Sunday caller to discuss the winter weather this evening, thus avoiding personalities.

It is not a favorable rule under which to visit persons whose good graces are desired. The direction of the stars is likely to bring out the worst instead of the best traits.

Deceit and even falsehood are supposed to be encouraged by this planetary government, which is most threatening in diplomatic affairs.

Since Mars and Saturn rule the Earth during the winter solstice, greed for wealth will continue to be strong, and there will be much corruption discovered in politics and in certain business policies the seers prophesy.

It is Saturn's power that is supposed to threaten central Europe where Mars seems to presage war.

Russia as well as Germany and France are subject to sinister planetary influences that may be exceedingly serious, astrologers announce.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of good luck through elders, and there may be grief as well as joy in this connection.

Children born on this day probably will be high-strung, sensitive, and extremely modest. These subjects of Capricorn are likely to be endowed with fine artistic talents, but they need some one to exploit their genius.

MONDAY, JANUARY 7, 1929

Mingled planetary influences of good and evil distinguish this day, according to astrology, but benefic aspects dominate.

It is a rule under which to make big plans since foresight may be keen and the judgment extraordinarily good.

Farmers may find certain conditions of temporary importance rather discouraging, but they have the forecast of great improvement in their financial affairs.

Labor troubles may threaten at this time, but they will not be serious. The stars indicate that employers will receive planetary aid.

There is a promising sign for all who seek employment today. Both men and women should be successful.

The new year brings to all who have power or wealth the most encouraging prognostications.

Prosperity is to increase, and the year is to be marked by wonderful public gifts from millionaires.

Education is wonderfully fortunate. If the stars are to be trusted, and colleges are to benefit greatly.

Among the young now in universities, the seers declare, are men and women who are to achieve fame and success never previously attained.

Again there is a sign most auspicious for letter-writing, and requests that bills be paid are likely to be favorably answered.

Money matters appear to be lucky while this configuration prevails. It is wise to seek loans or to ask for increased household allowances today.

Writers are supposed to be especially favored under this direction of the stars. It should be an auspicious time to send out manuscripts.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year that is pleasantly eventful. Journeys and new business associations may be expected.

Children born on this day probably will be strongly intellectual, resourceful and well balanced. Diplomats develop under this sign of Capricorn. Women as well as men of super-mentality belong to it.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

LIFE'S VETERANS

You do not scoff at soldiers' scars,
The marks of honorable wars,
Nor look with patronizing eye
When veterans are marching by,
Nor find amusement in the bent
Survivors of a regiment,
Nor think the flags that they have borne
Are things for laughter and for scorn.

Yet every day upon the street
The trembling veterans you meet
Of that unchanged, unending strife,
The battle that the world calls life.
They, too, have fought the fight for you,
Taken the world and brought it through,
And every pleasure you have now
Was paid for by some wrinkled brow.

The wounds they bear are wounds of time,
Yet no less holy or sublime.
He is, who finds some mother fun,
Unworthy of the name of son,
And he who smiles at fathers gray
A traitor in a darker way.
For all you have and all you are
These are the ones who wear the scar.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE LIKE BIOGRAPHY.

(By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.)

Biography is always interesting. And right now it is extremely popular. Recently there is appearing a series of biographies of great men that are among the best sellers.

We like biography because it gives us the intimate facts in the life of a fellow human being. We are interested in making comparisons to see how the great man we read about is like us or different from us. We especially like to dig up a choice morsel of weakness in our hero, some indiscretion which puts him on the same level with the common herd. This gives us a fellow feeling and we see that he is not very far removed from us after all. It is in response to this demand that so many "expose" biographies have flooded the market of late.

Biography is also interesting in that it throws light on the secret of the great man's greatness. We get a thrill out of the quest of trailing him to the place where wisdom may be found.

Knowledge of the intimate facts concerning a person you admire is pleasing because this knowledge makes you a confidant, a close friend. There is no greater mark of true friendship than to tell a person your intimate affairs. This is why we feel hurt when some close friend holds out on us.

It is exhilarating to read the intimate life of a great man. The knowledge makes you a bosom friend. You have a certain degree of exclusiveness in your friendship with a superior person.

Then, too, sheer curiosity plays no small part. You are taken behind the scenes in a good biography and revel in the intimacy of association and slake your thirst for curiosity.

We read biography and enjoy it because it is the very stuff of life, the very experiences that we live to enjoy. And if we can't live that ideal, that thrilling sort of life, we like to experience these things vicariously in reading the record of lives which have achieved our own dreams of what constitutes an interesting career.

PUBLISHERS ARE ENTERING PROTEST

Newspaper Interests in England Object To Second Broadcasting Journal.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Canadian Press—The British Broadcasting Company's announced intention to publish a second weekly journal has aroused interest among newspaper interests who object to this form of competition. The Postmaster-General declined to receive a deputation, so the newspaper proprietors intend approaching Premier Stanley Baldwin himself.

The Broadcasting Company's attitude is that a governmental committee three years ago recommended the publication of a journal to supplement the organization's regular series of educational talks over the microphone for adult listeners. The commission is understood to have also under consideration publication of a series of educational books which will certainly arouse resentment among publishers in this field. The commission is immune from income tax regulations and its ordinary revenue from licenses is collected by the government. Apparently its royal charter endows it with the advantage of advertising its publications without expense, over the microphone. Advertising of trading concerns at present are rigidly barred.

London Stock Exchange Strong For New Year

LONDON, Jan. 5. (Canadian Press) —The London stock exchange carried its condition of steady cheerfulness into the new year. The turnover on the first business day of 1929 was very satisfactory and a fair appreciation in values was registered throughout the week in several sections. British war loan bonds continue well supported though a small reaction among gilt edged issues generally was manifetsed toward the close of the week. Industrial sections displayed exceptional strength, partly on strong support from New York, which has created a noticeable further advance in Mond Nickel and General Electric.

Iron and steel shares showed something of a tendency to relapse for there appear to be abroad some doubt concerning capital reorganizations, more particularly as regards Armstrongs. Home rails showed a tendency to revive. It seems to be accepted there is willingness among the directorate to take definite action toward retrieving the well nigh moribund capacity of these undertakings to earn satisfactory results. The co-ordination of road transport interests with the railways is taken as a step in the right direction although the loss of traffic through highway bus competition is perhaps not so serious as might be imagined, and could easily be made good with a revival of heavy freight traffic.

The government of India this week issued a loan of $50,000,000 in 4 1-2% bonds at 91%, which will be devoted to repayment of bills due in February, and also to purchase of the Burma railways as well as for capital expenditure on Indian railways. The loan will probably be well supported.

The Midland Bank declares a final dividend of 18 per cent for the year, the same as last. Lloyd's Bank declares a dividend of 20 pence on A shares and sixpence on B shares, also the same as last year.

TRADE REPORT

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 5.—(Canadian Press.)— The weekly trade report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association for week ending January 5, 1929, is as follows:

Halifax — Wholesale business is rather quiet, but normal. Retailers report a good volume. Collections fair.

Saint John—The usual slackness is reported by the wholesale trade. Retail trade satisfactory. Collections only fair.

Quebec City— Wholesale groceries very fair. Boots and shoes satisfactory. Hardware is falling off slightly in building material but there is still a good demand for electrical appliances. Retail trade is quieter due to weather conditions, but may be considered good.

Montreal—A slight improvement in sales of wholesale dry goods and boots and shoes. Groceries very busy. Ladies' wear fair, but not yet up to standard. Hardware continues very active. The habit of the French in the Province of Quebec to celebrate the new year with gifts, just as the English celebrate Christmas has had the usual result of keeping retailers throughout the province busier even than during the week preceding Christmas. The exceptionally fine weather has retarded the sales of heavier clothing, but has been welcomed by the building trades all of which continue very busy and there is very little unemployment evident.

Toronto—Wholesale houses are generally quiet, working chiefly on sorting orders and orders for spring delivery. The year closed with an exceptionally good Christmas trade in retail lines. Groceries, fancy goods, radios and confectionery all sold well, but the sale of cold weather goods such as heavy clothing, etc., was retarded by the comparatively mild weather. Collections still continue to be very satisfactory.

Winnipeg.—A normal volume of business is being transacted in all lines of wholesale trade. Retail trade seasonable except in heavier lines of wearing apparel which is considerably backward in comparison with previous years on account of the mild weather that has prevailed in the province. Collections continue satisfactory in most districts. The mild weather in the north has greatly handicapped freighters in hauling supplies to and from the mining districts, more seasonable weather being required to relieve the situation in this respect. Building activities continue active for the season of the year, and very little unemployment is evident.

Regina—Wholesale trade in groceries, dry goods and boots and shoes is quiet, but normal. Hardware fair. Retail trade is fair. Collections generally are fair.

Saskatoon.—A good volume is reported by wholesale groceries, dry goods picking up; hardware, fruit and confectionery good. Boots and shoes improving. Retail trade is rather quiet. Collections fair to slow.

Calgary.—Business in wholesale lines keeping up quite steady, with exception, of course, in heavy clothing lines, which are not making anything like regular volume. Retail business inclined to be spotty, being good in cities but appears to be slightly falling off in the smaller towns. Considerable difficulty being experienced in some districts in making collections.

Edmonton.—Business generally has shown some improvement since the weather has turned colder. Collections remain just fair. The coming of the snow will mean that the tie camps and saw mills in this district, some of which were making arrangements to close down, will not be able to carry on operations.

Vancouver — Manufacturing good. Wholesale dry goods, groceries and gent's furnishings good. All other lines fair. Retail trade generally is good. Collections just fair.

News From th Mines

Through Selloway, Mills & Company

International Nickel.

According to a statement issued by the president following the general meeting Thursday, his company anticipate obtaining ore in the Frood body equal in value to that now being developed in the Frood Extension by Mond. As very high values were had in drilling of the Frood, and as International own the major portion of this tremendous ore body, it is not difficult to visualise it the world's largest mining proposition in the course of a year or so. When the indicated low cost of production is taken into consideration it is just possible the shares may still be conservatively priced.

Moffatt Hall.

The strength in Moffatt Hall yesterday may no doubt be attributed to a report from the north stating that a surface vein giving exceptional values had been uncovered for a length of 100 feet and a width of four feet.

Dome.

While the total production from Dome Mines for 1928 is down slightly from 1927, the figures are most gratifying with admittedly only two years of life several years ago. Much of the production this year has been taken from the greenstone formation, and we believe another two years' supply at present capacity is in sight here. Net profits for 1928, after all expenses, taxes, and depreciation should net $1.50 a share, against dividend requirements of but $1.

Murphy.

Splendid progres sis being made in cross cutting at the 600 feet horizon of Murphy. The crosscut is already in 550 feet on its way to the important ore proven in the new east shaft down to 100 feet. When this cross cut gets under the favorable horizon a raise will be put up to connect with the new shaft. Diamond drilling is proceeding 1050 feet from the shaft or 500 feet east of the last hole. This property appears to have more than an ordinary chance of becoming a mine of proportion, as they have admittedly more ore near the surface than any other Kirkland Lake enterprise.

Crown Reserve.

It transpired at the directors' meeting of Crown, according to a report yesterday, that all the veins expected had been intersected at the lower workings of Crown and that while widths had increased to some extent values were not encouraging. The directors have decided on a definite diamond drilling campaign from the present bottom level in the hope of finding greater concentration in values. At the same time 500 feet at least of lateral work will be done on one of the new levels east of the shaft to explore an area which offers fair possibilities.

Dalhousie.

According to a wire received from our Calgary office, pending results from this company's property, leads them to believe a sharp advance in share value may be expected within the course of the next two or three weeks.

Howey.

It is reported that according to expected results from a mill of 1000 tons daily capacity a profit of more than $3 a ton may be expected from the present indicated grade of ore.. It is extremely difficult to estimate future results from a mine in its early stages, but Howey has the appearance of developing into one of very big tonnage.

Many Prominent Issues in New Year's Business in Demand.

BIG GAINS MADE.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Trading was brisk on the Toronto Stock Market to-day when issues which have played a prominent part in the bull market which began with the new year, were in demand and gains of as much as 12 points were made. The market generally, however, was irregular.

International Nickel continued its concentrated buying and went up to 57, but reacted at the close to 55⅝ for a new loss of ⅝. PRICES IRREGULAR ON MINE MARKET

Noranda and Amulet Suffer Losses At Close of Session.

TORONTO, Jan. 5.— (Canadian Press).—An irregularity which began yesterday following the strong markets of the previous two days, continued on the Standard Mining Exchange today. Noranda closed at 66.00 for a loss of 50 cents. Amulet dropped 20 to 3.35, while Pend Oreille went up 50 at 12.00.

MARKET BREAKS AFTER OPENING

New York Exchange Suffers Setback—Early Gains Wiped Out.

STEEL TONNAGE STATEMENT

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form to-day, selling off sharply after a spirited opening rally. There was nothing in the day's news to explain the selling movement, which was generally described as a natural correction of a top-heavy speculative position. Several early gains of 3 to 15 points were cut down or wiped out and a number of issues sank 1 to 5 points below yesterday's final quotations.

Preliminary estimates of the U. S. steel monthly tonnage statement to be issued next Thursday indicate a gain of between 75,000 and 100,000 tons in December. Announcement of a five for one stock split by A. G. Spalding and brothers was the only important business development of the morning.

After an opening bulge in each stock, Radio and Victor Talking Machine broke sharply on the traditional "selling on the good news" following the announcement of merger terms. Radio opened 15 points higher at 410, and then slumped to 392. Victor Talking Machine converted an early gain of 2½ points into a loss of 4½. Wright Aero dropped from 273 to 265, and Curtiss from 153 to 149.

Corn and Wheat Values Strengthened At Chicago

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 25.— (Canadian Press.)— Corn took a decided upward swing in price early to-day and wheat soon followed. Blizzard conditions over a large part of the west, together with bullish advices about the Argentine corn crop, gave an evident advantage to the buying side of corn. Opening at 1-8 to 3-8 advance, corn afterward scored material further gains Wheat started 1-8 off to 1-4 up, and later rose all around. Oats were firm. Provisions likewise tended upward.

FOUR WEEKS BRIDE HEADS ROBBER GANG

and I went over to the cash register, opened it and took out $19. By that time Jesse had come in with two guns in his hands, and while I backed through the door he kept the proprietor covered."

Agnes grew excited as she recited the narrative. Her naturally rosy cheeks flushed a deeper crimson and her brown eyes sparkled.

"In most of the other holdups I was just a silent partner," she went on. "I stayed in the car while the other boys went into places and held them up. But I was always ready to help them if they needed me."

The other youths, both in their 'teens, were members of the mob, she says. They, too, fell in love with her, but they were afraid to openly declare it because of Jesse.

One night in Auburn, Thomas was particularly brutal and domineering. It was then that Agnes decided to break away from the mob, she says. With Frances Bortz, one of the younger members, she fled to Syracuse and hid in a rooming house. That night police got her.

Agnes was married six weeks ago in Binghamton. The day after the ceremony, her husband went to Syracuse to work. She stayed behind with her mother, who was recovering from a slight illness. Two days later she met Thomas.

But her love has faded as fast as it had bloomed.

"I hate him now," she says fiercely, wrinkling her brows. "I never want to see him again."

As for Thomas he says he was a boob for ever mixing a woman with gun-play. He is facing a string of charges that will probably keep him in jail for life. But he is still as blatant and boastful as ever. He insists that he is a master mind of crime.

No one was more surprised to learn of Agnes' downfall than her neighbors and friends. To them she had always been just a "sweet, little kid." Her family had always been a respected one. Her mother, Mrs. John Kennedy, is prostrated over her daughter's plight.

"I can't understand it," she moans. Neither can Agnes or her husband or the police.

SECOND CAR IS STOLEN BY AUTO THIEF

ing through Oshawa in a stolen car bearing stolen markers from another car and believing that he was headed for Toronto, Chief S. Newhall of the Peterborough Police Department and Provincial Officer H. Thompson arrived here yesterday afternoon and with city police, made a tour of several places where it was thought he might be in hiding. No trace was found of the criminal, however, and the two officers returned, leaving the investigation in the hands of the Toronto Police. Lieut.-Col. Dalton Johnson, governor of the jail, refused any information on the escape, except to say a nofficial investigation would be held. In the meantime the turnkey in charge of the cell block where Parks was locked has not been suspended. "Is this investigation to be public?" he was asked.

"Attorney General Price will decide that. I never had one before."

"Is this the first man to escape since you have been governor?"

"You will have to ask me something easier."

Provincial Police fear that Parks is armed, but could not explain where a pistol would have been obtained, lest it was cached outside for use in just an emergency. Police are confident, however, that Parks will be arrested over the week-end.

Chief Friend of the Oshawa Police said to-day that Parks had been arrested in Oshawa about two weeks ago when he was seen driving a stolen car through the streets. One of the traffic policemen followed Parks for over two miles and then arrested him after a chase along the road on foot.

The prisoner was lodged in the Oshawa jail until officers from Peterborough who had sent out the warning about the stolen car, arrived to take him there for trial.

Alfred Cuddy, Deputy Provincial Police Commissioner, is indirectly in charge of the province-wide search for Parks.

"He is wanted all over the province and we have traced him to Oshawa where he was arrested for his last job," the deputy said. The feeling is that Parks made for the Niagara Peninsula, avoiding Toronto by driving toward the north. This would have carried him across Yonge street at the Jail Farm near Langstaff.

LONDON, Jan. 5. (Special.) — Orders to exercise every precaution were issued to-day to the police throughout Western Ontario in their search for John Parks, alias John D. O'Leary, the 27 year old bandit, who escaped from the Peterborough jail. The provincial police say that in Aylmer and St. Thomas Parks made efforts to secure guns. He was then unarmed but his determined efforts to obtain weapons may have been successful. It is now believed Parks may be a hundred miles from Aylmer or St. Thomas.

Parks left Aylmer last night in a Star six 1927 model, with license No. 26-333L. His criminal record began when he was sent to the Victoria Industrial School in 1911. He escaped from there and after a series of offences was sent in 1920 to Kingston penitentiary for four years. He was paroled on May 8, 1923, and on Aug. 20, 1923, was sent back to Kingston for another four years, for robbery with violence, shop breaking and an automobile theft. In 1928 he was given three months at Woodstock for theft. It is claimed that he also escaped jail on another occasion in Kitchener. He lived for some time around Otterville.

Local Jail Break Planned.

In escaping from the Peterborough county jail, Parks proved himself no ordinary prisoner. He had been placed in a cell on the ground floor, awaiting sentence on a charge of car theft, to which he had pleaded guilty. While in the jail he is believed to have made friends with two hard characters who were released about New Year's time, and they are suspected to have given him outside assistance. He had sawed through four bars, making eight cuts, in his cell door, possibly working on them from time to time during the last three or four days, had pulled himself through the small jagged hole, a feat that has excited the wonder of more than one who has viewed the hole, and then sawed his way through an inch and a half bar at the window of a bathroom, to escape the building. Once out he is believed to have crossed the court yard in a south-westerly direction, stood on a ground floor window sill, and by means of a blanket and iron hook, made from a part of his cell bed, pulled himself to the top story window. From there it would prove an easy matter to pull himself to the roof, cross it, and climb down the verandah of the jail officials' quarters to the ground. Then he had fled the city in Mr. Jackson's car.

It is understood that it is not the practice in any county jails to have a man on guard during the night hours, any more than that the day officials visit the jail and see that the men are in their cells. As he stated yesterday, Jailer Dalton Johnston had done this on the night of the escape.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press). — Foreign exchange steady. Quotations (in cents): Great Britain demand 4.84⅝; Canadian dollars 9-32 of one per cent. discount.

C.S.E.T. Movement Re-Organized At Millbrook

GROUP OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Goodly Number of Members Join Tuxis Square and Trail Rangers.

BOYS TO GIVE ADDRESSES

MILLBROOK, Jan. 5.—(Examiner Correspondence.—The C.S.E.T. movement has been re-organized within the past few weeks, in connection with the United Church Sunday School, both the Tuxis Square and Trail Rangers having been started with a good membership and with the promise that the initial interest and enthusiasm will be sustained and increased in the months ahead.

The credit for the reorganization activities rests largely with the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, and other workers will be enlisted as mentors as the work progresses.

The officers for the Trail Rangers are:—

Chief Ranger—Gerald Todd; subchief—Oswald Martin; tally—Raymond Rowland; sub tally—Jack Stinson; cache—Donald Henry; subcache—Fred Hard.

It is likely that one of the senior boys from the Tuxis Square will be appointed Mentor for the Trail Rangers in the immediate future.

Twelve boys have now been fully initiated into membership in the Trail Rangers, four of these being put through the ceremony at the regular meeting on Wednesday evening. A like number are already enlisted for the Tuxis Square, and there are several others on the waiting list for Initiation.

For the winter months the intellectual and devotional sides of the program will be emphasized, and when weather conditions permit the athletic aspect will receive particular attention.

Badge honors, and public speaking, will come up for special attention at the next meeting, when five of the boys will be given five minutes to address the group on these aspects of C.S.E.T. activities.

The officers of the Tuxis Square are:—

Mentor—Mr. Mumford; praetor—Robert Larmer; sub-praetor—Kenneth Fallis; scriptor— Lawrence Rowland; sub-scriptor—Olver Brock; conptor—Aubrey Todd; sub-compto:—Charlie Larmer; sponsor—Brice Prestove.

Flower Maker Offers Rabbits To Aid Fund

LONDON, Jan. 4 (Canadian Press Cable).—A woman artificial flower maker of London, unable to contribute any money to the Lord Mayor's fund for destitute miners, offered two of her white Angora rabbits, saying they were worth $5 apiece, and if they were auctioned by the Prince of Wales, they would bring ten times as much. A reply was sent her, thanking her for the rabbits, but regretting the Prince was unable to undertake the sale of gifts of this kind. The Prince has substantially stimulated the fund by his personal appeal over the wireless on Christmas Day.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, January 5 (Canadian Press). — Greatly enlarged estimates of Canadian wheat production broke wheat values down yesterday to the lowest level yet this season. According to a report from the Canadian North-West Grain Dealers' Association the 1928 wheat yield of the Canadian Prairie Provinces is 61,000,000 bushels more than was announced in the latest figures given out by the Canadian Government.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 1⅝c to 1⅝c net lower, with corn a shade to ⅛c to ¼c off, oats ⅛c to ¼c down, and provisions varying from 22c decline to a rise of 5c.

In view of the trade report from such an authoritative source as the Grain Dealers' Association indicating that the wheat output in Manitoba, Alberta, and Saskatchewan had reached the huge total of 541,000,000 bushels and that the current official estimate was a radical under-statement, wheat prices here made a rapid descent yesterday. The downward swing of the market began as soon as business opened, and the close was at virtually the day's bottom, with heavy selling meanwhile, in which eastern houses became rather conspicuous. Increasing pressure of Argentine wheat abroad and Liverpool quotations lower than due were contributing bearish factors, and so, too, was knowledge that export demand for wheat from North America lacked volume.

Accelerating yesterday's break in Chicago wheat prices were standing orders to let go of future delivery holdings at various fixed limits, and thus put a stop to losses. These orders were automatically forced into execution as the market went lower and lower. The cumulative bearish effect was but little if any counterbalanced by brisk spread trading which developed toward the last between Chicago and Winnipeg, with the spreads consisting of purchases of wheat future deliveries here against corresponding simultaneous sales at Winnipeg.

News that snow was falling over Kansas and Nebraska was needed for domestic winter wheat acted as a further weight on the market as the day drew to an end.

Corn and oats displayed relative firmness, but averaged lower on account of sympathy with wheat. Some corn export business was in evidence, but the amount was said to be small, and there were assertions of various European offers to cancel previous purchases.

Country offerings of corn showed a little increase.

Provisions inclined downward, faced by announcement of an increase in western stocks both of lard and meats.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Canadian egg markets in general were easy yesterday, with prices working rather lower.

Montreal: Supplies on this egg market are plentiful and Ontario eggs are coming in freely. British Columbia eggs are 1c down on all grades.

Saint John: The condition of this egg market is very unsettled and the movements of eggs are rather erratic. Prices to retailers are: Extras 55-58c; firsts 52-55c; seconds 38-40c.

Halifax: The local egg market is very quiet and inactive, with local receipts increasing. Paying prices as last reported continue high and prices to consumers have a decided effect on the movements of fresh eggs.

Vancouver: There has been no further change in the situation or prices here. Prices to producers are still: Extras 34c; firsts 31c; pullet extras 28c.

Chicago spot is firmer at 34-35c; January refrigerators 25c; February fresh 26¾c.

New York unchanged.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—With the exception of some business worked in barley, the export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday was decidedly dull.

In sympathy with the decline in wheat prices at Winnipeg, local dealers reduced their prices one cent per bushel and are now offering car lots of Manitoba No. 6 wheat at 97c; feed wheat at 93c, while Manitoba feed barley was steady at 74c per bushel.

Only a small volume of business was done in spring and winter wheat flour but prices were unchanged.

The millfeed trade was dull and featureless. A moderate amount of business was done in standard grades of rolled oats and values were firm.

A feature of the egg trade was the easier feeling that developed and prices were reduced two to four cents per dozen. This was attributed to the large receipts and the inactive demand. The receipts weqre 992 cases.

The trade in butter continued active and values were well maintained. The receipts were 14 packages.

The potato market was active and firm. Prince Edward Island whites sold at 84c, Green Mountains at 88c per 90 lbs., in bags, while New Brunswick potatoes were offering at 62½c per 90 lbs., in bulk.

Canadian beans were unchanged at $5.25 to $5.40 per bushel.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, January 5. — Butter on the local market has been steadily absorbed this week, as required and without any material change in prices. Storage holdings of creamery butter reported by the Canadian Produce Association at January 1, stood at 39,696 boxes, against 58,735 boxes a year ago on the same day. Withdrawals from local coolers during December were normal for the season of the year and for holiday requirements. Arrival on track at Toronto of New Zealand butter prior to the Christmas holiday has to date had no marked effect on the local price trend and none is expected. In a wholesale jobbing way dealers have reported a daily range of from 41c to 41½c per pound for No. 1 pasteurized creamery solids with fractionally higher prices obtained for extra fancy butter when urgently required. Similarly prices for New Zealand have been fairly well maintained at domestic levels. The market at this quotable range is not quite as firm as it was a week ago when asking prices for New Zealand were up as high as 42c per pound.

Egg Markets Weak.

Local egg markets continue to be a weak feature of country produce trading. Receipts have been coming steadily all week, accompanied by light shipments of British Columbia fresh grades. The storage statement issued on January 1 showed holdings at Toronto on that day as 14,753 cases, compared with 23,911 cases a year ago. Montreal holdings, however, are higher at the moment, and it is expected that storage eggs held in Canada on the first day of this year will show an increase from 1928.

Ontario eggs are being shipped freely to Montreal markets, which is an indication of how far current production in the Provinces has been stepped up in the last few weeks. Lower prices for all fresh grades and storage eggs will probably bring about a material increase in demand from users. Dealers this week have again cut their prices to country shippers, and are quoting from 45c to 46c per dozen for fresh extras, 35c to 36c for fresh firsts, and 27c to 28c for seconds, delivered, cases returned. Quotations to the retail trade rule at —Fresh extras, loose, 55c to 58c per dozen; fresh firsts, 45c to 46c; and seconds, 34c to 35c.

NEW OFFICERS INSTALLED AT BIG LUNCHEON

the "benign leadership" which had characterized his tenure of office, and of the spirit of cheer and fine discipline which had been the atmosphere of the society during the past year. In seconding this appreciative testimony to the work of Past President John, in which Mrs. John was included as an active assistant, Kiwanian Jack McNabb spoke of the record of the past president as "one hundred per cent. at all meetings."

Past President J. R. Marshall also voiced the thanks of the club to Lieutenant Governor McNabb for the manner in which he had carried out the installation proceedings.

The Mountain of Life

The Rev. Kiwanian William Johnston, who is pastor of one of the United Churches at St. Lambert, Quebec, was the visiting speaker of the evening and he brought to the club a message which will probably linger for many weeks in the memories of those who heard it, so vivid a picture was it of the "Mountain of Life," as he called the existence of the individual.

"We cannot define life in any way," he said. "The minute you begin to define a thing, that minute you begin also to limit it. The physician, the psychologist, the preacher, will each given you a different definition of life, and each will fall short of its real significance. Life is a sort of mountain and along the sides of this mountain are little temples where we live for a certain number of years before moving on to the next abode of the same sort.

"The first temple is the temple of childhood, at the base of the mountain of life. Here we dwell from babyhood until we are about twelve years of age, and here we have an atmosphere which is one of radiant purity.

"Later, we come to the temple of adolescence, where we live for about seven years, until we are nineteen. This is where the great divide comes in life, and here the atmosphere is one of wonder. After it, from nineteen years to about forty-five, comes the temple of romance, and it is in this house that youth sees farthest and where the real love first comes to us.

"From forty-five or fifty years of age, we live until we are about sixty-seven, in the temple of mid-life, where the atmosphere is one of responsibility and where we encounter the heavy family and business cares of life. After that comes the temple of old age, on the western slope of the mountain of life, where we have the atmosphere of retrospection, of reflection, of looking backward. But we must not think that the dwellers here are unhappy. It takes the twilight to bring out the stars and there are many bright and glowing stars in the firmament of this house of life. 'Grow old along with me, the best is yet to be, the last of life for which the first was made. Our times are in His hand, who saith: 'A whole I Planned.' Youth knows but half. Trust God nor be afraid.'

Kiwanis Contributions.

To these temples of life the Kiwanis organizations can contribute much, the speaker asserted. To this temple of childhood, it can give what is needed most there; play. Play is the birthright of every child. The reverend speaker quoted the little story of Cosette and Jean Val Jean, in Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," as an example of the sorrows surrounding the life of many a little child.

To the temple of adolescence comes the call of education and to give every child, as far as possible, a college education, should be the aim of Kiwanis members. "Knowledge is power and ignorance is a terrible foe to progress."

To the temple of youth, the contribution of Kiwanians might be work, which is necessary after the period of play and education. The work which is fitted to every individual should be discovered and that work given to him or her, if possible. Work should have as its aim the viewpoint taken by the workman who was asked by the great Sir Christopher Wren as to his job in the building of St. Paul's.

A previous workman had said he was helping in the quarry and another said he was earning so much a day, but the third workman said he was helping Sir Christopher Wren to build a great cathedral. This was the spirit which made any labor glorious and complete.

For mid-life, when the responsibilities of existence made days of toil almost unbearable at times, and men lost heart under the stress and strain of battling against heavy odds, there was the necessity for the contribution of fellowship, friendship and comradeship, and for old age there was the contribution of rest to weary hands. Here the speaker commended the action of modern governments in providing for the weary hands of aged workers who had been unable to save much from their labors, a chance to rest and reflect in their sunset days.

"And here in this temple of old age you will find many things which have been brought from the temples along the way: a little game which he or she delighted to play as a child, a cherished volume from the temple of adolescence, a piece of work from the temple of youth, a friend or comrade who was met and loved along the way."

"Thus, in your contributions of play, education, work, fellowship, friendship and rest you can put much into this house of life. In this year, you can make a noble and lasting contribution to the sum total of human existence and the record of the years will show what you have done to add to the happiness of those about you."

After the renewed applause had subsided, Kiwanian Jack Marshall rose to voice an appreciation of the address of the speaker, "intellectual, inspiring and worthy."

Musical Program.

The musical program of the evening was very fine, and received much appreciative applause. It included two vocal solos by Mrs. George A. Richmond, wife of Kiwanian Richmond. Mrs. Richmond sang, in high, clear, sweet soprano, "Love's Bargain," and an encore, in "The Sweet Mystery of Life."

Arnold Spencer and Stanley Northrop, playing violins, and Harry Northrop at the piano, were a trio who played with their usual skill and fine rhythmic tone, two numbers, Drdla's "Tarantelle" and its encore, "Angela Mia."

"Smiling" Eddie Jackson, the sweet tenor singer from the Capitol Theatre, was a snappy song leader of the evening, during the dinner hour, and Kiwanian G. F. Liddle contributed his usual excellent accompaniments to the program.

A "wheel of fortune" decided winners of prizes at dinner last evening. Spun by secretary Jack Heron, it brought awards to Mrs. H. Huffman, Mrs. F. H. Dawson, Mrs. E. H. Wood, Mrs. A. Moffat, Mrs. J. Wearing and Miss Gladys Coon.

A special prize, a silver baby spoon was presented to Mrs. F. C. Webber by past president John, in the name of the Club. The particular achievement thus rewarded was the taking of little Jimmy Webber by his parents all the way to the recent Kiwanis Convention at Kingston.

Kiwanian G. F. Liddle, later in the evening, won a special prize in safety razor, and prizes for bridge went to Mrs. F. C. Webber, Mrs. Joseph John, Mrs. J. Comstock, the Rev. Mr. Johnston, W. E. Taylor and J. Comstock.

Boosters for the evening were Kiwanians H. J. Boyle, J. A. Dewart, Charles Elliott and J. Comstock.

Owing to the prevalence of sickness among the members and their families, the attendance was not as large as usual last evening, eighty guests being registered by Mine Host Graham.

Following the dinner and installation of officers, bridge games and dancing were enjoyed, excellent music for the latter being provided by Perdie Mowry and his Collegians.

Guests last evening included Mrs. T. E. Burns of New York City, Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. Reg. H. Turner, Miss Gladys Coon, Miss Barbara Watson, Miss Helen Wright, Miss Margaret Hamilton and Mr. Fred Allen.

RICHARD WESLEY CLARKE

Death removed a prominent and well-known citizen at Welburn, Sask., on Wednesday, January 2, when Richard Wesley Clarke passed away following a few weeks' illness.

Deceased was born in the Methodist parsonage at Athens, Ontario, on November 27, 1858, and was a son of the late Rev. Richard and Mrs. Clarke, one of a family of six boys. His father served a long time in the Methodist ministry and was at one time stationed at Millbrook.

As a member of the firm, Walsh and Clarke, the late Mr. Clarke carried on a business career here for many years, removing to the west to reside permanently after the store occupied here was destroyed by fire.

An untiring worker in connection with the former Methodist church, Mr. Clarke held the position of superintendent of the Sunday School at Millbrook for over twenty-six years, rendering a service, the fruits of which will only be revealed in the world beyond. After his removal to Weyburn, he was elected to the position of Sunday school superintendent in that city also, fulfilling its duties with his usual faithfulness until a little over one year ago when his uncertain health compelled his resignation.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Maggie Orr, of Millbrook; two daughters, Misses Laura and Jessie, at home; and three sons, Watson, Wesley, manager of the Bank of Toronto at Cardinal, Ontario, and Rev. Charles Clarke of the British Columbia Conference. Dr. John Clarke of Midland, and Dr. Adam Clarke of Winnipeg, are brothers.

The death of Mr. Clarke makes the third of the sons of this family to pass away within less than five months; Dr. William Clarke died in Lindsay last August; Dr. S. W. Clarke on November 22, 1928, and now R. W. Clarke on the second day of the new year.

The funeral took place on Friday from his late residence at Weyburn, interment being in the Protestant cemetery of that city.

LINDSAY, Jan. 5.—The "flu" epidemic claimed a well-known citizen yesterday in the person of Thomas Connolly, a pioneer resident of the town. The deceased was a prominent figure on the streets until a few days ago, when he contracted the disease, which later developed into pneumonia. The late Mr. Connolly took a prominent part in the town's activities. He was a member of the council for a number of years, a director of the Central Fair Board, a former member of the Board of Health, Separate School Board, as well as other local organization. He is survived by his wife.

I. N. ACKERMAN

The death of I. N. Ackerman occurred yesterday in Norwood. The funeral will take place from his late residence to-morrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, and interment will be in the Norwood cemetery.

A NEW YEAR'S ANTHEM

The day after Christmas we boys held our meeting as usual, down in the little old clubhouse on the river bank.

It was snowing, and the ground was covered with about an inch of snow already in the morning, when we all gathered for the meeting. Jerry Moore brought his big bob-sled along and wanted us to hurry up and get the meeting finished, so he could take the fellows up on Dobel's Hill to do some coasting.

"The snow will last a long time, so don't be in a hurry," said our captain. "We've got some business to talk over today. How about it, Hawkins?"

"Yeah," I said, getting up. "we made a promise, and we've got to keep it. We've got to find that kid who is called little Gil, and take him back to his old Daddy Joe."

"Find him?" repeated Jerry. "Why, didn't we find him? On Christmas Eve, didn't we trail him to that little house in the tree-top? Sure! All right —all you have to do, Hawkins, is to go there and get him. And for goodness sake, take him to his old Daddy Joe and keep our promise, and then let's have no more to do with either of 'em."

"We ought to give him a good lickin', by rights," said our captain, "for tearing down our Christmas decorations—"

"And spilling my ink bottle on my desk," I said.

"Well," says Jerry, "he's too little for me to tackle. So you fellows pick out somebody, and the rest of us will go coasting on my bobsled."

I knew who would be picked out. I was that somebody who was picked out to get Little Gil and turn him over to the poor old tramp, who called himself Daddy Joe, and who had come to our clubhouse looking for his boy, whom he called Little Gil. But I was a little bigger than Little Gil, too, and I felt like I didn't want to give him any licking. So I called Perry Stokes over and asked him if he would go with me.

"With pleasure, sir," he says, smiling; "I shan't forget how he tracked up this clubhouse floor with his muddy boots, after I had cleaned it out. And the shameful way he swung on our ropes of holly and jumped through our Christmas wreaths—I should like to punish him for that, sir, to teach him a lesson, sir."

"You're elected," I said, with a grin. "Come on, I'll keep you company on the way."

But we were not to see Little Gil, that day. We went through the woods, making new tracks through the snow. New tracks! Not a soul had been this way to leave a footprint. Even up to the very tree itself, in which was perched a little rough cabin that Little Gil had built for himself in the tree-top, there was not a sign of a shoe print. The rope ladder hung down from the tree house, but it, too, was covered with snow, and I knew it had not been disturbed. For a moment I stood looking at it, and then sudden'y my heart gave a leap! Suppose Little Gil had not been out of this tree house since Christmas Eve—suppose something had happened to him—

Boy! I was going up that rope ladder in a hurry now, and the snow flew from the ropes as I went. In a jiffy I was at the top and stepped off the ladder onto the little anding in front of the door—I opened the door, quickly—

There was no one there. The tree house was empty.

* * *

For three days we watched that tree house. We watched the whole river bank, and studied every new footprint in the snow. But we did not see a trace of Little Gil. I believed he had gone away from the old river bank. On Saturday morning we all started out again, in different directions, bent on finding a trail somewhere. Harold, the twin, boasted that before the day was over, he would know where Little Gil was hiding, or else tell us where the little beggar had gone. Harold can do things, and the other boys believed him.

"Once I captured Stoner's Boy for you fellows," he said, "when none of you could get near him. Now I'll show you how to get this little bum for you."

He started away, then, to find him. But he didn't succeed. No. The day passed and evening came. We came down again to have our singing practice, to get ready for New Yea 's Eve which we always celebr te in our clubhouse. And we went home again that ni ht, without being one bit wiser as to where Li tle Gil was, or what had happened to e use him to stay away from his little home up in the tr e-top.

The day before New Year's we held a meeting e rly in the morning. When our captain asked me to report whether or not I had found Little Gil, I to'd .m the truth—nobody had een able to find he least t ace o h m.

"Well," said Jerry Moore, roughly, "we should a' taken him when we had the chance—that night when we heard him singing' up in the tree house—"

"But it was Christmas Eve," said Perry Stokes, softly; "and he was singing, sir—you'll say yourself that you did not feel like breaking in on his lonely Christmas Eve, up there in that little tree house—"

"Soft-hearted!" exclaimed Jerry Moore. "That's th e trouble with all o you guys. You can't stand to see anything that makes you eel sorry for a fellow. What's the use o' feeling sorry for a fellow who ought to get a lickin' for everything he's done around this old river bank? First thing you know, some kid will come around here and make you all sorry—"

"Sorry for having helped him out?" asked Shadow Loomis, who had been quietly watching Jerry. "Say, boy, maybe you never had the need of a friend very badly. That poor little kid is all by himself in this world. You've got a good daddy and mammy to take care of you. You don't know what it is—to be like Little Gil."

"Do you know what it is?" asked Jerry, turning upon Shadow. "Were you ever l ke that—"

"No," answered Shadow, quickly, looking straight into Jerry's big eyes; "but I had a brother—you ain't forgot him—they called him the Rolling Stone —John was his name—"

And then he stopped and gazed into the open door of the stove, from which a ruddy glow shone upon his good looking face. But that good looking face was very sad; and Jerry was sorry he had spoken so. We all knew, Knew that Shadow was thinking of his brother who had died in the Cliff Cave —that rolling stone of a brother who could not be like other boys, and who ran away from home and forgot his people—and came at last to a time when, not so long ago, he had needed a friend.

"Perhaps," Shadow was talking to himself as he gazed into the fire, "I should have been more soft-hearted to John. He was my brother. But I was ashamed of him, because he was a rolling stone. All he needed was one good friend. Maybe Little Gil—for all we know—maybe he needs one good friend. And one good friend is all a fellow needs—"

And Shadow's voice died away into silence and nobody spoke. Silently, one by one, they left and went out into the snow to play. Our captain sat still at the head of the table, forgetting to raise the wooden hammer to sound the blow that would mean the meeting was ended. And he, too, at last got up and came with Harold, Perry and me, into my little writing room, leaving Shadow sitting there before the stove, staring into the ruddy glow, and thinking—thinking—

I knew what he was thinking about. Suppose this Little Gil was now in the same fix that his brother John, whom we had called the Rolling Stone, had found himself that time, when he needed only one friend to save his life, and couldn't find that one friend!

* * *

And it was written in the book of The Things That Are To Be that Shadow was to be the one that found Little Gil. He waited for a chance to talk to me alone. It was near the end of the afternoon, when all the boys were coming in from the sled track, drying their wet clothes in front of the stove, and chattering like a bunch of monkeys, when Shadow came into my writing room, where I had just been putting into my book the things I've told you above.

"I've got him," he said, in a low voice. "In the dug-out, on Burney's Field. He doesn't know I've trailed him. But it was by another set of footprints in the snow—a man's footprints."

"Old Daddy Joe!" I exclaimed, happy in the thought that the two had been brought together again and we would be relieved of our promise to bring about that very thing.

But Shadow was shaking his head, slowly.

"No," he said, "it was a stranger man—much more ragged than Old Daddy Joe—and worse, perhaps, if that could be. But even as I found him—"

"Waste no more words," I whispered; "let's get out of here before the others know, and we will see what can be done about it."

Together we slipped out. They would not miss us. We would all meet again later in the evening, to celebrate our New Year's Eve in the clubhouse. I followed Shadow down to the river. His little old home-made motor boat was at the landing. The river had a crust of ice on the edges that none of us would have wanted to risk a canoe upon, but Shadow's little old propeller could cut that ice like anything. We lost no time in crossing. Shadow led the way from the Pelham landing to the dug-out on Burney's field.

That old dug-out! How vividly it stood out in my memory! Many exciting times we had had in it, in days gone by, and I thought of many other boys whom we had traced into it's subterranean hiding places! Even Ching Toy, the little Chinese boy, came into my mind, as I went down those stone flags that made the steps to the underground doorway—and Harkinson, the leader of the Red Runners—I seemed to expect to see his ghost standing guard there—

* * *

"Hold on, Hawkins! Don't go too fast. No use to frighten the poor kid."

I paused, as Shadow's voice came to me, and descended more slowly. I shoved upon the door—

"Someone at the door, Jacobi," came a shrill voice from the darkness beyond. "See who it is, Jacobi. I expect you to do as I say, Jacobi. You hear me, Jacobi? Where the dickens are you, Jacobi?"

"Here I am," grow'ed another voice. But it was an old voice, and a surly one. "Someone at the door, you say? So much the worse for us, youngster. Supposin' it's him?"

"No matter, who! See who it is!"

A light flared up—a match was applied to a wick of one of the old oil lamps that had hung in this dug-out for years now, and I saw an ugly old fellow coming forward, the lamp held above his head—

"I'm Seckatary Hawkins!" I called out, before he could ask me anything. "I've come to see Little Gil—I want to talk to him—that's all—nothing else, at all."

Before the old man could speak, here came again that shrill voice—

"Show him in, Jacobi, show him in. I know him. Seckatary Hawkins—I want him to come in here, Jacobi!"

* * *

The old Jacobi made a sweeping bow with the lantern marking the curve of his arm. I went down the two remaining steps, Shadow following at my heels. The old tattered man who was called Jacobi went on ahead of us. He held his lantern above a rudely constructed bed, on which lay Little Gil. The boy seemed to be in a high fever. He raised himself upon one elbow and held out a hand to me—

"Old Seckatary Hawkins!" he said. "I'm glad to see you, I am! And this—"

"My old friend, Shadow Loomis," I said, with a wave toward Shadow, who was close behind me.

"I'm glad to know Shadow Loomis, for sure," said Little Gil. He reached a boney arm out of his coverlets, and Shadow grasped his hand and pressed it. "You're a friend of Seckatary Hawkins, that's why I like you, Shadow Loomis," he said.

"I wanted to come," said Shadow, softly, "when I knew that Seck had made up his mind to pay you a visit. You see, I felt that I ought to know you."

"That's right!" exclaimed Little Gil, and now he was half sitting up, his eyes had taken on a new sparkle, and there was a happy grin upon his thin features. "By Golly! I'm goin' to be a reg'lar friend o' you boys, yet. Look here, Jacobi, can't you find seats for my friends?"

"There are no chairs in the place," growled the old tattered man.

"Don't bother," I said. "We can stand. We just want to talk to you, Gil. Listen, how's everything by you, boy?"

He looked up into my face, and believe me, I never want to see a more honest face than I saw when I looked into Little Gil's that moment.

"Ever'thing's all right," he said, "and Jacobi's goin' to be my daddy now—"

"What!" I exclaimed. "But old Daddy Joe—he came—"

"Don't you mention him again to me!" cried Little Gil. "Don't you say his name again—"

And with that, then, he fell back upon his pillow. His eyes closed And old tattered and dilapidated Jacob ran to his side and whispered something in his ear. Then, turning to us, he motioned toward the door—

"Go!" he commanded; "go! don't mention old Joe's name to him, anymore!"

We went back to the clubhouse, wondering.

* * *

That night, at 8 o'clock, we all gathered again in the clubhouse to wait out the old year and welcome in the new, as we boys always do, every year And on this night we don't play checkers or tell stories, we just let Lew Hunter be the boss, and Lew is our music master, and when he's boss, he makes get up around him at the organ, and while he plays, he leads us in the singing practice. Lew knows all the old-time songs, and all the new ones, too. But when a night like New Year's Eve comes along—it's the old ones he brings out, and believe me, we boys are glad to sing them, too.

We started the old song about New Year's—you know how it goes—

"Happy New Year, Smiling New Year,
What art thou bringing with thee—"

It was the old happy song that old Brother Frank had taught us in school, and we liked that song—seemed like when we sang it together there, in our little old clubhouse on the river bank we could just see old Brother Frank with his little old fiddle, playing the tune while we sang the words, and to see the happy look on Brother Frank's face, when we boys sang it right, without a sour note, was enough to make any boy satisfied with himself.

The singing was interrupted. A knock on the door came Harold, the twin, opened the door.

"I just had to come," sang out a voice, "I want to sing it, with you."

A man and a boy stood on the threshold. The boy was Little Gil, whom we had seen over in the dugout on Burney's Field. The man was the old dilapidated, tattered fellow, whom he had called Jacobi,

"Carry me inside, Jacobi!" came Little Gil's shrill voice. "What you wnat to do—let me catch my death o' cold? Carry me inside. Let me show these fellows how to sing—strike up the tune again, you, at the organ—strike up the tune, won't you? Hold me tight, Jacobi! It's very cold!"

* * *

The old dilapidated person held Little Gil tightly, wrapped up in a woolen shawl. And Lew Hunter struck the chord of the song, and Little Gil sang—

"Happy New Year! This is my year!
Look what it's bringin' to me!
Daddy Joe's gone! We'll travel on—
Good old Jacobi and me—"

The door flew open violently. A gust of wind carried in with it a flurry of snowflakes that whirled about the heads of Little Gil and Jacobi. And in the doorway stood Old Daddy Joe—

"I jest came up here," he sang out, "thinking I would find Little Gil—he allus likes singin' an' I t'ought he might be comin' up here because he heard you all a-singin' like that—an ol' New Year hymn he always loved—he did—he loved—New Year's he loved —best of all—"

His voice trailed off. His eyes caught sight of Little Gil! For a moment they lit up with happy joy—but the next moment he caught sight of Jacobi—and his teeth were bared in a snarl—

"You!" he exclaimed, savagely. He advanced upon the dilapidated one.

"Seckatary Hawkins!" cried out Little Gil. "Be my friend—"

* * *

Shadow Loomis sprang forward. Like a tiger, and with as much agility, Shadow sprang and landed upon the shoulders of Old Daddy Joe.

"Git!" he cried. "Beat it, Gil! I'll hold him!"

Jacobi picked up the Little Gil as he would have picked up a bundle of rags, and hurried off with him, into the night.

"Let me go!" shrieked old Daddy Joe. But we wouldn't now. No. Shadow couldn't have held Old Daddy Joe, by himself. It was that all of us, having remembered what Shadow had said, were bent on Little Gil having one true friend. We held old Daddy Joe, though he protested and swore, until Jacobi and Little Gil had plenty time to be far away.

"Now you can go," said Shadow Loomis, loosening his grip on Old Daddy Joe. And so we all let go of that poor old sad-face—poor old Daddy Joe! I feel sorry for him now, even as I write this down. Because I know he loved Little Gil—

"You let me go too late," he said, softly, and in a low tone. He was shaking his head as he made toward the door. "You let me go too late. Little Gil—they've got him."

And with that, then, he went his way, disappearing into the night. And we turned back, then, to the strains of Lew Hunter's organ, as he played an anthem to the new year, full of joy and gladness—

But I didn't feel so full of joy and gladness! No. Somehow or other, I felt that we had made a blunder about this business. I felt sure that sooner or later we would wish we had not let Jacobi carry off Little Gil.

Which we did.

HABITS OF CARIBOU CLOSELY WATCHED

New York Expedition Spends Several Months in Northern Manitoba.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 5. (Canadian Press.) — After an adventurous journey in the north country, during which time he travelled thousands of miles by canoe and dog sled, and witnessed the annual migration of thousands of caribou, the habits of which he studied, Count Illia Tolstoy, grandson of the famous Russian author and philanthropist, Count Leo Tolstoy, returned to Winnipeg yesterday. He is en route to New York, but will first visit Northern Ontario.

In the barren lands, 1000 miles north of The Pas, Manitobe Count Tolstoy spent the past few months with an expedition sent out by the Museum of Natural' History, New York. With him were Horace Ashton and W. J. Casel. The purpose of the expedition was to study the habits of the caribou, and to obtain motion pictures of their annual migration, during which time they cross the barren lands by the thousands.

The expedition members noted that the habits of the caribou have changed greatly during the past few years, partly because the woods where they used to winter have been burned down. Their old winter home was in the vicinity of Reindeer Lake.

The caribou are quite tame, and in the opinion of Count Torstoy could easily be domesticated.

VOTE IS POLLED FOR TRUSTEE

Patrick Cavanagh Wins Contest For S. S. No. 1, Douro Board.

VOTE IS 35 TO 23.

Out in School Section No. 1, Douro, they take their elections seriously and figures talk a heap sight louder than other mere indications of sentiment.

Take for instance the election of a school trustee which was to have been one of the main functions of the annual school section meeting. It was.

Patrick Cavanagh had already been trustee for 1928 and someone saw fit to nominate him for the post for another session. All well and good. But someone else, with equal privilege, considered one William Murphy the right man for that right place, and so a contest began.

Secretary Andrew Quinlan struck upon an idea which, by all that's right and proper, should have cleaned up the situation with neatness and despatch. Suiting the action to the word, or the idea, he arose and called for a standing vote, but alas! Mr. Murphy's supporters numbered ten, and so did Mr. Cavanagh's. Chairman N. Quinlan stepped into the breach with his deciding vote in favor of last year's trustee—but the end was not yet. Mr. Murphy had never felt much confidence in standing votes and chairmen anyway, so he demanded a vote by ballot; a poll was opened in accordance with his wishes—and Mr. Murphy came out on the short end of a 35-23 vote.

So Mr. Cavanagh thanked his electors, wished them a long life, a happy New Year, a bountiful harvest and good prices.

VOCAL CONCERT AT CAMPBELLFORD

Westminster Glee Singers Present Pleasing Program in Second Appearance

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 5 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—In spite of the fact that the Westminster Glee Singers won the unanimous approval of the music lovers of the town and that they were booked for a return engagement last night at the Regent Theatre, there was not a capacity house to welcome these famous artists on their second appearance here. The singers came from Brockville and departed for Detroit, where they will appear to-night. Their program last night was entirely different from that used at their initial appearance with the exception of a group of songs by special request. There were eighteen numbers on their program including sacred music, hunting songs, old English melodies, Scottish airs, and sailor chanteys. Solos, trios and quartettes constituted the remainder of the concert. Genuine applause demanding encores after almost every number stamped the program with the approval of the audience.

The Westminster Glee Singers are fifteen in number. There are seven boy sopranos, two male altos, three tenors, and three bass singers. The older men of the organization are all famous singers from England and Scotland. Edward Branscombe, the organizer and director is formerly of Westminster Abbey, London, England. Donald Reid, who with Edward Branscombe, plays the accompaniments when they are used, is late of Westminster Abbey and also of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, England.

It is not often that local theatre patrons are offorded such an opportunity of hearing world famous artists who are capable of, and do, present a program that is interesting to those who are musically educated as well as to those who are not. This was the case with the Westminster Glee Singers.

CANADIAN RAILWAYS REVENUES SET NEW RECORD FOR OCTOBER

Passenger Traffic Has Gain of Twenty Per Cent. Over Last Year.

FREIGHT HEAVIER

Gross Revenues Show Increase of $47,520,675 Over Ten Month Period.

OTTAWA, Otn., Jan. 5.—(Canadian Press.)— Canadian railways earned larger revenues during October than in any previous month, exceeding the October 1929 revenues by $12,127,253, or 24.4 per cent. for the first time they passed the five billion revenue ton mile with 5,598,128,388 revenue ton miles which was 32 per cent. greater than the October 1927 figure. Passenger traffic also showed an increase of 20 per cent. over last year's and passenger revenues increased by $875,401, or 14.5 per cent. Figures were published to-day at the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Operating expenses were heavier than last year by $5,031,510, or 14.5 per cent but, with larger gross revenues, the net operating revenue, amounting to $22,212,006, was the largest ever earned in one month.

For the ten months gross revenues showed an increase of $47,520,675 and the net operating revenue an increase of $21,566,065.

Freight Traffic Increases.

Freight traffic on Canadian National Railways showed an increase over that of October, 1927, of 25 per cent. and freight revenues an increase of $4,564,668, or 27.8 per cent. Passenger traffic was heavier by 18.3 per cent. and revenues increased by $274,263, or 12.2 per cent. operating expenses increased by $2,390,232, or 16.5 per cent, transporting expenses increasing by $1,029,052, or 13.2 per cent., maintenance of way and structures by $863,054, or 29.6 per cent, and maintenance of equipment by $593,003, or 21.3 percent. The net operating revenue of $9,306,303 was by far the largest ever earned by the road and exceeded that of October 1927 by $2,653,193, or 40 per cent.

Deficit On Eastern Lines.

Although freight and passenger traffic on the eastern lines, Canadian National Railways showed substantial increases and gross revenues were larger than for October last year by $422,273, they did not meet operating expenses, so that the operation showed a deficit of $327,534 as against a deficit last year of $588,487.

The freight traffic density was only 40 per cent. of the density on the remainder of the system and the earnings per freight train mile were 58 per cent, or $3.71 against $6.37. This was entirely due to lighter loading, the average receipt per revenue ton mile being higher, viz., .896 cent on the eastern line and .867 cent on the Canadian National.

For the ten months the operating deficit ambounted to $5,774,061 as against $4,633,707 last year, an increase of $1,140,354.

The lines in the United States also showed increases in gross and net revenues, so that the entire system (exclusive of the eastern lines) showed an increase of $5,367,021 in gross revenues and of $2,738,699 in net operating revenues.

For January-October the system, including the United States' lines, showed an increase in gross revenues of $23,665,258, and in net revenues of $11,823,155.

Gross revenues on the Canadian Pacific Railway for October amounted to $27,155,556 which was larger than for October, 1927, by $5,797,512, or 27.1 per cent. and larger than the previous high record made in October, 1923, by $3,520,761, or 15 per cent. Freight traffic was 42 per cent. above last year's. Passenger traffic also showed an increase of 27.9 per cent.

Operating expenses were heavier by $2,267,663, or 16.1 per cent. and net operating revenue established a new high record of $10,810,849, exceeding the previous record of $8,200,632, made in October, 1923, by $2,610,217. The average earning per freight train mile was 40 cents greater than for October, 1927, for an increase of 97.3 revenue tons but with a decrease in the average receipts per totn mile of .066 cent. The operating ratio of 60.19 per cent. was the lowest recorded by these reports.

For the ten months gross revenues were heavier than in 1927 by $23,795,115, net operating revenues increased by $10,723,451, and the operating income by $9,864,957.

M. Chaliapine is included in the galaxy of stars.

Again following last year's practice, many well-known British singers will be included in the cast, and, as usual, the orchestra, chorus and ballet will be all-British.

NEW WATCHWORD FOR C.G.I.T. GROUP

New Year's Meeting of Millbrook Girl's Society Held at Leader's Home.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—The New Year's meeting of the Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. Group was held at the leader's home on Wednesday evening.

The new watchword and password, as well as the Bible verse which the members are to take as their special promise for the next six months were given by the leader, and adopted by the group. The president, Miss Wilma Fallis, was in the chair, and gave some information regarding the purchase of C.G.I.T. pins by those who have not yet secured these emblems.

The devotional period was specially given up to a consideration of New Year's resolutions, the leader's talk centering round this subject, the matter of each member being pledged to tithing, and promising to devote more time to the regular habit of prayer, receiving particular emphasis.

Readings were given by Misses Elsie Spence, Dorothy McDowell, Helen Mitchell, Frances Jones, and the president, all bearing on the topic of the New Year, and the Scriptural lesson, read in unison, was from Mark's gospel, having specially to do with the matter of faith.

A pleasant social hour was spent at the close.

CHRISTMAS PARTY.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—The annual Christmas party of the A.Y.P.U. was held on Monday night in the Parish Hall. The evening was purely social and the program consisted of games and contests with a well-laden Christmas tree to top off. Each member received a gift and there was much merriment over the opening of them. Refreshments were served and the party adjourned in ample time to allow the members to attend the midnight celebration of Holy Communion.

BRAZIL UNABLE TO ACCEPT SEAT

Republic Cannot Appoint a Member To Pan-American Arbitration Conference.

HAS SAME BOUNDARY.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 4 (Canadian Press).—In a note addressed to Secretary Kellogg as chairman of the Pan-American Arbitration Conference, the Brazilian Govenment explained to-day that it could not accept membership on the Paraguayan-Bolivian conciliation board because of pending boundary treaties with both disputing countries. Thoqe treaties are undergoing ratification and Brazil hold that it therefore might appear as an interested party.

The note expresses Brazil's willingness to do her utmost for the maintenance of peace in this hemisphere, but in relation to the case in question notes that Brazil is bounded in the very territory disputes between Bolivia and Paraguay.

Brazil expresses confidence that other American states will be able to complete the membership of the commission and effect the reconciliation. The note reiterates Brazil's desire to co-operate as far as possible with the commission, and adds that country's good wishes for success.

U. S. CHARGES ARE ANSWERED

Chamber of Commerce in Seattle Claims American Fishermen Are Ousted From Shelter.

CANADIANS COMPLAIN.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Charges by the Seattle Chamber of Commerce that Canadian officials in British Columbia are wrongfully violating a treaty between the Dominion and the United States by ousting American fisherman seeking shelter in the ports of this province, were answered last night by James A. Motherwell, Chief Inspector of Fisheries for British Columbia. The inspector said that the United States boats were admittedly being ejected but insisted that it was on the interpretation of the word "shelter" that settlement of the dispute hinges.

The Seattle Chamber complaint has been forwarded by mail to the Department of Marine and Fisheries at Ottawa.

"The affair has extremely interesting possibilities," commented Mr. Motherwell, "and may have results reaching beyond the particular point at issue. "There is no doubt," he continued, "that the meaning intended by the word shelter was that American fishing boats would be allowed to use our ports when in distress, when bad weather made navigation dangerous or for other humanitarian reasons.

"Their contention, however, is that 'shelter' means they can enter a British Columbia port whenever they wish. The settlement of the meaning of the word lies between Ottawa and Washington.

No Real Necessity.

"As a matter of actual fact, the fishing boats from Seattle come into our ports when there is no real necessity, on fine moonlight nights, for example. They use our ports because, unlike the Washington coast which offers few shelters, British Columbia is studded with coves, inlets and natural harbors.

"Naturally our fishermen complain to us about this and we eject the United States boats."

Major Motherwell drew attention to a Canadian grievance. He said that whenever a Canadian fishing boat sailed north of the Alaskan boundary, past Dixon Entrance, to fish, it was promptly ordered out by United States authorities.

But south of the Alaskan boundary in Hecate Strait, between Queen Charlotte Islands and the British Columbia mainland, United States boats were allowed to operate without hindrance.

In British Columbia, Major Motherwell said, the strait was considered Canadian territorial waters, but as Ottawa had never made a ruling on the subject, no effort was made to oust the United States boats.

In the opinion of Major Motherwell, the airing of the Seattle protest would probably bring up the other issue with results which he hoped would be beneficial to British Columbia fishermen.

THE MAN OUTSIDE.

(Examiner Correspondence)

TRENT RIVER, Jan. 4. — "The Man Outside" was the title of a play given by Hastings talent at the United Church on New Year's night.

Throughout the play it was difficult to discover the one who robbed the bank as the detective found that the lock and ring found in the bank corresponded exactly with those owned by his sister who was thought to have been murdered five years previous. and the detective was bound to have revenge by hanging some one throughout the entire proceedings. Between the second and third acts, Howard Fairman recited a cowboy's experience, "He'll not see his mother when the work's all done in the fall." Miss Ada Bond recited "The Face on the Bar Room Floor" in a most acceptable manner.

Rev. W. R. Archer, acting as chairman announced that the person guessing who the guilty one in the play was before the end of the program would be given a bag of candies, but no one was able to give the right guess.

Homemade candy was sold during the evening and Mr. Elliott on behalf of the company thanked all those who attended.

The cast of characters was:
Mr. Ashton, banker, Mr. Elliott.
Mr. Spray, newsbag, Mr. Elliott.
Alice Ashton, banker's daughter, Miss Ada Bond.
Kate Marlow, Alice's companion, Mrs. Elliott.
Harry Howard, lawyer, Howard Fairman.
Gilbert Elton, cashier, Everett Fairman.
W. G. Fry, detective, M. H. German.
Miss Alice Ashton's part was a difficult and most trying one but she proved herself sufficiently able to overcome the difficulties.

Jan. 21-Feb. 1 — Home Nursing and First Aid.

This course is arranged through the Women's Institute Branch of the Department of Agriculture. It is open to women and girls in Millbrook and surrounding district. The course is free, but as in the case in the boys' class, a fifty-cent contingency fee will be charged to cover incidental expenses and to buy supplies for practical work. Students will be required to provide their own material for use in the sewing classes.

Miss Hopkins, the instructress in domestic science is one of the best teachers that the Department has.

We feel that Durham County Home Economics Course is very fortunate to have secured her services. The other instructresses are equally qualified and their classes will be interesting and helpful in many ways.

Miss Hopkins was the instructress who coached the "Girls' Judging Competition Classes" in Cavan last summer, and was very popular.

The Cavan Institute has sent in the names of all the young people in their district who are eligible to take this course, and also tried to get in touch with them to help in having as many as possible take the course. It has been very successfully carried out in other places, and we hope Cavan will be well represented in it.

WARSAW

The members of the Institute, as well as the appointed committee, are working on the early pioneer days of the township. There are so many families here now descendants of the early settlers. Not all came in 1831, but within a few years. Among them are the Crows, two brothers and a cousin; the Kidds, Paynes, Matthews, Choates, Battens, Darlings, Clements, and others. Each of the four churches has a history; also the Warsaw school, and the canal. The flagstone, which was the doorstep of the first school, is at the gate into David Payne's new farm. The first house built in the township still stands on the McCracken farm. The first frame house built in the village was burned a few years ago.

Good cheer boxes were sent by the Institute to each of the eight "shut-ins" near the village. Most of them are quite elderly. One was ninety last April.

WARSAW.

Following its motto, "For Home and Country," the Women's Institutes are recognized as one of the best aids to community health, by both Ontario and Dominion Parliaments. The Department of Health of Ontario invites the Women's Institutes of the Province to make use of its various services. There is a clinic service which includes dental clinics, child health clinics, and tuberculosis travelling clinics; particulars regarding any of these may be obtained simply by asking for them.

Any one who notices the children in almost any school will realize that probably fifty per cent are not so healthy as they should be. In addition to the annual delegates, motion pictures and speakers upon health subjects, including social hygiene, are available.

In this day of high living, late hours, cars, and a craze for amusement, and getting much for little, such talks are needed, even in the country.

Among the many pamphlets for Institute members the Health Almanac, Bulletin No. 9, Rural Sanitation, The Baby, and Proper Care of Teeth, seem the most popular.

For several years the Department of Health at Ottawa has issued "The Canadian Mother's Book" and the fourteen "Little Blue Books." Dr. Helen McMurchy has a good deal to do with these useful little books, for which there is no charge. While the Institute pushes their distribution, where it thinks they will do good, one does not need to belong to an institute to get them. Any one may obtain any one or more desired by simply asking the Department of Health, Ottawa, for them.

Warsaw Institute has endeavored to place some of these books in new homes, and homes where new babies are expected, and in some cases, at least, they have been much appreciated.

Even the subject-matter in these little books grows a little out of date, and with each improvement the books are carefully revised. Several of them are of great use to newcomers, some of more use in farm homes than in town, and others of use in every home in the land.

The fourteen little blue books (so named because of their blue covers) are: 1, Good Wishes to You from Canada; 2, How to Build the Canadian House; 3, How to Make our Canadian Home; 4, How to Make Outpost Homes in Canada; 5, Canadians Need Milk; 6, How We Cook in Canada; 8, How to Take Care of Mother; 9, How to Take Care of the Family; 10, How to Take Care of the Baby; 11, How to Take Care of the Children; 12, Household Cost Accounting in Canada; 13, How to Take Care of Household Waste; 14, How to Avoid Accidents and Give First Aid. These little books are published in English and in French.

Some church people seem afraid of the Institutes. If they only realize it, the Institute is a great aid. The Institute covers a certain district, and ofttimes goes beyond that district. Sometimes where Institutes have gone, new Institute branches spring up.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

Many thanks for the splendid helps received before Christmas. I'm afraid I'm rather late at writing my thanks, but I was very busy just then, getting ready to go away.

I enjoy reading your page very much. It surely is a splendid addition to The Examiner. Another good feature is the daily short story. I find them very interesting. The newspaper has improved wonderfully in the past years.

Enclosed find a few helps which I hope may be of use to someone. In return I am going to send an SOS. Could any of the neighbors tell me how to take out an old tea stain from a tablecloth? I have tried boiling and even the frost does not seem to help.

I think the Big Sister column is great, if I can be of any use dear Marion, I would be only too glad to help. I am a married woman, in my early twenties. I agree with some of the readers that "Thinker" just wrote to start a rumpus. But he surely has retired into his shell, after the razzing he has got. Let us be thankful the world isn't full of men with such ideas.

Well, Marion, my letter is getting long. I must stop, since this is my first attempt. But I will come again if I may. Wishing you and all the neighbors a bright and prosperous New Year.

I will sign myself,

Lakefield, Twinkletoes."

To wash flannels: Put a little borax in the water for both washing and rinsing and the flannels will look like new and will not shrink.

To remove soot: Should soot fall on your carpet cover it with dry salt and it can be swept up without leaving smears.

For icy windows: Rub the glass with a sponge dipped in alcohol and your windows will be kept free from ice. Alcohol is also good for polishing them.

* * *

Thank you, "Twinkletoes," for your hints, and for the nice letter. I hope some neighbor will be able to advise you about the tea stains. I am very glad that you like our page and The Examiner generally. Write again soon.

"Dear Marion:

I thank you for the Christmas cards. I also wish to thank you for the payment for my story, which was very acceptable.

Now, Marion, I would like to say a few words re "Thinker," also "Another Thinker." What I resented most was their sly references. You must be a spinster—as if by saying that, they were giving you, and all unmarried women a deep insult. Have they not brains enough to know that a girl of 17 is also a spinster? As to Thinker being afraid to write more plainly, in case his wife would read it, I think she was beside him at the time of writing, and they thought they would be spoil-sports and start something. Wake up to the fact Thinker, that women often prefer to remain spinsters, especially when they view the home-life of some of their married sisters joined in harness to so-called Thinkers. Someone calling herself "21" took Thinker's part. You are young yet, "21." Maybe you will not take up the cudgels so eagerly 10 years hence. I also am happily married, but I do say that women have always suffered from injustice. Take an everyday example. Supposing the man of the house is sick, he goes to bed, his wife waits on him, keeps the kiddies away from his bed, and as quiet as ever she can. He stays in bed until he feels well enough to get up, finds a nice chair, gets his pipe and paper, and settles down. After he gets well his wife falls sick, and knowing how much depends on her, she keeps going as long as she can. When she does give in, are the same conditions observed? Oh, no. The children are all over her bedroom, and when she comes downstairs, she finds a dirty house (as a rule) and has to start right in. No easy chair, cigarette and paper for her. That is only one instance. As for men being more clever than women, I do not doubt it, but each of them has to have a woman at their back to urge them on. Wife, mother, sister, aunt or sweetheart, so I do not see that they deserve all the credit they claim.

When God made woman, He did not say, here is a toy or plaything. Neither did He say here is a person of inferior intelligence. No, He made woman to be a mate for man, and every true woman is such a mate. Lots of the inventions made by man have originated in the brain of a woman, but did she claim the praise? No, she was content to let the man have it, as long as it was done. Now you two supposed Thinkers, keep off the page. Let our Marion alone. She is doing good work, and giving hundreds of women deep satisfaction. All praise to her for inaugurating a page for women.

Wishing you, Marion, and all the staff, the best in 1929 and a Happy New Year to all the neighbors,

Yours,
Quo Vadis."

* * *

I always like your letters, "Quo Vadis" and this one is particularly interesting. Thanks for your championship of my cause. I'm glad to know you approved the answers to our "Thinkers."

"Dear Marion:

It's quite a little while since I wrote last, but by reading our column I knew you were rushed with mail. So I waited patiently for you to catch up some before I would write. I still enjoy the many letters, I think it's a pleasure to read them.

"Thinker" put a lot more writing and reading to our page, didn't he?

Well, Marion, I hope you had a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. At least I can guess you would enjoy it.

I liked all the answers to "Bobbie's" letters, as they are useful to more than her. My baby girl is only seven months old and as she's the first one, I haven't had very much experience as to what to do best for her. Therefore, I got good knowledge from those letters too. I guess I had better bring this letter to a close for now. I am enclosing my New Year Resolutions, and who I think best to judge the resolutions.

Yours very sincerely,
Jenny Wren II."

* * *

Thanks, "Jenny Wren II," for your nice letter. I certainly appreciated the discussion started by Bobbie, and I'm glad others liked it too. I had a very pleasant time at Christmas, thanks—but so awfully rushed.

"Dear Marion:

I wish to thank you for the excellent helps I received for making Christmas gifts, also recipes for cakes which are very good. Christmas has come and gone again and one can now take time to do some reading and correspondence. Your page is so inspiring, Marion, and you have done so much good with your Christmas cheer and optimism. Life is so discouraging at times, but when I read your page and think of how your sacrifice your time and talent for others, why I just determine to keep on and to help others all I can, too.

How wonderful that so many poor children received Christmas gifts of toys and clothing. There should be many grateful hearts this Christmas of 1928.

When you are so kind and good, dear Marion, it surprised me very much on reading "Another Thinker's" letter of the 8th and again of the 19th instant.

To begin with 'Thinker' is not an appropriate name for either of them and 'Ignoramus' would be far more suitable. I sure feel sorry for his wife, for one has an idea what she has to contend with from the gist of his letter. He says she was quiet and retiring before marriage so he has only himself to blame if she is different now. He must be a regular old bear.

He seems to disapprove of our style of dress. The trouble is that men have not the back bone to dress for comfort as women are doing. I have heard them complain of the heat in summer, but dare not discard their coat because of appearances, you know. No wonder they are so purple-faced with their tight collars and ties, fastening like strings on a grain sack. Take a look at their headgear. Heavy hats, winter and summer. That is why one sees so many bald heads, and I am certain the latter are far from being things of beauty. The poor creatures, they are certainly long suffering and no wonder Thinker is so grouchy. He says there is enough bitterness in life without adding to it, but, Marion, you are making life brighter for all your readers, so he does not know what he is talking about. As far as brains are concerned men would not be where they are today if it had not been for the ambition and encouragement of their mothers and wives. It is only within the last decade or two that girls were given a college education and a chance to make use of their talents. If Madame Curie had attended only to her housework would she ever have discovered radium and look at Agnes MacPhail, how she is working for the benefit of the people and not merely for her own gain. There are others too numerous to mention.

I fear I am taking up too much space. If so please do not print all.

Wishing you and the Examiner staff much success and happiness in 1929,

Yours sincerely,
Pollyanna."

* * *

Indeed, "Pollyanna," your letter is so interesting that it could not be too long. I enjoyed reading it.

Thank you for all the very nice things you write about my work.

I hope that you write soon again.

"Dear Marion:

I am an interested reader of your page, and enjoy it very much. Just recently there was an article in your paper for rheumatism and as I have mislaid the paper I wonder if you would mind sending it to me. A friend of mine suffers very much with rheumatism and I would like to send it to her.

I wonder also if you might know of something to cure warts I have them and they are spreading on my hands.

Thanking you in advance and wishing you every success, I remain,

City. A Reader."

The information was sent you privately, and I hope you benefit by it.

"Dear Marion:

I guess I have my head in a sling now. By the appeal from you made to the neighbors it seems that you want them to tell ME off too. Now just a word of explanation.

When I said that we men do get some awful hard and unnecessary knocks from your page, you no doubt took it that I meant we got all them from there. No, sir, not a bit. I know that many of the women's magazines, etc., have them and then, too, the women get their share through the other medium of which you spoke. Honestly I believe that both sexes get a fair share some way or another, and I didn't mean to insinuate that "Marion's Mail" was a rub-it-in process.

I might say that since that first letter I wrote I have read your page every night and find it interesting too. I wonder how many more fellows have the same idea?

I trust that I have made my point clear enough and that the doctor won't be needed to repair my bean when the neighbors are through with me. I must admit though, that if I do get the dickens it is my own fault.

Wishing you and your readers a happy and prosperous New Year and that the flu won't bite you asit did me.

You bet I'll always be,

Respect.

P.S.—I don't care if you print this or not for my aim is to get these persistent women-slammers. I'm all on their track and hot at it too."

* * *

Good for you, "Respect." That girl must be getting prouder of you every day.

I'm pleased to know you find our columns interesting; in a man that shows exceptionally good judgment.

Now, don't get excited; I'm only baiting you. I'd like to see you extend yourself in a reply, just to see how far you would go. Write again, "Respect."

"Dear Marion:

Thank you so much for the beautiful Christmas and New Year greetings. What a wonderful verse you chose. It was too much for you to do. We got so much from your sensible notes and observations that a Christmas greeting card is a great extra.

Thanks for the cheque for the Christmas story. It was really very tame, not worth anything. The reality was wonderful, but the telling it for publishing seemed to strip it of all life.

In yesterday's Examiner I was so glad to see most of two parts of "The Story of the Other Wise Men." The whole story was given me for an Easter gift in 1900. I have read and re-read it, and lent it until I determined to lend it no more, as it is becoming worn. It is such a wonderful story, it seems it, too, must be true. Is it right to ask that sometime we have some extracts from Ruskin's "Sesame and Lillies," part II., "Of Queen's Gardens"? I had forgotten all about it until I heard Dr. Reynolds quote from it, and could not rest until I had refreshed my memory. Perhaps it is a bit Victorian, but I think we can stand it.

Does not Christmas make me think a bit of what we are good for in the world? It seems that our joy should be in helping others, not forgetting the religious side, but to let that shine through. It is not the gift but the giver' the thought that sends it. My most-prized gift this year is a handkerchief made of voile, which I recognize as having seen in a frock years ago, stitched and trimmed by a dear young girl. A certain woman who had had much trouble, and to whom a rich friend of her girlhood was ever sending valuable gifts, exclaimed "Oh, I would rather — would send me a nice long letter, than all the presents she sends!" Nearly every year I receive a Christmas letter in an unrecognized hand, and find it is from some old pupil, perhaps now mother in a happy home, or perhaps an old patient who happens to have thought of me, and bridged the years by a letter which brings joy, and with it come crowding back so many memories. Then, too, there are our festivities. Twice we have been so pleased that our Christmas party was too small. Friends of long standing could not come, or those on whom we always count could not come, we have just wondered who would like to join us, who would otherwise be a bit lonely, and have invited those who in a way, indeed once were, almost strangers, and they seemed pleased at the chance to join others. The actual poor are generally looked after, but there are lonely hearts, there are bed-ridden and shut-ins to whom the very idea that someone has thought of them gives cheer.

Quid Est.',

Thank you, "Quid Est" for this letter, and for the nice things you write. I sent the cards to all neighbors who had given me their names and addresses—I had enough for everybody, but so many forget to sign letters or add the address.

I will bear in mind your suggestion for the Daily Reading column.

"Dear Marion:

Compliments of the Season to you, also thank you for the helps I got sometime ago. I tried to grow some grape fruit seed but with no result at all. Growing carrot tops is much easier, and with quicker results too. Just leave about one inch of the carrot on and set in a bowl with some pebbles and keep supplied with water. They soon show their feathery leaves. I like some of your Daily Readings better than others. I especially enjoyed "Helen's Babies" and "The last Days of Pompei" extracts. I had read those books some years ago. Your page is just fine, but I like to leave the reading of it to the last. Most of the neighbors like to read it first, but I save it as a child saves the icing on the cake—as a tit-bit. I enjoy all the neighbors' letters and wish them all the best for 1929.

Please accept the same for yourself.

City. E. S. N."

* * *

It is nice to know you appreciate our pages as the "icing on the cake." Thanks for the hint about carrot tops, but I'm sorry the grapefruit seed didn't grow. I spoiled my Chinese lillies this year by putting them near a window, where they got too much light.

"Dear Marion:

I have just finished reading the letter of 'Nth Power' and I don't like it or him.

I really didn't mind the two "Thinkers" half as much as most neighbors seemed to because I think that probably they didn't mean what they said at all. I think they were just trying to arouse the mettle of the women. But I think 'Nth Power' is positively rude.

I am just writing this letter to send in the coupon so will not say very much this time. I am enclosing a few recipes and also some questions on etiquette which will probably be answered in "What is Correct" column.

I hope you had a very Merry Christmas, Marion.

Very sincerely,
Countrywoman."

* * *

I hope you write a longer letter next time "Countrywoman." Thank you for the recipes; I will answer the etiquette questions in that column.

"Dear Marion:

I received your 'Christmas Greetings' letter, and am sorry I did not get chance to convey the same greetings to you. Our Christmas was quite sad with our recent bereavement, and I did not enter into the spirit of greetings the way I did other years.

However, here's wishing you a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

I am enclosing a few pages regarding my new year's resolutions. I give you liberty to change it in any way, and, if you deem it unsuitable, do not print it.

I think the idea of neighbours judging it is fine—providing you have yourself as one of them, and then giving the results of the majority.

Yours truly,
Twin Sis."

I am sorry to hear of the sadness which marred your Christmas, "Twin Sis."

The coupons received so far show five votes to one in favor of my judging, but I would have liked to see the other plan tried for once. However, the voting does not close until January 12, so it may change yet.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Wall pictures are not so much used as they were some years ago—but it is not true that they have gone out of fashion completely. There are rooms that are complete without any sort of hanging picture whatever, but for the average sort of furniture a few colorful and interesting pictures certainly add to its appearance. You may recall when you have moved into a new house or apartment how much more attractive and more personal the rooms seem after the pictures have been put up.

Some women object to pictures on the wall on the ground that they are just one more thing to dust—and some women avoid this objection simply by not dusting them at all. It is remarkable how much better the room looks if the pictures are all fresh cleaned, with glass gleaming. Pictures and frames that are regularly dusted need no special treatment as a usual thing. Care should be taken in cleaning the glass over the picture not to allow any moisture to seep through or to let water mark the frame. Wooden picture frames are often very much improved if wiped with a cloth moistened in a little furniture polish.

These fussy little cleaning jobs that the housewife has to do sometimes hardly seem worth while. Who will notice whether the wooden frame of that picture has been rubbed with furniture oil, who will notice that the glass face of the clock has been rubbed until it gleams, who will notice whether dust has been carefully brushed out of the creases in that lampshade? No one of these things is especially noticeable, and yet there is a sum total of brightness and an air of wellbeing about the room that has had these attentions that makes it all worth while.

GET RID OF YOUR FAT

Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs by my simple and efficient method of fat reduction without starvation diet or burdensome exercise, often at a very rapid rate and WITHOUT PAYMENT until reduction has taken place.

I am a licensed practicing physician and have made a careful study of the physiological requirements of the human body. This has enabled me to select such ingredients and in such proportion as in my opinion will produce not only a loss of weight without harm and an improvement in health, but with it an alleviation of all of the troublesome symptoms which frequently accompany and often are a direct result of overstoutness, such as shortness of breath on slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, etc., not to speak of the relief from the embarrassment of being too stout. Stout persons suffering from such diseases as Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema, Asthma and high blood pressure are greatly relieved by a reduction of their superfluous fat.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you the renewed energy and vigor which come as a result of the loss of superfluous fat.

If you are overstout do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my FREE TRIAL TREATMENT and my plan whereby I am to be PAID ONLY AFTER REDUCTION HAS TAKEN PLACE if you so desire.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

Loosely waved hair is brushed back of the ear and brought forward in a curl, as shown in the sketch above. In the center you see Reboux's new hat of fur and velvet, rounded off short at the back to wear with the new Recamier curls, and below a hat of fabric fur cut in a point in front to show the straight bang.

Three cheers for Reboux and Reboux's daring new hat that is short enough in the back and over the ears to show a soft arrangement of curls. This is the first real breaking away from the rule of the hat shaped to fit closely down over the back of the head to the nape of the neck. It is, in fact, the first definite recognition on the part of the milliners of the fact all women are not still close'y shingled.

To be sure hats were made to make allowances for longer hair. But smart hats, as we have known them for some time, have been essentially skul caps, and the woman who has chosen to wear her hair in curls at the back has either had to let them straggle down her neck or has had to crush them under the confines of a hat that took no notice of them. And the woman who has chosen to wear her longer hair in a bun or coil has had to content herself with a bulge in the back of her hat that looked like a deformity.

Perhaps nothing will come of this new hat from Reboux. Perhaps it is one of the many eccentricities of fashion that will amuse us for a few weeks and then pass, leaving apparently no trace on the chart of fashion. But it may be one way out of the dilemma for the woman who has definite y given up the shingled coiffure.

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

DEAD TEETH DANGEROUS.

You wil remember very distinctly as the dentist bored away at your tooth, getting gradually down low about the "nerve," that you felt that insofar as that tooth was concerned there would be no more trouble once that "nerve" was removed.

And this was the genera' belief until the discovery of the X-ray, which as you know shows up the root of the tooth and the surrounding tissue. It was thus earned that despite the removal of the nerve which really means nerve, blood and lymph vesse.s, that an abscess often formed at the root of these "devitalized" teeth as they are called, and this abscess could cause much more serious trouble than just in the surrounding tissue.

Dental research men, notably Dr. Weston Price of Cleveland, have done a great deal of work along this line.

Cultures were made from these abscesses and tissue surrounding them, and organisms were grown therefrom which when injected into small animals caused disease.

For a considerable time it was thought that if a root canal in a tooth were filled or a'most completely filled, and there was no abscess at the root, that that particular tooth was safe, was doing no harm to the body, and should not be removed.

However, these research men, pushing their investigations further, were able to grow organisms from teeth that had the nerves removed, but showed no abscesses by the X-ray.

Even these organisms were able to produce disease in animals. What does this mean to you?

That the old idea you and I had, that once the nerve was removed we were not only going to be free from pain but any other trouble also, is a mistake, and that the removal of the nerve simply leaves a tooth that may easily give us trouble.

As Dr. W. M. Gardner says, "teeth with healthy nerves do not abscess or become infected."

There is only one 'esson here and that is that if you have some "filled teeth" with nerves removed, even if they are not troubling you the slightest, you should get an X-ray of them, because no matter how experienced your dentist, he needs this or other aid, to detect the condition at the root of the tooth.

SO MUCH has been said about New Year resolutions lately I'm afraid some of you neighbors will be tired reading it. But I really and truly believe in making these resolutions, so here I go again.

One day I wrote about throwing envy out of our hearts in order to make this New Year successful; yesterday my theme was Hope; today I wish to write about health.

• • •

Without health you cannot really enjoy all the good things life has to offer you in 1929, so one good resolution is to take care of your body.

• • •

There is an Arabian proverb which says "He who has health has hope, and he who has hope has everything."

• • •

I notice that Peterborough neighbors who write to me point the truth of this proverb. Those who are ailing are inclined to look on the dark side of everything.

• • •

And the worry of the mind consequent upon ill-health reflects back upon the body and makes the condition worse.

• • •

Lots of people do not realize the power the mind exerts over the physical being. Churchill wrote:

"The surest road to health, say what they will
Is never to suppose we shall be ill."

There's a lot in it, neighbors. If we think we are ill, we will speedily be so and the consciousness of being in perfect health, conversely, is bound to brighten every day and every hour, and give us fresh power to meet the difficulties of the year.

• • •

So resolve to-day to care for your health—not to worry about it, remember, but look after it. Sir Phillip Sidney's panacea was "Great temperance, open air, easy labor, little care."

• • •

Abstinence in itself is not a virtue, it is the groundwork of a virtue. Temperate eating, temperate drinking, temperate working, all conduce to good health and robustness.

• • •

Fresh air is universally accepted as a necessity to good health, and nearly everyone obeys the dictates of common sense in this regard.

• • •

Easy 'abor is not so well understood—and many of us would declare immediately that we cannot observe this rule, because of our circumstances.

• • •

But a lot can be done to remove both the body-breaking and mind-muddling effects of routine labor by planning—as I have so often advocated.

• • •

Work never worries me until for some reason I have been compelled to let it pile up—and then my mind gets into a state of chaos reflecting the crowded condition of my desk, and I immediately feel tired.

• • •

As for care, we all know the evil effects of worry upon our minds and bodies. There is no excuse for worry, neighbors.

• • •

If a thing can be done, there's no need for worry—if it can't be done, what's the use in worrying?

• • •

When a problem comes up, sit down with it and figure out to answer, sensibly, without excitement and logically. If in your mind you decide you cannot do the thing indicated, banish it from your mind. If you can do the thing, then get busy.

• • •

If Sidney knew anything about health and rules, then by observing these simple instructions you will be well.

• • •

Then there will be none of this complaining for the sake of complaining about which we read. You will boast about your good health and what you are going to do with it.

• • •

And this will spread health and satisfaction, because, as Irving wrote:

"Surely happiness is reflective like the light of heaven; and every countenance, bright with smiles and glowing with innocent enjoyment, is a mirror, transmitting to others the rays of a supreme and ever-shining benevolence."

• • •

By banishing envy, holding fast to hope, and safeguarding health, you will be assuring yourself the blessings which will add up to make this New Year the happiest of your life.

DAILY READING

A FEW MINUTES A DAY WITH THE BEST OF THE WORLD'S AUTHORS CONDUCTED BY THE NEIGHBORS AND MARION

JANUARY 5, 1929.

One of our good neighbors has chosen as her pen-name "Quo Vadis"—"Whither Goest Thou?"—and this extract is taken from the book of that name, by Henryk Sienkiewicz, Polish novelist, born in 1846. "Quo Vadis" is a tale of the time of Nero, and to-day's selection tells how

CAESAR FIDDLED WHILE ROME BURNED.

Caesar had taken the lute and raised his eyes. In the hall conversation had stopped, and people were as still as if petrified. Terpnos and Diodorus, who had to accompany Caesar, were on the alert, looking now at each other and now at his lips, waiting for the first tones of the song.

Just then a movement and noise began in the entrance; and after a moment Caesar's freedman, Phaon, appeared from beyond the curtain. Close behind him was the consul Lecanius.

Nero frowned.

"Pardon, divine Imperator," said Phaon, with panting voice, "there is a conflagration in Rome! The greater part of the city is in flames!"

At this news all sprang from their seats.

"O gods! I shall see a burning city and finish the Troyad," said Nero, setting aside his lute.

Then he turned to the consul:

"If I go at once, shall I see the fire?"

"Lord," answered Lecanius, as pale as a wall, "the whole city is one sea of flame; smoke is suffocating the inhabitants, and people faint, or cast themselves into the fire from delirium. Rome is perishing, lord."

A moment of silence followed, which was broken by the cry of Vinicius:

"Voe misero mihi!"

And the young man, casting his toga aside, rushed forth in his tunic.

Nero raised his hands and exclaimed:

"Woe to thee, sacred city of Priam!"

Light from the burning city filled the sky as far as human eye could reach. The moon rose large and full from behind the mountains, and inflamed at once by the glare took on the color of heated brass. It seemed to look with amazement on the world-ruling city which was perishing. In the rose-colored abysses of heaven rose-colored stars were glittering; but in distinction from usual nights the earth was brighter than the heavens. Rome, like a giant pile illuminated the whole Campania. In the bloody light were seen distant mountains, towns, villas, temples, monuments, and the aqueducts stretching toward the city from all the adjacent hills; on the aqueducts were swarms of people, who had gathered there for safety or to gaze at the burning.

Meanwhile the dreadful element was embracing new divisions of the city. It was impossible to doubt that criminal hands were spreading the fire, since new conflagrations were breaking out all the time in places remote from the principal fire. From the heights on which Rome was founded the flames, flowed like waves of the sea into the valleys densely occupied by houses,—houses of five and six stories, full of shops, booths, movable wooden amphitheaters, built to accommodate various spectacles; and finally storehouses of wood, olives, grain, nuts, pine cones, the kernels of which nourished the more needy population, and clothing, which through Caesar's favor was distributed from time to time among the rabble huddled into narrow alleys. In those places the fire, finding abundance of inflammable materials, became almost a series of explosions, and took possession of whole streets with unheard-of rapidity. People encamping outside the city, or standing on the aqueducts, knew from the color of the flame what was burning. The furious power of the wind carried forth from the fiery gulf thousands and millions of burning shells of walnuts and almonds, which, shooting suddenly into the sky, like countless flocks of bright butterflies, burst with a crackling, or, driven by the wind, fell in other parts of the city, on aqueducts, and fields beyond Rome. All thought of rescue seemed out of place; confusion increased every moment, for on one side the population of the city was fleeing through every gate to places outside; on the other the fire had lured in thousands of people from the neighborhood, such as dwellers in small towns, peasants, and half-wild shepherds of the Campania, brought in by hope of plunder. The shout, "Rome is perishing!" did not leave the lips of the crowd; the ruin of the city seemed at that time to end every rule, and loosen all bonds which hitherto had joined people in a single integrity. The mob, in which slaves were more numerous, cared nothing for the lordship of Rome. Destruction of the city could only free them; hence here and there they assumed a threatening attitude. Violence and robbery were extending. It seemed that only the spectacle of the perishing city arrested attention, and restrained for the moment an outburst of slaughter, which would begin as soon as the city was turned into ruins. Hundreds of thousands of slaves, forgetting that Rome, besides temples and walls, possessed some tens of legions in all parts of the world, appeared merely waiting for a watchword and a leader. People began to mention the name of Spartacus; but Spartacus was not alive. Meanwhile citizens assembled, and armed themselves each with what he could. The most monstrous reports were current at all the gates. Some declared that Vulcan, commanded by Jupiter, was destroying the city with fire from beneath the earth; others that Vesta was taking vengeance for Rubria. People with these convictions did not care to save anything, but besieging the temples, implored mercy of the gods. It was repeated most generally, however, that Caesar had given command to burn Rome, so as to free himself from odors which rose from the Suburs, and build a new city under the name of Neroni. Rage seized the populace at thought of this; and if, as Vinicius believed, a leader had taken advantage of that outburst of hatred, Nero's hour would have struck whole years before it did.

It was said also that Caesar had gone mad, that he would command pretorians and gladiators to fall upon the people and make a general slaughter. Others swore by the gods that wild beasts had been let out of all the vivaria at Bronzebeard's command. Men had seen on the streets lions with burning manes, and mad elephants and bisons, trampling down people in crowds. There was even some truth in this; for in certain places elephants, at sight of the approaching fire, had burst the vivaria, and gaining their freedom, rushed away from the fire in wild fright, destroying everything before them like a tempest. Public report estimated at tens of thousands the number of persons who had perished in the conflagration. In truth a great number had perished. There were people who, losing all their property, or those dearest their hearts, threw themselves willingly into the flames, from despair. Others were suffocated by smoke. In the middle of the city, between the Capitol, on one side, and the Quirinal, the Viminal, and the Esquiline on the other, as also between the Palatine and the Cailian Hill, where the streets were most densely occupied, the fire began in so many places at once that whole crowds of people, while fleeing in one direction, struck unexpectedly on a new wall of fire in front of them, and died a dreadful death in a deluge of flame.

In terror, in distraction, and bewilderment, people knew not where to flee. The streets were obstructed with goods, and in many narrow places were simply closed. Those who took refuge in those markets and squares of the city, where the Flavian Amphitheater stood afterward, near the temple of the Earth, near the Portico of Silvia, and higher up, at the temples of Juno and Lucinia, between the Clivus Virbius and the old Esquiline Gate, perished from heat, surrounded by a sea of fire. In places not reached by the flames were found afterward hundreds of bodies burned to a crisp, though here and there unfortunates tore up flat stones and half buried themselves in defense against the heat. Hardly a family inhabiting the center of the city survived in full; hence along the walls, at the gates, on all roads, were heard howls of despairing women, calling on the dear names of those who had perished in the throng or the fire.

But Nero, who was on the road, wished to come at night, so as to sate himself all the better with a view of the perishing capital. Therefore he halted, in the neighborhood of Aqua Albana, and, summoning to his tent the tragedian Aliturus decided with his aid on posture look, and expression; learned fitting gestures, disputing with the actor stubbornly whether at the words "O sacred city, which seemed more enduring than Ida," he was to raise both hands, or, holding in one the forminga, drop it by his side, and raise only the other. This question seemed to him then more important than all others. Starting at last about nightfall, he took counsel of Petronius also whether to the lines describing the catastrophe he might add a few magnificent blasphemies against the gods, and whether, considered from the standpoint of art, they would not have rushed spontaneously from the mouth of a man in such a position, a man who was losing his birthplace.

At length he approached the walls about midnight with his numerous court, composed of whole detachments of nobles, senators, knights, freedmen slaves, women, and children. Sixteen thousand pretorians, arranged in line of battle along the road, guarded the peace and safety of his entrance, and held the excited populace at a proper distance. The people cursed, shouted, and hissed on seeing the retinue, but dared not attack it. In many places, however, applause was given by the rabble, which, owning nothing, had lost nothing in the fire, and which hoped for a more bountiful distribution than usual of wheat, olives, clothing, and money. Finally, shouts, hissing, and applause were drowned in the blare of horns and trumpets, which Tigellinus had caused to be sounded.

Nero, on arriving at the Ostian Gate, halted, and said, "Houseless ruler of a houseless people, where shall I lay my unfortunate head for the night?"

After he had passed the Clivus Delphini, he ascended the Appian aqueduct on steps prepared purposely. After him followed the Augustians and a choir of singers, bearing citharae, lutes, and other musical instruments.

And all held the breath in their breasts, waiting to learn if he would say some great words, which for their own safety they ought to remember. But he stood solemn, silent, in a purple mantle and a wreath of golden laurels, gazing at the raging might of the flames. When Terpnos gave him a golden lute, he raised his eyes to the sky, filled with the conflagration, as if he were waiting for inspiration.

The people pointed at him from afar as he stood in the bloody gleam. In the distance fiery serpents were hissing. The ancient and most sacred edifices were in flames: the temple of Hercules, reared by Evander, was burning; the temple of Jupiter stator was burning; the temple of Luna, built by Servius Tullius, the house of Numa Poplilius, the sanctuary of Vesta with the penates of the Roman people; through waving flames the Capitol appeared at intervals; the past and the spirit of Rome was burning. But he, Caesar, was there with a lute in his hand and a theatrical expression on his face, not thinking of his perishing country, but of his posture and the prophetic words with which he might describe best the greatness of the catastrophe, rouse most admiration, and receive the warmest plaudits. He detested that city, he detested its inhabitants; he loved only his own songs and verses; hence he rejoiced in heart that at last he saw a tragedy like that which he was writing. The verse maker was happy, the declaimer felt inspired, the speaker for emotions was delighted at the awful sight, and thought with rapture that even the destruction of Troy was as nothing if compared with the destruction of that giant city. What more could he desire? There was world-ruling Rome in flames, and he, standing on the arches of the aqueduct with a golden lute, conspicuous, purple, admired, magnificent, poetic. Down below, somewhere in the darkness, the people are muttering and storming. But let them mutter! Ages will pass, thousands of years will go by, but mankind will remember and glorify the poet, who in that night sang the fall and the burning of Troy. What was Homer compared with him? What Apollo himself with his hollowed-out lute?

Here he raised his hands, and, striking the strings, pronounced the words of Priam.

"O nest of my fathers, O dear cradle!" His voice in the open air, with the roar of the conflagration, and the distant murmur of crowding thousands, seemed marvelously weak, uncertain, and low, and the sound of the accompaniment like the buzzing of insects. But senators, dignitaries, and Augustians, assembled on the aqueduct, bowed their heads and listened in silent rapture. He sang long, and his motive was ever sadder. At moments, when he stopped to catch breath, the chorus of singers repeated the last verse; then Nero cast the tragic "surma" from his shoulder with gesture learned from Aliturus, struck the lute, and sang on. When at last he had finished the lines composed, he improvised, seeking grandiose comparisons in the spectacle unfolded before him. His face began to change. He was not moved, it is true, by the destruction of his country's capital; but he was delighted and moved with the pathos of his own words to such a degree that his eyes filled with tears on a sudden. At last he dropped the lute to his feet with a clatter, and, wrapping himself in the "syrma" stood as if petrified, like one of those statues of Niobe which ornamented the court-year of the Palatine.

Soon a storm of applause broke the silence. But in the distance this was answered by the howling of multitudes. No one doubted then that Caesar had given command to burn the city, so as to afford himself a spectacle and sing a song at it. Nero, when he heard that cry from hundreds of thousands, turned to the Augustinas with the sad, resigned smile of a man who is suffering from injustice.

"Sec," said he, "how the Quirites value poetry and me."

ABOUT FLIRTING

(Answered by "Willo")

"Dear Marion,

This is for the Big Sister column.

I am only a young girl in my 'teens, fair, with blue eyes. I am five feet, five inches tall.

Many girls, and even people (grown-ups) talk about me and say I am 'A flirt.' How does a girl act to give the impression of being a flirt? I don't see how they think I am a flirt, so will you please write and tell me, as I would like to know so I may correct my actions if it looks like I am 'flirting.'

Lovingly yours,
'Rosalind.'"

Dear Rosalind,—

I am glad you do not think it a compliment to be called "a flirt," for really it is a rather disgusting term. Some people consider a girl a flirt if she attracts the attention of the boys she meets, but 'flirt' really means 'one who endeavors to attract men's admiration or affection to gratify her vanity, or for some similarly low purpose.' Not much compliment in that is there, Rosalind?

But a girl who just naturally attracts friends by her lady-like behavior, her good taste in dress, her unaffected manner, unselfishness and consideration for others, careful selection of companions of both sexes, and all those little graces that go to make the perfect lady, can never be called a flirt. She would scorn the admiration which is such low gratification to the ordinary flirt. She knows that while many are temporarily attracted and hover about the 'flirt,' at the same time she is lowering herself in general esteem, and can never by such "put-on" attractiveness place herself on the coveted level of respectability among lady-like girls and gentlemanly boys.

We must choose the things that count for the most and best in life, mustn't we, Rosalind? And here's wishing you a really happy and worthwhile New Year, from

Your Big Sister,
Willo."

The Well Babies' Clinic and its activities are not often drawn to public attention, as is the case with so many other activities of women throughout the city. But the Clinic, which has the preservation and healing of babyhood as its chief aim and object, continues to flourish like the proverbial green bay trees. A remarkable increase is noted since its inception in 1921, when the number of babies brought to the Clinic for attention and advice was about three hundred.

Last year, there were over one thousand babies brought to the Clinic rooms, which are located in the hall of the Canadian Legion, and this year, there were nearly fourteen hundred. Within seven years, the attendance has rolled up like a snowball and has more than quadrupled itself.

For some years, weekly lectures were given by the city doctors who take an interest in the Well Babies' Clinic and attend there weekly to examine the infants and give advice as to feeding and general care. But, on account of the gradually increasing attendance, these were discontinued and the whole time is now given up to attention to the infants. Mal-nutrition is one of the serious problems confronting the young mothers in many instances and many children refuse to react favorably to a milk diet. They must then be given other foods, such as butter soup and its nutrition comrades, and it is in discovering just such agents to better health for tiny babies that the Clinic scores most heavily.

Again, there are problems which are distinctly those of very young babies and very young mothers. A characteristic of one race that sends a large number of its people to the Dominion is the binding of the babies in such a way as to often cause them to become bow-legged. These and other problems form a fascinating study for the nurses and the doctors and the voluntary helpers who attend weekly at the Well Babies' Clinic.

Dr. Jessie Birnie, since its inception, has been the chief factor in the progress made and her indefatigable interest in the work and unceasing activity, are wonderful factors in the success which has attended the efforts.

Pre-natal care is another prime factor in the work and the nurse, Miss M. Foote, does a great deal of good in this direction, going about to the homes and advising the mothers. A sideline to this visiting is another aspect which involves attention to cases where help is needed of a practical sort, and these cases are brought to the attention of sundry charitable-minded organizations in the city.

Anna, who is one of the most hard-working of the big express horses of the city, is having a little rest just now, owing to indisposition. She strained her leg on the icy streets and had to take an enforced holiday. Anyone who may have noticed this big brown horse with a habit of standing on the pavement and looking longingly in at sweetmeats in the windows o nearby stores, will remember just how gentle and tractable she is and how much she delights in the gift of a candy. But pavements are not designed especially for horses in these days and ice is dangerous, even to sharp-shod hoofs.

ST. JOHN'S JUNIORS WIN OPENING GAME

ST. JOHN'S BREAK LONG LOCAL LOSING STREAK BY WIN OVER BOBCAYGEON IN JUNIOR SERIES

Victory is the First Peterborough O.H.A. Triumph Since Year Before Last.

A GOOD BATTLE.

Despite Lack of Practice Junior Outfits Give Nice Exhibition.

The St. John's team made some hockey history last night when they defeated Bobcaygeon Juniors in the opening game of the season and put an end to a continuous Peterborough losing streak that had extended back back into the campaign of 1927. The Saints' 4 to 2 victory over the visitors was in fact the first O.H.A. win credited to a Peterborough team since a year ago last February and is being accepted as a good omen for this year's teams.

Considering the fact that the teams have had little or no chance to practice, last night's fixture was a surprisingly good hockey game with the pace fast from start to finish, and both outfits going their last ounce to win. It was a clean but closely-fought battle, interesting until the last bell, because the visitors never stopped trying even when they found themselves two goals down in the closing stages. Naturally, of course, there was not a great deal of team work, but what the game lacked in that respect it made up for in interest and excitement and the unusually large turnout of fans voted it a good start for the season.

St. John's had a slight edge throughout, but never enough to put the game safely in the win column until the last few minutes. The Saints introduced four new players to the O.H.A. ranks last night, and the rookies all made good, with "Doc" Hewett leading the parade as the outstanding star of the game. The prevailing "flu" deprived the winners of the services of Terry Hall, while Cuthbertson and Howe are just convalescing from an attack and played under difficulties, as did Dunkerley, who was handicapped by a bad cold.

Despite these disadvantages the winners turned in a good exhibition and should round into a strong aggregation. Young Tommy Miller, making his debut in the nets, performed like a veteran. The youngster is cool and steady and he played the visitors' shots very confidently. Howe did some effective checking and rushing, and his defence mate, Frost, came through with one of the nicest rushes of the night to give the Saints a goal they needed badly in the final period.

Hewett was the ace of the attacking division. Although it was only his second time on skates this season, he played all but a few minutes of the game, scored two nice goals, assisted in a third, and was not only the best play-maker but the most effective back-checker for his team. Cuthbertson contributed some effective work at centre, although not really in shape to play, and Dunkerley gave everything he had at left wing. Freddie Meagher was a pepper pot every time he was tossed out, and succeeded in ringing up a goal in his first O.H.A. start, while Weir worked hard whenever called upon.

The Bobcaygeon team—which incidentally included three Fenelon Falls players—proved a hard-working and close-checking aggregation, with a clever young goaler in Nicholls and a coming star in Daniels, their fast-skating right defence man, who scored both their goals. Armstrong did well on the forward lines, and the others worked their heads off to win.

The game was well handled by Elwood Coombs of Lindsay, and was very clean, only four penalties for minor offences being handed out.

The line-up:

Bobcaygeon:
Goal—J. Nicholls.
Defence—H. Johnson, Daniels.
Centre—Armstrong.
Right wing—Kelso.
Left wing—Wright.
Alternates—J. Johnston, L. Nicholls.

St. John's:
Goal—Miller.
Defence—Frost, Howe.
Centre—Cuthbertson.
Right wing—Hewett.
Alternates—Meagher, Weir.

The teams opened up at a lively clip, although the checking was so close that few scoring opportunities came up in the early stages. Both Miller and Nicholls worked smoothly on long shots and the 'Caygeon goaler made several smart saves on close-in plays by Hewett and Cuthbertson. Saints had a little the better of the going, but could not break through for a score and it was the visitors who finally scored. Meagher drew the first penalty of the game, and Bobcaygeon immediately pressed the attack. They were rewarded when Daniels broke away from centre and carried the rubber through smartly to beat Miller at close range. Two minutes after, Hewett evened up for the Saints by a fast rush down the side, and a pretty shot into the corner of the net.

The only score in the second period went to the ultimate winners who had more success in working in close than the visitors. It came five minutes after the period opened, when Hewett broke away for another nice rush and a dead-on shot which Nicholls stopped, only to have Meagher close in fast and bat in the rebound.

With a goal lead the Saints dropped back a three-man defence and although the Bobcaygeon youngsters battled all the way they had little success in breaking through, and the period ended with St. John's leading 2 to 1.

The Saints continued their defensive game in the third period, but when Cuthbertson drew a penalty for tripping and Daniels took advantage of the opening to bat in a rebound on a side shot by Wright and tie the score, the game suddenly opened wide. Frost soon put his team in front again by breaking away. Skating round the Bobcaygeon defence and whipping a swift shot into the corner of the net. It was a nice effort made when it was needed.

Then the winners fell back on the defence tactics again, while Bobcaygeon retorted by hurling every man up on the attack. It was their only chance, but they had no luck with it. Cuthbertson caught them all up the ice and broke away to go in on top of Nicholls, who made a sensational save. A few moments later Cuthbertson again out-footed the visitors, and this time he rounded the net and slipped the rubber out in front to Hewett, who slammed in the Saints last goal.

Two goals in front the local crew were able to successfully protect their nets for the balance of the game, although the visitors fought until the finish.

Voice of the People

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: It is a pity my friend contradicted my remarks on cricket teams in England and Australia without knowing more about it. He says that no native Australian ever was the cause of Australia's defeat. Albert Scott was one of the greatest all-rounders Australia ever produced. He beat Australia in 1891, when playing for England on Lord's ground in a test match, for I saw him do it. He made top-score and took most of Australia's wickets. There were many other cases of Australian players, who, like Whysall, two years ago, were engaged to remain in England. Some of these players helped to defeat Australia but Scott did it, and the press commented on it. Australian teams in England and Australia were always amateurs and natives made up from the ordinary walks of life, such as civil servants, clerks in shops, clergymen, doctors, solicitors, etc., but there was never one of them a professional cricketer in any sense, as Australia often proved when the charge was made. Chapman is the only real amateur on the present English team in Australia. If your correspondent means business let him tell us who and what they are if the others are not professionals. Australia has engaged English professionals to go to Australia as coaches, but she never played any against England. It's all right. There's no harm in it. But England never even came out here without a lot of professionals on the teams. In South Africa England was represented almost wholly by professionals, while all South Africa's great cricketers are amateurs. I am not sure about W. Indies, but I think it was so there too. I do not think it was ever pretended in England that she could produce a team of "gentlemen," as they call them, to beat Australian "gentlemen." I never heard it. That is the only point I wished to make, that Australian teams are all amateurs and cornstalks, and England's were not. I remember the row there was when Australia let English professionals walk out the same door with them, as if they were gentlemen. There was a row at the Oval about it too because that had always been the custom, but no one ever saw Australian cricketers in England sent round to walk out the other door of their own quarters because they were not pros. at all, and had a right to go where they liked. P. F. Warner who captained the English team that won back the "ashes" after so many years, was not an Englishman at all, but was born in W. Indies.—J. B.

TIGERS DEFEAT CATARACTS 4-2

Hamilton Plays Combination Hockey To Pull Out of Cellar Position.

OUTCLASS LALONDE MEN.

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Exhibiting the prettiest combination play of the local season, Hamilton's canpro representatives last night scored a 4 to 2 victory over the Niagara Falls Cataracts and pulled out of the cellar berth. The locals have been threatening for a long time to break loose in a brilliant exhibition. And they did it last night, completely stopping the batting Big Roar crew with a close-checking game that had their opponents struggling to break free and outclassing the attack of the Lalonde men with a powerful machine that made full use of sharp passes and tricky dribbling in the centre ice area.

Battle to a Draw

KITCHENER, Ont., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—The Kitchener Flying Dutchmen could get only an even division of the points in a tame Canpro argument here last night, with the London Panthers, and which ended in a 1 to 1 draw after ten minutes' overtime. It was the locals' third overtime game in succession, and they have a two-point hold on second place in the league standing.

BOWMANVILLE HERE MONDAY

Tangle With Petes in Opening Game of Intermediate Schedule.

PLAYERS IN GOOD SHAPE.

The fans will get their first chance to size up the 1929 Petes on Monday night at Brock Street Rink when they clash with the strong Bowmanville sextette in the first Intermediate fixture.

The Petes' management are confident that they can ice a team that will surprise the rail birds for its strength. They have a wealth of good, well experienced players that have garnered considerable knowledge of hockey as it should be played during their young lives—most of the players are young—playing on City League and Junior O.H.A. teams. Such well known players as Maudsley, Williams, Lackey, Cripps, Ted Lebarr, Foley and Thornton have been training faithfully during the past six weeks and are in great trim for a strenuous season. In Jack Lebarr tending the nets the Petes have without doubt one of the best goalers in Eastern Ontario. It is expected that Red Legon will also be on the lineup for Monday night's game and the fans will be glad to see the red-top in a blue and white jersey again.

Abbie Rose has been coaching the team and there isn't much worth knowing about hockey that Abbie can't tell the team. The boys are all working hard under his leadership and everything is running as smooth as silk.

Not much is known about the Bowmanville outfit as it is their first game also, but the people in the Goodyear town always take their hockey seriously and the are expected to have a strong lineup.

There will be another practice before the big game Monday night when the team will be chosen and final instructions given out.

The reserved seats go on sale tonight at Bond's Drug Store.

FAMOUS HOCKEY GAMES OF PETERBOROUGH TEAMS

By F.D.C.

The only professional hockey game ever played in Peterborough took place on February 16, 1911, and it was far from being a success.

In fact, The Examiner next day remarked: "Twenty goals, thirty penalties, and five hundred disgusted spectators were features of the professional hockey game at Brock Street Rink between the Port Hope pros. and the Trenton-Belleville-Picton pros.

These teams were members of the ill-fated Eastern Ontario professional league which inveigled a lot of good hockey players into the folds and then blew up.

Peterborough was chosen as a good place for a barn-storming visit, but the experiment was never repeated.

The game was a farce. The players didn't attempt to take it seriously, although they mixed with a will, and what little excitement could be extracted from the clash was found in the feuds that started up.

The Port Hope pros. won as they pleased by 15 to 5. The line-up included Bobby Mercer, who had played goal for Peterborough years before. Andy Kyle, who had been a star Toronto junior. Manson, a smooth stick-handler, who was heard of in Peterborough afterwards, and Ken. Randall, about the only member of the two teams who ever got far in professional hockey.

On the other line-up were two products of the Peterborough City League. Fred Doherty of Norwood and Ben Dusty, Lightfoot, the former Stratford player, Crossett of Tillsonburg, Bill Lane, the ex-Toronto Parkdale rover, and Chipchase, who had been a member of the Montreal Wanderers, but not on the form he showed here.

Harvey Sproule and Fred Waghorne, of Toronto, were the officials, and they had their hands full, inflicting thirty penalties. The crowd didn't appreciate the attempt to check up on the rough stuff, preferring to see the players cut loose.

All round it was a terrible affair—and everybody was glad when it was over.

The line-up:

Port Hope Pros. — Goal, Mercer; point, Kyle; cover, Nixon; rover, Manson; centre, Randall; right wing, Rowden; left wing, McMillan.

Belleville Pros. — Goal, Baker; point, Doherty; cover, Lane; rover, Dusty, Carmichael; right wing, Lightfoot; left wing, Crossett.

TEX RICKARD FARING WELL

Extra Doctor Summoned To Attend Promoter as Precautionary Measure.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5. (Canadian Press.) — Dr. William Mayo, Rochester, Minn., specialist, has been summoned to attend Tex Rickard, ill at Miami, Fla., merely as a precautionary measure, close friends of the boxing promoter said here last night. They said there was no cause for alarm over Rickard's condition.

Bent on learning the exact nature of the promoter's condition, Rickard's associates here got into telephone conversation with members of the promoter's party in Florida. They learned, they said, that Dr. Mayo had been summoned at the express wish of Mrs. Rickard, who wished to satisfy herself that her husband was given the best of care while he is recovering from the operation for appendicitis performed on January 1.

Disquieting reports as to the lack of progress the promoter was making after the operation, were given additional momentum with the announcement from Havana that Dr. Mayo, delegate to a conference held there had been summoned to Rickard's bedside.

Rickard's physicians tried by both cable and telephone calls to reach the famous specialist. It was said that a special plane from Miami was to reach here this morning and that it would proceed to Santiago De Cuba if necessary in order to reach Dr. Mayo.

Rickard Growing Weaker.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 5 (Associated Press).—The first official bulletin issued from the hospital where Tex Rickard lies critically ill was made public early to-day. It said: "A definite change for better or worse will probably take place within the next ten hours."

The bulletin was issued by Dr. E. H. Adkins. The physician previously had said Mr. Rickard was "gradually growing weaker." The bulletin follows:

"Mr. Rickard is in a critical condition. A decided change for the worse was noted early last evening and his condition has gradually been growing weaker since the relapse. We are hoping that he will successfully combat the condition following an operation for a gangrene appendix. A definite change for the better or worse will probably take place within the next ten hours."

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, at last I've had a chance to give our local hockey material the once over, and I saw enough, Mac, in the 1st workout of the 3 Peterborough teams to make it possible for me to predict right now that we are sure at least of having every bit as good a season as last year. That may seem a kinda strong statement after only 1 workout, Mister Sporting Editor, but anyway she goes as she lays. And as this here wandering epistle is being writ Thurs. and as our 2 jr. teams both is scheduled to go into action Fri. night, there is the chance that by the time the customers, if any, peruse these lines last year's record may already been smashed. Be that as it may, I'm willing to steak my reputation as a cricket that no matter how the brakes go our 1929 record won't fall behind the 1928 showing.

Seriesly, Mac, though, it seems to me that they is something wrong with hockey development here. The system falls down somewhere, and we are not getting the material among the teen age boys that oughta be available. Frankly, they is a surprising lack of class among young players. Good stick-handling is a novelty; very few kids seem to have any idea of the poke check, without which no player's technique is complete nowadays, and all in all, good prospects is few and far between. This ain't a knock, Mac, but a simple statement of the truth, writ in the hope that we may be able to get together and find out where the weak spots is in our present system, whether its lack of coaching, lack of facilities for practice, lack of opportunities of seeing 1st grade hockey played, or whatever it is. It's not uncommon for good jr. players to jump right outa the kids' series into the professional ranks and make good, but, no fooling, Mac, we gotta change our ways down here before they'll be any pro scouts looking over our games. They ain't no reason why we shouldn't be bringing along a crop of promising youngsters every season, but we're not doing it, old-timer, not by a jug full, and it seems to me it's high time we began to wonder why we're not.

Well, old-timer, if the weather man continues to send the right brand they won't be no call to go hockey hungry here for some time. They is plenty of games billed, and they will be a variety of entertainment with Marmora and 3 Peterborough teams playing their home games here.

The fans is reminded that hockey teams can't be run with nothing coming in at the gate but the players and the referee. A few cash customers is an absolute necessity, and the folks what want to see hockey get along here will have to give the boys a following. Otherwise we're in for some lean years.

Well, Mac, how're your New Year's resolutions getting along? Me, too, only I never made none this time.

Next week they oughta be a chance to size up the teams, so till then, old scout, I'll ring off.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

FRENCH-CANUCK REGAINS TITLE

Belanger Decisively Outpoints Steve Rocco in Ten Round Bout.

SNAPPY BATTLE.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Turning in what was perhaps the best bout of his career, which has been featured by a meteoric climb to the world's championship and then a fall to almost the curtain-raiser class, Frenchy Belanger of this city last night regained the Canadian flyweight title at the Coliseum when he decisively outpointed the champion, Steve Rocco, who won the crown from Belanger exactly seven months ago. It was the Belanger of the sensational climb in which obstacles called Newsboy Brown, Frankie Genaro and Ernie Jarvis, were successfully hurdled, who literally took Rocco last night, and his effort in regaining the championship was a masterpiece of fighting.

While Belanger won from his local rival in no uncertain style, his margin being much more definite than that by which Rocco won the title early last June, he did not collect all the honors that were available last night, as Rocco in defeat was a real champion, and he did not give up his effort until the final bell rang, although it was only his heart that kept him on his feet until the tenth round ended. Rocco was able to outbox his opponent, but he could not outfight him, and it was Belanger's superiority in this branch of the game that enabled him to wear down Rocco, and on three different occasions have him apparently on the verge of a knock-out. Twice the champion was able to call his remarkable recuperative powers to his assistance, and he came back in the following round to maintain his unsuccessful effort to defend his title. But the final time was in the last round and the bell sounded as the Belanger adherents were calling to their idol to knock out his opponent. But try as he did, he could not put Rocco off his feet.

Preliminaries

Willie Davies of Charlerol, Pa., fought a clever battle in gaining an 8-round decision over Art Giroux of Montreal. Giroux showed himself to be a rugged boxer. But Davies was faster and landed the cleaner blows Giroux weighed 114 and Davies 113.

Willie Cubic, Chilean negro, gained a close decision over Harry Hill of Montreal, formerly of England, in six rounds. Hill had a peculiar style of fighting with a wildly swinging left, but Cubic was the aggressor most of the way. It was a free-swinging battle with plenty of solid blows landed. Cubic weighed 113½ and Hill 112½.

McCoy, of Buffalo, 115, defeated Lew Goldberg, of New York, 116 over the six-round route. McCoy was too clever for Goldberg, who seemed to carry too much weight and won by a good margin.

Billy Ayrton, Winnipeg, 117, won a four-round decision over Ernie Brooks, Toronto, 118. Ayrton is only a youngster, but showed much improvement over his last appearance here.

London Rejoices Over Cricket Victory

LONDON, Jan. 5.— (Canadian Press.)— Beating Australia by three wickets for the third straight cricket match and victory in one of the sternest series of struggles in the long history of Great Britain's national game, caused rejoicing throughout England to-day. Streaming headlines in the papers ran: "England Keeps Ashes—Australia Has Sackcloth." News of the illness of the King was relegated to the corners of the first pages. The mythical ashes are the symbol of Anglo-Australian cricket supremacy.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

As a novelist and as a writer of short stories in the leading magazines, the British author, Miss Clemence Dane, is very well known indeed, here but as a playwright she is a comparative stranger.

Olive Walter

This, despite the fact that her dramas have probably caused more general commotion than any other aspect of her work and one of them, "A Bill of Divorcement" rates as the most powerful single contribution to the London theatre since the war.

This lack of first-hand knowledge, however, is now being dealt with and the play from her pen which is coming is, luckily, "A Bill of Divorcement", at the Grand to-night for an engagement of one night only.

Gordon McLeod, who starred in the leading role in England for a matter of 62 successive weeks, will also be seen in the same part here. The production has been brought intact from London and the supporting cast, headed by Lilian Christine, includes Aubrey Mallalieu, Heather McIntyre, Olive Walter, P. Kynaston Reeves and W. Hartnell.

Miss Dane has a very trenchant and vigorous style of her own of dealing with dramatic matters which results in an absorbing play with no slack moments. She also has a complete and far-reaching acquaintance with the theatre, so that her play is a finished piece of work and has, clearly, been written with the idea of keeping an audience on the edge of its seats, constantly in mind.

From her other work, it is easy to see that there is nothing stereotyped or commonplace about her writing. Who but Miss Dane would have thought of staging a divorce problem as a Christmas play and of staging it in the future instead of the present? Both of these, she has done in "A Bill of Divorcement" and, as the play's records show, has done them in remarkable fashion.

BRANSBY WILLIAMS IN "OLIVER TWIST"

The man who has studied and played and lived Dickensian roles for so long that he is regarded as the greatest portrayer of the many strong characters in Dickens comes to the Grand on Wednesday, January 9, with a new version of "Oliver Twist" that is certain to add new beauties to this great work, Bransby Williams' seal of approval on a revision of Dickens is sufficient for most people, for he has brought out for those who have seen his work the finest of shading in these masterly writings.

In the new version of "Oliver Twist" he presents a consecutive story. He has eliminated some of the superfluous dialogue and has redrafted the order of events, giving to each its proper place in sequence and dramatic value. This cuts out many slow changes of scene, and enables the audience to follow the magnificent story without being handicapped, or having the thread of its hypnotic force broken by side excursions. Everything is given, but the minor events are presented as "cameos"—briefly crossing the stage to keep the story well-knit and complete. Thus are the greater moments properly played up.

Mr. Williams does a remarkable night's work in "Oliver Twist" playing both Fagin and Mr. Grimwig—as far apart as the poles in mental, physical and moral make-up, and each in itself big enough for a leading actor. His versatility is such that it is difficult to beleive that the same man does both. Another splendid piece of work in "Oliver Twist" is the Nancy of Miss Kathleen Saintsbury. The supporting company is extraordinarily strong and well-balanced.

AT THE CAPITOL.

EMIL JANNINGS, THE SCREEN'S GREATEST ACTOR, WILL BE SEEN AT THE CAPITOL ON MONDAY, IN HIS NEWEST SUCCESS, "THE PATRIOT."

A remarkable performance will be seen at the Capitol on Monday, when the screen's greatets character actor, Emil Jannings, opens a three-day engagement in "The Patriot."

"The Patriot" follows faithfully the play by Alfred Neumann celebrated European playwright, Ernst Lubitsch, also a European, directed the film masterpiece, and has won new laurels.

Jannings is, to put it mildly, superb. There is little doubt he has achieved the greatest acting of his career in "The Patriot." Portraying a character with the heart of a child, and the brain of a tiger Jannings has brought to the screen and modern times a figure of history, Mad Czar Paul I. of Russia.

Paul I. was the son of Catherine the Great. He inherited the fire of his mother and the mentality of his father, making a queer mixture. He proceeds at his mother's death to tear down all that had been built up during Catherine's regime, and with ruthless cruelty and authority. He was brought to his end by the workings of his best friend, Count Pahlen, a part portrayed in the film by Lewis Stone. He is "the patriot" of the story, and gives a very remarkable characterization.

Florence Vidor as the Countess Ostermann glides through her role like a delightful dream. Neil Hamilton as the Crown Prince Alexander treats his role in a very human way. Vera Voronina and Harry Cording are two others who stand out with their work.

"The Patriot" will surely be numbered among those select few films which are placed at the head of the cinema list. Lovers of drama will fairly revel in it. No words can describe adequately the tremendous appeal as it is mirrored on the screen in this production. It is the peak of cinematic achievement.

AT THE REGENT.

LAST CHANCE TO-NIGHT TO SEE "THE MICHIGAN KID"—ONE OF THE FEW GREAT PICTURES OF 1928 COMING MONDAY.

Unusual Cast of Screen Artists Gathered for "The Yellow Lily," Billie Dove's Latest Production

A search of Hollywood for motion picture actors who are at once notable performers and striking character types, could not produce a finer group than that which appears in "The Yellow Lily," coming to the Regent Theatre on Monday.

Billie Dove is the star of this First National adaptation of the Lajos Biro play, which was also called "The Yellow Lily." The play, dealing with Hungarian locale, demands the very best acting ability for all of its many characters, regardless of their relative importance.

And how quaint, picturesque, colorful—and, as the case may be, beautiful or grotesque—those characters are! Probably their like could be found in no European country but Hungary, land of the Magyar, the Oriental-European!

Billie Dove, the star, is ideal as the heroine of this interesting story.

Clive Brook, the distinguished English film actor, is Miss Dove's leading man in "The Yellow Lily." He enacts the role of an Hungarian Archduke, and has a powerful part in the unusual love story of the play.

Gustav Von Seyffertitz, famous character actor, portrays "Kinkeline," mysterious, subtle and powerful "right-hand man" and agent of the Archduke. Nicholas Soussanin, once famous on the Russian stage, appears as the heroine's brother, a doctor in a small Hungarian village.

The mayor of the village, a quaint comedy character, is portrayed by Charles Puffy, famous Hungarian comedian. Jane Winton is the faming actress from Budapest, of whom the hero tires when he sees Miss Dove. Marc MacDermott and Eugenie Besserer are the Archduke and Archduchess Ludovici.

Even in roles of comparatively minor importance, actors of great ability, and in some cases, of real fame, appear. And among the extras, striking types, and in most cases, real Hungarians, are the rule.

Minor roles are enacted by Paul Vincenti, Yola d'Avril and Frances Hamilton, all contract players with First National. Anna Varney, former star at the Belviarosa Theatre, Budapest, Hungary, plays a mere "bit." Another bit is enacted by John Westwood, Princeton college lad.

"The Yellow Lily" has a thrilling plot dealing with exotic love and intrigue. It was directed by Alexander Korda, famous Hungarian director. All costumes and properties used in the picture were imported from Hungary.

SCORE SECOND VICTORY.

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 5.— (Canadian Press.) — Queen's University hockey team scored their second consecutive triumph on Halifax ice by defeating an ex-Dalhousie University team here last night by a 5 to 0 score.

VIEWS ON SPORT

In winning last night the St. John's team brought in the first victory in 1929 and the first win for a Peterborough hockey team since 1927.

It was a tired bunch of players that skated off the ice at the finish of the game last night, none of the Petes had had more than two practices and several had only been on ice once before. Even at that it was a good game, the teams being evenly matched and the fans went away well satisfied.

* * * * * * *

St. John's have a smart forward line in the three P.C.I. boys, George Cuthbertson, "Doc" Hewett and Joe Dunkerley. Cuthbertson was just recovering from an attack of "flu" but he turned in an effective game at centre ice. Hewett played a steady game and was always dangers on the attack; he has a shot that was dead on the nets every time and he got it away fast. The whole front line back checked every attack that Bobcaygeon essayed.

* * * * * * *

The relief men, Meagher and Weir, were sent in often to relieve the pressure and they were both there every time.

* * * * * * *

The defence pair, Howe and Frost, teamed up well and there were only a few attacks that ever got past them. Frost delighted the fans in the way that he took his man out of the play with clean body checks and he made one of the prettiest single-handed rushes of the whole game to score the St. John's third goal, which broke the tie and downed the 'Caygeon hopes.

* * * * * * *

Tommie Miller, the fifteen year old net guardian of the team handled the shots heaved at him with coolness of a veteran. With the exception of being a little slow in clearing on one occasion, which resulted in the Bobcaygeon second goal, he played a sterling game between the posts.

The managers of the City League teams are busy scouting for players and maneuvering to secure a strong lineup. Percy Harrison has signed up what appears to be a team that will require some beating, the north end having secured the John Henry's of: Gillespie and Hutchison, for goal, Johnson, Thornton, Calladine, Jarvis, Dundas, Maudsley, and Kenneally and he has his eyes on some good youngsters that he intends to use with these regulars.

* * * * * * *

The schedule for the City League has been drawn up and the executive is now only delaying until word is received from the rink management on definite dates. It is confidently expected that the opening night will be not later than next week.

Frenchy Belanger, regained the heights of stardom last night at the Coliseum when he decisively out-pointed Steve Rocco and reclaimed the flyweight championship of Canada. Rocco took the championship from Belanger seven months ago, and the latter on his poor showing appeared to be through. But he has staged a determined comeback and in regaining the title he left no doubt as to his superiority forcing Rocco always to keep on the defensive before a shower of gloves.

It is reported that Babe Ruth has gone into strenuous training to reduce his 234½ pounds and girth somewhat before the big campaign. The babe is certainly watching his waist line and condition much closer now than he did a few years ago.

In a rough game that kept the penalty box cramped with players during the game, even goaltender Mick of Port Hope getting two penalties, Port Hope defeated Oshawa Simcoes 6 to 5 at Bowmanville last night in the first Intermediate game of the Lakeshore group.

TEX RICKARD SERIOUSLY ILL

Famous Promoter Takes Turn For Worse After Appendix Operation.

VISITORS NOT ALLOWED.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Tex Rickard, president of Madison Square Garden, lies near death at Allison Hospital, Miami Beach, to-day. The famous promoter, who underwent an operation Tuesday evening for appendicitis, suddenly took a decided turn for the worse at midnight, and physicians are working to save his life.

Physicians have refused to permit anyone to see Rickard except Mrs. Rickard, who is in constant attendance at her husband's bedside.

Jack Dempsey, who arrived here early last evening, and who planned to pay Rickard a visit, was refused admittance to the sick room on account of the promoter's serious condition. Physicians felt that Rickard needs complete rest and quiet.

NOTED PROMOTER IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Bulletin Issued To-day States Promoter Slightly Better This Morning.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Tex Rickard is "slightly better this morning, but his condition still is critical," said a bulletin issued shortly before 9 a.m. to-day by Dr. E. H. Atkins, the physician who operated on the New York promoter last Thursday far acute gangrenous appendicitis.

"Mr. Rickard is slightly better this morning, but his condition is still critical," it said. "The inflammation has subsided slightly. This morning his pulse was 128. Last night it was 146. His temperature this morning is 103.4. Last night it was 104.

Walter Fields, intimate friend of the promoter, who relieved Mrs. Rickard at the bedside early to-day said Tex had a restful sleep near daybreak and upon awakening remarked that he "Felt better than at any time since the operation."

Dempsey Worried Over Rickard.

Jack Dempsey said to-day he was gravely concerned over the condition of his friend, Tex Rickard, millionaire fight promoter, who is seriously ill in Miami Beach Hospital.

Dempsey arrived in Miami yesterday with a party of friends, and immediately called at the hospital. He was told then, and again when he called this morning, that Rickard's condition was too serious to permit anyone to visit him.

BELANGER WEARS DOWN OPPONENT

French-Canadian's Victory Over Steve Rocco at Toronto an Impressive One.

TORONTO, Ont., January 5 (Canadian Press). — They do come back. Albert "Frenchy" Belanger, shorn of his world's flyweight title, under National Boxing Commission recognition, and the Canadian crown, made a great stride along the comeback trail at the Coliseum here last night when he fought his way to clear 10-round victory over Steve Rocco, Canadian champion. Both are Toronto boys, and it was sweet revengee for Belanger, because it was Rocco to whom the hard-hitting Belanger lost his Dominion crown last summer.

Belanger's victory was an impressive one. After a slow start the challenger fought a cool, careful battle, and in the end had the champion reeling about the ring, his face a mass of blood. Rocco's early speed and bounding in-and-out style had Belanger puzzled, but the challenger pounded steadily ahead with a body attack that wore down his opponent and tore in to slam Rocco almost at will in the final rounds. Rocco was the boxer and Belanger the fighter.

Those hard, solid wallops of the French lad took their toll, and it was only the gameness and stout fighting heart of the little Italian-Canadian that saved him from a knock-out. Unofficially Belanger was credited with six rounds, Rocco with three, while one was even, but Belanger inflicted terrific punishment and won by a wide margin. Belanger weighed 112 and Rocco 111.

NEW YORK., N.Y., Jan. 5 (Canadian Press).—Max Schmeling, black-browed German youngster, who bears a marked physical and faint fighting resemblance to Jack Dempsey, gave Joe Sekyra, blonde Dayton heavyweight, a thorough ten-round trouncing last night in the main bout at the ailing Tex Rickard fight mansion. Uncle Wiggily

UNCLE WIGGILY AND SQUEAKY'S SURPRISE

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

One day when Uncle Wiggily was hopping along a path through the woods with Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit, she saw something on the ground at a place where the wind had blown away the snow.

"Oh, Unkie Wig!" cried Baby Bunty, pointing with her paw, "what's that on the path?"

"It's an old, last year's bird nest that the wind has blown down out of the tree where the birds made it fast," answered Mr. Longears.

"Oh, and were the little birds hurt when the wind blew down their nest?" asked Bunty.

"No," answered Uncle Wiggily. "The little birds had grown up and they had flown away, and so had the father and mother birds, when this nest blew down. It may have been blown down only last night. No birds were in the nest then, Bunty."

The rabbit gentleman lifted up the nest..

"I'm glad of that," spoke the little rabbit girl. "But this is a very good nest, Unkie Wig. It didn't get broken when the wind blew it down. It could be used again when spring comes."

"Perhaps it could," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "When we come back, after we look for an adventure, I'll put this nest up in a tree again, if it is still here."

Then Uncle Wiggily and Bunty hopped along, leaving the old nest on the ground. As Bunty had said, it was almost as good as new, and when Squeaky Eekie, the cousin mouse, came creeping along a little while after that she saw the nest on the ground and, being quite cold, especially in her long, thin tail, Squeaky said to herself:

"I'll cuddle up in this old bird's nest and get warm before I go on to the store to get mother's lump of sugar."

Squeaky Eekie, the cousin mouse, had been sent by her mother to buy a lump of sugar. You know mice families never buy so much as a pound, or even so much as a quarter of a pound, of sugar at a time. They only get one lump at a time and that lasts them almost a year.

So Squeaky Eekie, the cousin mouse, was on her way to get the lump of sugar when she saw the old bird's nest and into it she cuddled. She pulled some of the silk floss from the milk weed plant, which lined the nest, over her head and soon she was as warm as toast and fell asleep.

Some time later back came hopping Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty. They had not found an adventure but Bunty saw the nest again and said:

"Oh, Unkie Wig! Stick it back up in a tree where the birds can find it in the spring and lay new eggs in to hatch out new little birds. Please do!"

So the rabbit gentleman, knowing nothing of Squeaky Eekie in the nest, and not seeing her because she was cuddled beneath the milkweed down, lifted up the nest and stuck it in a tree as high as he could reach over his head, at a place where two branches made a safe place, in shape like the letter Y. So there the nest was left with the little cousin mouse asleep in it.

Uncle Wiggily and Bunty went on home, and, after a while, Squeaky Eekie awakened in the bird's nest. For a moment she could not remember where she was or what had happened and then, all of a sudden she remembered and she said:

"Now I'll creep along and get the lump of sugar." But when she started to crawl out of the nest she looked over the edge and what a surprise for Squeaky Eekie, the cousin mouse, when she saw how high up she was from the ground. "Oh, the nest wasn't this high when I went to sleep in it!" she squeaked. "Something must have happened!"

The cousin mouse was very little and she was afraid to jump down out of the nest and afraid to climb down the tree, so she didn't know what to do and she thought perhaps she would have to stay there in the bird's nest forever.

But when Uncle Wiggily and Bunty were near the hollow stump bungalow they met Jollie and Jilly Longtail, the cousins of Squeaky Eekie.

"Have you seen her?" called Jollie to Uncle Wiggily. "Have you seen our cousin mouse?"

"No," said Uncle Wiggily, "I haven't. Is she lost?" Then Jollie and Jillie told about Squeaky Eekie going for a lump of sugar hours ago and not having come home with it yet. "We'll go look for her," said the rabbit. So he and Baby Bunty and Jollie and Jillie hurried back through the woods and pretty soon they heard Squeaky crying high up in the nest.

"Help me down!" Help me down!" begged the cousin mouse.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily when he saw the cousin mouse peeking over the edge. "A mouse in a bird's nest! What a surprise! Ha! Ha!" Then he lifted the nest, with Squeaky Eekie in it, to the ground and then she was all right and could go get the lump of sugar. But after that Squeakie never went to sleep in a nest on the ground.

Again the schoolboy outgrows his clothes. Publishing circles report the expenditure by the Family Herald and Weekly Star of close upon a half million dollars for huge new printing presses to cope with their fast-growing subscription list. At their new low subscription rate of three years for $2, one is prompted to ask "How long before they outgrow this one?"

CHAMPAGNE PLENTIFUL.

PARIS, Jan. 5—The trend in champagne prices should soon show a downward trend. This year's vineyard harvest yielded an increase of more than five million gallons over 1927, when the total was only two million gallons. It is said that the quality of the '28 vintage will also be quite "superior."
